Campus Chest Approved For Trial Basis At FSU

Law Passes After Askew, Campbell Confab; Head Only Dissenting Vote

University Council approved the adoption of a one year trial basis for a student campus chest in its first meeting of the new year Wednesday.

The proposal for such a campus charity drive had been initiated by the group at Florida State University at its last meeting before the Christmas holidays. It was given final approval Wednesday after Rube Askew, president of University Government Association, had conferred with University President Doak S. Campbell on the matter.

ALIAN HEAD cast the only dissenting vote when the proposal was discussed in the council meeting.

Rube started that the chairman of the campus charity drive will probably be appointed at the next council session. Tentative plans include a week-long drive which would be the only student fund campaign of the year. Activities will be scheduled each night of the drive similar to those presented by the World Student Service Fund in the past.

AFTER A FEW days, contributions have been received they will be apportioned to each charity.

The council has also gone on record as wholeheartedly supporting the Honor Emphasis Week. It voted to submit a request from the steering fund for the guest quarter for the occasion.

Plans are also being completed for the inauguration of a Civil Defense Training Program unit on campus. Will Pennell heads the committee appointed to work with the local unit here on securing information about it. Ted Steinmeyer is assistant chairman of the committee.

Delinquent Lists in Junior English Have Been Posted

The Junior English delinquent lists have been posted in the History building on East campus and in the English building on West campus according to Martha G. Chapman, director of Junior English.

The names are listed according to classification of the student concern and according to the schools in which students are enrolled. Students are delinquent for two reasons: first, failure to take the Junior English examination; second, failure to enroll for remedial work.

The first group may clear the record by taking the examination January 16, at 4:30 p m in Westcott auditorium. No one is permitted to repeat the examination. The second group may clear the record enrolling for remedial work at the next regular registration on February 10.

Sophomores take the Junior English examination at the end of their sophomore year. Then it is the privilege of the department to decide who stand in need of remedial work will enroll for the classes they need.

Second semester sophomores may take the examination on Thursday, January 18, at 4:30 p m in Westcott auditorium.

Xmas Seal Drive Collects Only $254

A total of $254 in contributions has been received by the Leon County Christmas Seal drive.

This is a very small amount when compared to the $4,000 which contributed last year by the students in the first attempt made to sell the seals by mail on this campus," said seal chairman Kelley Kelley.

Students who have not returned their seals or sent in their contributions are reminded Kelley that it is not too late to do so. Envelopes for the return of contributions were included in the seal packages received by students before Christmas.

"THE FIGHT against tuberculosis is not one that is confined to the holiday season, but is a year-round process," I urge all students who overlooked sending in their contribution before Christmas to do so now. It is never too late to help in the fight against TB," Kelley emphasized.

University Gives Inductees Credit

Culpepper Announces Plan Approved by State Board

Florida State University students who are inducted into military service while attending the University will be allowed proportionate credits for the work they have completed.

Dr J Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare and university military liaison officer, said the FSU executive council has agreed on the following procedure:

"STUDENTS called into service during the present emergency will be given credit for the semester in which they are inducted into military service and who have completed more than half of the semester or of the summer term of nine weeks who are passing at their inductions will be allowed proportionate credit for the part of the term completed."

Dean Culpepper said the executive council further agreed that these students would receive credit for the student going into the service is to be determined by the dean concerned and the registrar.

"As a means of helping the student establish credit to which he is entitled and to enable him, without having to contact a number of university officials," Culpepper said, "students have been advised that upon receipt of orders or upon notification by their local draft boards to report for induction into the armed services, John Flournoy, FSU supervisor of personnel, reports.

MR FLOURNOY will assist the students to fill out an application form for his credits.

Dr Culpepper said that as the nation moves toward general mobilization, and students are considering seriously volunteering in the branch of the service they prefer they are advised to consult with their educational instructors and deans of the school in which they are enrolled. As a further help to the students, the University has been designated as a special counselor to those students desiring planning to enter the service.

Later Hours Begin Feb 9

11 PM Set Week Nights; 12 Midnight Fri and Sat

Later hours for women students will begin on Friday, February 9, which is the first day of registration for the second semester of school for 1950-51, Dean Warren confirmed Thursday afternoon.

Women's Senate received news of the favorable action of the faculty reviewing board Wednesday evening and it was discussed during their meeting of that night.

Women will now be allowed to stay out until 11 o'clock Sunday through Thursday and till 12 midnight Friday and Saturday nights, with the exception of seniors, who will be granted 12:30 nights on the two weekend nights.

THE FACULTY Committee on Student Affairs voted favorably on this measure on December 14, which was too late for inclusion in the last edition of the Flambeau.

Later hours were passed on their second presentation to the faculty reviewing board by the Women's Senate. On the first occasion, the senators presenting the bill were told by Dean Culpepper that the ascertain whether the majority of the women students desired the later hours provided by the bill.

IN A POLL then conducted by the senators in all of the women's dormitories, two proposals for later hours were presented and voted on by the girls. The faculty reviewing board called a special meeting to consider the results of the bill at that time which resulted in the passage of last night's regulations which will be in effect next semester.

Informal Dance Set For Student Union

Members of the gymnastic troupe will perform during the intermission tomorrow night at the informal dance sponsored by the Student Union Organization.

Bill Hamilton and his orchestra will play for dancing from 8-11 at the Student Union on West Campus.

Intermission performers will include Hal Bryant, Florida Football Federation of Art, Miss Kawa has also shown painting in most of the important galleries in America. Her work was on exhibition at both world's fairs in New York and San Francisco.

In the Pensacola show, Miss Kawa is exhibiting seven oil paintings, and three in gouache. Included among the oil paintings entitled, "Mountain Girl," "The Bride," Rain in the South, and "Florida Cracker."

Critics have praised Miss Kawa for her excellent use of color. They have found her painting highly decorative, and have commented on her personalized treatment of Florida birds, flowers and scenes from nature.

Lawrence Signs Dance Contract For Sandspur

Chairman Reinhard Says Annual Prom Is Slated For February 24 Here

Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra was signed to play for the Sandspur dance February 24, Lawrence signed by Sandspur chairman, Herb Reinhard, on December 18, following several weeks of negotiations.

Lawrence was signed through the Associated Booking Corporation of New York City. They asked for $2500 but after several weeks of correspondence the price was $1500, Reinhard revealed.

The band is currently being featured in the north and will start their tour south in the middle of this month. They have played such well known clubs as Cincinnati's Castle Farm, Tampa's Cellarium, and Houston's famed Shamrock Hotel. They are booked for the Hollywood Palladium in early March.

ELLIOT Lawrence records for Decca and has just released his new long playing "College Prom-Dale" album. Some well known hit tunes as The Man I Love, Stardust and Blue Moon are included in the album.

His theme song of Heart to Heart by Swerland, musical magazine, as the nation's number one most promising band leader and last year was ranked second in playing most at college dances.

Pensacola Exhibit Features Art Work Of Florence Kawa

The work of Florence Kawa, instructor in art at Florida State University, is on display in a one-man show at the San Carlos Hotel in Pensacola. The exhibit opened New Year's day and will close January 15.

Miss Kawa took prize for the most original painting in the annual exhibit this month at the Florida Federation of Art, Miss Kawa has also shown painting in most of the important galleries in America. Her work was on exhibition at both world's fairs in New York and San Francisco.

In the Pensacola show, Miss Kawa is exhibiting seven oil paintings, and three in gouache. Included among the oil paintings entitled, "Mountain Girl," "The Bride," Rain in the South, and "Florida Cracker."

Critics have praised Miss Kawa for her excellent use of color. They have found her painting highly decorative, and have commented on her personalized treatment of Florida birds, flowers and scenes from nature.

Campus Characters To Appear Tuesday

A new editorial feature will make its initial appearance in the next issue of the Flambeau next Tuesday, editor, "Campus Characters."

The feature, written by Stan Schmidt, will be a weekly column and will devoted exclusively to campus leaders.

Schmidt promises that each sketch will be light, airy and enjoyable.

Editor Earl Dobert said, "This is another step in making the Flambeau more enjoyable for each student. I hope everyone will read this feature because they will probably be reading of their friends and maybe someday you will be featured in the article."

"Campus Characters" will appear twice a week.

Seniors Should File

All students who expect to graduate in June should file application in the Registrar's office immediately.

Honor Committee Emphasis Week Jan 13-19

Week's Program Slated Here; Stadium Rally Climaxes Events

Honor Emphasis Week, originally scheduled to begin tomorrow and close a week from tonight, has been postponed. Chief Justice of Honor Court, Willard "Bo" Baker announced last night that the week long emphasis on the campus Honor Code would be held from January 13 through Jan 19.

The special week was postponed because the Honor Committee had been unable to contact the president of the University of Virginia Honor Committee who is slated to be guest speaker at the gigantic student rally on Friday night to close Honor Emphasis Week. The University of Virginia group has been invited to participate in a major part of the honor week events, Baker said.

A FULL week's program of events relating to the Honor Code has been scheduled by the FSU Honor Committee, including special Honor Emphasis teas in all the dormitories. They will be assisted in the program by the Pan-

EDITOR'S NOTE

Due to a great deal of misunderstanding, conflict, misinterpretation, errors and a lot of trouble in getting the facts, the Florida Flambeau was unable to ascertain the details for Honor Emphasis Week until the last minute before press time. In the light of this fact, the editorial, "Honor Emphasized," the columns, "Editor's Easel" and "Fancy This" contain errors in dates. Instead of observing Honor Emphasis from January 6-12, it will be held one week later, January 13-19.

Hellenic Council, the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Tallahassee Ministerial Association and other organizations.

The January 16 issue of the Florida Flambeau will be dedicated to the promotion of better understanding and acceptance of the Honor Code on this FSU campus. Special features, columns, and news coverage will be used to carry out the Honor Emphasis theme of the issue.

BO BAKER stressed that the program was not only designed for students, but for faculty and administration also. Lectures and forums have been planned for each week and could be open to faculty and students alike.

Climaxing the week will be a giant student-faculty rally at Doak S Campbell stadium for affirmation of the Honor Code. Governor Fuller Warren and other Service representatives to help the graduates fill out application cards.

Students interested in teaching are not required to fill out a card.

For further information check at 203 Westcott before Thursday.

First 1951 Recital Features Two Profs

Prof John Boda and Prof Owen Sellers will be featured in the first faculty music recital of 1951 tonight at 8:15 in the new Music Hall. The opening number will feature both Prof Boda, assistant professor of piano, and Prof Sellers, associate professor of music and nationally known cellist, in a joint rendition of Sonata in A Major by Beethoven.

PROF BODA will then play several selections by Brahams followed by the cello and piano combination of Boda and Sellers in the Prolegue and Serenada and Finale of Dunni.

The remaining part of the program will feature the piano selections by Prof Boda playing the compositions of Scarlatti and Dello Joio.

Prof Boda, widely known as a composer, is the new president of the Florida Composers Guild, having been elected at the 1950 annual convention in Miami. He is a former apprentice conductor of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, a graduate of music from Kent University and was awarded a graduate fellowship at the East-

Senate Committee Will Review Bill Returned by FRB

In an informal meeting Wednesday night, members of the Women's Senate discussed the refusal of the faculty reviewing board to take the proposed 11:30 drive by allowed to spend the night in Tallahassee with friends.

The bill was returned back to the Legislative Codifying committee for further study. Betty Bird, chairman of the committee, said it would make a survey of other universities to see whether other schools allow overnight privileges in town or not.

Senate's suggested measures extending the lights-on time for freshmen, granting 11:30 shower privileges to all girls, and clarifying the quarantine regulations. These were all referred to Betty Bird's committee for presentation at a later formal meeting.

Gregory Emphasizes Flambeau Deadlines

University groups wishing news in the Flambeau are reminded of deadlines for each issue. Absolute deadlines for all copy is Monday at 3 p m for Wednesday publication and Thursday at 3 p m for Friday publication.

Information of these deadlines will be made for any group, said Managing Editor Jack Gregory, as the past too many groups have been handicapped because of inaccuracies and misinformation appearing in the Flambeau.

Publicity chairmen for student groups are asked to check on proofs, specifically for the purpose of correct initials of speakers and chairmen connected with their respective office before turning the information in.

Journalism School Adds Nine Courses

Nine new graduate courses have been added to the program of the School of Journalism according to announcement by Dean Leuville B Campbell.

Few of these journalism courses are offered by many universities—even in leading schools of journalism, Dr Campbell said. Each is designed for current needs of graduate students.

The courses will include covering the courts, teaching college journalism, the contemporary press, historical study of the press, "three courses' school yearbook production, and high school newspaper production.

Graduate credit will also be given for five new undergraduate courses: Reporting state affairs, communications media analysis, press and world affairs, international communications, and literature of journalism

Copeland Sets Feb 1 Deadline

New Name Will Appear In Third Issue of May

February 1 is the deadline for all contributions to the third issue of the Talaria.

Florida State University's student magazine will have a new name for the spring issue. The new name will be selected by a student vote from a list of five names appearing in the Winter issue of Talaria.

The Winter issue of Talaria will be out the end of January.

Contributions for the third issue include stories, articles, poems, jokes, cartoons, features and photographs.

"STUDENTS ARE not one more need to contribute," Editor Mercy Copeland said.

"The literary material, even with regard to the freshman writing contest, has been submitted. Three short stories, three articles, and 12 poems constituted the freshman contribution which has been performed the student body.

"Talaria particularly emphasizes that it prohibits the best of student contributions, in keeping with the editorial policy of the magazine."

"TALARIA DOES not object to sentimentality but it encourages students to consider the light, optimistic side of life also when they write for Talaria," Harry said.

There will be no letter to the editor's column in the midst of issue of Talaria because no letters were submitted.

Feb Grads To Report To Guidance Office

Seniors who expect to graduate in February are asked to go to the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott, Thursday, January 11, from 10 a m to 1 p m. There will be a Florida State Employment Service representative to help the graduates fill out application cards.

Students interested in teaching are not required to fill out a card.

Major Events Scheduled For Busy Year at FSU

Florida State University will be a busy place during 1951. A number of major events already have been booked during the year and here are now in the process of being scheduled.

The university will have the greatest building program in its history during 1951, barring any federal regulations to prevent it. Workmen are already at work preparing the excavations for the new dormitories, excavations and other preliminary steps toward the actual construction of the new university buildings.

THE BUILDING program includes an 11-story skyscraper dormitory, a student center building costing in the neighborhood of $1 million, several smaller dormitories which can be used as already approved the new $4,300,000 building program.

Dr Doak S Campbell, FSU president, says the university will observe during 1951 the 100th anniversary of the advent of higher education in the state by institution of teaching at the combined Florida State University.

NOON, January 20, is the deadline for new students to make application for the second semester, which starts February 1, except by special permission.

Faculty musical recitals, vocational guidance forums, science lectures, band and orchestra concerts are scheduled at the university for January.

The Artist Series will present the Paganini String Quartet at 8:15 p m. January 23, at the university auditorium. The Ballet Theater at 8:15 p m, January 29-30 to wind up a series of national and international artists brought to the university during the first semester.

Workmen are well along with the construction of the new Phi Mu Sorority house on West Call. 1951.

WORK IS also nearly completed for the new registrars quarters on the ground floor of the Westcott building. The new registrar's office will be moved from the second floor to its quarters on the first.

Formal opening of the new PSU Museum of Art and university's new art gallery, located in the large room in the Westcott building is scheduled for the early part of 1951, likely in February.

The Civic Department of Speech will participate in sponsorship of a speech conference at the university in March which is expected to attract more than 1,000 persons from over the nation.

THE FSU Men's Physical Education Department will sponsor a public relations conference next summer when Dr Benjamin Fine, education editor of the New York Times, will be one of the speakers.

The annual Boys State, sponsored by the Florida State Department of the American Legion and the Junior program of the Legion Auxiliary, are again scheduled to be held on the campus, bringing hundreds of high school boys and girls from all sections of the state to Tallahassee and the university.

The Florida Chapter of the Congress of Parents and Teachers and other groups affiliated with national organizations will also hold their meetings during 1951 at Florida State University.

Freshman Play Set For January 15-18

A MAJORITY of the roles in "Clarence" have been double cast. Assigned to the character of Mrs Martyn are Marcia Morris and Marilyn Hudgens; Mrs Wheeler are Grace Girgi and Roslyn Moss; Cora Wheeler are Carolyn Brite and Dot Welch; Violet Pinney are Dora Godwin and Dorothy Whitmore; Dinwiddie are Bob Hicks and Ben Hamlett; and Robert Stem are Oscar Dunegan and Pete Williams.

In other parts will be Patricia Hubert as Della, Lee Hildan as Mr Wheeler, and Donald Pennington as Bobby Wheeler. Ann Simmons is single cast in the title role.

Duxbury Speaks To State Nurses

Dean Vivian Duxbury of the School of Nursing, spoke Monday night at a meeting of the Florida State Nurses Association.

Dean Duxbury also officiated at the installation of new district officers of the association. In her talk to the group she emphasized the growing importance of trained nurses to the nation, state and community. The meeting was held at the Women's Club in Quincy.

Mid-Week Deadline Set for Interns For FSU Who's Who

Seniors returning from internship may file applications for Who's Who in Education between 4:30 Wednesday, January 10.

Rube Askew, university government president, is announcing this extension of the deadline, because of the fact that many intern students only and that they must make application in Dean Culpepper's office before the above date. All senior interns with a record of participation in two or more extra-curricular activities are eligible.

The joint faculty committees which will choose approximately 25 students from the more than 60 candidates has adopted a standard of scoring which is important on the basis of extra-curricular activities, scholarship and personality. This rating should be by the greater emphasis on extra-curricular activities, with scholarship and personality having lesser importance in the selection.

Rube Askew said the committee will make their final choices and publish the results January 15.

Dance Sloted At WC

Informal dancing with Jerry Kohler's Orchestra will be held from 8 to 11 p m Saturday, January 6, at the Student Union at West Campus.

The dance is being sponsored by the management of the Student Organization under the social activities program.

Dr Campbell Advises

Dr Laurence R Campbell, dean of Florida State's School of Journalism, spoke on "Stay Away From College" at the Christmas banquet of the Leon High school band last Tuesday night.

Campbell stated that college students must face work, fun and the challenge to leadership, factors which, he said, can be avoided only if young men and women "stay away."

Council Discusses University Chest

Groups State Impossibility Of Federated Campaign

Problems arising from the plans of the establishment of a Campus Chest were brought to light at the University Council's last meeting Wednesday.

Cass Yonge, who had written to the University of Florida in request for information about their procedure, stated that she had not yet received an answer, Rube Askew, who discussed the matter with their student body president at the Miami convention said that the University of Florida had no federated drive but has a limit of one drive per month on their campus.

The Cancer organization cannot go in with a federated drive and their campaign is set for April, according to Gail Kelly. Rube also read letters from the Red Cross and the Infantile Paralysis groups that stated they could not accept money from federated funds either. The question of a Campus Chest will be decided at the next meeting.

Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities was the next item on the agenda. Rube said that at the Student Presidents' convention in Miami a motion was passed recommending to the National Student association that the methods of selection for this recognition be standardized. Several plans for selection at FSU were discussed at the meeting.

The appointment of Howard Able for Chairman of the Social Standards and Calendar of Events committee was unanimously approved by the council, and the chairman read a letter from Bo Baker, chief justice of the supreme court, stating that the court could not issue an advisory opinion on proposed statutes but only on statutes that had been passed.

Allan Head, Will Pennell, Ted Steinmeyer, Charles Curtis and Bob Lanigan were absent from the meeting.

Formal Dance Is Climax for Gilchrist

A formal dance will climax the weekend activities of Gilchrist dormitory tomorrow night in the parlor from 8 until 12.

Pat Ledbetter, social chairman of the dormitory, has announced that Jerry Kohler's orchestra will play. Over 200 students are expected for the occasion.

Tomorrow afternoon, Pat said, there will be a picnic at Lafayette Park from 2 until 5 p m. A transit bus will be hired to transport the Gilchrist girls and their dates to the picnic grounds, the social chairman informed.

On the agenda for tonight, is an "Open House." Students will enjoy informal dancing and Canasta.

In recognition of the Yule-Tide season, Gilchrist began the week's festivities Tuesday with a tree trimming party. The trimming began at 8 p m.

The boys from Campuside were invited over to help with the decorating.

Over 40 students mingled in the parlor of Gilchrist offering assistance to the decoration of the tree and enjoying the group fellowship.

It will be the task of the dancers Saturday night to avoid coming in close contact with the tree.

This is to prevent attachment of the spirals of wispy angel hair to newly dry-cleaned formals and suits.

The social committee members who are responsible for the planning and success of the weekend are: Pat Ledbetter, chairman; Gloria Henderson, Jean Martin, Barbara Bethel, Martha Jean Wilson, Anita Lunsford, Bronna Mae Elkins, Henrietta McConnell, Donna Henderson, Adelaide Lindsey, Marion Bean, Bea Bock and Edwina Jenkins.

In addition to their social functions this week, Gilchrist wishes to announce that her first dormitory newspaper came out yesterday. The newspaper will be placed on the bulletin board of each floor, Francis Cawthon, assistant news editor of the Flambeau, is the editor.

Men's Hop Features Santa's Appearance At Student Union

Santa Claus will make an early appearance on the Florida campus when he leaves his reindeer and joins the Men's hop tomorrow night.

The annual Christmas party and dance, sponsored by the men students will be held at the Student Union on West campus.

The program of carol singing will begin at 7:30 p m. At the conclusion of the program Santa will appear, complete with his red suit and a bag of gifts. As a climax to Santa's visit refreshments will be served at 8:30.

The jolly old man will then turn the spotlight over to Emery Evans and his 13-piece orchestra for dancing from 8 until 11 p m.

Carl Vernooy is advertising chairman of the dance. The entire O club will be decorated with window paintings of Christmas scenes by Nancy Summers and Guy Johnson. Master of ceremonies will be Bob Levy of the Sanctuary ares.

There is no admission to the Christmas party and dance. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Compton Describes Duties to Class

Loyal Compton, press representative of Governor Fuller Warren described his work yesterday to the Reporting of Public Affairs class taught by Dr Sidney Kobre, associate professor of Florida State's School of Journalism.

Miss Mary LaGrone, member of the class, interviewed Compton, who told her that even though he does the research for Governor Warren's speeches, the final phrasings are usually put in by Warren himself.

The speaker described the governor's office as a news source for capitol correspondents of newspapers and wire services such as the Associated Press, International News Service and United Press. He also told how he helps newspapermen in giving them news which they would otherwise miss, such as the report sent by the State Welfare Department in Jacksonville to the Governor here.

Library Books Due Day Before Vacation

All library books will be due December 18. An additional fine of 25 cents per book will be charged for each book not returned by this date, and all records at the library should be cleared before the students leave for the holidays.

Hours of opening during the Christmas holidays are:

December 19—8 a m-8 p m.
December 20-22—8:30 a m-4:30 p m.

Xmas TB Seal Sale Gets Underway

Florida State University Christmas seal sale is under way. Over half the students have received envelopes in the mail containing seals, a letter of explanation from Howard Kelley, University Christmas Seal chairman, and a pamphlet of facts about tuberculosis.

The remaining students will receive their packets by the first of the week, Kelly said.

All the work has been entirely voluntary in getting the seals to the students. "I want to thank everyone who has helped with this year's sale, and I know the results will be gratifying," Howard said. "The health education club and freshman flunkies have been especially helpful," he added.

This is the 44th annual Christmas Seal sale in the nation and the second year that FSU has participated.

Campus Chest Approved For Trial Basis At FSU

Law Passes After Askew, Campbell Confab; Head Only Dissenting Vote

University Council approved the adoption of a one year trial basis for an independent campus chest in its first meeting of the new year Wednesday.

The proposal for such a campus charity drive had been initiated at the plan in effect at other schools was completed recently.

The council actually voted to give the plan a trial at Florida State University at its last meeting before the Christmas holidays. It was given final approval Wednesday after Rube Askew, president of University Government Association, had conferred with University President Doak Campbell on the matter.

DEAN HEAD cast the only dissenting vote when the proposal was discussed in the council session.

Rube started that the chairman of the campus charity drive will really be appointed at the next council session. Tentative plans made a week-long drive which will be the only student fund raising drive of the year. Activities to be scheduled each night of the drive would be those presented by the World Student Service Fund in the past.

AFTER FULL canvassing contributions were received they will be decreased to one drive.

The council has also gone on record as wholeheartedly supporting the Honor Emphasis Week and to allot money from the activity fund for the guest speaker for the occasion.

Plans are also being completed for the inauguration of orderly Traffic Program until the campus. Will Pennell heads the committee appointed to work with the local unit here on securing information about it. Ted Stafford is assistant chairman of the committee.

Delinquent Lists Of Junior English Have Been Posted

The Junior English delinquents have been posted in the History building on the campus and in the English building on West Campus, according to Martha O Brien, director of Junior English.

The names are listed according to class location in the university and according to the schools which students are enrolled. Students are delinquent for three first, failure to take the Junior English examination; second, failure to enroll for remedial work.

The first group may clear the delinquency in the examination which is set at 4:30 p m in Westcott auditorium. No one is permitted to repeat the examination. The second group may clear the delinquency by enrolling for remedial work at the night regular registration on February 16.

Sophomores take the Junior English examination at the end of their sophomore year. Then the first semester of the Junior year those who stand in need of remedial work will enroll for the course they need.

Second semester sophomores will take the examination on Tuesday, January 23rd, at 4:30 p m in Westcott auditorium.

mas Seal Drive ollects Only $254

A total of $254 in contributions has been received by the University Christmas Seal drive.

This is a very small amount compared to the $922.67 collected last year by the student in the first campaign made with the seals by mail on this campus. Seal chairman Kelly.

Students who have not returned their seals or sent in their contributions are reminded by Kelly that it is not too late to do so. Envelopes for the return of contributions were included in the packages mailed to students before Christmas.

THE FIGHT against tuberculosis is not one that is confined to the holiday season" but is a year-round process, " it urges all those who overlooked sending their contributions before Christmas to do so now. It is never too late to help in the fight against TB. Kelly emphasized.

University Gives Inductees Credit

Culpepper Announces Plan Approved by Exec Council

Florida State University students who are inducted into military service while attending the University will be allowed procedures credits for the work they have completed.

Dr J Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare and university military liaison officer, said the FSU executive council has agreed on the following procedure:

"VERIFICATION of the credits earned by students who are inducted into military service and who have completed more than half of the semester or of the summer term of nine weeks who are passing at their induction will be allowed proportionate credit for the part of the term completed."

Dean Culpepper said the executive council further agreed that the examination for credit for the student going into the service is to be determined by the dean of the college of the registrar.

"As a means of helping the student establish credit to which he is entitled quickly without having to contact a number of persons personally or by letter or upon notification by their local draft boards to report for inductions, they are to contact John Flournoy, FSU supervisor of prepaid records."

MR FLOURNOY will assist the students to fill out an application form for his credits.

Dr Culpepper said that as the nation moves toward general mobilization and students are considering seriously volunteering in the branch of the service they prefer they are advised to consult with their educational instructor and dean of the school in which they are enrolled. As a further help to students, Mr Flournoy has been designated as a special counselor to those students planning to enter the service.

Later Hours Begin Feb 9

11 PM Set Week Nights; 12 Midnight Fri and Sat

Later hours for women students will begin on Friday, February 9, which is the first day of registration for the second semester of school for 1950-51, Dean Warren announced Wednesday afternoon.

Women's Senate received news of the favorable action of the faculty review board Wednesday evening and it was discussed during their meeting of that night.

Women will now be allowed to stay out until 11 o'clock Sunday through Thursday and 12 on Friday and Saturday nights, with the exception of seniors, who will be granted 12:30 rights on the two weekend nights.

THE FACULTY Committee on Student Affairs voted favorably on this measure on December 14, which was too late for inclusion in the last edition of the Flambeau.

Later hours were passed on their second presentation to the faculty committee by the Women's Senate. On the first occasion, the senators presenting the bill withdrew it to get a check on whether the majority of the women students attended the later hours provided by the bill.

IN A POLL then conducted by the women's senate in the various dormitories, two proposals for later hours were presented and voted on by the girls. The faculty reviewing board called a special meeting for discussion of the bill at that time which resulted in the approval of the amended regulations which will be in effect next semester.

Informal Dance Set For Student Union

Members of the gymnastic troupe will perform during the intermission tomorrow night at an informal dance sponsored by the Student Union Organization.

Jerry Kohler and his orchestra will play for dancing from 8-11 at the Student Union on West Campus.

Intermission performers will include Bill Bonnemaison, fantastic gymnastic champion, tumbling star Dick Gutting and Barbara Strode, outstanding girl tumbler and dancer.

Lawrence Signs Dance Contract For Sandspur

Chairman Reinhard Says Annual Prom Is Slated For February 24 Here

Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra was signed to play for the Sandspur dance Friday, February 24, Lawrence was signed by Sandspur chairman, Herb Reinhard, on December 18, following several weeks of negotiations.

Lawrence was signed through the Associated Booking Corporation of New York City for the price of $2500 but after several weeks of correspondence he signed for $1500, Reinhard revealed.

The band is currently being featured in the north and will start their tour south in the middle of this month. The tour includes such well known clubs as Cincinnati's Castle Farm, Tampa's Colliseum, and Houston's famed Shamrock Hotel. They are booked for the Hollywood Palladium in early March.

ELLIOT Lawrence records for Decca and has just released his new long playing "College Prom-Dates" album. Such well known hit tunes as The Lamp Is Low, Stardust and Blue Moon are included in the album.

His theme song of Heart to Heart was written by Lawrence himself and was recorded by Columbia on their long-playing album of standards.

professor of music and nationally known cellist. In a joint rendition of Sonata in A Major by Beethoven.

PROF BODA will then play several selections by Brahms followed by the cello and piano combination of Boda and Sellers in the Prelorne and Serenada and Finale of Debussy.

The remaining part of the program will feature the piano selections by Prof Boda playing the Concerto of Scarlatti and Delio Joio.

Prof Boda, widely known as a composer, is the new president of the Florida Composers League, having been elected at the 1950 annual convention in Miami. He is a former symphonic conductor of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, a graduate of music from the University and a wonderful graduate fellowship at the East-

Senate Committee Will Review Bill Returned by FRB

In an informal meeting Wednesday night, members of the Women's Senate discussed the refusal of the faculty reviewing board to pass the proposal that girls be allowed to spend the night in Tallahassee with friends.

The bill was returned back to the Legislative Codifying committee for further study. Betty Rich, chairman of the committee, said it would make a survey of other universities to learn whether other schools allow overnight privileges in town or not.

Dean Warren suggested measures extending the lights-on time for freshmen, granting 11:30 shower privileges to all girls, and clarifying summer election procedures. These were all referred to Betty Rich's committee for presentation at a later formal meeting.

Pensacola Exhibit Features Art Work Of Florence Kawa

The work of Florence Kawa, instructor in art at Florida State University, is being featured in a one-man show at the Gallo Cerio Hotel in Pensacola. The exhibit opened Sunday and will run to close January 15.

Awarded first prize for the most original painting in the annual exhibit this month of the Florida Federation of Art, Miss Kawa has also shown painting in most of the important galleries in America. Her work is in exhibition at both world's fairs, in New York and San Francisco.

In the Pensacola show, Miss Kawa is exhibiting seven oil paintings, three in gouache. Included among them are painting entitled, "Mountain Girl," "The Bride," Rain in the South," and "Florida Theme."

Critics have praised Miss Kawa for her sensitive use of line and color. They have found her paintings highly decorative and have commented on her personalized treatment of the human figure.

Campus Characters To Appear Tuesday

A new editorial feature will make its initial appearance as the editorial page of the Flambeau next Tuesday entitled, "Campus Characters."

The feature, written by Stan Schmidt, will depict a series of three students giving a brief sketch of each. The articles will be unique in that they will not be devoted exclusively to campus leaders.

Schmidt promises that each sketch will be light, airy and enjoyable.

Editor Earl Dobert said, "This is another step which the Flambeau more enjoyable for each student. I hope everyone will read this feature because they will probably be reading of their friends and maybe someday you will be featured in the articles."

"Campus Characters" will appear twice a week.

Seniors Should File

All students who expect to graduate in June should file applications in the Registrar's office immediately.

Honor Committee Stages Emphasis Week Jan 13-19

Week's Program Slated Here; Stadium Rally Climaxes Events

Honor Emphasis Week, originally scheduled to begin tomorrow and close a week from tonight, has been postponed. Chief Justice of Honor Court, Willard "Bo" Baker announced last night that the week long emphasis on the campus Honor Code would be held from January 13 through Jan 19.

The special week was postponed because the Honor Committee had been unable to contact the president of the University of Virginia Honor Committee who is slated to be guest speaker at the climatic student rally on Friday night to close Honor Emphasis Week. The University of Virginia guest has been invited to participate in a major part of the honor week events. Baker said,

A FULL week's program of events relating to the Honor Code has been scheduled by the FSU Honor Committee including special Honor Emphasis teas in all the dormitories. They will be assisted in the program by the Pan-

EDITOR'S NOTE

Due to a great deal of misunderstanding, conflict, misinterpretation, errors and a lot of trouble in getting the facts, the Florida Flambeau was unable to ascertain the correct date for Honor Emphasis week until the last minute before press time.

In light of this, the lead editorial, "Honor Emphasis" the columns, "Editor's Post" and "Fancy That" are out of date. Instead of observing Honor Emphasis Week January 6-13, it will be held one week later, January 13-18.

Hellenic Council, the Inter-Fraternity Council, the Tallahassee Ministerial Association and other organizations.

The January 16 issue of the Florida Flambeau will be dedicated to the promotion of better understanding and acceptance of the Honor Code on the FSU campus. Special features, columns, and news coverage will be used to carry out the Honor Emphasis theme of the issue.

Baker also stressed that the program was not only designed for students but for faculty and administrative staff. Lectures and forums have been planned for the week and could be open to faculty and students alike.

Climaxing the week will be a giant student rally held at Doak S Campbell stadium for affirmation of the Honor Code. Student Government sponsors are expecting a large turnout from the entire student body.

An official program for the week was unavailable at press time last night but details of the week will be printed in the Tuesday issue of the Flambeau.

VA Reminds Vets Of Closing Date

Deadline Set July 25, 1951, Says Government Agency

Veterans of World War II planning GI Bill education and training were reminded by the Veteran's Administration this week that the July 25, 1951, cut-off date for starting courses is only seven months away.

"The coming spring school term will be the final such term most veterans will have to re-enter before the deadline, VA said, so if they plan to enroll it's not too early to start making arrangements now."

THE 1951 deadline applies to most World War II veterans those discharged from service before July 25, 1947, and those discharged after that date have four years from their discharge date in which to begin.

Veterans actually must have started training before the cut-off date if they want to continue afterwards. A veteran must be in training on that date unless he had temporarily interrupted his course for summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control.

Once he completes or discontinues his course of GI Bill training after the deadline, he may not start another course. Also, he must meet the following two postwar training requirements:

HE WILL be expected to pursue his training continuously to completion except for conditions which normally would excuse interruption by any student."

And he may change his educational objective "only while in training and then for reasons satisfactory to the administrator." Public Law 610, which permits a veteran to make a first change of general fields of study merely by applying for it, will not be in effect after the cut-off date.

Gregory Emphasizes Flambeau Deadlines

University groups wishing news in the Flambeau are reminded of deadlines for each issue. Absolute deadlines for the issue is Monday at 3 p m for Tuesday publication and Thursday at 3 p m for Friday publication.

No extension of these deadlines will be made for any reason, said Anne Gregory, news editor. In the past too many groups have caused deadlines resulting in inaccuracies and misinformation appearing in the publication.

Publicity chairmen for student groups are asked to check on proper deadlines and to give correct initials of speakers and chairmen connected with their stories, before turning the information in.

Journalism School Adds Nine Courses

Nine new graduate courses have been added to the program of the School of Journalism according to announcement by Dean Lawrence R Campbell.

Few of these journalism courses are offered on other universities, even in leading schools of journalism, Dr Campbell said. Each is provided to meet current needs of graduate students.

The courses will include coverline the courts, teaching college journalism, the contemporary press, comparative study of the press, (three courses) school yearbook production, and high school newspaper production.

Graduate credit will also be given for five new undergraduate courses: Reporting state affairs, communications media analysis, press and world affairs, international communications, and literature of journalism.

First 1951 Recital Features Two Profs

Prof John Boda and Prof Owen Sellers will be featured in the first faculty music recital of 1951 tonight.

The program will be presented at 8:15 in the new Music Hall. The opening number will feature both Prof Boda, assistant professor of piano, and Prof Sellers, associate

Copeland Sets Feb 1 Deadline

New Name Will Appear In Third Issue of Mag

February 1 is the deadline for all contributions to the third issue of the Talaria.

Florida State University's student magazine will have a new name for the spring issue. The new name will be selected by a student vote from a list of five names appearing in the Winter issue of Talaria.

The Winter issue of Talaria will be out the end of January.

Contributions for the third issue include short articles, poems, jokes, cartoons, features and photographs.

"STUDENTS ARE once more urged to contribute," Editor Harry Copeland said.

"Very little material even with regard to the Freshman writing contest has been submitted. Three short stories, three articles, and 12 poems constitute the freshman contributions," Harry insisted the student body.

"Talaria particularly emphasizes that it publishes the best of student contributions, in keeping with the student policy of the magazine."

TALARIA DOES not object to seriousness, but it encourages stuto consider the light, optimistic side of life also when they write for Talaria," Harry said.

There will be no letter to the editor's column in the winter issue of Talaria because no letters were submitted.

Feb Grods To Report To Guidance Office

Seniors who expect to graduate in February are asked to go to the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott, Thursday, January 11, from 10 a m to 1 p m. There will be a Florida State Employment Service representative to help the graduates fill out application cards.

Graduates interested in teaching are not required to fill out a card.

For further information check at 203 Westcott before Thursday.

Freshman Play Set For January 15-18

The Freshman play 'Clarence' will be presented January 15-18, it was announced yesterday by Dean MacCalmon of the department of speech. The play will be held in the Little Theatre on West Campus with no admission charge.

Rehearsals for the Booth Tarkington comedy have been resumed. This will be the first Freshman production to be presented by the Florida State University and the cast has had numerous consecutive practices for the last few weeks. Directing the performance are two senior girls, Betty Dekle and Marion Ellise Davis. They are under the supervision of Dr Mac Calhoun.

THE STORY will center around the experiences of a young war veteran "Clarence," who will be played by George Simms, Clarence, it is revealed, never got any further than Texas while in the army.

The curiosity to the audience will be the last name of Clarence which is constantly evaded.

The romance of the play centers around the Wheeler home to which Clarence has come as the insistence of Mr Wheeler.

It is Mr Wheeler's belief that if Clarence can drive mules without cursing, he can help to untangle the love plots in the Wheeler home. Clarence also proves himself a general handiman for the household.

A MAJORITY of the roles in "Clarence" have been double cast. Assigned to the character of Mrs Martin are Marcia Martin and Marilyn Hughson; Mrs Wheler are Grace Girgi and Rosalyn Moss; Cora Wheeler are Carilyn Dix Wheeler and Jacqueline Dempsey are Dora Goowin and Dorothy Whitmore; Dinwiddie are Bob Hicks and Ben Hulsey, and of Hubert Sims are Oscar Dunegan and Pete Williams.

In other parts will be Patricia Stuart as Miss Lee Hilton and Mr Wheeler, and Donald Pennington as Bobby Wheeler, George Simms is single cast in the title role.

Duxbury Speaks To State Nurses

Dean Vivian Duxbury of the School of Nursing, spoke Monday night at a meeting of District No 11, Florida State Nurses association.

Dean Duxbury also officiated at the installation of new district officers of the association. In her talk to the group she emphasized the growing importance of trained nurses to the nation, state and community. The meeting was held at the Women's Club in Quincy.

Mid-Week Deadline Set for Interns For FSU Who's Who

Seniors returning from internship may file applications for recognition until 4:30 Wednesday, January 10.

Rube Askew, university government president, has announced this extension of the deadline, reversed that it be for returned intern students only and that they must make application at the Dean Culpepper's office before the above date. All senior interns with a record of participation in two or more extra-curricular activities should apply.

The joint faculty committee which will choose approximately 40 students from the more than 60 candidates has adopted a method of scoring each aspirant on the basis of extra-curricular activities, scholarship and personality. This committee will lay the greater emphasis on extra-curricular activities, with scholarship and personality having lesser importance in the selection.

The committee said the committee will make their final choices and publish the results January 15.

Dance Slated At WC

Informal dancing with Jerry Kohler's Orchestra will be held from 8 to 11 p m Saturday, January 6, at the Student Union at West Campus.

The dance is being sponsored by the management of the Student Organization under the social committee.

Major Events Scheduled For Busy Year at FSU

Florida State University will be a busy place during 1951. A number of major events have already been booked during the year and others are now in the process of being scheduled.

The university will have the greatest concentration of its history during 1951, barring any federal regulations to prevent it. Scheduled for the year are the preparing the groundwork for foundations, excavations and the beginning toward the actual construction of the new university library.

THE BUILDING program includes an 11-story skyscraper dormitory, a student union building, housing the postoffice and bookstore, several smaller dormitories which can be leased as fraternity houses, a new women's dormitory and other projects. The State Board of Control has already approved the new $4,500,000 building program.

Dr Doak S Campbell, FSU president, says the university will observe during 1951 the 100th anniversary of the advent of higher education in the state by institutions of learning which preceded Florida State University.

Winding January 26, is the deadline for new students to make application for the second semester Civic Arts program of the Leon Auxiliary, are again scheduled to be held in the evening, bringing hundreds of high school boys and girls from all sections of the state to Tallahassee and the university for January.

The Artist Series will present the Paganini String Quartet at 8:15 p m, January 23, at the university and the Ballet Theater at 8:15 p m, January 29-30 to wind up a series of national and international artists brought to the university during the first semester.

Workmen are well along with the construction of the new Phi Mu Sorority house on West Jefferson street and this building is expected to be ready for occupancy by its members in early 1951.

WORK IS also nearly completed for the new registrars quarters on the ground floor of the Administration building. The registrar's office will be moved from the second floor to its quarters early in January.

Formal opening of the new FSU Museum and the university's new art gallery, both in the Home Economics building will be held in the FSU Dining Hall building is scheduled for the early part of 1951, likely in February.

The FSU Department of Speech will participate in sponsorship of a speech conference at the university in March which is expected to attract more than 1,000 persons from over the nation.

The FSU Men's Physical Education Department will sponsor a public relations conference next summer when the state Department of education editor of the New York Times, will be one of the speakers.

● HONOR EMPHASIZED

The entire campus will join in observance of Honor Emphasis Week starting Sunday and continuing through next Friday.

Plans highlighting the week include dormitory "honor teas," bull sessions, conferences and as a climax to the activities, a gigantic honor rally at Campbell stadium.

Whether the Honor committee has gone to a lot of trouble for nothing depends on the 6,000 and some students registered here. None of these activities can be the success they should be unless the student body participates and cooperates.

After the week is over then what? The standards and ideals set forth next week cannot be forgotten after the last meeting next Friday night . . . not if we are to have a really successful Honor System at FSU. We don't take precautionary measures against fires only during Fire Prevention Week . . . we don't clothe ourselves in a robe of piety only during Religious Emphasis Week . . . should our behavior be honorable only during Honor Emphasis Week?

Take a look around you in your dormitory, barracks and class rooms. You can't deny that cheating, lying and stealing exist here. Is it from a lack of orientation or informatoin on the Honor Code? If so, the Honor Committee is trying to remedy that situation. Is it a result of a disinterested student body? If so, that is a regrettable situation which only the students themselves may correct.

The Honor Code is essentially a personal thing. It cannot exist collectively unless it first exists within each individual. Honor Emphasis Week is designed to give us a basic sense of honor and responsibility to those with whom we live. Next week's meetings will be informative, enlightening and stimulating. Will you be there?

● POOR TIMING

Everyone was busy before Christmas Holidays. But perhaps the busiest group at Florida State University was the School of Music.

The entertainment provided by the music school alone during the two weeks that preceded vacation time would have kept any student from becoming bored.

That these performances by Male glee club, Women's glee club, Choral Union, were top-notch entertainment cannot be denied. But what can be said for the scheduling of so many events at such a busy season?

Time did not permit the ordinary student to attend these musical events as well as keeping up to date with his studies and other calendar events such as the speech department play, "Arms and the Man." Either his studies or his attendance at these events suffered.

Students throughout the campus were heard expressing the wish that such events could be "more evenly distributed throughout the school year rather than lumped together at the same time." A humming bird and the FSU student trying to make each musical event would have a lot in common.

Those students who found some time to see some of this musical entertainment would hardly deny the fact that much time and effort went into the preparation for each performance.

It seems unfortunate when it appears that so little consideration is given the scheduling of such events in order to ensure the largest audience. The students, the faculty and the School of Music would benefit from such a practice.

● HALF-WAY YEAR

This is the half-way year, 1951.

The first 50 years of this century has shown a remarkable and steadfast growth at Florida State University . We have progressed rapidly in many fields since 1947 when we became Florida State University. We will continue to progress in the remaining 50 years of this century.

But this year, 1951, may see a slowing down in our efforts to rise to eminence in the educational field. The unsettled world conditions may put a damper on the plans laid out for our institution.

We cannot allow ourselves to fall into that I-don't-care-what-happens rut because of the world situation. Now, more than ever, the challenge warrants the undivided attention of every student. The burden of the world is placed squarely on the shoulders of the educated populace.

Florida State University will continue to grow and we must help it to grow by applying ourselves in every capacity.

This year, 1951, is the initial year of a new era and a new half-century. Through the combined efforts of the entire student, faculty and administrative population we can make this year one of the most fruitful we have enjoyed.

● OUR 1951 RESOLUTIONS

When a new year rolls around, people make resolutions. The Flambeau too adds its voice in resolving to help improve the University.

At the beginning of the year the Flambeau printed a list of nine points of policy which it would follow during the 1950-51 school year. Four of these points: parking facilities, better student election system, subsidized athletics, and comment on national, state and local issues, have been forwarded or completed as the case may be.

The remaining five points are our new year's resolutions.

1. Better Participation in Student Government. This is the perennial problem of getting students interested in their student government. We have pleaded with the students to participate actively in their student government. So far the response has been slight.

The Flambeau will initiate in the near future to further this program a series of articles and character sketches designed to acquaint the student body with their various branches of student government and the officials representing the students.

2. Higher Pay Scale for Student Assistants. Students who work on campus in the past and in the present have been handicapped by low wages. The Flambeau resolves to gain sufficient information on the subject and help working students to receive wages to conform with the minimum wage law.

3. Campus Building to Compare With the University of Florida. In the past the University of Florida building rate has been three to five times greater than at FSU. Since FSU's growth has been much faster than has Gainesville's we deserve a greater portion of the building funds than we have received heretofore. The recent building fund approved here is a step in that direction.

4. Greater Recognition of FSU by the State Legislature. This will be prominently covered by feature stories, news stories and editorials during the 1951 session of the Florida Legislature. We will highlight the coverage of the Legislature by printing roll call votes on legislation pertaining to the state supported educational institutions.

Both points three and four will be taken up during the next semester when the Legislature convenes in Tallahassee.

5. Campus Chest. There should be just one large drive to handle funds for all charities instead of having ten or fifteen charity drives on the campus each year. This would be similar to a municipal community chest drive. So far this proposal has been floating around the University Senate and the University Council meetings with not much done on it. The latest reports are that the individual charities refuse to cooperate in a Campus Chest giving as a reason that they could not collect as much money that way.

If they would investigate, they would find that a Campus Chest would not only save wear and tear on the student contributors, but would also give those charities the same percentage of the total amount which they would ordinarily receive.

The Flambeau will keep on plugging for the proposed Campus Chest.

These are our resolutions. If they are accomplished we can boast that we have helped to make a better University.

● HOW ABOUT THIS?

According to the Hastings Collegian, one of the students at that school conducted a one-man survey to see if professors actually read all the term papers required in a course. He inserted a paragraph in some collateral notes stating that he didn't believe teachers read what pupils write, and asking the prof to underline the paragraph if he read it. The paper was returned—unmarked

THE EDITOR'S POST

HONOR EMPHASIS WEEK SLATED HERE

By EARL DOBERT

The University Court will sponsor an Honor Emphasis Week here beginning tomorrow and running until January 12.

This program is designed to acquaint the student body with the procedures and mechanisms of the Honor Code as it is applied at Florida State University. It behooves each and every student to actively support the Honor Code and the University Court in their undertaking.

But we must remember that Honor cannot be practiced for just one week in the year. Honor must be emphasized 52 weeks every year.

Students must realize that we will not have a workable honor code until they—the students—give wholehearted endorsement and support to the honor code.

The honor code itself gives the answer to what is needed:

"I pledge myself to uphold the highest standards of honesty in every phase of my university life, and I refuse to tolerate dishonesty on the part of another."

The Honor System is based on three infractions—lying, cheating and stealing.

"Lying is a falsification of the facts, either in giving out false information or in withholding the truth, whether for self interest or wilfully to cause harm."

"Cheating is the giving or receiving of aid (whether written, oral or otherwise) in order that a student may receive undeserved credit for work which is his own responsibility."

"Stealing is the appropriation of money or other property belonging to another and the borrowing of money or articles without the knowledge or consent of the owner."

The above was quoted from the Pow Wow, page 28. It further reads "Each individual shall accept as a part of his responsibility the reporting of Honor Code infractions."

This is the responsibility we must realize and observe.

Until such time that we do become aware of our honor we cannot truly deserve the title of an educated person. Honesty is only one facet of an education but it is, perhaps, the most important one.

Bo Baker and all those before him have done a remarkable job of promoting the honor system on the FSU campus. Theirs has been a tremendous task and responsibility but they cannot be charged with doing all the work.

They need many assistants to complete the task. Those assistants are you, the student.

It is your duty to know and understand the honor code and honor system. Ignorance, after all, is no excuse.

A mass meeting will climax the Honor Emphasis week. The meeting will be held in Campbell stadium. Although the meeting will not be compulsory, we should expect every student, faculty member and administrator to be present.

And let's remember, honor isn't something that can be practiced on a one week basis, it takes a lifetime.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

NOW WE ARE AWARE OF WAR

By JERRY THOMAS

During the vacation everybody probably read more newspapers than usual, and are now fully aware that the United States is again at war.

Regardless of the fact that the fighting in Korea is being waged under the auspices of the United Nations, it is the United States who is bearing the full brunt of the war.

Statistics from the high command list our casualties at approximately 36,000. They are being most conservative.

While I was home last week I had a talk with a buddy of mine who was also enjoying a vacation . . . a vacation from Korea.

Although he earned his trip home by catching two pieces of shrapnel in his leg and one piece in his head, he displayed no remorsefulness.

The 19-year-old told me of many Americans who, in their last dying breath, wrote in the snowy terrain of Korea, "use the A-bomb."

These Americans who gave their life with one final suggestion were not politicians, so their advice will be disregarded.

Many other Americans will die tomorrow—their suggestions will also be ignored.

While the politicians quibble back and forth, while Chiang Kaishek pleads to enter his 300,000 men, while the legislature meets for 15 second meetings, while President Truman writes letters, while Pearson gets booted by a senator, while corporations hire lobbyists . . . the reds unfalteringly advance.

Perhaps there is a wise solution. We have heard many from the home front, but it's been a helluva long time since any intelligent comment has come from Washington.

The republicans spend most of their time trying to censor Harry's letters.

Every action is political. Every move is an afterthought of the next election.

Yes, it looks like a bright new year, but the brightness is reflecting from the daily myriad of explosions on a small peninsula that ironically spells out America's destiny.

You will have no voice when you are overseas, so for the sake of a life, a nation, a free world, express your freedom now.

Send a letter to the big boys who premised so much when they were begging a vote.

Aggregate into strong and intelligent groups and write, write, write.

The present condition can not be dealt with as trivial. The Universities of America have a job. It can begin at FSU.

If this university, co-operatively organized, carried out a drive demanding intelligent action from the legislature, the movement would receive recognition, and soon others would follow the trend.

Public opinion cannot be ignored. You have the power to demand action. Do not wait.

RESOLVED: MORE LESSONS, LESS COFFEE

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

Along with everyone else, I've been making new year's resolutions. Of course there's the usual ones about keeping up with my geometry lessons and spending less time over a cup of coffee and more time in the library over "Principles of Public Administration."

But my two main resolutions will be to try and obtain a democratic judicial court and a bigger, better and balanced Artist Series on campus.

So far the court situation has progressed. Its been slow but now we have open courts and from this will develop a system in which the accused person may be confronted by witnesses for and against him.

There are still two points which can be accomplished in this new year. They are on "innocent until proved guilty" attitude toward the defendant and a counsel for the defense which is provided for the United States Constitution.

If these two points are taken up and put into effect, the courts on the FSU campus will indeed be model judicial courts.

In my second resolution concerning the Artist Series, I will attempt through the Artist Series committee to bring artists to the campus which will please as many different tastes as possible. Along with the Pagannini String Quartette there should be, according to many students I've talked to, Louis Jordan and Stan Kenton concerts.

I went to the last meeting of the Artist Series committee (which was just before Christmas holidays and too late for publication) but since a majority of the members were not present, they have scheduled another meeting which will take place a few days from now.

If you have any suggestion as to artists you would like to appear here to add to my list which I will submit to the committee, let me know. Call or write the Flambeau office, your suggestion will be welcome as it is the voice of the students.

These are my two resolutions. I will try my best to turn my dreams into reality.

When Georgie Bee and his orchestra started playing in the Suwannee room of the dining hall, business seemed to pick up. He played before the Christmas holidays for two days and also last night. He'll play again tonight, so if you want to hear some good music with your dinner, the dining hall is the place to go.

George's idea to play every night from 5:30 to 6.30 has not only helped the dining hall's business, but has given the students a place of relaxation and enjoyment without the crowding of some of the off-campus eating places.

Honor Emphasis Week which will begin Sunday sponsored by the Honor Committee will place an intangible quality in the limelight for a week. We can't touch honor, nor can we see it, but we can see its effects. It's something that can be practiced every day of the year.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

XMAS SPENT WITH UNDERTAKER

By JOEL P SMITH

The Yuletide vacation has come and gone and it's back to school for a recuperation after the holiday parties and festivities. Profs in many instances adjourned classes shortly after roll call in hopes of catching a few winks before the next crew dragged in . . . gosh, what profs and students won't go through with to please the administration!

Word goes 'round that Dr Murray was making a speedy exit from New York City when a cop waved his arm vigorously. Dr Murray waved back and gave out with a big smile . . . he thought the cop was wishing him a happy new year. . . . Then is when the fun began. The cop tracked him down and pointed a gun in his face . . . it seemed the doctor had violated some traffic law. When the cop examined Dr Murray's driver's license he gave a fiendish grin as he read the word "professor" typed in describing the holder's occupation. . . . "I didn't say that I was a psychology professor," Murray was heard to remark.

I'll never be a copy boy, or a baker nor a candle stick maker. . . . I've hit on a new angle. . . . I've got talent. . . . I'm gonna' be a professional moocher when I graduate. Stone sober and flat broke, my roommate and I set out for a bit of Florida sunshine (?) during the Xmas leave of absence. If you've read in the papers that Florida's citrus crop is runnin' short this year because of the freeze and fall hurricane, don't believe a word of it. . . . Floyd Fogle, my roommate, and I proved a much greater threat to the groves.

One thing made me so darn mad. . . . I was half way up a huge grapefruit tree one evening when Fogle yelled that a man was walking toward us. I left the seat of my best suit waving from a branch. Later I found out that the man was bringing me a pair of clippers . . . and the grove belonged to one of my college chums,' I was informed.

The mooching was fine . . . till we hit Sarasota . . . things went well until I unpacked and realized that we were, of all places, mooching off an undertaker, Floyd's uncle. The first I knew I was escorted into the preparation room . . . bodies were lying to the right of me, corpses to the left of me . . . stiffs in every nook and cranny. To my surprise, I found out that embalming was my roommate's hobby.

Now, I don't have anything against dead folks but darned if I want to make friends with strangers in a funeral home. One of the friendly undertakers introduced us to all the "cases" as he called them. As you might expect the conversation was always centered around the "cases" . . even at the dinner table. I nearly died from starvation the first few meals.

We saw the town in fine style . . . compliments of the Robarts-Shannon Funeral Home. . . . We felt strictly up town ridin' 'round in a black limousine—complete with a glass partition, push buttons 'n all. . . . Don't let anybody fool you, there's plenty of life in a funeral home . . . just call me Digger O'Dell Smith!

Practically the entire male population of FSU turned out for the Glamour Girl Revue at the State Wednesday night.

I bumped into folks I hadn't seen all semester crawling down the aisle making a scramble for the front seats. . . . I didn't realize that there were so many nearsighted folks in school. I'll bet the ushers could have made a cool fortune selling ice water and fans during the performances. Rex Owen, Sam Armour, and Robert O' Jenkins were among the fortunate ones. . . . I thought they had joined the pit orchestra until a mutual friend told me that they were nearsighted. . . . Sally Rand would have felt right at home with this crowd!

Poetically Yours

. . . DOUG ALLEY

In a world of desperation
There is thrilling inspiration
When a leaf is turning over
And you find a four-leaf clover;
In a world of sadness sailing,
When the moon and sun is paling,
There is one real consolation
That can find most ev'ry nation.

It is the New Year here at last
Forget the old for it is past;
Look to the New for things to do
To mend the hearts, erase the blue,
Look not backward into night
Take up your arms and start the fight;
Fill your hearts with thoughts of glory
Write a chapter of a brand new story.

Type out the lines with sympathy
A novel of a nation free;
Keep the banners waving o'er
The torch of right upon the shore;
Give the best that you can give
And live the best that you can live;
Twelve short chapters you must write
Before you see the end in sight.

What is the plot? What is the story
That must etch your name in glory?
What is the theme? What is the name
Of this novel meant for fame?
Write the story and when it's thru
Make certain that the story's you.

To start the New Year right, send contributions to Poetically Yours, in care of the Flambeau. Please limit poetry to 32 lines or less.

Gobs Want Letters From Pretty Coeds

We know at least four sailors who are fond of beautiful women.

Four Navy flyers who are operating in the Korean theater, wrote a letter to the Flambeau. They wanted to hear from some people back home.

The writer is a Florida boy who convinced his three buddies that the girls in Florida are "the most beautiful and friendliest" in the country.

Roger Cunningham, the Floridian says, "Receiving mail is our favorite past-time. We don't have too much time to write, but we will find time to answer any mail we receive."

AS AN afterthought, Cunningham added, "I have a few friends from my home town, Belle Glade, going to FSU that I would like to hear from."

The boys are:

Kenneth Wentworth, AE3
Henry Kohler, AE AN
James C Baldwin, AE3
Roger Cunningham, AE3

Address all mail to:

Patrol Squadron Six
Care Fleet Post Office
San Francisco, California.

JUDGING FROM the recent reports from Korea the fighting men over there could use some cheerful news rgiht now. The Flambeau sincerely hopes that many students here will write, not only to these boys, but any other service men they know overseas.

'51 Senate Has Busy New Slate

New Measures Pass At First Meeting

At a meeting of the University Senate last night, Freshman Senator Jim Turnbull offered for first reading a constitutional amendment to the sections of legislative sections of the UGA constitution.

The proposed amendment would make all bills originating in either the Women's Senate or the Men's Senate subject to the approval of the University Senate before being put into effect. The bill was referred to the committee on constitutionality of proposed legislation.

SECRET ballots were cast by senators electing Dick Bradley president pro-tem of the University Senate over the other four candidates, Dick Yeager, Betty Rich, Ronald Koons and Jack Holmes.

A resolution was passed on the motion of Betty Rich requesting the registrar's office to conduct registration here as it is done in Gainesville. Under this plan, students would register by appointment during examination week, thereby having two more days of vacation between terms.

A BILL setting up a regulating committee for eating establishments on and off campus, offered by Senator Dick Keager, was passed by unanimous vote. This committee will inspect all places where students eat, including the school cafeterias, at least three times a year. Grades of A, B, C and D will be given to the places inspected. Bill Waters announced he would attempt to appoint the committee before next Tuesday's meeting.

President of the Senate Bill Waters announced the faculty reviewing board had passed the amendment to Article 8, Section 5 of the UGA constitution which was passed by the University Senate some time ago. This is a clarifying amendment which states the method of appointing successors to offices which may become vacant during a school year.

SENATORS absent from the meeting were Sonya Meyer, Burton Welch, Cass Yonge, and Mary Helen Speed. Cass Yonge's absence was excused due to other duties.

Ronald Koons said his bill setting up a traffic court had been turned over to the Legislative Reference Bureau and he expected to have it ready for presentation at the next meeting.

Senator Jere Salyers read an outline of a bill which would set up a men's organization known as "R O S [illegible] Ros." This society's membership would include all defeated candidates for freshmen offices. Its purpose would be similar to that of the Freshmen [illegible] service to the university.

Senator Bradley promised action on the proposed Board of Student Publications at the next meeting.

Rumsey Appointed Baking Professor In Business School

The appointment of Dr L A Rumsey, president of Rumsey-Perkins, Incorporated, Chicago, as professor of baking science and management in the School of Business, was announced this week by University president, Doak S. Campbell.

Prof Rumsey, who will assume his duties here February 1, has been in his position at Rumsey-Perkins, since 1948, and had for 20 years, from 1928-1948, held important positions in industrial marketing and management with the W E Long Co, Chicago.

He is a graduate of Denison University, Granville, Ohio, and received his PhD degree from the University of Minnesota. He has held teaching positions at Denison, University of Chicago, Iowa State College, and University of Minnesota.

While at the University of Minnesota, Dr Rumsey developed a new method, now standard, for determining action of diatsic enzyme activity and sugar values in wheat, flours and dough.

LeDuc to Attend Air Force Course

Professor Albert Leduc of the department of modern languages has been selected by the Air Force to attend a special course on Field Economic Mobilization this month at Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

During World War II Professor Leduc served as a colonel with the Army and Air Force in various positions of responsibility including a general staff assignment. Since the end of the war, he has maintained his connection with the Armed Forces through the reserves and is currently commanding [illegible] of the Reserve Training Squadron for this area.

Upon completion of this short-term special Armed Forces course at Baton Rouge, Colonel Leduc expects to resume his duties at FSU.

SU Adopts NCAA Sanity Code; eave Dixie Loop; Lose 2 Games

Subsidization of athletes for 1951, farewell to the 'simon pure' Dixie Conference, the current school year and loss of two football games for next fall were highlights of the Christmas vacation for Semin ole athletics.

The FSU athletic committee has adopted under the NCAA "sanity" code for all to athletes. The new policy will enable FSU to compete athletics, which has been pro- fessa listed in the school catalog.

hibited under Dixie Conference rules.

The 'sanity' code allows a school to give an athlete his tuition, any one meal a day during the training period and regular period of the sport, and a bona fide job during the off-season.

Dr Howard Danford, FSU athletic chairman, stated that the subsidization program would be financed by money from the race track scholarship fund. FSU received soms $37,000 from last years' share but more is expected during the coming year.

The new policy coupled with the desire for better competition prompted FSU's leaving the Dixie Confsrence. Seminole teams in all sports, except basketball, have monopolized conference honors during the past three years.

TWO FOOTBALL games were cancelled with the announcement of the change in athletic policy. Savanee University, a strict observer, of the NCAA code, refuses to play teams that are subsidized. Howard College, a Dixie Conference member, also requested cancellation of next years' game with the Seminoles.

Both teams gave FSU good battles on the gridiron last year.

The Second Annual Safeway Classic between the Homecoming games 14-8. Howard College bowed 20-0.

Loss of the two games presently leaves the Seminoles with only six contests for next fall. They are Miami, Troy, Wofford, Tampa, Stetson and Bradley.

The new policy will commence with the 1951 fall semester.

DIRECTOR DANFORD said that although this action was taken primarily with respect to determining the future status of intercollegiate football at the University, other sports will also be covered under NCAA provisions.

Athletic committee action was unanimous. Members of the committee on athletics are: Howard Danford, chairman; Dan Kaiserine Montgomary, Florence Foster, J Broward Culpepper, Clarence Stone, Corrie E Moore, Harold F Richards and Messers Rod K Sharp and Judge Walter Baker.

The committee also approved an appearance of the FSU Student Symphony "Pops High" In Miami's Orange Bowl on the afternoon of Saturday, March 10, 1951. The circus is being sponsored in this appearance by Lions club in and near Miami.

Seminole Five Plays Tonight In Nashville

Florida State University's basketball team, sporting a 5-1 season's record, will face a stiff test tonight when they meet the strong David Lipscomb College five in Nashville, Tennessee.

Tonight's game is FSU's first since before the Christmas holidays.

The Lipscomb five is currently enjoying a successful season. They defeated a strong Vanderbilt team Tuesday night 59-57.

Sophomoring Bob Hartman will be heavily relied on to bring FSU victory number six tonight. In six games this season the former Purdue star has scored 93 points for a game average of 15.5. Ranger Tom McLaughlin, center, is the number two Seminole scoring with 68 points for an average of 11.3 points per game.

Larry Dickson, one of the two Florida players on the regulars, is far ahead at the free throw line. The 6 foot, 3-inch forward has missed only one charity toss in 15 attempts for the amazing average of 93.3. In late December Dickson was the leader in the nation's small college free throw percentage. At that time he had a perfect 18 for 10 mark. Bob Whitmer is currently second with 22 free tosses in 31 attempts.

FSU has scored an average of 68.6 points per game compared with the opposition's average of 59.8.

The Seminoles left Thursday morning by bus for tonight's game. Coach Bud Kennedy took 12 players. They are: Bud Marner, Bob Hartman, Larry Dickson, Bob Whitmer, Ted Hewitt, Tom McLaughlin, Whitey Wyman, Ronnie Netiles, Lou Fischer, Bud Scott, and Dick Trobaugh.

Tonight's probable starting lineup will be: Whitmer and Marner at forwards: McLaughlin at center: Hartman and Trobaugh at guards.

The next FSU home game will be in the West Campus gym Tuesday night against the strong University of Mississippi Rebels.

Sharpshooting Seminole Cager

Pictured above is Bob Hartman, currently leading the Seminole cage team in scoring with 93 points. In the six games to date Hartman has averaged 15.5 points per ctarvet. This Friday night Hartman and will be in the FSU starting lineup tonight when the Seminoles meet the strong David Lipscomb College five in Nashville.

Gymkana Troupe Schedules 3 Shows

FSU's internationally famous Gymkana troupe will give three performances during the coming week.

Dr Hartley Price, gym coach, has announced that the group will perform for two shows today at Leon High on an assembly program. The first performance is scheduled for 9 a m and the second for 10. The troupe will perform at the '08 club dance tomorrow night at intermission.

The Gymkana cast will be on hand next Tuesday night to perform at the halftime of the FSU-"Ole" Miss basketball game in the West Campus gym.

The performances will feature

Intramural director Ed Williamson has announced a basketball rules clinic to be held Sunday afternoon at 2 p m in the West campus gym. All high school basketball officials will receive five rating points for attendance. The clinic is open to the public, and is sponsored by the Florida High School Athletic association.

FSU Cage Team Notches Wins Number 4, 5; Lose to Hurricanes

By JIM COUCH

FSU's fighting quintet eked out a 76-68 overtime win over Connecticut State Teachers, bowled over an aggressive but outclassed Howard five to the tune of 60-44; and then trounced a game Florida Southern team 86-55.

The Seminoles then carried their wav cry down to the land of the Miami Hurricane, where they received their first setback in six starts this year, losing 80-61.

In upsetting the highly favored Connecticut State squad, the Seminoles exhibited aggressive play and will to win, which, if carried throughout the season, will enable them to continue their winning ways.

THE CONNECTICUT game was the most aggressive one aver witnessed in the West Campus gym, despite the abundance of personal fouls. A total of 57 fouls was called in this game, which also saw the lead change hands or be tied 25 times.

The Seminoles started out fast and obtained an 8-1 lead in the opening minutes, but Connecticut State came right back to tie the score 16-16 midway in the period, and then take a 32-26 half-time margin.

After the half, the play went at an even pace until the visitors had a 50-42 lead. At this point Tom McLaughlin, Bob Hartman, and Larry Dickson sent the home team out in front with a 10-point spurt midway in the period. Then the teams traded the lead, with 30 seconds remaining, Connecticut managed a 61-61 tied. At this point Bob Hartman was fouled and the crowd went wild as he sank a free throw and was acknowledged as one of the finest set-up men in the south and was singled out for a standout in several tournamenis last year.

The main load will be carried by the six returning lettermen and Jim Clark and George Edmiston, who both played basketball last year and transferred over to fulltime volleyballers this year.

COACH Odenseal commented: "If the draft leaves us alone, we will have the strongest team FSU has ever had. Even better than the previous two teams which won the state championship two years in a row and last year went to the national tourney held in Knoxville, Tennessee."

The schedule has not been released: however, the varsity will take on a team composed of faculty members, tentatively slated for this match was set for Tuesday night in the West Campus gym.

Jacobs, of Howard, was high for the night with 14.

AT LAKELAND the following night, the Seminoles really found themselves as they trounced the Moccasins of Florida Southern. They romped to a 46-30 half-time lead and then continued to outscore their opponents and won 86-55.

High was Hartman again with 20 points, followed by Buddy Scott and Tom McLaughlin with 16 and 15.

DOWN IN Miami they ended their 1950 play by bowing to the Hurricanes 80-61. This was due primarily to the shooting percentage of the team, as they made only 8 of the 44 shots during the first half. The Hurricanes also managed to foul out three of FSU's first string men and hold the edge after acquiring a 39-37 half-time lead.

FSU threatened midway in the last period by narrowing the margin to 50-45, but at this point the fouls caught up with FSU and Miami went on to win easily.

ONE BIG reason for the Canes' win was FSU's inability to stop Miami Captain MacDonald who scored 29 points. For FSU, Whitmer, Marner, and Hartman tied for scoring honors with 11 points each.

FSU hits the road this week to take on David-Lipscomb tonight and returns here to take on Mississippi, defending and Florida Southern next week.

Volleyballers Work Hard For '51 Season

Coach Bill Odeneal and Dr Danford, athletic director, along with four team members, officiated the county high school tournament at Marianna last October. All of these "extras" have been conducted in the hope for more interest and high school participation in Florida.

Back for another year are six lettermen — second-string All-America Charlie Floyd, Danny Hobbs, Emerson Kramer, Bob Green, Bill Crook, and Ronnie Pickett. Also from last year's squad are Jim Clark, George Edmiston, Taft Green, and Jim Couch.

Newcomers to this year's squad include Gene Sauls, Dirk Kurras, Dick Tapp, MacDonald Lewis, Herb Kurras, Myrt Cates, and Charles McDaniel. Mac McCall is the manager for the team.

Army Takes Cox

The loss of Wallace Cox to the Army was a big blow to Odeneal's plans. Cox entered last year and was acknowledged as one of the finest set-up men in the south and was singled out for a standout in several tournamenis last year.

The main load will be carried by the six returning lettermen and Jim Clark and George Edmiston, who both played basketball last year and transferred over to fulltime volleyballers this year.

COACH Odeneal commented: "If the draft leaves us alone, we will have the strongest team FSU has ever had. Even better than the previous two teams which won the state championship two years in a row and last year went to the national tourney held in Knoxville, Tennessee."

The schedule has not been released: however, the varsity will take on a team composed of faculty members, tentatively slated for this match was set for Tuesday night in the West Campus gym.

$50,000 FOR LEGION BALL

ST PETERSBURG, —During the recent baseball meetings an amount not in excess of $50,000 was voted to carry on the American Legion Junior baseball program for 1951. The majors also voted $25,000 for the Association of Professional Ball Players of America.

Are Tears leftovers warmed up . . .

From way out West came Wyoming Will Destined for Jax and e General to kill;
In their finest traditions W and L gave their all,
The Cowpokes simply showed them how to play ball.
A Kaintuck Wildcat bit into a Seener
And held full sway like Frankie the Crooner;
Bryant's clevens with victory in their eye
Split the Oklahoma split-T awry.
A mighty steer stampeded into Dallas
Swollen with pride and full of malice;
'Im Texas bred and Texas fed,
I can lick anybody," so he said;
But a wise old bird named Neyland from Tennessee,
With 25 seasons under his BVD's.
Gave that steer a stiff test:
But the Wolverines finally rallied to win,
Showing the 6 year superiority of the Big Ten.
It was a great day for the single wing attack;
Four employing teams their opposition did rack.
Don Veller must have been right when he said:
"Power football is by no means dead."

FSU's new athletic policy will have far-reaching effects. Our fans must be somewhat familiar with what's at work. FSU went as far as they could under the "simon-purs" code but the former policy he couldn't work against better teams.

The "sanity" code will receive a thorough airing at the NCAA meeting this month in Dallas. Coaches Veller, Armstrong, Harbison, Crawford and Ned West will represent FSU at the annual conclave. Pal conferences would like to see the "sanity" code junked. They don't deserve it anyway.

Among the proposals, is one to abolish any restrictions on aid to athletes.

FSU will make every effort at the meeting to fill the four open dates on next fall's football schedule. They are October 20, 27, and November 2. Efforts to schedule Auburn for November 2 are at a stand still. The Tigers say FSU is "too tough."

FSU's football opponent on November 24, Bradley University, is usually ranked the number one team in the nation's basketball ranks. Bradley is a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, with Drake, Wichita, Detroit, Oklahoma A and M compose the loop.

FSU received a beautiful gold-plated trophy from the Cigar Bowl Committee prior to the LaCrosse-Valparaiso tilt New Year's. Hugh Adams, stellar tackle on the 1948 Seminole down that won the Cigar Bowl last year from Wofford, represented the team. Dr Howard Danford was on hand also, in behalf of President Campbell.

The trophy will be displayed in Westcott.

Dr Danford finally got around to meeting his son's father-in-law at the Cigar Bowl game. Danford's son, Gene, married Pat Osutsch, the daughter of the LaCrosse athletic director last summer. Danford was unable to be at the wedding.

NBTA Hears Dame At Cleveland Meet

Asks Careful Selection For Business Education

Dr J Frank Dame, dean of the School of Business, spoke at the general meeting of the National Business Teachers Association in Cleveland, Ohio, Saturday, December 30.

Dr Dame, advocating careful selection processes in business education, said that the processes should come from proper co-ordination of a series of guidance functions or practices.

"This," he said, "should be initiated and maintained in all schools teaching office practice. The proper development of facilities to handle such functions makes it necessary to have resourceful thinking. Also planning as well as persistent attention to the idea that something is really happening.

"IN OTHER WORDS," he continued, "there must be action rather than just lip service. Time is of the essence and all time spent educationally must result in growth if the individual is going to be prepared to fit into a proper place in our economic society."

Dr Dame listed three major ways of obtaining background information concerning the individual's capacity to succeed in the business office or in the retail field.

"These are," he said, "the prognostic tests, previous school marks in various subjects and exploratory or tryout courses.

"When all is said and done probably the tryout course is the most adequate and democratic course. It is the only process among the three mentioned that allows for the factors of interest, zeal and enthusiasm as well as revealing ability of a very specific nature."

Business Law Theme Of Harter Speech

Dr Wesley C Harter, professor of business law, spoke on "The Importance of Business Law in the General Education College and University Program" at the national convention program of the American Business Law Association at the Sherman Hotel in Chicago December 28.

Dr Harter, speaking before business law professors from all sections of the country, said that by having a fundamental knowledge of business law when leaving the university, the student finds such knowledge of great value to him in later life in almost any profession, business or other vocation he may enter. Dr Harter strongly advocated that freshmen entering a university or college be taught the principles of business law as part of their general education.

Defense Success Depends On Psychological Change

The success of the change from a normal condition of "business and life as usual in this country" to a vigorous and militant national defense effort will depend to a great extent on the psychological change of the American people in the opinion of Dr Theron Alexander, assistant professor of psychology at Florida State University.

The psychologist, who has been doing research begun at the University of Chicago and carried on here on interaction in groups, said in an interview that government leaders are concerned about changing to severe controls and have considered voluntary measures first. This is as it should be because it assumes a responsibility and maturity on the part of the people.

VOLUNTARY controls, he said, can be much more effective than strict governmental controls. Unless the people really believe in the effort, external controls will not be effective either. A democratic government assumes there is responsibility and concern for general welfare on the part of its citizens.

Dr Alexander points out research involving small groups has shown that where there is individual responsibility and the entire direction does not come from an external authority, much more can be accomplished in group effort.

"IT IS vitally important that the people of the U S understand and feel responsibility for the nation as a whole," he says. "We have heard a great deal about poor leadership and that we need someone to tell us what to do. However, the people themselves must decide some of the issues, as has been repeatedly pointed out by the Atomic Energy Commission, for example.

It seems democracy is in real danger if people say, let us have leaders and have them make the decisions." Furthermore, he stated, it is a lack of maturity on the part of people to fail to assume some responsibility.

Burton Appointed Visiting Professor

Professor Phillip Ward Burton of Syracuse University, has been appointed visiting professor of journalism for the spring semester by President Doak S Campbell.

Professor Burton, a graduate of Stanford University, has, among his other writings, been a reporter on Chicago newspapers, the Palo Alto Times and the San Jose Mercury Herald.

Coeds Now Offered Government Jobs

Women seniors and graduates are now being offered an opportunity for a colorful career in the Women's Army Corps through applications available at the Vocational Guidance and Placement Office.

Acting Director Wesley Vonderberg said that, "women college graduates who have reached the 21st birthdays, and not their 27th, on September 1, of the year which appointed, as well as senior college students who will be graduated during the present scholastic year are eligible to apply."

Selected applicants will be tendered direct appointments as second lieutenants in the WAC Reserve, and will then be ordered to extended active duty for attendance at a basic course at Camp Lee, Virginia. Upon successful completion of this introductory schooling they may apply for commissions as second lieutenants in the Regular Army.

Applications must be filed before January 15, 1951, to be eligible for consideration with the group to be selected for the year 1951.

Jordan Reads Paper At Chicago Meet

Dr Weymouth T Jordan, professor of history, attended the annual meeting of the American Historical Association in Chicago December 28-30, where he read a paper on Noah B Cloud's "Activities on Behalf of Southern Agriculture."

Dr Jordan has been notified that his article, "The Peruvian Guano Gospel in the Old South," has been published in the October issue of the Agricultural History. He has also been notified that three book reviews he wrote have been accepted for publication.

Beidler Discusses "Chemoreception"

Dr Lloyd Beidler, assistant professor of physiology, discussed "Chemoreception" at the weekly physics seminar yesterday.

Dr Beidler considered the aspects of the phenomena of taste and smell detection which are not yet fully explained. He related this discussion to work which he has done on mice. Dr Beidler is continuing these investigations at FSU.

Tracy and Lundberg Guest Speakers at Orlando Conference

Donald E Lundberg and Miss Anna M Tracy, were speakers and guests of the Florida State Restaurant Association at a conference yesterday in Orlando.

Mr Lundberg is head of the department of hotel and restaurant management, while Miss Tracy is head dietician at Florida State. They discussed the restaurant management program at FSU.

The conference was attended by members of the board of control of the FRA and representatives of the several state departments that license, supervise, tax and inspect food service in the state.

County Club Sets Confab for Tuesday

A special meeting of all students from Madison county will be held at 8 p m Tuesday in the Lonahime auditorium.

At the meeting special plans will be discussed briefly concerning the participation of FSU students in visit to FSU of 63 members of the senior class of the Madison County High school next Thursday, said John Newton Baker, director of public relations.

"We feel that a big point in the visit of these Madison county students to FSU will be meeting and talking with other Madison countians already enrolled at the University," Baker said.

Number 10...THE PANDA

The sudden rash of quick-trick cigarette tests may have caused panda-monium on the campus — but our scholarly friend was unperturbed. He pondered the facts of the case and decided that one-puff or one-sniff tests . . . single inhale and exhale comparisons are hardly conclusive. Proof of cigarette mildness doesn't come that fast!

And that's exactly why we suggest . . .

The sensible test — the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why . .

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Vol. XXXVI, No. 25 — PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF F.S.U., TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA — TUESDAY, JANUARY 9, 1951

Exchange Opens Here January 29

Junior Class Project Okayed For Use; Will Be Non-Profit

The student Used Book Exchange will begin functioning on Monday, January 29, it has been announced by Shirley Gregory, chairman of the exchange committee.

The Used Book Exchange will be a non-profit operation dealing with used books only. The exchange is a project sponsored by the Junior Class to insure fair prices for second hand books.

A CURRENT FACULTY book will be posted for acceptable sale. Only books included on the list will be exchangable.

The student owner will set his own price for the sale of his book. Every book exceeding one dollar in the buyer and seller will contribute a 5-cent fee. For books under one dollar a five-cent fee will be paid by each. These fees will be used to defray operating expenses and may possibly be saved after operations become quite.

A three divisional receipt form will be used by the exchange. The student seller will receive the lower third of the form. The top two will be clipped to the book. On the other hand, will be filed in the Exchange. Complete information and identification will be included on these two forms.

THE EXCHANGE will resume operation for three weeks after the opening of the second semester. The exact location for the exchange has not been decided. Members of the Exchange committee will operate the Book Exchange and will keep an accurate accounting of the project. The chairman of the committee said that any student volunteers would be welcomed to assist in the Exchange.

Dr Broward Culpepper, Dean of Student Welfare, has been the sibling force of the student Exchange sessions to become a great asset to the students of Florida State University. He stated that the committee has done a good job and the book exchange should come a success.

Special Class Meet Announced by Prexy

A special Senior class meeting on February 7 and 8 has been called Thursday at 7 p m in the Union building auditorium.

At February graduates are urged to be present, said Bob Nolan, student class president. Information concerning the graduation procedures will be given at Ladies present, reported.

Caps and gowns and invitations for the February graduation may be purchased at the Bookstore, Nolan said.

Sales Managers Hear Sears, Roebuck Exec

Roger T Smith, operations supervisor of the Sears Roebuck Store, spoke Friday morning to the sales management class of the School of Business.

He spoke on wages, bonuses and salary increments. He also discussed the various methods of paying salesmen and gave a summary of the duties of each method, and why different business vary in their payment methods.

Part of his talk dealt with the duties, training and promotion of the sales force as used by his commission.

Prof Pearl Becomes Doctor After Study

Professor Lester S Pearl is now Doctor Pearl.

An associate professor of social work, Dr Pearl went to the University of North Carolina during the recent holidays where he took a finals for his doctorate.

Since his return to FSU, Dr Pearl has been notified that he will receive his degree formally on June. His dissertation for his degree was entitled, "The Dynamics of Education for Marriage in the United States," and was compiled by Dr Howard W Odum, head of the department of sociology and anthropology at the University of North Carolina.

There will be a meeting of the Library Science club Wednesday, January 10, at 7:30 p m in the Library Science School lounge. Section of officers will be held.

Speech Tryouts Slated Tonight

Busfield Will Direct "Family Portrait" Play

General try-outs for the various Speech department plays will be held tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 p m in the Concadel little theatre.

All students who have not tried out before are eligible to compete for the roles in the numerous productions that will be staged during the spring semester.

The next play, Family Portrait will be directed by Roger Busfield, instructor from the University of Alabama speech department.

Men students are especially encouraged to try out tonight at 8 o'clock as Family Portrait includes several male roles. Tryouts are for people who will be here next semester. Men not subject to the draft are urged to try out.

Rehearsals for Family Portrait will begin before the semester break and the play will be given next semester.

Family Portrait will have an unusual cast. One of the main characters will be portrayed by a Tallahassee young lady. The boy between the ages of 9 and 12 will be held Thursday afternoon at 3:30 p m in the auditorium. Students in the Demonstration School and the Tallahassee public schools will be eligible to compete for the role.

Sunday Commences FSU Honor Week

Honor Emphasis week will open next Sunday with sermons on Honor by ministers in various churches in Tallahassee.

The special weeklong observance dedicated to the Honor Code on this campus was originally scheduled to be held this week. It was postponed so that the president of the University of Virginia Honor Committee could take part.

He will close the Emphasis week by a guest speaker at a gigantic student-faculty rally at Campbell Stadium, Friday night, January 19.

Truett Recital Set For Friday Night

Eloise Truett, senior voice major, will be presented in recital Friday at 8:15 p m in the Music hall. A student of Miss Betty Jane Grimm, Eloise will give a full recital of German, French, Italian and English numbers.

A group of songs by Professor Fowler will be presented and Miss Owen will be the accompanist. The public is invited.

Nimkoff to Give Public Lecture

A public lecture on "The Impact of Biological Discoveries on the Family" will be given by Dr Meyer F Nimkoff, head of the department of sociology, Wednesday night in the new FSU science hall. The lecture will begin at 8 p m in room 124 of the building.

The lecture is the second of a series being sponsored by the Sigma Xi club of FSU.

Dr Karl Dittmer, head of the FSU chemistry department, is the Sigma Xi club president with Dr Wilson A Baum, head of the department of meteorology, as vice president and program chairman. Dr Dwight L Gardner, Dr Ira Hunter, Dr Guenther Schwarz and Dr Hazel T Stevens, all members of the FSU faculty, are the remaining members of the lecture series program committee.

aJnuary 14 is the last day for turning in pictures for the snapshot section of the Yearl Tally-Ho, All pictures to be included in this section may be turned in at the desk in the Alum or placed in the boxes that have been put in at the East Campus Circle.

The pictures for this section will al come from those turned in by students.

There will be a meeting of the Tally-Ho senior staff this afternoon at 5:30 in the Tally-Ho office, according to Gail Kelley, managing editor.

Gnann Will Report Thursday On Student Christian Meet

George Gnann, junior, will give a detailed report on activities of the fourth National Assembly of the Student Christian Association to be held at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, in a speech Thursday night at 7 in the Social Works building.

Gnann went to the assembly held December 27 through January 2, as the official delegate of the newly organized FSU chapter of the Student Christian association which includes YMCA and YWCA members on the campus.

"DEMOCRACY at work could be seen when the entire convention," Gnann said in reviewing the conference briefly. "It was both a democratic and international convention." The FSU delegate was among 1,300 university delegates from all over the United States and Hawaii who convened last week in Oxford.

The national conference consisted of daily Bible studies, worship, lectures by well-known world figures, hearings on subjects related to the Student Christian Association movement, and legislative sessions.

Included among the eight main topics discussed by the SCA delegates were "Personal Life," Highlights," "The Church," "Nation and World," "Selecting Program Emphasis," "Essential Characteristics of the Student Christian Association Movement," and "Relations to Other Organizations and Fair Share Support."

GNANN said that the Student Christian Association Movement places great emphasis on the Christian within the Protestant tradition. "Such attributes as lid belief in direct access to God, its emphasis on personal Bible study and its belief in individual toupity place it in the Protestant tradition."

He went on to explain that the SCA is "definitely Protestant in purpose and program, does not exclude persons of other faiths who wish to work with it. "Although it encourages interfaith co-operation, it is not an interfaith organization, since its members do not represent individual faiths but which they belong," he said.

AMONG THE outstanding speakers at the conference, according to Gnann, was Russell M Jones, who spoke on "The Minority." A former Negro from the south, Jones is now attending Central State University. Jones, a former member of SCA, told the 1,300 delegates at the Ohio conference that the SCA movement helped him to understand world-wide fellowship and that since he had graduates he had continued to carry on its principles as his full-time work.

Other speakers included R H Edwin Espy, national executive secretary of the YMCA; James A Pike, chaplain at Columbia University, New York; Dean Dean, graduate of Radcliffe and Yale International Law School who spoke on "America and the World Struggle"; and Dr T Z Koo of China who spoke on the World Student Service Fund.

In reviewing the over-all activities of the SCA conference, Gnann said, "One of the most inspirational and outstanding results of the convention was the universal feeling of brotherhood which prevailed."

ODK Project Gets Underway Tomorrow With Four Blood Bank Contributions

Foundation Is Laid For Student Center

The new student center building is now under construction and should be completed by the 1951 fall semester, according to Mr Rod K Shaw, business manager. The foundation for the student center has been laid on the former East Campus Circus lot, he said.

The new bookstore, postoffice, and a cafeteria will all be located in the student center building.

THE STUDENT center is one of the more modern architectures now being set up as a part of the 50-year plan. Mr Shaw has a colorful facsimile of the finished product framed on the wall in his office.

The business manager has also verified the fact that the foundation for a three-storied dormitory for women has been laid west of Landis hall. Mr Shaw said it should be finished for the fall opening of the 1952 semester.

AT PRESENT there are also plans being drawn under construction on campus which shall be ready by the winter semester of 1953.

Mr Shaw said that five of the eight dorms will be built between East campus and Doak Campbell stadium. The other three will be near the present men's senior hall. He said there will be no dorms for women, other smaller dorms to house 40 men. They will have their own recreation areas and parlors.

IN EXPLAINING the operations of the Florida Judicial system to the class, Justice Tom M Mac-well Benton of the Public Administration Service, Chicago, Illinois, said that while most State Supreme Court cases are highly technical, they are handled with the dignity of the court without sufficness.

He said the $00 cases bandled annually by the Florida State Supreme Court was the highest of any such court in the nation, with California ranking second.

Thomas Says Court Procedure Studied

Simplification for Public Aired by Florida Jurist

Justice Elwyn Thomas told a class in state government operations that there is an effort being made to simplify state court procedures for the benefit of the public.

Justice Thomas said the court and Florida Bar Association is now making a study of court briefs and records aimed at greater simplification.

The justice, who recently began his third consecutive term on the State Supreme Court Bench, says that there is much public misconception as to court procedures. He said an American Bar association committee on the subject is chairman is trying to clear up much of his misconception through the various publicity mediums.

Marsh Is Appointed To Senate Vacancy

Herb Marsh, former vice president of the Associated Men's Government Association, has been appointed senior Men's Senator to fill the place vacated by Sigma Nu Gil Aldridge some time ago.

Herb was chosen for the office by agreement of the Vice-President in Charge of Men's Affairs Bill Hayes, the Vice-President in Charge of Women's Affairs Cass Tome, and the President of the University Government Association, Russ Latimer.

The appointment was unanimously approved by the Men's Senate in a special meeting held immediately after the adjournment of the UGA Senate Thursday night.

Student Union Opens Hondicroft Center

The West Campus Student Union announces the recent opening of its hobby and handicrafts center, located in the south end of the building.

At present, leathercraft is being presently offered and materials for several other crafts including art-work, model boat making, shellcraft, Indian beadcraft, and plastics are on order, but there is no cost except for materials.

The handicrafts shop is open Monday through Thursday evenings, 7 to 10 p m. Instruction and assistance are available during these hours. All students and married couples are invited to take advantage of the facilities offered here.

Eastern Air Lines Seeks Applicants

The Vocational Guidance Department has announced that Eastern Air Lines is seeking applications for college students who for positions as stewardesses.

Interested seniors are asked to come to the office of Vocational Guidance and Placement in 203 Westcott immediately.

A representative of Eastern Air Lines will visit Florida State University to recruit if there are a number of young women who wish to apply for those openings.

Board Receives '51-'53 Budget

Prez Campbell Submits Increased Expense List

A request for $11,542,464 from the General Revenue Fund was submitted Friday to the Budget Board of the State of Florida, by University President Doak S Campbell, the largest budget ever submitted by any state university for the 1951-53 biennium.

The budget presented by President Campbell asks for an increase of only one and two-thirds percent over the amount requested of the 1949 legislature. This low percentage of increase is possible because $400,000 is expected to become available to the University from Incidental Funds.

If President Campbell's request for funds is granted, salaries of 582 administrative and faculty personnel will be increased and 118 new positions will be created.

This budget for 1951-53 asks for over half a million dollars less for expenses other than salaries than did the budget presented to the 1949 legislature. It asks for less than three-quarters of a million dollars more than the 1949 request for funds for salary expenses.

FSU now has the equivalent of 7,400 full time students and a physical plant which has been increased by approximately 20% since the 1949 session, it is proffered to the state legislature.

The average percentage of salary increase allowed for in the 1951-53 budget is 8.85%. The decrease in expenses other than salaries is 17.75%.

Frosh to Receive Registration Pack

Upperclassmen to Pick Up Their Material Thursday

Registration materials for the spring semester will be mailed today to those freshmen who have campus post office boxes may pick up their material tomorrow, Wednesday, at the office of the registrar in Westcott.

All other students should come to the registrar's office starting Thursday, January 11 and through the new schedule of classes only. Other necessary forms will be distributed after Monday, January 22. Said Mr C H Walker, the registrar, "So no one lies!"

All freshmen students are requested to see their educational counselors before they start their receiving the Spring Schedule of Courses. Educational counselors will have been busy in trying to find a donor with the correct type. The building of comfort in the Leon County blood bank will remedy this situation since the infirmary nurse and staff of Tallahassee hospital and get the blood almost instantly from there.

STUDENTS desiring to help in the project by contributing blood should sign the roster in the dean of men's office. Both men and women students may donate blood. Arrangements must be made through the dean of men's office where transportation to the hospital will be furnished by ODK. Faculty members are also urged to sign the roster and contribute blood for faculty credit in the bank.

Dr Thomas Brooks, head physician at the University hospital stated that the blood bank is a "wonderful gesture and will enable a student to receive a transfusion almost instantly."

Other members of ODK who have assisted with the project are B Kelly, Dr Samuel Neel, Herb Quay, Bill Conklin, Dennis Delaurier and Dal Alfonso.

"THIS IS the most important project ODK has sponsored," Doug Alley said, "and I only hope students will join with us in making it a complete success."

An honor roll with the names of all donors will appear in the Flambeau each week.

FSU Credit Established in Leon County Hospital; Four Leaders First Donors

First donations to Florida State University's newly created blood bank will be given by members of Omicron Delta Kappa tomorrow afternoon.

The blood bank, a project of ODK, will be created at the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital within the Leon County Blood Bank. In this way, FSU will build up a credit in the bank so that anytime a transfusion is needed; FSU will have access to the Leon County bank.

The FSU credit will be established for use by FSU students and faculty. There will be absolutely no charge for transfusions to students although faculty members, who are not cared for at the University hospital, will pay ten dollars for processing. The student transfusion processing charge will be financed by the University hospital.

DOUG ALLEY, president of ODK; Earl Dubert, editor of the Flambeau; Hale Ackers, president of UGA, and Dr Otis McBride, dean of men and faculty advisor to ODK, will start the bank credit by donating a pint of blood each.

All other students should come to the registrar's office starting Thursday, January 11 through the new schedule of classes only. Other necessary forms will be distributed after Monday, January 22. Said Mr C H Walker, the registrar, "So no one lies!"

"They're Beautiful —But Won't Last"

After coming well-nich to flunking because of tardiness, nonattendance, Bill Hayes has recently requested a clock for the Union in each office.

They arrived yesterday—two 400 day clocks. As Betsy Blanton, managing editor, expressed it, "They're perfectly beautiful, but they wouldn't last half an hour in my office."

The clocks are generally used as parlor clocks, being of very fine make and kept in an inverted glass cylinder.

Business manager Bob Griffin is quite confused. "All I ordered was a clock. I don't know what I'm scratching his head.

Editor Dobert's only comment was "I must grow fond of it in a few years."

Science Job Forum Aired Jonuary 10

A vocational guidance forum on biological science will be held January 10 at 7 p m in the Jennie Murphree Hall lounge.

Dr Mary Yon, acting head of the Department of Bacteriology, will preside over the forum. Other members include Miss Welfare's dir Enda Devine, Dr A C Hildebrand, Dr Harold Humm, and Alban Stewart, all of the biological science department. Miss Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings will be the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, arranged the forum.

Fan Mail Sent From Austria To Florida State Circus Star

A newspaper picture made into a letter envelope and mailed simply, "The address of the letter is the Miss on this photo" found its way 5,000 miles from Vienna, Austria, to Florida State University campus.

SENDER OF the letter was Alfred Wenisch, who identified himself as a "Juridicial" student at the University of Vienna. Wenisch wrote the picture was published in the Wiever Kurier, newspaper of the American army in Austria.

Wenisch signed his letter to Betty Ann "With kind greetings (collegiate and academic) from continent to continent—from Vienna to Tallahassee."

HE SAID "Your photograph of your amazing acrobatic feats interested me very much because you appear in it so charming and attractive and do not appear to be afraid. I am curious because you appear in it so charming and attractive and do not appear to be afraid. I am curious a typical stylish American woman to be. The picture aroused enthusiasm not only in myself but of your noteworthy athletic accomplishment but also on account of your charming appearance."

The Austrian student said he will be glad to hear that you were that we also in Austria, in spite of war and post-war times, appreciate womanly beauty and in the hope of giving you perhaps a little pleasure and as encouragement to new additional accomplishments."

Wenisch also requested another picture of Miss Holland since he had to give up his only copy to send the letter.

State Symphony Gives Concert January 22

Dohnanyi's Concerto Presented by Group With Composer at Piano

The State Symphony of Florida, conducted by Karl Kuersteiner, will perform the second piano concerto of Ernst von Dohnanyi with the composer at the piano at the second subscription concert of the season. The performance will take place in Westcott Auditorium, January 22, at 8:15 p m.

Dohnanyi, a faculty member of the Florida State University School of Music, is world-renowned as composer, pianist, and conductor. His second piano concerto was written in 1947, while the composer was living in Australia. It was given its first performance in Sheffield, England, in December, 1947, with the composer at the piano and Sir Thomas Beecham, the eminent British conductor, leading the orchestra. Very shortly thereafter, the same conductor and orchestra repeated the concerto in Manchester and London.

THE WORK was given its American premiere in November, 1947, by the Detroit Symphony, with composer-pianist Dohnanyi and the conductor was Karl Krueger. Since that time it has been performed by various orchestras in this country and Europe.

THE Nutcracker Suite which Tchaikowsky arranged from his Nutcracker ballet is the other major work on the program. Dr Kuerstener said that this work, so popular with children and adults alike, was requested more than any other music. Written two years before the composer's death, this suite marks a major achievement in orchestral color and instrumentation.

THE HUNGARIAN March from The Damnation of Faust by Hector Berlioz will be the first number on the concert program. This orchestra is also preparing by popular request the overture to "William Tell" by Rossini for its final number.

Season ticket holders will have the same seats they reserved for the first concert. Individual tickets may be secured from the School of Music office, FSU, at any time, or at the box office on the night of the performance.

Tarpon Selects Slate of Officers

Del Peters was recently elected president of the Tarpon club. She succeeds Crystal Hamilton.

Other officers elected were Jean Hall, vice president; Ann Chance, secretary, and Marilyn Stirler, publicity chairman.

The club is that of a membership of 30 girls, all selected on the basis of their swimming ability and water showmanship. They give two water shows each year, one in the fall and the other in the spring.

Positions Are Open To Feb Graduates

The office of Vocational Guidance and Placement has received word from Dupuy Proving Ground, Tooele Utah, of positions in which students graduating in February may be interested.

The following positions were open: Medical biology technician, meteorologist, geologist, aides, engineering aides, meteorologists, statisticians, mathematicians, and chemists.

Detailed information and application blanks are available in 203 Westcott.

Social Workers Club Will Meet Tonight

A meeting of the Social Work club will be held this evening at 7 in room 121 of the Social Work building.

Mr Alfred Ogram of the Federal Correctional Institution will speak to the group and answer questions concerning social work in correctional institutions. All interested persons are invited to attend.

● 'CHEST' APPROVED ON TRIAL BASIS

A Campus Chest has finally been approved . . . on a trial basis.

This all-campus charity drive has been needed for a long time to alleviate the continuous year-long fund raising by different organizations on campus.

Now instead of being asked to contribute to many different drives, this plan, similar to a community chest, will concentrate them all into one big drive, each organization getting a percentage of the total.

Some organizations objected to such a drive because they said they could not possibly get enough money from it and it was not their policy to participate in such a drive. Now if any organization on campus wants to have a fund raising week, it must take part in the Campus Chest.

The psychological effect on students will probably be better too. Knowing that the Campus Chest drive will be the only one for all organizations, the student will contribute more, and gladly too, since he will be relieved in knowing that a dozen or so organizations will not be pestering him for the rest of the year.

The Campus Chest looks very good on paper, but to make it work, students must take part in the drive by contributing as much as possible. If the Chest, on this trial basis, goes over well, it will become a permanent plan at the University. It will be time saving and students knowing that their money will go directly to the people who need it will dig deep in their pockets to help.

Fraternities, sororities and clubs on campus will be able to give their contribution in one lump sum at a specified time adding to congeniality and centralization. The constant mailing of letters pleading for money and that constant give, give, give can now be avoided.

Let's make the campus chest go over.

● SOUND AND SENSIBLE

Recent adoption by the athletic committee of the NCAA 'sanity' code for intercollegiate athletes closes the gap between FSU and the University of Florida.

The equalization process is now complete. Both institutions have adequate Flambeaus, growing student bodies, and now both are on an equal footing in subsidization.

No longer will Messers Woodruff, Colman, Ehrgot, Battista, Hooper, McAllister roam the state unchallenged in their search for future Gators. Several new faces will be seen over the state—Veller, Harbison, Armstrong, Matherly, Thomas, and Westberg.

FSU's coaching staff can rest assured that they will be well received. Under their guiding hands, a new football power has come into being in Florida. This new power will grow even greater under subsidization.

The new policy will help the athlete to help himself. It will not be a free ticket through college nor will it be exploitation of one's athletic talents without some retribution.

The policy enables the school to give an athlete his tuition, any fees listed in the catalog, one meal a day during the training season and regular season of the sport, and a bona fide job with compensation during the off season.

FSU's athletic committee is to be congratulated for the change in policy. It is a safe, sound, sensible program of aid to athletes.

The new policy paves the way for FSU-Florida athletic events. It also gives our coaches the battling license which the 'simon pure' Dixie loop refused to issue.

Happy hunting, Seminole coaches . . .

Christmas Schedules

Dear Editor:

We quite agree with the intelligently written editorial concerning Christmas programs which coincidentally occurred during the Christmas season just passed.

As conscientious students in the School of Music, we have a solution whereby such events could be "more evenly distributed throughout the school year rather than jumped together at the same time."

After discussing at some length a time for the presentation of brother Handel's "Messiah," we agree the Fourth of July would be a most propitious time.

Also, we sincerely believe that all hearts would be quite receptive for the Women's Glee club Christmas Vespers on February 14 . . . eh, St. Valentine?

Unofficially, we have reserved October 26 through November 6 for the University Singers to do their "Twelve Days of Christmas." Of course, this would include Halloween, a must on everyone's calendar.

Please tell your humming bird to buss by the School of Music office and glance at the calendar. Surely, he will find multitudes of fine programs throughout the entire year, and not at Christmas.

Well . . . time for another recital.

See for Self

Fellow Students:

Why not come to the University Senate meeting today? You might even learn a little about your student Government! Chances are you'll not waste your time, and you'll find that the Senate is not just a waiting room. True, we do spend much time but legislation always takes time and good legislation takes more time. Incidentally, the later hours for women, which was proposed in the Senate, was not even the first of next semester.

These Senate meetings are held every Tuesday afternoon at 5:15 on second floor Alumni building. These meetings are open to everyone interested, and I personally welcome you, and your constructive criticism.

Get the whole of the picture and come to see for yourself what is being done.

WANT TO JOIN THE WRTPTBSUTRP

By EARL DOBERT

Do you want to join the new club forming at Florida State University?

The membership is restricted to males only and we do not charge any dues. As a matter of fact you will receive on the deal—at least $3 a month.

The club—known as WRTPTBSUTRP—has grown tremendously since it was first formed at the beginning of the fall quarter. The club at FSU is Alpha chapter but we expect to charter new clubs where ever it becomes necessary.

The club's full name is: We Refuse To Patronize Tallahassee Barber Shops Until They Reduce Prices.

Need more sales talk?

When the club has enough money in the treasury, it intends to have a full time barber who will use the office of the student government president when he is not there. He will be open for business from 8 a m until 5 p m.

If business is good, the club plans to take over the Senate Chamber on days when there more chairs. They have 24 in there now but they are rarely all in use when the Senate meets.

Some wings of the organization have advocated that the Office of the Flambeau editor be used if needed. We can readily go along with that. He has a swivel chair that would come in handy.

The initiation of the club is a pair of scissors on a background of peppermint sticks.

So remember, if in the future, you see a couple of men running around the campus garbed in white coats, they will be barbers, not interns from Chattahoochee.

The University council deserves praise for passing the Campus Chest on a trial basis for the coming year. It is the first for students to see that such a project is overwhelmingly subscribed in.

Sandspur has started off in the right direction by saying that it wants to take advantage of their profits to the "chest." Other organizations should consider some plan for helping the campus charity fund.

Phi Sigma Delta Kappa, Mortar Board, Garnet Key and Gold Key can do their part in promoting interest in the drive.

Although dates have not been set for the beginning of the drive we should start to think about it and do our part toward making the first campus chest the beginning of an annual drive. Let's make it worth the while that we have it.

The student activities court is now now in the process of being drawn up by the legislative reference bureau according to Bill Crenshaw. A round of applause for applying himself so diligently in seeing this project through.

A system of control for faculty and activities alike is needed desperately on campus. No one has been lifted yet but we sincerely believe it is only a matter of time before this happens.

The only way for a successful court to operate is for the laws applying to the traffic court to be enforced strictly. If this is not done there isn't much sense in having the court.

Witness what happens on the Florida State Penal level when laws are disregarded.

AUTHOR ASKS: WHAT IS DEMOCRACY?

By JERRY THOMAS

A favorite question for many high school and college political science and government instructors is "what is democracy?"

We have lived with democracy all our lives and still find it a difficult thing to define.

More than ever before, the definition of democracy must be acknowledged by millions of people.

Today in this country, the world is confronted with a choice—communism or democracy.

How can the peoples of the other nations understand democracy, if even the citizens under it can not understand it? Is a difficult time explaining it?

Democracy must be practiced and fostered in the home, in the schools, in the clubs, and in the governments, before we can hope for a war-torn world to wholeheartedly accept it.

A downtrodden people will try any type of government if that government shows promise of success.

How then, are we to tell them of democracy?

Before we try to explain that certain citizens find it fit to garb themselves in sheets and burn crosses, I wanted to find out, or, that is to, in all reality, put a finger on the true meaning?

How are we to explain that if you carry an accent, you are branded as foreigner?

How are we to explain why political office seekers regard reelection as the almighty dollar higher than service to their people?

And how are we to explain, that even in our great university, students who are not fraternities do not extend membership to those born a Jew?

Define democracy? Instructors should begin to explain what it is. Education ask for its definition.

To intelligently teach children, men, nations, a world, what democracy is, remains a challenge. We cannot hesitate. America awaits. A world is totalitarian.

Every individual has a job. It cannot be ignored.

We must become teachers. Teachers of democracy. We must arm ourselves with knowledge.

The effulgence of a proud and free people must be reflected throughout the universe if humanity is to live. That spirit was once prevalent on many a frontier, it can live on forever. That spirit must again be regnant.

The habit of capriciously "taking everything for granted" must find its oblivion.

We must evaluate. We must acknowledge. We must become appreciative.

We can wear no amulet in an attempt to beguile our enemies. We must confront reality. We must live and practice democracy.

WOMEN'S STYLES AND ORCHIDS

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

One of the foremost things in the life of women is fashion.

When a woman is invited to a party or if she goes downtown shopping, the first thing she thinks is "What shall I wear?"

Since women are interested in clothes they have been dictated to by fashion designers and manufacturers. Every season or later hours, they are providing for a student traffic court and they recently passed a campus chest.

They all benefit Mr Average Student. How about letting them know when they are doing a good job and when you believe they are becoming bit in their duties.

For after all, if they are big you only have yourself to blame. How about it?

● ONLY 254 SALES

In the rush of returning home for the holidays, only 254 students remembered to send in their contributions to the Christmas Seal Sale on this campus.

This was clearly an oversight on the part of the remainder of the 6,000 students on campus. Its not too late to do your part. Get out the envelope which was enclosed with your seals, add your contribution and drop it in campus mail today.

The fight against TB goes on all year round, not during the Christmas season. Three TB hospitals must be supported in the State of Florida alone. They need your help. Someday you may need theirs.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

CIRCUS BEAUTY INTRIGUES AUSTRIAN

By JOEL P SMITH

"Flying High" is really reaching new heights and is doing just what its name implies. The world-wide circus romance of the Movietone short, "Circus on the Campus," along with hoards of pictures and news releases are really doing some globe trotting.

As proof of the Circus' international popularity an unusual incident happened over the holidays when Betty Ann Field, Holland, one of the big top stars, received a letter on which the only address was a picture of her in the circus parade.

The letter found it way some 3,000 miles to Vienna, Austria, to Frau Stella Stute Venturing. The picture was one that was widely published. The writer of the unusual letter was Alfred Venisch, a young Austrian serving as a "juridical" student at the University of Vienna. He wrote that the picture was published in the Wiener Kurier, newspaper of the American zone in Austria.

Venisch signed his letter to Betty Ann "With kind greetings (collegiate and academic) from continent to continent — from Vienna to Tallahassee."

He said, "Your photograph of your amazing acrobatic feats aroused my special interest because you appear in it as charming and attractive and do not appear at all as one here imagines a typical stylish American woman. Also, the picture aroused enthusiasm not on account of your noteworthy athletic accomplishments but also on account of your charming appearance."

Betty Ann's trans-continental admirer said that he wrote her "In order that you may know that I also in Austria, in spite of war and post-war times, appreciate sports and that I am not lost to new additional accomplishments."

Wenisch also requested another picture of Betty Ann because he had to give up his only copy to send the picture to a friend in another example of how Coach Haskin's "Flying High" is publishing FSU's name. He was surprised if many such letters don't pile in from the thousands of universities and colleges that see the shorts and newsreels of the circus throughout the nation and the world. Friends of mine who attend the University of Virginia couldn't believe that Florida State has such a show as Flying High when they saw the film, "Circus on the Campus." They were highly interested in meeting Doris Kitrell and the dozens of other circus beauties.

Poetically Yours

ALL IS NOT LOST
. . . H M KEY

I paced the lonely streets of life
And then you came along;
Your eyes and heart met hearts
The spheres took up our song.

I touched your hand, my drunken hope
Went reeling on space;
I pressed your lips, my giddy soul
Went soaring out in peace.

But eyes and hearts are fickle things
And songs will have their days;
Great fires make ashes all too soon
Once more I walk my lonely way,
Forlorn.

I ask my silky heart: Can ashes burn
As bright again?
My silky heart is dumb, but hope replies
They might . . . they can.

MUSH
. . . PEGGY FELOT

There is a shadow on your cheek from a low burning light,
This is the darkest of all the nights;
Your face is, oh, so close to mine
As I think your lips must be.
This is the silence, the long still hush
That an Eskimo orders his dogs to "Mush!"

(Coming Friday is Dell Lebo's poem, "I am God in the Midst of Thee." Contributions to Poetically Yours should be sent in the Flambeau through campus mail. Please limit poems to 32 lines or less.)

Madison Seniors To Visit FSU Campus Thursday

Members of the senior class of Madison County High School at Madison, Fla., will arrive at Florida State University Thursday, January 11, to tour the campus and learn how a large university operates.

The 40 high school seniors will arrive on the FSU campus at 10 a m accompanied by Miss Ruth Browning, Jr, of the high school faculty. They will travel in school buses and upon their arrival will be given a complete tour of the campus, including the radio station, will be introduced to the visiting high school seniors at a 12:15 assembly. The campus will follow the informal group meeting and luncheon in the university's Reception room. The group of the high school seniors will be host for visit to the FSU Music building, Cawthon Hall, Women's Physical Education building, and the Carnegie building and the FSU library.

While the Madison county seniors are on the FSU campus, they will also be greeted by FSU students during the day.

Arrangements for the visit of the group to FSU and the program while at the university are being handled by John Newton Baker, FSU director of public relations.

Ex-Flambeau Reporter Travels, Studies Seattle's Skid Row

A surprise visitor to the Flambeau office yesterday was Bill Stevens, a former Flambeau reporter, who graduated last June and has been traveling through the western United States for the past seven months.

Starting June 6, the day after he graduated from FSU, Bill drove to California in a Model A coupe, let touring car. He worked on a cotton picking machine a railroad in northern California.

..."THAT'S where I learned how to roll cigarettes with one hand," laughed Bill. The Mexicans working with him on the railroad showed him how to do it.

From California he drove back through the wilderness to Seattle, Washington and then to Oregon by the Rogue River. While in Oregon he worked as a dishwasher.

He lived on Skid Row in Seattle for a couple of months, studying the characters," related Bill. "I stayed in the Bread of Life Hotel.

ON HIS return trip the former FSU student went through East Idaho and then to Shreveport, La. where he worked as a clothing salesman for about three weeks. Then he came to Jax and slowly back to Tallahassee.

Bill is the son of Mr and Mrs Wallace Stevens, Hollywood, Fla. and was a journalism major while attending Florida State.

Junior English Exam

The next regularly scheduled Junior English examination will be given in Westcott auditorium Thursday, January 18, at 4:30 p m. The examination is one hour long. Those who are required to take it are: all students who will become juniors at the end of the semester, and (2) upperclassmen who have not already taken the examination. No one is allowed a re-take on the examination. The academic council of deans has fixed a penalty for delay in taking the examination.

F Club Has Meeting

There will be a meeting of the men's F club on Wednesday, January 10, in the women's gymnasium. Plans will be discussed for a dance.

Nancy Hope Attends FSU on Fellowship To Learn About Student Religious Life

Spending the current academic year on the Florida State University campus as a Danforth Foundation Graduate Fellow is proving the experience of a life time for Miss Nancy Hope, of Michigan.

Miss Hope, a pretty and intelligent girl, was one of 16 girls selected this year by the Danforth Foundation from a possible 425 candidates from as many colleges and universities which have foundation advisors.

HER assignment to Florida State University out of the more than 400 colleges and universities to which she may have been sent, she says, was based upon the opportunities offered at FSU. And she readily adds that the choice of her being sent to FSU has been a happy one for her.

Miss Hope graduated from Michigan State College last year and holds a teaching certificate from that state. She plans to return there when her Fellowship here ends to obtain her masters degree.

She explained that Danforth Graduate Fellows are recent colleges graduates with a special interest in voluntary student Christian life. The fellowships made possible by William Danforth, elderly philanthropist, is for the purpose of allowing the young women selected an opportunity to learn about student religious life and work, both through observation and participation.

WHEN THE recent "Intelligent Faith Week," program was held at FSU, Miss Hope working along with the campus religious workers served in the capacity as a sort of general secretary and coordinator for the program. She said she found this work valuable in her future plans to enter Christian education work as a vocation or avocation.

Since her arrival at FSU she has had the active assistance and counseling of Dr Ralph Witherspoon, associate professor of psychology and Director of Child Development and Mrs Witherspoon, who are Danforth Foundation advisers in this area. The Witherspoons formerly served in that capacity in the Central Michigan College of Education and it is partially through their efforts that Miss Hope was sent here as a foundation fellow.

BEFORE coming to FSU, Miss Hope along with the other selected Danforth Fellows spent five weeks at Camp Minnesaree, Shelby, Michigan, taking a special course of training to prepare them for their observation and study on the various university campuses.

These Danforth Fellows are not professionally employed representatives of any national body, nor are they under contract to serve any particular organization after completing their objective of preparing for lives of active Christian service either in a vocational or volunteer capacity.

"It's a wonderful experience for a girl," Miss Hope says. "The fine spirit of the FSU student body, the educational quality of the faculty, the wholesome and progressive spirit of the university is offering me a great opportunity for study-service. I intend to make the most of it."

Religious Groups Active on Campus

Christian

The college-age group of the Capital Christian church is sponsoring an Italian-style spaghetti supper Thursday night at 7:00 in the church recreation room. Tickets are on sale for 75 cents, and proceeds from the supper will be contributed to the Christian World Friendship Fund. Wallace Cynes, chairman of the entertainment committee, says his group has planned a fast-moving stage show to be presented after the supper.

Tickets may be purchased from Jean Keller, Room 320 Broward, or at the door on Thursday night. All are invited to attend the spaghetti supper. The young people of the Christian Church are urged by Lou Riley, president of the group, to support the Friendship Fund by purchasing tickets to the supper.

Newman

Mass was celebrated for the first time Sunday in the Newman house for students of Florida State University. The Rev Lamar Genovar, administrator of Blessed Sacrament parish in Tallahassee, was celebrant.

The mass was said in the newly completed addition to the student house, on the corner of College and Macomb streets. Mass will continue to be said each Sunday during the college year at 10:30 a.m for the college students.

A "Your Club" party was given at the Newman house Saturday evening as the first function of that new year. Special entertainment was provided with James Herda as master of ceremonies.

Members of the entertainment committee were Dorothy Reese, Harry Furze, James Wilkie, Lydia Farro, and Yvonne McCarthy.

Refreshments were served and dancing provided.

A meeting of the executive council will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m at the Newman house. All members are urged to be prompt.

Saturday there will be a poster party for those who wish to help with the publicity on the Newman Club weekend. They will meet at 1:30 p m at the Newman house.

Rosary is said at the house every day at 5:45 p m.

BSU

In recognition and preparation for Honor Week to be observed on this campus beginning January 14, the Baptist Student Union is having an Honor Vesper Service Tuesday night, January 9, at the BSU House. Miss Katherine Warren, Dean of Women, will be the speaker. Everyone of all denominations is invited.

Saturday, January 13, BSU will have its annual winter retreat at Camp Flastacowo. This retreat is spent in evaluating the activities which have already take place and making plans for the remainder of the year. Ray Koonce, state BSU secretary, will be the principal speaker. Transportation leaves the Student House at 1 p m on Saturday and the Retreat is officially closed at 10 p m. However, those girls wishing to remain at the camp for the night may do so if they sign up at the Student House by Tuesday night. Transportation and supper fee will be $.75. Thursday is the final deadline except for those wishing to spend the night.

Rugg Hall

The Feast of Light service was held Sunday evening at Rugg Hall. Margaret Horrox and Alberta Large were elected freshmen representatives to the vestry. Charlie Binnicker was elected librarian.

Informal Dance Held Tonight At O Club

An informal tea dance, sponsored by the Student Union Organization, will be held this evening at the West Campus Student Union from 7 to 9, according to Bill Hayes, president of the SUO.

The music will be furnished by Georgie Bee and his orchestra. There will also be refreshments and entertainment. All students are invited to attend.

Home Ec Club Meets

There will be a meeting of the Home Economics club Thursday evening, January, 11, at 7:30 in the Longmire auditorium, according to Catherine Prevedel, publicity chairman.

A fashion show will be presented during the meeting and all members are asked to attend.

Don Veller Announces He Will Remain at FSU 'As Long as They Will Have Me'

Dr Don Veller
. . . a home at FSU

By BENNETT LAND

Prior to his departure for Dallas Sunday and the NCAA meeting, Don Veller, head football coach at FSU, announced that he hoped to remain at Florida State "as long as they will have me."

Veller's future status was uncertain prior to his statement Sunday. Several weeks ago he announced that "he might not be back at FSU next year." He made a similar statement on a local radio program last week.

It was known that Veller was seeking a pay increase, a possible seat on the athletic committee, and two additional football assistants. Whether the Seminole head man got his wishes fulfilled is still unknown but he did say that "certain problems had been cleared up."

Veller now receives $7,100 a year, and holds the rank of professor. Under FSU's system of tenure he would be eligible for permanent status at the end of the current year and could retire in 20 years at his rank.

Veller explained that under his agreement with the athletic committee he could give up the coaching position at any time and devote full time to the teaching portion of his duties, without loss of his rank or reduction in salary.

"This was probably the major factor in my decision to stay at Florida State," he added. "In recent weeks such well known coaches as Wes Fesler, Jeff Cravath, Blair Cherry, Bernie Bierman, and many others have left the coaching ranks because of unbearable conditions."

"I am convinced that the policy here at Florida State offers me considerably more security, happiness and opportunity for continued success."

Veller evidently gave more than a passing glance to the evils of big time football which have been pointed out in the Flambeau since he first announced that "I might not be back with the Seminoles next fall."

FSU assistant Dosk Campbell could not be reached for comment as he was out on the town. Dr Howard Danford, athletic director stated: "I'm very happy that Dr Veller is going to be with us. There is no one I know of that I'd rather have coaching football at FSU than Don Veller. He's done a magnificent job and I hope he'll stay here the rest of his life."

Veller, assistants Armstrong and Harbison, and sports publicity director Red West left Sunday for Dallas.

Veller plans an extensive recruiting campaign when he returns from Dallas. He will visit athletes in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Pennsylvania.

Since FSU's announcement that athletes would be subsidized in 1951, Veller has contacted a number of athletes in Georgia and Florida. According to Veller, "There's not much talent left around here. The Gators are getting football players a little too young. We've got a late start in this recruiting business but I guess its better late than never."

Seminole Cagers Meet 'Ole Miss' Here Tonight

Circus, 'Flying High Filmed By Paramount

Toma-Hawk

By BENNETT LAND,
Flambeau Sports Editor

"Flying High" continues to be in demand with the nation's newsreelers. Last week Oscar Goodman, Paramount's cameraman in this area, stopped by FSU enroute from Miami and the Orange Bowl for Atlanta.

Goodman was high in his praise for the circus and Coach Jack Haskin. "This is one of the greatest events in college life I have ever witnessed and that includes quite a number," he said.

The Paramount ace filmed the Tennessee-Kentucky game but recalls it with agony. He was high atop Shields-Watkins Stadium in Knoxville—the temperature 0 degrees.

Oscar filmed the Tulane-Notre Dame game, Georgia-Georgia Tech, North Carolina-North Carolina State contests the past fall. He stated Tennessee was the best team he saw. . .

The Men's "F" Club and the Women's "F" Club recently staged a spelling bee, no doubt warming up for the Junior English exam—a bug-a-boo to all. The gals won out, 9-2, but only after an hour and a half had elapsed. Emerson Kramer and Dick Mobley were still on the firing line for the men when the bee ended.

Bob Green, Seminole volleyballer, passes this on for "going to the dogs." During the holidays he attended a high school basketball game. At one point the ball sailed out of the court. Bob strode over to get the ball for the referee but a deer beat him to the draw. Green took the ball away from the mutt and returned it to the official. The enraged K-9, not to be outdone, lunged at the hero's trousers and got a piece of wood for his pursuit area. Now the women don't always have the last word. . . .

Cage mentor "Bud" Kennedy pointed out that the loss in Nashville last Friday night could just about be attributed to a Lipscomb player named Majors. Seems the kid was "red" hot from as far out as the mid court line. He sank seven field goals in nine attempts. Which as they say in the "Grand Ole Opry" city, is pretty fair country shooting, neighbor.

The two-week layoff also took its toll in Nashville. Too much turkey and all the trimmings played a part too. But after all the "holiday" bird is served only once a year, at least at our cupboard, so you can't blame the boys for helping themselves to the home victuals. They'll be back stronger than ever.

The three games this week are tough nuts. "Ole Miss" is fast company. The "Magnolia State" boys play good basketball as well as football. Stetson and Florida Southern will both give 40 minute battles. . . .

You'll be interested in Don Veller's lifetime coaching record. In eleven years of coaching, the former Indiana star has compiled an amazing record of 74 wins, 16 losses and 11 ties. Veller coached seven years at Elkhart, Indiana High School. These teams won 54, lost 11, and tied 3.

Veller moved to Hanover College in 1946 and produced four wins, three losses, no ties.

In his three years here he has produced 21 wins, 2 losses, no ties.

At this rate Veller is well on the road to challenging Bob Neyland of Tennessee for coaching laurels. Neyland in 18 years at Tennessee has posted 142 wins, 23 losses and 11 ties. Little wonder that Volsmeer players are in such demand as coaches.

Annual meeting of the NCAA opened yesterday in Dallas. The "sanity" code, FSU's new athletic policy on aid to athletes, is high on the agenda for a renovation. The Southwest and Southeastern conferences have submitted a proposal to let each conference supervise its own subsidization. They point out that no one agency is capable of enforcing a nationwide program.

Can you ever remember when so many coaching vacancies existed in the big-time ranks? Stanford, Boston College, Ohio State, Minnesota, and Southern California are all looking for new grid mentors.

The alumni really poured it on this year. Fesler, Bierman, Cravath, Myer, have all produced fine teams in the past. Again we say the alumni memory is short indeed. . . .

But as FSU, it's still win, lose or draw, the Seminoles are our team and the same goes for the coaches.

Second Annual Gymnasts Meet Here Saturday

By JIM COUCH

FSU's second annual gymnastic meet will be conducted at the East Campus gymnasium Saturday, January 13, commencing at 8 p.m.

The program will feature demonstrations by members of the FSU varsity gymnastic team and the gymkana troupe under the supervision of Dr Hartley Price.

Included in the program will be practical discussions related to a gymnastic program for elementary, intermediate and advanced work.

The program will begin with a welcome to guests by Dr Howard Danford, director of physical education for men.

JIMMY ROZANAS, one of the outstanding acrobatic teachers in the United States, will show a training film on acrobatics. A movie of the Mid-West Open gymnastic meet in Chicago, won by FSU will also be shown.

Enthusiasts will be given a chance to see Ray Sorenson, member of the 1948 U S Olympic team, and a University of Florida gymnast, who will direct the calisthenics portion of the program.

FSU's Bill Roetzheim, also a member of the 1948 Olympic team, will give a short talk on the highlights of the last Olympic games. Roetzheim, captain of this year's gym team, won his second consecutive National All-Around and his first National High Bar Championship last spring at the National AAU Gymnastics meet at Los Angeles.

DEMONSTRATIONS in rope climb, side horse, gymnastics for girls, rope climb, tumbling, trampolette and trampoline, horizontal bar, parallel bars, rings and starting gymnastics will be included on the program.

The demonstrations will feature Bill Roetzheim, Bill Vretos, Carmine Regna, Joe Regna, Gene Vinik, Dick Gutting, Eddie Evans, Eddie Fernald, Dick Flatt, Lawrence Weston, Levon Dunavan, Harner Weichel, Peppi Borza, Bill Rutland (Gymnastics coach at Sarasota High School), Ray Sorenson, Pat Signarelli, Joe Calitri, Paula Rowe, Sparky Parker, Irene Kruegar, Barbara Strode, Mollie Mead, Susie Ball, Carol McGibbon, Frances Cobb, Shirley Preiweil, Barbara Beasley, Betty Wheeler, Yvonne Cavanaugh, Chris Shain, Linda Carswell, Mary Cummins, Frances Rowe, Alice Rowe, Cay Russ, Carolyn Hicks, Jimmie Sue Williams, and Gail Winchester.

Following the demonstrations, the Florida AAU Gymnastic meet will be held.

FSU Cage Team Loses, 88-73, In Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn, Jan 6— Florida State University dropped an 88-73 basketball game to David Lipscomb College here tonight. The loss was the second of the season for the Seminoles.

High scorer was Lipscomb's center, Harry Moneypenny, with 25 points.

FSU got off to an early 11-5 lead but trailed at halftime by 41-27.

Bob Hartman scored nine field goals and three free throws to post 21 points. His season total is now 115 points in seven games.

Center Tom Mclaughlin also scored 21 points for the Seminoles and played an outstanding floor game.

Tonight's game was FSU's first since December 19 when they dropped an 80-61 decision to Miami.

Parade Magazine's Ace Photographer Visits Here

When Bill Roetzheim appears on the cover of Parade Magazine this spring along with an accompanying article on FSU's gymnastic team, it will represent many hours of work on campus recently by Carroll Seghers, one of America's top-flight photographers.

Seghers, a free-lancer, attended Harvard. He has covered assignments for Collier's, Saturday Evening Post and several camera magazines. His booking agency is the Black Star Publishing Company.

Carroll first became interested in photography in Miami, where he met his future wife, a professional model. According to Seghers: "She's still in the modeling business, but exclusively for me."

The Seghers are a photographic team. Mrs Seghers usually accompanies her husband around the country. She writes the stories for the pictures.

A recent assignment took Seghers to the Caribbean area for an assignment by Collier's, on our defenses there.

The Seghers were married in 1948, honeymooned in Europe, covering the Olympic games in London, and photographed many points of interest on the continent.

During his stay here, Seghers photographed Fla. Tallahassee "Tumbling Tots," Roetzheim, and the gymnastics team.

Parade Magazine has a weekly circulation of over 7 million. Multiply this by three, the average number of readers of a single newspaper and you can readily see that the work of Carroll Seghers here will carry the FSU gymnastic story to over one-seventh of this country's population.

Phi Delts To Hold Installation Dance

As a climax to the Phi Delta Theta installation week end, there will be a formal dance held by the group Saturday evening from 9 until 12 p m at the American Legion home.

At this time a "Phi Princess" will be crowned and four members of her court chosen by Bob Cole's orchestra will furnish the music for the dance.

All students are cordially invited to attend the dance which is campus-wide.

F CLUB MEETING

There will be an important meeting of the Men's 'F' club Wednesday night in the Women's gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. A film of an FSU football game [illegible] will be shown.

Christmas Holidays Mark Tallahassee Winter Season

Talarin Winter Issue to Feature '51 Sandspur: 'Gypsy Holiday'

The winter issue of Talarin magazine will feature the 1951 Sandspur production of Gypsy Holiday, according to Editor Harry Copeland and Sandspur Director Herb Reinhard.

The Talarin will feature the Sandspur cast during rehearsals at their Gypsy Playhouse on the West campus and will also highlight the 20 girl precision gypsy chorus on the cover of the campus quarterly magazine.

THE 1951 production is the first of its kind at FSU to present an all-crutinal student musical comedy, Director Reinhard. The orchestra, chorus, leads and choreographic group will rehearse separately and the entire show will be joined soon after the Christmas holidays. The Gypsy Holiday production plans on using the highly publicized blacklight effects on several chorus numbers and will also use the new fluorescent costuming materials.

All of the various committees are at work designing and making sets and costumes. The sets and scenery for the annual show are being built under the direction of stage manager Bill Backus and will be portable to be used in traveling. The costumes are being designed by Joan Reitano.

SEVERAL inquiries have been received from out-of-town organizations in regard to a Sandspur statewide tour. Last year the possibilities of a statewide tour were instigated by Director Herb Reinhard and Flambeau Editor Earl Dobert. The petition was sent to the University Government Association and was referred to the faculty executive council where permission to tour was denied because of lack of time for preparations.

Again the Sandspur will petition the faculty for permission for a state tour to reach Florida high schools and colleges. The tour will be planned during the semester holidays in early January.

THE FIFTH annual musical comedy is scheduled for presentation here February 21, 22 and 23. The Sandspur Dance will highlight the weekend in the East Campus Dining Hall, February 24. Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra provide date music for last year's dance. A name orchestra has not yet been signed for the 1951 dance but negotiations are nunderway.

Chairman Herb Reinhard stated "our budget for signing a band is $1,500 but the bands we want ask considerably more: I just hope we can give the students a band they like with the small budget we have."

Gymnasts Will Perform At Half-Time

Florida State University's cage team opens a busy week at home tonight when they face the tough University of Mississippi Rebels. Game time is 8 p m at the West Campus gym.

Tonight's game is the first of three which will be played on the home court this week. Friday night the Seminoles meet Stetson and Saturday night they tackle Florida Southern. FSU defeated Florida Southern earlier in the season 86-54.

FSU's gymnastic team, coached by Dr Hartley Price, will perform tonight at halftime.

Students possessing ID card numbers 09014 through 10022 will be admitted to tonight's game.

DEFEATED in their last outing, the Seminoles will attempt to register win number 6 tonight at the hands of a strong 'Ole Miss' five.

The Rebels have played only one game since December 19 at 86-73 loss to David Lipscomb College in Nashville last Friday night.

COACH 'BUD' Kennedy has been working on squad hard the past few days in an attempt to gain the conditioning peak which characterized the squad prior to the holidays.

Kennedy has stressed defense in the drills hoping to stop the fast-breaking Rebels, who boasted six men in eight outfits.

FROM ALL reports this year's 'Old Miss' team is the strongest since 1938.

Rebels victories have been gained over Alabama, Louisiana State, Arkansas, Mississippi College, Auburn and Southwestern. The two losses were to Alabama and Tulane.

Forward B B Reeves and guard Al Graebner are the leading Miss. scorers. Reeves has posted 94 points while Graebner has made 75.

Tonight's starting line-up for FSU will find Tom McLaughlin at center; Bob Hartman and Bud Scott at guards; Bob Whitmer and Bud Marsee at forwards.

Student Rights Group Releases Statement of Policy

Forum Will Feature Judiciary Problems

Allen Head Discloses Panel Set for January 18 in Alum

"How Can FSU's Judicial System Be Improved?" Will be the topic of a university-wide forum planned by Honor Emphasis Week, announced Forums Chairman Allen Head today. "Bo" Baker, Del Albritton, Frances Higginbotham Lowerse, Jerry Thomas, Faye Patterson, Bob Lee Bannerman and Marion Doro will be the speakers on this highly controversial issue.

"In my opinion, this subject is secondary to no discussion during Honor Emphasis Week," said Head, "for we can have a more effective Honor System if we have the best possible composition. The organization and procedure used by our courts has been the topic of much informal discussion both last year and this. It is high time that the student body had an opportunity to hear the pros and cons of the Honor Courts and the Committee for Student Rights as to their respective judicial systems."

"BO" BAKER is Chief Justice of the University Honor Court, Frances "Fig" Lowerse is chairman of both Women's Judiciary and Social Council, Jerry Thomas is chairman of Men's Judiciary, and Faye Patterson is Chairman of the Campus Council. Del Albritton is our president of the Senior class, and junior member of KA. Marion Doro is past House President of Reid Hall and has worked in the judicial system. Bob Lee Bannerman is chairman of the Pagania String Quartet and is a member of the IAS and many of the two debaters who met at British Columbia last year.

Baxter, Bob Lee, and Del are graduates of pre-law work-as for their Master's degrees. Dr. Dal also is a member of the Committee for Student Rights. Two of the objectives of this forum is to arouse interest in the Student Government, and to show the relationship of Judicial HEAD announced that he would act as moderator of the forum, which will be conducted in a Symposium. There will be discussion of the topic by members of the panel with questions from the audience afterwards. The Forum's chairman has also asked that all coordinate with the FSU judicial system, and with the Honor Courts of last year and helped to get them in operation this year.

The forum will be held in Longmire auditorium, Thursday evening January 18, at 8 p. m. All students are urged to attend," said Allan.

Paganini Quartet, Ballet Show Seats On Reserve Jan 15

Students must present their ID cards at the Artist Series office between January 15 and 19, to obtain their reserved seat tickets for the Pagania String Quartet and the Ballet Theatre performances.

The Pagania String Quartet will be presented January 22 at 8:15 p m in Westcott auditorium, and the Ballet Theatre on January 29 at 8:15 p m in Westcott auditorium.

D J P Stokes, chairman of the Artist Series committee, established that students wants to bring a guest to an Artist Series event, may purchase a ticket regardless of buying an additional reserved seat at half the regular price ticket. The Artist Series ticket which opens January 20, and no exchange his own ticket to secure to obtain two reserved seats can see together.

Delta Sigs Slate Lake Party Here

The Gamma Lambda Chapter of Delta Sigma Pi is having its annual picnic tomorrow, January 13, at Silver Lake. All members and their dates will meet in front of the Sweet Shop for transportation to the lake at 2:00 p m.

Recreational activities will consist of swimming, skating, softball and ping pong plus refreshments. Members are urged to invite prospective pledges and their dates.

Social Work Dance

The Social Work club will have a square dance at the camp Saturday, January 20, from 7-10 p m. All members are urged to attend, according to Earl Williams, president.

Senate Debates New Proposal

Senator Rich Reports On Other Schools' Rules

Senator Bette Rich cited in Women's Senate meeting Wednesday night five southern state universities which allow women students to spend the night in town with friends. Only two of these, universities restrict the number of over-night leaves. Senator Rich pointed to present a longer list at a later meeting.

Miss Elizabeth Lynn relayed a suggestion from Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, that women senators study carefully the proposed amendment to the Student Senate which sets up a traffic court, so that they would see for themselves the effect the amendment has on the Judicial System.

AFTER a speech by Charles Curtis, president of the freshman class, in which he said there was no valid reason for freshman rules being different from upper-class rules. Women's Senate voted unanimously to allow freshmen unlimited night privileges after an approximate eight-week orientation period. If this legislation passes the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs, it will go into effect the spring semester this year.

By unanimous approval, a bill was passed allowing all female students to use the showers for 30 minutes after the closing time of the dormitories. This too, will go into effect next semester if passed by the faculty reviewing board.

MISS LYNN suggested that rules in the blue pamphlet which the new late hours rights make invalid be changed to conform with the new dormitory closing hours. This action would give official student sanction to the later hook rules effected and make those rules subsequent statutes to the UGA constitution.

'Comedy' Is Subject Of McCalmon Talk

"Comedy in the Modern Theatre" is the subject of a talk to be given Sunday afternoon, January 14, at the home of Mrs. Lucile Hendrix by Dr George McCalmon of the Speech Department faculty.

Tarkington's "Clarence" Slated For Jan 15-18 at West Campus

One of the outstanding comedies of the season will be given when the Little Theater on FSU's West Campus.

Tickets will be sold by members of the freshman class, under sponsorship of the Speech Department. Booth Tarkington's play, "Clarence," earned extraordinary popularity when it was first produced in New York in 1919, with such names as Helen Hayes, Alfred Lunt, Mary Boland and Glenn Hunter in the original cast.

FOR THE current FSU production of the play, "Clarence" has been somewhat "up-dated" and will be done in the style of "theater-in-the-round" style, producers say. Under the supervision of Dr George MacColman of the Speech Department and co-directed by Betty Dekle and Marion Ellise Davis, senior Speech majors, the production will have the following cast: Marcia Morris and Marilyn Hudson as Mrs Martin; Carolyn Brites and Dot Welch as Cora; Dora Goowin and Dorothy Whitmore as Violet, and Bob Hicks and Ben Hulsey as Dinwiddie.

George Sims is single-cast in the title role. In the other parts, Patricia Hubert will be found as Delia, Rosalyn Moss as Mrs Wheeler, Lee Hildmen as Mr Wheeler, Donald Remington as Bobby, and Oscar Dunagan as Herbert.

The production staff for "Clarence" is headed by Jean McGuire as director. Booth Tarkington's play, "Clarence," earned extraordinary popularity when it was first produced in New York in 1919, with such names as Helen Hayes, Alfred Lunt, Mary Boland and Glenn Hunter in the original cast.

Virginia Alum to Be Guest At FSU Honor Emphasis Week

A representative alumnus of the University of Virginia will replace the scheduled speaker who was to preside over Honor Emphasis Week and the Friday night rally, announced Bo Baker, chief justice of the FSU honor court.

The scheduled speaker was the president of the University of Virginia honor committee.

AFTER A WEEK of postponement, because the FSU honor committee could not contact the scheduled speaker, the planned events of Honor Emphasis Week will begin Sunday. All of the local churches have promised sermons which will center around honor.

Lectures, forums, teas and a special edition of the Flambeau will be devoted to this special week's program.

Baker has stressed that the program was not one for students but for the faculty and administration also.

FOR THE FACULTY only, there will be a panel on Tuesday night at 7. The panel will be held in the music building auditorium and Dr Samuel Neel, will act as chairman. Miss Daisy Turner, will speak on experiences with the Honor Systems of other schools. Charlotte Lasick, chairman of the honor committee, will talk on the backgrounds of our system and BoBaker, chief justice of the University Honor Court will present the ideals, purposes, policies and faculty-student cooperation.

On Wednesday night, for the presidents of organizations and UGA officers only, there will be a panel in the first floor lounge of the Longmire Building. President of the UGA Rube Askew will act as chairman. Faye Patterson, chairman of officemps court, will present the basis of our system and others in general. This will be followed by talk by Dean Charles Davis, assistant dean of the College of Aris and Science, on faculty interest and cooperation. Jennie Sue Lee will conclude the panel with the situation now, problems, and the role of leaders on campus.

THE WEDNESDAY afternoon teas held at 4:30 in all the women's dorms will feature guest honor speakers. Boys are invited to be present.

Speakers will include: Marilyn Archibald, Peg Rigg, Marion Doro, Jennie Adams, Rube Askew, Carolan Williams, Bob Hicks, Marshbotham Lowerse, Bruce Kirksey, and Alice Lawton.

Bo has mentioned that the council of the College of Arts and Sciences is to hold a special meeting to discuss classroom procedures of the honor system during the week. Bo Baker and representatives of the honor committee will be present. Marion Doro

Campbell To Address Frosh Women's Convo

A compulsory convocation for freshmen women students will be held Monday, January 15, at 7:30 p m in Westcott auditorium.

President Doak S Campbell has been invited to address the women at that time, according to Miss Elisabeth Lynn, assistant dean of women.

Pick Up Manuscripts

All anonymous or unsigned authors who have submitted material for publication in Talaria are requested to pick up their manuscripts during Talaria office hours. Office hours are 10-11 MWF, and 2-4 TH. All unclaimed material will be thrown away after January 20.

Top Winners Listed In Debate Tourney

Chapman, Askew Win Title; Dynes Cops Singles Prize

Delta Tau Delta fraternity representatives, Rube Askew and Purvis Chapman, were named as team winners of the annual intramural debate tournament, which just closed.

Walker Dynes won top honors as the "best individual debater" of the tournament held over a period of several weeks and sponsored by the department of speech.

The annual tournament meet attracted debaters from a large number of sororities, fraternities and other campus groups.

The teams of Dick Bradley and Bob Baker, along with Shirley Blake and Harold Raines tied for second place in the debate finals honors.

A three-way tie for third place team honors was shared by Garland Stokes and Ribert Rowlett, representing Kappa Kappa Lu-Juana Roberts and Doris Cade, FSU freshmen and Catherine Torrance and Helen Jones, Alpha Chi Omega.

The team of Janice Arbogast and Beverly Lacayo won fourth place, being only a few percentage points behind other top leaders.

The runners-up for the best individual debaters are Juana Roberts, second and Catherine Torrance, third place winner.

Dr Ralph Hudson, director of debate tournament this year was "Resolved, That the non-communist nations of the world should form a new international organization."

Garnet Key Roster Adds Ten Members

Women's Honorary Inducts Jrs, Srs in Surprise Move

In a surprise tapping ceremony last Thursday night, Garnet Key, women's service honorary, awarded membership to nine junior and senior students. The tapping was completed Wednesday night when Leslie Bushee was inducted. Leslie had been out of town due to illness at the time of the first ceremony.

The other taps include Myra Kichi, Mary Ellen Tavel, Alice Myers, Cecile McRae, Barbara Hull, Montrell Sessions, Harriet Forehand, Marjorie Meckstroth and Ann Eidson.

The taps were honored with a breakfast in the morning following the tapping ceremony. The breakfast was held in the Seminole room.

Tuesday night the taps honored the active members with the traditional party in the small lounge of the Lonmire building. Each of the taps was dressed as a kind of key in the skit which furnished the entertainment for the party. The original songs written by the taps were also sung at this time.

Initiation for the new inductees is scheduled for next Tuesday evening in the Longmire clubroom.

Business Executive Speaks to Class

The need for proper personnel supervision and methods of control in business were emphasized to a class in retailing in the School of Business Wednesday by Charles F Aikerson, Tallahassee business executive.

Mr Aikerson, who appeared before the class on the invitation of Dr W Bruce Weale, is local sales manager for the National Cash Register company.

The business man is one of a series of such men from the Tallahassee area, who are being asked to appear before the FSU class to give the students the benefit of their practical experience in the merchandising field.

They Wouldn't Take Earl Dobert's Blood

When the four campus leaders, Mike Alley, Earl Dobert, Rube Askew and Dean Otis McBride went to the blood bank Wednesday to donate blood, only three were able to give it. Our fiery editor was found lacking.

"I tried to talk them into taking my blood," said Earl, "but they wouldn't do it."

Earl said that he had a cold and when they took his temperature, it was slow normal, therefore it would not be wise for him to give blood at the present time.

That's the best excuse yet. . . the Flambeau staff thought the blood bank would pay Earl not to donate his blood

22 Campus Leaders Tell Plans For Overhauling Many Rules

The Committee for Student Rights, in releasing a statement of policy yesterday, said, "The main purpose of the committee, first and last, is to improve FSU." In achieving their goal, the committee outlined a threefold purpose with methods for completion of their task.

The students committee, composed of 22 campus leaders, revealed plans that would entail the overhaul of the Honor System, the Judicial system and modification and change of social rules where possible.

EIGHT METHODS by which the goals will be achieved are: (1) work completely within existing structure to make changes; (2) discouragement of petitions circulated against members of the administration; (3) discouragement of individual students who wish to remedy situation by bringing press-and legislature to bear on administration; (4) cooperation with student officials to make all possible reforms without legislation; (5) drafting of bills and constitutional referendum to change existing conditions in honor system and judicial procedures; (6) cooperation and consultation with President and faculty for modification of social rules; (7) thorough studies of the honor system at Florida and University of Virginia plus cooperation of former Chancellor of Honor Court and Chairman of Honor Court Revision Committee at University of Florida: (8) through dissemination of information concerning goals and methods of this committee to every student in FSU.

The campus leaders backing this organization are: Chairman Del Albritton, past president of Omicron Delta Kappa, Senior Class, Kappa Alpha, secretary of Gym's Government Association, member executive council (two terms), Gold Key, International debating team.

VICE CHAIRMAN Bob Lee Bannerman, past president Junior Class, president IPC (two terms), member of executive council, past president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, International debating team, Gold Key.

Secretary Bill Hayes, vice-president in charge of men's affairs, Student Union Organization, member executive council.

Treasurer Ted Steinmeyer, president of Sophomore Class, IPC member executive council.

Doug Alley (graduate student), president of ODK, clerk of honor court, Sandpiper, WFSU, Gold Key.

Earl Dobert, editor Flambeau, ODK, past clerk men's honor court.

Bill Conklin, former senator (two terms), president Gold Key, vice-president, ODK.

Dennis DeLacur, manager WFSU, Gold Key, ODK.

"DUKE MALTBY, captain football squad, president Sigma Chi.

Jimmy Ball, IPC, Men's judiciary, past president rifle club.

Bill Wood, vice-president UGA, IPC, Gold Key.

Bob Lanigan, president Senior Class, tennis, baseball team, senator, member executive council.

Bill Dawkins, football team.

Tom Vann, vice-president Delta Tau Delta, IPC, member Judiciary, Gold Key, senator.

Jerry Thomas, chairman Men's Judiciary, senator, Flambeau, Alpha Phi Omega.

JIMMY EVANS, senator (two terms), president Alpha Phi Omega.

John Weiland, Alpha Phi Omega, president Sigma Nu, finalist for president, ODK.

Bill Shiphorst, chairman elections committee.

Allan Head, forums chairman, member executive council, business manager Talaria.

The details of the threefold purpose of the Student Rights Committee regarding the Honor System are: (1) system should be similar to that of University of Virginia; (2) student participation in faculty monitoring of classes; (3) placing of system's responsibility on students.

REGARDING THE Judicial system, the committee wants: (1) centralisation of judicial system into two or three units; (2) all

Student Union Plans Square Hop Tonight

A square dance will be held by the Student Union Organization tonight at the Student Union, West Campus, from 8 till 11 p m. Lewis Fenn and his orchestra will furnish the music, and refreshments will be served.

The program is under the direction of Dorothy Kate Miller, of the Women's Physical Education department, and her square dance class. Miss Eleanor P King, new physical education instructor and former professional square dance caller from California, will call for the dances. Coy Harris will act as master of ceremonies.

Joseph Rachter, secretary of the New Jersey Square Dance Callers and Teachers Association, has been invited as special guest. He is now a first lieutenant in the Air Corps stationed at Tyndall Field.

Men's Judiciary Pix

All court members of Men's Judiciary will meet in the Alumni building Tuesday evening at 8:30 to have their picture taken for the Tally Ho. The picture will be taken in the courtroom and all members should wear coats and ties.

Florida State University students, subject to induction into the Armed Forces, are being counseled in accordance with the latest Government directives concerning the status of college students.

Otis McBride, dean of men, says a majority of the state's draft boards are fully cooperative in assisting the university students where possible in deferments for their immediate draft status.

THESE draft boards, he says, are primarily concerned with obtaining the factual information that it was the original intention to enter the university prior to August 1, 1950, also that the student in question is a full time students and are classified as being in the upper half of their class.

Where this is established, according to Dr McBride, the draft boards have shown a willingness to allow the students under their jurisdiction to finish their scholastic year and still retain their status of being eligible to volunteer for the branch of the service they prefer before being drafted.

"WE ARE anxious to give them the best possible sound advice," said McBride, with Government military directives," he said. "We know that students with college degrees are very essential to the nation's armed forces as positions of leadership.

A small number of men students who did not qualify as being in the upper brackets of their classes and who were faced with being drafted have volunteered for the armed forces, the dean of men revealed.

Three Donors Start Bank For Students

Goes Into Second Week; Four Students to Donate; Earl Dobert to Try Again

Florida State University's Omicron Delta Kappa sponsored blood bank got off to a rousing start last Wednesday afternoon when three members of that organization contributed a pint of blood apiece.

The three members were University Government Association President Rube Askew, ODK President Doug Alley and Dean of Men Otis McBride, faculty adviser to the group. A fourth member, Earl Dobert, editor of the Flambeau, was found to have had a high temperature and will return next week to make his donation.

The FSU blood bank moves into its second week today with two and three or four more donors will be on hand. Any person in the University including faculty members are eligible to make a contribution which will be credited to the FSU infirmary.

No charge will be made for transfusions for students but faculty members who are not listed for at the University Infirmary will be required to pay a fee of $10.

The three donors who made the trip to the blood bank last Wednesday reported the entire operation quite harmless.

In preparation for giving the blood, each donor must submit to a blood type examination, taking of the temperature and a blood pressure test. In addition, they

Cavaliers Sponsor Vaudeville Night Jan 18 in Westcott

Vaudeville will be back on campus January 18, when the Cavaliers, men's national dancing organization, present their first annual "Vaudeville Night" in Westcott auditorium.

Featuring 16 big variety acts, the Cavaliers will present prizes to the top three winners as judged by two members of the faculty and by one graduate student. The judges will not be announced until certain time.

Under the direction of Herb Lee, chairman of the event, will include singers, acrobats, dancers, commedians.

The Cavaliers intend to make "Vaudeville Night" an annual show in which the best in campus variety will have an opportunity to display their talent.

Publicity director for the show is Carl Beeler. Newly elected Cavaliers taps will act as ushers and will be introduced during the program.

The entire program is free to the entire student body, faculty and staff. A program of this type is the first to be presented on the regular school year. Several variety programs were given this summer and were a great success with the students, publicity director Beeler announced.

Monday Deadline For Activity Blanks

"Blank speces will accompany the picures of many seniors when they appear in the Seminole, and activity blanks are turned in by Monday," said Joy De Rolph.

Senior activity blanks may be obtained at the information desk in the Longmire building and can be turned in at the box there, Monday is the final deadline for activity blanks to be turned in. Blanks are to contain the student's name, major, and home town.

Sunday is the final deadline for turning in pictures for the snapshot section of the 1951 annual. All pictures to be included in the section must be turned in at the desk in the Longmire building or placed in the box that have been placed in the East campus dorms.

Schedule Of Courses Now Available To All

The schedule of courses for next semester is available to all students at the office of the registrar. Appointment cards and other materials will be distributed January 22 by the same office. The exam schedule will appear in the next issue of the Flambeau.

• YOU, TOO, CAN HELP THE BLOOD BANK

The first contributions to the Florida State University blood bank were made Wednesday by four campus leaders of Omicron Delta Kappa.

A generous vote of thanks should be accorded this organization for furthering and publicizing a blood bank for the students and faculty at FSU. Many times the University hospital has a dire need for blood and are unahle to find it in a hurry.

The establishment of credit at the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital will insure that all our blood needs at the University will be handled in a minimum of time. No more will they have to go shopping for the life saving fluid.

You too can help in this effort.

The students can sign up at the Dean of Men's office at any time to donate a pint of blood. They will be provided with free transportation to the hospital by ODK.

Giving a pint of blood has no harmful after effects on the donor and the entire process is painless. It is as easy as drinking the glass of milk you are given after making the donation.

We don't have to impress upon you the importance of giving hlood. You all know that it may save a life. And you all know—the life you save may be yours, to steal a phrase.

Any member of the Florida State University is eligible to donate a pint of blood, men and women students and men and women faculty members. The sex of the blood that may save a life does not matter.

Be one of the first to donate a pint of blood. A weekly honor roll of donors will be published in the Flambeau. This, however, will not be your only compensation. You will know that you have helped do your part in making an ill person well again.

Omicron Delta Kappa deserves great praise for the project they have undertaken. You can applaud this task by giving a pint of blood.

Sign up today in the Dean of Men's office.

• STUDENT RIGHTS

Unrest and discontent on our campus can wreak untold damage if not channeled into constructive action. Much has been said about our campus life and its shortcoming but little has been done about it. Until recently, that is.

A few weeks ago a group of responsible student leaders decided that somebody was going off the deep end after a rash of petitions broke out on campus, one of which favored the dismissal of a member of tha administration. Some students had favored taking the facts to a prominent state newspaper. Another suggestion was to write the high school seniors in the state and advise them not to come to FSU.

But this group of students decided that something could be done, and that it could be done on this campus. This group adopted the name of "The Committee for Students' Rights."

The roster of the original group reads like a "Who's Who at FSU." The presidents of Gold Key and ODK are here. So are all four class presidents. One can find such people as the captain of the football team, the manager of WFSU, the Forums chairman, and others equally prominent. Speaking of Who's Who, we do not find the name of Rube Askew, who was elected last spring to rapresent the students on this campus.

The Committee for Students Rights offers an opportunity for executive council members, senators, and members of the judiciary to discuss the campus problems and decide what each branch of our government may do. Any student may attend the meetings of the Committee and participate in its activities.

The Committee for Student's Rights will serve as focusing point for student gripes, much more effective than letters to the editor or anonymous petitions. The Flambeau commends these student leaders who are taking a vigorous stand and who aim to help the students find an answer to our problems.

• TWO MORE DOWN

Planks number seven and eight of the Flambeau policy have been adopted by the Florida State University. The first, subsidization, was passed by the Athletic committee before the Christmas holidays and the second, a campus chest, was written into the laws in a recent meeting of the University Council.

Although the campus Chest is on a one year trial basis, we feel sure the students will rally around and give their wholehearted support to this undertaking. Many universities the nation over have supported, in one form or another, a campus-wide, one-drive charity. If such a plan is capable of working successfully in other colleges there is no feasible reason why a campus chest should not be workahle here. It can work if the students work for it.

With the advent of Florida State University into the ranks of subsidized schools we are ready to start playing football and other collegiate sports with the "big time" boys. We have proven our desire to play such teams hy scheduling the University of Miami next year in the Orange Bowl.

With the addition of the above two planks in the right hand side of the ledger, we of the Flambeau can proudly say we were a part in voicing the opinion of the students on the matter. For if the students had not wanted a campus chest or the subsidization of athletics we would probably never have had them here.

We will now continue toward our goal of having better parking fscilities estahlished at FSU, better participation hy the students in our student government, a higher pay scale for student assistsnts, campus building at FSU to compare with the U of F and greater recognition of FSU by the State Legislature.

These are the remaining items in the policy which was estahlished by the Flambeau at the baginning of the school yaar. We will not cease our efforts until we have accomplished our goals.

Student opinion on the above projects will weigh heavily in seeing that we get them.. You can help by putting the pressure on your student government and on the FSU administration.

• TRUE OR FALSE?

Freedom of the press hung in the halance for a time at Butler University, when the student newspaper was threatened with disciplinary action for puhlishing the views of two queen candidates on whether girls should wear falsies.

Editors of the Collegian created a furor by carrying a bannet story headline, "ELLEN AND HELEN ARE FIRM ANTI-FALSIE CANDIDATES." School authorities were particulsrly unhappy over the story's subhead, which said, "Experts see win by a bust."

University Senate Has Final Approval On All Legislation

University Senate approved by a 18-5 vote Cenator Turnbull's proposed amendment to the legislative section of the UGA constitution Tuesday evening. This amendment gives the University Senate the power of final approval ovar all legislation originating in either tha Women's or Men's Senate.

Cass Yonge, Wanda Evans, Margaret Kraseman, Ann Oliver and Bill Hayes voted against the measure.

Ronald Koons' amendment to the Judicial section of the constitution which would set up a traffic court upon approval, was referred to the Senate Constitutional Committee for study before being presented to University Senate for voting.

The committee on the Board of Student Publications reported thay did not want a Board of Student Publications and that an amendment was in the offing which would do away with the idea of a publication regulating board.

Senator Turnbull moved that since the constitution does provida for a publications board, tha vice-president of UGA appoint members to that board. Vice-Pres Bill Waters accepted the responsibility of setting up the board.

English Exam Slated

The Junior English examination will be givan at 4:30 Thursday, January 18, in Westcott auditorium.

It is required of (1) all sophomores who will become juniors at the end of the present semester and (2) all upperclassmen who have not taken the examination. No one is allowed to repeat it. There is a time limit of one hour. Students who are late will not have adequate time according to Martha G Chapman director of Junior English.

THE EDITOR'S POST

A CONSTITUTION FOR OUR CLUB

By EARL DOBERT

Tha club . . . WRTPTBSUTRP . . . seems to have a great deal of backing from the dollar-less male portion of tha university. Since last Tuasday's article appeared, at least 20 men have inquired about joining the club.

Bud Ruhl, legislative reference wizard, has consented to draw np a fitting consititulon for the "We Refuse To Patronize Tallahassee Barbar Shops Until They Reduce Prices" club. Wa won't split hairs au this constitutian as they da on the student constitullon.

You won't have to comb through pages and pages of the constitution as we plan to keep it brief as possihia. As a matter of fact it will only have four sections to it . . . ona devoted to blonde man, one to brunette men, ona to redhsaded men and one to bald men.

Bald man will anly be allowed to get shines and will be restricted from getting the 55 second workout.

The hair left over from the clippinge each day will be swept up and used to relina the mattresses at West campus. A sideline business will be opened up by tha barber for tha women who hava been trying to gat a lock of their boyfriend's hair. The proceeds from thia . . . wa shall call, "follicle fund" . . . will go to the Campus Chest.

Far animal lavers, we will hava special prices far your shaggy dogs. And for every Samson wa will have a Delilah.

During this trying period when many of us will be called off to service, wa are havina special rates on GI haircuts. After our barbere get through with your locks you'll have wished you had been called into the army before we ever started business.

But here is one thing we promise yau. Our barber will never bend over in yanr ear and mutter something that sounds like, "Mmmmmmh Quasum oerdic phtttt." And then after you nod yes (not wanting to hurt his feelings because you thought ha was talking abont his mather) ha starts pouring shampoo and stinky etuff all ever your noggin. Tha bill amounts to $2.50. That's why barbers are called clip artists.

No, uur barbers won't do that to you. You'll lose friands, not money, if you get your hair cut in our shop.

Does any ane else want to make application for membership?

Everyone should be on hand for tha first forum of tha yaar next Thursday evening in tha Longmire auditorium. The forum, being heid in conjunction with Honor Emphasis Week, will feature six or seven top-notch speakers—pro and con—on tha present form of our University Court system.

Those of you who want to hear tha Court system explained and criticised shauld be on tap for this meeting. Tha floor will be thrown open far quesllans after the presentation of the speeches.

The front page statement prepared hy the committee on student rights shows a dafinite trend in the direction in which we should go. There has been a need for such a committee on campus since wa becama co-ed in 1947.

Students must not misconstrue the intentione of tha committee. They ara not to eupplant tha student government organization, thay are to eupplement it.

Needless to say, tha project will need support. Wa of the committee know that the students will not be hesitant toward this project when thay realise it is for thair own benafit, and the benefit of tha students who are not yet in school. Most of the aommittee are seniors, they won't reap the profits.

But other students will. We werk for you and we need your cooperation.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

WHEN YA' LEAVING?" POPULAR QUESTION

By JERRY THOMAS

"When ya' leaving," appears to be the popular areeting between the men on campus each day.

This local expression is qnite appropriate, for a day does not pass without soma student receiving his draft notice.

Many of the men ara not waiting for their final induction. They are volunteering in the particular hranch of the armed forces that they prefer.

However, this volnnteering is going to be checked in the near fnture.

The Air Force and Navy ars going to temporarily stop all enlistments.

The Air Force has already taken the initiative. They have frozen enlistments for an indefinite period.

Tha feasibility of this is understandable. Every time the Army prepares to draft 80,000 men, 40,000 of them volunteer in another branch of the service.

There are not enough men going into the infantry, and the anly way to check this is to stop all volnnteering.

In all probability, the Navy will also stop enlistments within the next two weeks.

From time to time tha Air Farce will lift its ban on volunteering and allaw a certain number af men to "sign up."

This process will be all right for those men who can afford to wait, but chances are great that many men will be drafted into the infantry during frozen periods.

The Navy is preparing to call up some reserve units, and tha Natianal Guard — top afficials are now picking strawe far a chaice af which division they will call next.

In short, "things aren't what they're cracked up to be."

The University is nsing avary persuasive method possihle, in an effort to keep tha male populace from "signing up," but how can they encourage men to wait and be drafted?

Some fratarnities are making plans for leaving campus. Others are making plans for selling their furniture and other housg equipment in the event of an emergency.

The women are taking full advantage af the depressing crisis.

During the past week, ovar half-dozen have shown me new engagement rings.

Still othere took full advantage af the crisis and the recent holidays — thay suoceeded in dragaing some poor soul up to an altar.

Why only this week at a University Senate meeting, three woman Senators displayed engagement rings.

There seems to be a race. How many aals ean become engaged while they are still' in their 'teens?

Fraternities are suffaring also. Take Sigma Nu as an exampla. Every time a membar pins a girl, they send the little gal a dozen roses. During this month, seven Sigma Nus were pinned. Man, what a florist bill.

"I'LL BUST IF I DON'T TELL YOU"

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

An open forum will be presented next Thursday during Honor Emphasis Week to discuss the question "What can be done to improve the court system on this campus?" A group of students will lead the discussion and from this may evolve many answers to tha prohlem of the FSU judicial courts.

Allen Head, forums chairman, has schednled this discussion so that students on campus may become informed an this problem and hear it discussed from all angles. Students an tha forum are all wall-informed campus leaders, so it shauld be a very interesting evening. I advise all stndents to attend. It's open to the pnblic and questions may be asked from the floor after tna formal discussion la cancinded.

Speaking of the courts, women's judiciary voted recently to officially open its doors during a "trial" at the discretion of the dafendent. Now all the courts are open, a step in the direction of democratic atudent aovernment.

Many timas, actual conversation is funnier than any joke you read in a book. This was evidenced by a remark made in a classroom at Florida State.

As the teacher was lecturing, a girl in tha class raised her hand and started jumping around axeitedly, wanting to contribute to the discussion.

"Let me tell you," she said, "I've just got to tell you all somathing I'll just bust."

A wise guy sitting on tha other side of the room said "Let her tell it, prof. I want ta see her hust."

That flashing and sparkling you'va seen around campus ever since we got back from the Christmas holidays is coming from tha engagement and wedding ringa so many coede received over the holidays.

In Landis alone there were 13 airls engaged aver tha holidays, and 11 married (seven of these are still living in the darm.)

As Anne Gregory, who becama engaged ovar the holidays, saye "It's very disappointing. Instead of your friends coming up and exclaiming over the ring, they say 'oh, not you, too.'

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

QUEENS CAN'T BE NOBODIES

By JOEL P SMITH

It takes all kinds of people to make up a university . . . and brother FSU isn't unconventional in this aspect. Take a look around . . . students often fall into the various groups that are as exotic to their rival groups as an African head huntar in New York society. You might first classify a university student body into the "Nobodies and the Somebodies" . . of course our university is a democracy . . . these classifications have nothing to do with pollilcs and all that sort of rot, but they help prove that the old quotation, "Birds of a feather flock together," is still partially true at any rate.

First we'll take the campus queens . . . Queens can't be Nobodies. There are many queens on campus . . the studant body elected variety and tha self-appointed type . the latter prevails on this campus I have been told There is the queen af tha May, Queen of IFC, Queen of Homecaming. Queen of Sheba, Queen af Spades (which is wild in some respects). Queen I'd most like to be caught in a fox hole with, and then there is Killery Queen.

Another group . . . tha DRAMATIST . . . Players, Thespians, and other accredited inhabitants of the Soda Shop are not eligible to be called nobodias. This is because their love is for the theater. To be a nobody you must love college and your atudies, not theter. Thespians and Players don't like each othar professionally. They don't like each other nonprofessionally . . . they like to dominate the stage . . . of which they usually do. NEVER, NEVER, naver call an actor a nobody.

Then there's still anather group . . . tha ATHLETES . . . athletes are big men on campus. Some of them weigh more than 208 pounds. Call one of them a nabody and see where it gets you If you're lucky you'll end up with a broken arm . . . Both the athletes and the Nobodies are happy . . . sometimes athletes get killed and wounded for ole FSU. But nobodies never do . tha broken wheel type gets less prestige hut uses fewer band-aids too.

GREEK WHEELS people who have Greek letters after their names are Wheels. Take the sorority Wheel She wears a chain across her torso Some people think this keaps her from falling to pieces. Actually, it is a rather clever device to prevant slippage of the padding . . . tha device was invented by a Nobody. He makes millions each year selling little gold chains to sorority wheels . the really big-time Wheel is tha sorority dame who sports two Greek pins her own and a male Greek's . . . you might mistaka her for a jewelry display window or a hardware store.

GRAD STUDENTS . . . graduate students are found in laboratories, work shops, seminars, libraries, tha Soda Shop and places where gentlemen and scholars congregate. They gather in groups and peer through musty tomes together . . . and they most always eliminate talk af the opposite sex as is tha reverse of the undergrad's conversation. Tha THESIS is the most important thing in their lives. They search and research trying to find out whether Tallyrand had three yellow cats or four gray cats . there is no room for guess work.

This is called original research and when they finally find out about Tallyrand's cats they write a long long paper on it and get a master's degree.

A Poem Based on tha Bhagavata
By DELL LEBO

I hava declared thraa paths for man
To know and gain the highest good.

To those for whom this life began
The path is that of hrotherhood;
The way is that of work and rite
For these that need Me in the world.

Othere there are who find delight
In things not now on earth unfurled.
For tham era love and ways of heart
The strongest signs of Me and Mine.
These who are near, but yet apart
Shall find worship to be My shrine.

But those who wish no more to leave
Their names writ bold in heart or book
And seek and study to believe Shall find Me with them as they look.

Rare Instruments Used By Paganini Quartette

Rare and historical instruments insured for a quarter of a million dollars will be used by the Paganini Quartet when they appear in Westcott auditorium at 8.15 p m, January 22.

These historic and beautiful instruments ware all mada hy Stradivarius and belongad at ona tima to the virtuoso, Paganini. After his death thay were dispersed into tha hands of other owners only to be collected again aftar a century by a New York daaler and collector.

THEY WERE then purchased by a string quartet, who now call themselves the Paganini Quartet in recognition of the famed instruments they have acquired. The Quartet is being sponsored by tha Artist Series.

Henri Temianka, the quartet first violinist, uses a Stradivarius that was tha favorita concert instrument of Paganini, who acquired it in 1817 from Count Cogio di Salabus

GUSTAVE Rosseels uses the Paganini violin of 1680 which has been called one of Stradivarius' most beautiful early masterpiece. Like tha other instruments it made musical history in a number of nations and travalled around tha world before comina to the United States and into the hands of Mr Rosseels.

A viola played hy Charles Foidart in the quartet was made by Stradivarius when ha was 86 years of age It was so well liked by Paganini that he commissioned Hector Berlois to write a composition especially for it.

ADOLPH Frezin plays a violincello in tha quartet that dates back to 1736 whan Stradivarius was 91. This instrument is one of tha old master's finest productions. It was owned by German and English music lovers after Paganini's death and until the reunion of the four Paganini instruments through purchase by the quartet this instrument was in the hands of tha Mendelssohn family.

Distribution of tickats for the presentation will begin January 15 and continue through Friday January 19.

FSU Five Opens State Series With Stetson Tonight

Toma-Hawk

By BENNETT LAND,
Flambeau Sports Editor

There should be no doubt in anyone's mind now concerning the title of Seminole basketball. The team met and conquered a good Miami five, which had defeated some of the South's better ball clubs this season.

The Hawks had impressed with wins over Alabama and Louisiana State, 109 of the Southeast's better clubs. They also defeated Georgia, last the team favored to win the Southwest crown.

Coach 'Bud' Kennedy can well be proud of the win. The second was FSU's first against Southeastern Conference competition. Kennedy was particularly pleased with the aggressiveness and ball hawking which characterized the Indians' play. The Seminole mentor stated that Dick Trebnick and Tom Stanfield turned the best defensive games he has seen in four years.

Managerial going to Al Drashler, the Rebel threat, like a lovelorn Romeo and McLaughlin beat Tom Smith down under the basket. The Seminoles controlled both backboards even though they gave several inches in height.

No victory could well be the turning point of the season. The score knows what they are capable of doing.

If the game progressed as it would now, aside from thinking of a fourth and state athletic rivalry which exists in the state of Mississippi. We're referring to the 'Ole Miss-Mississippi State tilts.

These two institutions have been going at it athletically since 1901. Competition is keen in all sports. The annual grid game is one of the top events in Southern sports and as far as Mississippi is concerned it is the 'game of the year.'

Games also the 'golden egg'—coveted emblem of the spirited rivalry. The trophy is held from one year to the next by the team who has the better record. 'Ole Miss has it.

Mississippi knows the value of the rivalry. It is a real money-maker for both schools.

Now if the Magnolia State' can have two state universities fostering events of state-wide interest in athletics, why can't the 'Sunshine State'? A Florida-FSU game could develop into a real big spectator event in the state.

Frankly, we don't see how the Florida athletic department can afford to overlook competing with FSU, if Gatorland is really desirous of building better athletics in this state.

At present there seems to be little chance of a grid game in 1951. Gator schedule is nine-tenths filled, with only one open date left. Date is in September.

Every effort should be made to get a game for 1952 and Tallahassee should start competing in basketball, baseball, swimming, tennis, and golf now.

And incidentally if the football game pans out how about a 'sunny-side' egg with it too. . . .

Dr Howard Danford, athletic chairman, stated he hoped the NCAA code would not be liberalized at the NCAA meeting in Dallas this week. Danford said: "If the code is broadened it will place us even greater disadvantage. We'll do well to meet the aid-to-player program which the 'sanity' code now allows."

Danford stated that three of the four open dates on the 11 grid schedule may be filled in Dallas. FSU has contacted Tallahassee, Auburn, William and Mary for possible games.

Because you've never seen FSU's gymnastics team in action you've missed something. Their performance Tuesday night at halftime between Bill Stockton, Bill Weston, Pat Signarelli, Gene Ellis and two of the 'Tallahassee Tumbling Tots' put on a show that you would pay several bucks to see in the East.

The gymnastic team will compete in the Florida AAU tomorrow. There'll be demonstrations at the clinic while will be held in the men's gym. There's no admission so why not plan to attend. You'll get to learn Stanley Price has molded into the nation's finest. . .

Apparently several schools are attempting to restore the public's confidence in their relations with football coaches. Notre Dame, Miami, and Kentucky have signed their coaches to new and long term contracts.

But Don Veller has them all beat. He has a lifetime job with full retirement benefits.

Fla Southern Plays Here Saturday Night

Florida State University's climbing basketball team opens an All-State series here tonight against the powerful Hatters of Stetson University. Tomorrow night the Seminoles tangle with Florida Southern College. Both games are scheduled to begin at 8.

Students holding ID card numbers 20071 through 29385 will be admitted to the Stetson contest and students with ID numbers 00014 through 20070 will see the Southern tilt.

The fans will also see three gymnasts performers at halftime tonight, Bill Merlow, Jimmy Sirode and Scotty Stanton are slated to give a triple hand balancing act.

Coach Bud Kennedy's five, after having licked the University of Mississippi here Thursday night will get another stiff test tonight against the giant Hatters. Both Florida State and Stetson have identical 6-2 records.

THE HATTERS have five men who tower above the Seminoles' tallest man, Dick Trebnick. They have posted victories over Southern Patrick Air base, Jacksonville Air Station, College of Charleston, Green Cove Navy and Rollins. The Stetson five will great even the two losses. They bowed to a strong Parris Island Marine outfit and a questionable decision to the University of Florida.

Loren Ellis, who coached the "World's Tallest Basketball Team" at Valparaiso University (Indiana) for several years, is the head man at Stetson. The Hatters first game with the Green and White, Ellis' "Tallest Team" at Valparaiso had a starting average of 6-6. And he seems to be drawing the tall ones at Stetson.

The Hatters will probably start Dick Reinking (6-3) and Jim Weaver (6-4) at forwards. Jim Yonge (6-8) at center, Don Eakin (6) and Michael Torba (6-1) at guards.

Saturday night's foe, Florida Southern, has a reverse 2-6 record, but hold two clever guards in Rocky Pegg, voted last year's most valuable player in the Dixie Conference tournament here, and Fred Lapper. Pegg stands 5-9 and Lapper stands an even 6. Bill Valentine, 6-3 pivot man, is another fellow who figures in the Moccasins' scoring ability, Fluke Tolle and Dennis Krikav round out FSC's starting lineup at forwards.

PAUL HOLCOMBS assumed command of the Conference champions at the start of the season. He graduated from Springfield College in Massachusetts.

The Southern game will be the second of two. FSU took the first contest in LaGeland by a 86-58 score and are favorites to post another trumph over the Mocs.

Kennedy has not named a starting lineup for either game, but it is believed that he will start Bob Whitmer and Bud Scott at forwards, Tom McLaughlin at center, and Bob Hartman and Dick Trobaugh at guards.

Tuesday night the Seminoles play another home contest—the University of Tampa Spartans. The Spartans are enjoying one of their best care seasons in history.

Balwan Will Speak To Superintendents

Professor Michael P Balwan, associate professor of the School of Public Administration, will speak to a county superintendents meeting at 9:30 a m Thursday, January 16, at the University of Florida.

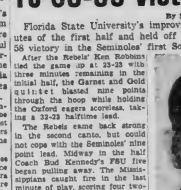
His topic will be "Evaluation of Educational Progress in Florida Since 1947." Prof Balwan is directing the professional evaluation program of the Legislative Survey of Education in Florida.

The FSU professor and the survey is now well under way and is expected to be completed in about another month when an official report of the survey findings will be made to the Florida Legislative Council.

Hartman, Whitmer Lead FSU To 63-58 Victory Over 'Ole Miss'

By SCOTT MARSHALL

Florida State University's improving basketball team broke loose in the fading minutes of the first half and held off a determined University of Mississippi five for a 63-56 victory in the Seminoles' first Southeastern Conference encounter here Tuesday night.



After the Rebels' Ken Robbins tied the game up at 23-23 with three minutes remaining in the initial half, the Garnet and Gold quintet blasted nine points through the hoop while holding the Oxford eagers scoreless, taking a 32-23 halftime lead.

The Rebels came back strong in the second canto, but could not cope with the Seminoles' nine point lead. Midway in the half Coach Bud Kennedy's FSU five began pulling away. The Mississippians caught fire in the last minute of play, scoring four twopointers while Florida State was bagging but one shanty toaster.

BOB WHITMER and Bob Hartman were tops for the Tribe. Whitmer scored 18 points and Hartman 13. The latter also played one of the finest defensive games seen in the West campus gym's floor. The scrappy 6 foot, guard was high point Seminole.

Outstanding for the Rebels were Robbins, a sharpshooting forward who hit 6-of-12 shots in the final half, and Billy Renfroe, former All-State caper at Pensacola High School. Bob Ross, 2 inch Renfroe bucketed nine points, each coming within the last three minutes of the contest.

After having lost to Georgia and Florida, the Rebels took the floor in an attempt to break the two-game losing streak. The Seminoles had been soundly trounced by both Miami and David Lipscomb.

RALPH ROSS toured in a free throw in the early minutes, putting Mississippi out in front 2-0. Tom McLaughlin, FSU's rangy 6 foot, 3 inch pivot man, tied the score at 4-4 after the Rebels had added three more charity tosses. FSU went ahead on Bud Marsee's free jumper, and Ole Miss' Jerome Stenfenseal tied the score once again. Florida State went ahead, the Rebels tied the score and the Seminoles were back in front 10-8.

Here the Rebels had a short glory minute. With Stenfenseal paving the way, Mississippi blasted into the lead 23-21, but Dick Trobaugh's free throw with four minutes remaining in the half tied the score. Robbins' charity toss sent the Southerners into the lead again, but Whitmer's ringer put Florida State in the lead where they stayed the remainder of the game.

RENFROE, who many Floridians will remember when he was a standout with the Tiger five, fired the shot of the night in the very last second of the contest. The Mississippi crew was trailing 61-56 when Billy lofted the ball from mid-court. The oval hit the back rim and bounded high into the air, the ball spinning back into the net for the Rebels' final two points of the night.

The victory gives Florida State a 6-2 mark at the present time. Statistically speaking the triumph also boosted the Seminoles' averages considerably.

THE TEAM field goal average stands at .320 with 204 buckets in 638 attempts. In the free throw department the Seminoles have hit 140 out of 230 for an average of .609. They have scored 548 points in eight games, an average of 68½ points per game, and have committed only a little above 23 fouls per contest.

Hartman leads the scorers with 127 points, followed by McLaughlin, 96; Whitmer, 85; Bud Scott, 80; Larry Dickson, 78; Marsee and Trobaugh, 46. Lou Fischer, 17; Irwin Quinn, 4; and Whitey Wyman, Ronnie Nettles and Ted Hewitt, 2.

Intramural Highlights

The fraternity football league got off to a roaring start last Monday evening as Lambda Chi slid past Sigma Alpha Epsilon by a score of 6-0. Both teams got rarin' into the thick of the annual pigskin rivalries the downing of Kappa Tau Omega's 7-0. The hottest game of the day, however, was played by the defending champs, Phi Delta Theta, and Pi Kappa Phi's. The Phi Dels squeezed out a victory, although there was no score, by holding a 1 yard margin in total downs.

On Tuesday more old "feuds" were renewed as Pi Kappa Tau defeated Delta Tau Delta 7-0; Pi Kappa Alpha scored a 6-0 win over Chi Sigma Phi; and two forfeits were awarded. The forfeits were Sigma Chi Sigma Pi, and Kappa Alpha s'ovr Kappa Kappa.

Starting the second round of play on Wednesday, the defending champions, Phi Delta Theta, met defeat at the hands of the not to be outdone SAE's, losing 6-0. The Sigma Nu's and Lambda Chi's remain undefeated as they rolled over Sigma Phi Epsilon and Alpha Tau Omega, respectively, by scores of 12-0, and 14-0.

On the fraternity bowling scene, also started Monday the KA's are out in front with wins defeating both Kappa Kappa and Pi Kappa Tau. Those who have won one end have yet to lose are the Theta Chi's, Sigma Nu Delta's, and Alpha Tau Omega's, with respective wins over Delta Sigma Pi, Pi Kappa Tau, and Sigma Nu. Those who have split two games are Chi Sigma, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Kappa Kappa. Pi Kappa Tau and Delta Sigma Pi have lost two games.

The dormitory league will resume next Monday when the football league will set 14 teams in action. Currently leading the dormitory league is #49 Upper, followed closely by #49 Lower. Results are listed below.

FSU Tankmen Meet Georgia Here January 18

FSU's tank team, coached by Bim Stultis, is preparing for their January 18 meeting with the strong University of Georgia swimming team. The meet will be held in the Women's gym at 8 p m.

On January 20 the Seminole swimmers travel to Pensacola for a meet with the Naval Air Base.

From all reports both teams will affect the FSU tankmen tough opposition. Stultis pointed out that Georgia is particularly strong this season and showed surprising strength in the recent North Carolina Invitational meet.

The Bulldog tankers have one of the South's best distance swimmers in Charlie Cooper. Last year Cooper edged out FSU's Walter Jardine in a stroke to cop the 220 event. Cooper competes in the 50 and 100 meter events also.

Strong men are in the Georgia back-stroke and breast-stroke ranks. Robert Patterson is the top competitor in the back-stroke event. Bill Hennigner, breast stroke artist, recently defeated Charlie Small of Miami in the North Carolina meet. Small is the

Cole and Orchestra Travel To Venezuela Over Holiday

The stage was set last October for one of the most interesting and colorful dreams ever experienced by a group of college students which took place during the Christmas holidays.

Last October officials of the Creole Petroleum Corporation (the Venezuelan subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey) began looking for an American college dance orchestra which they wanted to bring to South America to play for holiday festivities in December. The Bob Cole orchestra at Florida State University learned of this, and immediately advised the Creole officials that the orchestra would be available.

LETTERS were also sent by Governor Warren and other state officials who were interested in having Florida represented in South America. After a week or so, Creole cabled that the Bob Cole offer had been accepted, and that air transportation would be arranged as soon as they received word that all was clear in Tallahassee.

The trip began on December 27, when the ten young man took off from Tallahassee en route to Miami. On the morning of the 20th, the group left Miami by Pan-American Clipper, flew over the beautiful Bahamas and landed in the colorful city of Port Au Prince, Haiti. In another half hour, they were winging their way over the Caribbean sea, headed southward toward the airport of Caracas, Venezuela.

BY 4:30 they had flown over the mountains of northeastern Venezuela and were coming into the airport at Maturin. There the boys were met by some of the officials of the company, and were driven 35 miles by station wagons through the jungles of the Orinoco Delta country to their final destination, Caripito.

The days before the dances were spent in trips through the surrounding countryside, buffet suppers and visits to local night clubs.

On Sunday, New Year's Eve, preparations were made for the big dance that evening, which was to be held at the spacious clubhouse. In the afternoon, there was time for plenty of swimming in the beautiful pool just outside the club, and some of the boys were taken to the Club Marino to buy souvenirs. Coming back from the Club Marino which is located at the docks on the Rio San Juan, monkeys could be seen in many o the treetops, and parrots flew overhead, lending a very tropical atmosphere to the occasion.

IN THE evening, dinner was served with most of the leading officials of Creole present.

The New Year's Eve dance began at 10 o'clock, and the club was packed with the most appreciative audience for which the orchestra had ever played. Of course, many had not heard an American orchestra in several years, and it was thrill to play for a group which seemed to enjoy it so much.

At midnight, the New Year was ushered in with the Venezuelan National athem, followed by the Star Spangled Banner, and then, of course, Auld Lang Syne. The dance lasted until 3 am after which breakfast was served at the home of one of the bachelor girls.

ON NEW YEARS Day, the orchestra went to another camp called Quiriquire (the Indian name for the village nearby) where they played for a dance which lasted from 3 in the afternoon until 7:30 in the evening. Most of the people from Caripito also came over to Quiriquire for the dance on New Year's Day.

All the children of the camp were at the dance in the afternoon, and they all wanted autographs of the musicians. They also asked that pictures of the band be sent to them. After the dance, a party was given at a nearby club, and around midnight, everyone went to bed to rest for the next day's trip back to the United States.

The flight home included stops at such places as Curacao, Dominican Republic, Haita and Cuba. A plane change was made in Miami, and the boys reached Tallahasee late on the same night.

THE WEEKs events will be highlighted with the final rally at Campbell Stadium next Friday night. The rally will begin at 8 p m with the entire faculty and student body asked to be present.

Charlotte Lashka, chairman of the honor committe will give the introductory speech of the one hour program. The gathering will not exceed one hour, the emphasized.

After the platform speech, the honor code affirmation ceremony will follow in three parts. President Doak Campbell will present a short faculty affirmation. President of the University Government Association, Rube Askew, will ave the student affirmation. A combined student and faculty affirmation will conclude the ceremony. Bo Baker will be in charge of the third affirmation in which there will be included a match lighting ceremony.

AFTER A statement of the honor code by the entire gathering, the Alma Mater will be sung and thus close the week of events.

Polls will be taken during the week to estimate the Friday night attendance. Bo informed. Nineteen boys from Senior Hall will poll West Campus while the Student Council will poll East Campus.

Poor Weather Possibility Puts Honor Program Inside

Chairman Says Forum Still Set Thursday Night

Seven Speakers Slated To Speak on FSU Courts In First UGA Symposium

Forums Chairman Allan Head announced that plans for the forum on Student Courts are going ahead and that the forum will definitely be held Thursday night in Longmire Auditorium at 8 p.m. This contradicts rumors that the forum had been cancelled.

Bo Baker, Frances Hirschbichler Louwerse, and Faye Peterson, as members of the present Judicial System will speak during the discussion, as will Dal Albritton, Jerry Thomas, and Bob Lee Bannerman of the newly publicized Student's Rights Committee.

Marian Doro, past House President of the WRA, will also speak.

"This forum will give all students an opportunity to learn the operation situation involving our Judicial System," said Jerry Thomas, Chairman of Men's Judicial Court. "Many arguments, both pro and con, have been aired in the eating establishments, dormitories, and other gathering places around campus. This forum will be a UGA sanctioned meeting for the purpose of discussing the future plans of both the present system and the recent the Student's Rights Committee."

ALLAN HEAD, UGA Forums Chairman, has stressed the attendance of all students who may possibly come because "This forum is being held on one of the most controversial subjects in our school today. All students who have questions about any part of the matter being discussed will have the right to ask those questions of any of the speakers after the panel discussion. This alone should assure a substantial turnout Thursday night."

"The speakers are all very well informed on the subject of our student courts and will be able to answer intelligently and conclusively any question directed to them concerning the Judicial System. Every student should take this opportunity to openly express his or her opinion at this forum. It is only through the cooperation

Emphasis Week Began Sunday With Services In Local Churches; Lectures and Formus Set

Due to the possibility of poor weather Friday night, the Honor Emphasis Week Affirmation Ceremony is to be held in Westcott Auditorium, instead of Campbell Stadium as originally scheduled, Charlotte Lischka, chairman of the honor committee, announced yesterday.

Honor Emphasis Week began Sunday with sermons in the local churches upon the subject of honor. Lectures, forums and teas are yet on the agenda for this week's observance.

According to Bo Baker, Chief Justice of the University Court, this week's program is intended not only for the students, but for the faculty and administration as well, so as to insure cooperation with the Honor Code.

THERE WILL be a panel tonight for the faculty only in the Musis building auditorium. Dr Samuel Neel will act as chairman. Miss Daisy Parker will speak on experiences of other schools with honor systems. Charlotte Lishka will talk on the background of FSU's system. Bo Baker will present his view of the situation now, and problems of faculty-student cooperation.

For organization presidents and UGA officers, there will be a panel in the first floor lounge of the Longmire building. Rube Askew will act as chairman, Faye Patterson, off-campus council chairman, will explain the basis of our system and others. Dean Davis of the College of Arts and Sciences, will then speak on faculty interest and cooperation. Jennie Adams will speak last on the person's situation, problems, and the role of the campus leader.

THE WEDNESDAY afternoon teas at 4:30 in all the dorms will offer guest speakers. Miss Studenis are invited to attend these teas. Speakers at these teas will include Marilyn Archbald, Peg Rizz, Marian Doro, Jennie Adams, Rube Askew, Caroline Whitmire, Francis Hieghbolum Louwerse, Bruce Kirkley, and Alice Jackson.

Polls will be taken in the dorms on both east and west campus in an effort to examine the basic significance of Friday night's ceremony.

George B Band Plays for Show

Thursday Night Set for Cavalier's Vaudeville

George Bee and his orchestra will play for the Cavalier Vaudeville Night, announced Director Herb Reinhard today. The band will be spotlighted during the program for several special numbers.

Vaudeville night is being sponsored by the national dance organization, Cavaliers, and is slated to be presented on January 18. At this time the new national Cavalier song will be introduced.

Although this is its first vaudeville show presented here by the Cavaliers, the group intends to make it an annual affair.

THERE WILL BE 16 variety acts and the dancers will also present prizes to the three top winners. The judges will be two faculty members and one graduate student.

Reinhard announces that the variety acts will include singers, dancers, acrobats and comedians. He's looking for talent and acts as ushers for the show and will be introduced during the program.

Carl Beeler, publicity director announced that publicity releases were given during the summer session and were a great success with the students.

The entire program is free to the student body, faculty and members of the staff.

'The War and Me,' Panel, Set by SCA

Three Speakers on Forum; Set for Alum Club Room

"The War and Me," a panel, will be discussed by the Student Christian Association Thursday at 7 p m January 18, in the club room of the Alumni building. Students are invited to participate in the discussion.

Some of the topics and subjects to be discussed will be:

"Christianity versus Communism".

"How the critical condition of the world will affect college students lives."

"Will enlisting or continuing in college serve the country best."

"How do college students feel about fighting in Korea and other parts of the world."

The panel will be composed of Wallace Dynes, Ralph Hager, and Mse Gautier. Mediator will be Dr Edgar Henderson.

Meng' Jones is a subject of prime concern to every student at Florida State University," says Bill Hess, president of SCA.

The SCA was organized in September combining the YMCA and YWCA. It was founded to promote co-educational relationships guided by the principle of Christian living.

SCA is sponsoring faculty-student luncheons and coffees to foster a closer fellowship between faculty and students.

"They have a transportation bulletin board in lower Westcott to help students arrange rides to and from school. The SCA also works with local acnas groups.

Entire '51 Sandspur Company Will Meet

The entire Sandspur company of 1951 will meet today at 6 p m eral matters of importance will be in the Alumni auditorium. Several matters of importance will be be discussed and everyone will be expected to attend. All committee chair en are requested to bring a complete list of their committees, urged Director Herb Reinhard.

The meeting is very important and everyone attending will be automatically dismissed from the production, Reinhard said.

Men's Judiciary Pix

All court members of Men's Judiciary will meet in the Alumni building tonight at 9:30 to have their picture taken for the Tally Ho. The picture will be taken in the courtroom and all members are requested to wear coats and ties.

Board of Control Approves Professor In Social Welfare

Dr J J O'Connell has been approved by the State Board of Control for appointment as a professor of psychiatry in the School of Social Welfare. The appointment is announced by Dr Doak S Campbell.

The psychiatrist came to the university from private practice in Ottawa, Canada. He received his medical training at Queen's University, School of Medicine at Kingston, Ontario. He interned at Ottawa Civic hospital and then engaged in general practice.

Dr O'Connell was later appointed to the Provincial Director of the Ontario Department of Health and served there from 1940 as a junior physician in psychiatry.

Returning from military service he was awarded a Fellowship in child psychiatry at the Catholic University of America in 1948 and a year later returned to Ottawa to again take up private practice.

Dr O'Connell has done considerable research in the fields of psycho-endocrine and endocrine resulting from marital maladjustments.

FBLA Meet Slated Here on Thursday

There will be an important Future Business Leaders of America meeting on Thursday, Jan 16, at 7 p m in room 308 Westcott. Membership in the club is open to all students in the School of Business and students in the departments of economics.

Plans will be made for the FBLA State Convention which is to be held on this campus May 18 and 19. Reports will be given regarding the National Business Teacher's Association and Fl Omega Pi convention which was held in Cleveland, Dec 27-28.

Recently the "Blotter," the club publication received national recognition and praise by Mr Hollis Guy, FBLA national sponsor and executive secretary of the United Business Education Association. "Blotter" editor is George Carolyn Parish.

BEFORE, DURING AND AFTER—Omicron Delta Kappa members are shown in the above three photographs parting with a pint of blood for the Florida State University Blood bank. The first donors were Dr Otis McBride, dean of men, Doug Aley, president of ODK, Rube Askew, UGA president. Earl Dobert was unable to give blood because of a high temperature. In the upper left, Dean McBride is shown having his blood pressure taken while Askew, Aley and Dobert look on. In the lower picture, Nurse Clendon-ing applies the tube to the arm of Rube Askew. Aley smiles through it all. In the upper right it is all over and the donors compare "operations."

Clarence' Play Again Tonight

Curtain To Rise at 8 P M in Little Theatre on WC

The second performance of Freshman play, Clarence to be presented tonight at Little Theater on West campus. The curtain will rise at 8 p m.

This Tarkington comedy will be the first Freshman performance of the Florida State University group in several years. Dr Mackenzie has stated that he hopes Freshman play will become an annual presentation here.

NO ADMISSION price is being asked for Clarence. A novel advance by non-student patrons has been requested, however. Articles of old clothing, furniture, household goods are requested be left at the door. These will be used as property facilities by department of speech which is sponsoring the play.

FSU students were asked to attend last night and tonight, Friday and Saturday nights are also to come to the Wednesday and Thursday evening performances.

The FSU productions will be directed in the "theater-in-the-round style, and Dr George Mackenzie of the speech department will supervise it. Co-directors are two FSU senior speech majors, Betty Dekle and Marion-Ellis Hall.

The comedy will center around Clarence who was created by Clarence Blake. Clarence who was created by Ida Wheeler, Mr Wheeler's sister who is under the impression that Clarence can help him to untangle the love problems in his home. Clarence, who was wounded but never got any farther than Texas in his army life, becomes the general handyman in the Wheeler home.

The following students are cast in this production: Marion Morris and Marilyn Hughson as Mrs Morris, Carolyn Briles and Dot Smith as Cora, Dagwood Morris and Bobby Whitmore as Violet, and Bill Hess and Ben Hulsey as Bevidere.

IN OTHER PARTS are Patricia Morris as Mrs Wheeler, Lee Hildman as Mr Wheeler, Donald Remington as Clay, and Oscar Dunagan as Robert Stem.

The production staff is headed Jean McGuiere and Marcia Davis as stage managers. Van Smith is handling the properties committee, while Thad Brooks has charge of the costumes committee. Mary Ann Davis commands the make-up crew, with Nancy Lee Carl Taylor, Dynes and Robert Warner controlling the lighting effects. Mary Loutham Georgianna Fairer are handling publicity, and Barbara Ann Wells is house manager.

Advisor's Approval 'Must' to Register

Upperclassmen students must get the approval of their major advisor before registration forms for the Spring semester can be completed according to Spring Schedule of Courses. Registration will take place on January 30.

Students unsure of the name and location of their department may obtain this information in the dean of the school in which they are enrolled.

All upperclassmen who are unsure about their major are required to see Dr Hardee. Co-ordinator of Counseling, 301 Westcott.

Four More Donors Support ODK 'Blood Bank' Project

Dobert (Trying Again), Evans, Marini, Walter Will Be Tapped Tomorrow

Four more donors will give blood to the FSU blood bank today as the Omicron Delta Kappa project continues.

Earl Dobert, who was dismissed last week because of a high temperature, will lead the way for Jimmie Evans, Sylvia Marini and Joann Walter. The four donors will meet at 3:30 p m in the Dean of Men's office where transportation to the Tallahassee Memorial Hospital will be furnished.

Donors for next week will be Dal Albritton of ODK and Walter Frye. Two more donors are needed for this group. Anyone wishing to give blood should sign the roster in the Dean of Men's office.

THE BLOOD is to be used by FSU students and faculty in the event of emergency for the students although the faculty will pay a $10 processing charge.

The extracting of blood is almost a painless operation and takes about 10 minutes. The blood is kept in pint jars for three weeks. If it is not used in this time, it is turned into plasma

Walker Announces New Exam Policy

Candidates for graduation may be excused by their instructors from taking the final examination in a course in which he has maintained "without question" a B average at the time the examination is scheduled, according to an announcement by Charles E Walker, registrar.

Candidates for degrees that are required to take examinations will have them scheduled by arrangement with their instructor not later than the second day of the final examination period, Walker said.

All grades for candidates for degrees must be turned in to the Office of the Registrar by noon of the third day of the final examination period.

Rule Changes Made For Flastacowo By Camp Director

Because of the increased number of requests to use camp Flastacowo, regulations changes have been made. This information was released by M V Alexander, camp director.

Alexander said that throughout the entire year, organized groups may have parties and picnics at Camp on Friday night. The closing hour will be 11 p.m.

Groups may sign up for parties on Saturday night until 11, from December 1 until March 1. Parties for Saturday night in the fall and spring may make reservations only one in advance. In this way, the groups that wish to stay for the entire weekend have priority.

"We want the camp to be used and we want parties as well as individuals to come to camp as often as you like. Be sure if you are an organized group and you want facilities reserved that you make reservations in advance," the camp director stated.

Faculty Cooperation Vitally Essential For Successful Working of Honor Code

It takes not only co-operation from the students themselves, but also co-operation on the part of faculty members to make a working unit of our Honor System with its Honor Code. The majority of the faculty members here at FSU have expressed a definite belief in the Honor System and have pledged their support.

An expression of this co-operation can be found in the following two letters from faculty members:

"As a sincere believer in the Honor System, I have always assumed the personal integrity of each student in my classes. I give tests without alternate seating or close supervisions, and I often let the students grade their own papers. They seem to accept the responsibility of being absolutely honest under these conditions.

"But the more subtle responsibility of doing their own work outside of class is too much for many of them. It is so difficult to compose a theme and so easy to copy one, that many choose the easy way out. Usually they consider themselves successful, for I never make an issue of plagiarism unless it is too blatantly obvious to be overlooked.

"Perhaps in this complete observance of the honor system I am being unfair to my other students, the ones who do their own work. Surely it is for the sake of these honest people that some instruction violates the principles of the Honor System.

"Until the students themselves accept the Honor System completely, with all its implications, there will always be some conscientious faculty members who face the situation realistically and firmly, not in their own interest but in the interest of the students and the university."

(Signed)
DABNEY ADAMS.

Another letter comes from Dr Samuel R Neel, associate professor of philosophy.

"The development of an Honor System represents an effort to build a community on our campus in which faculty and students can live together in mutual trust and confidence. The Honor System has been used fairly successfully in our library, in many classrooms, and in a number of other phases of our campus life. The Honor Committee is to be complimented on their earnest efforts to expand this spirit of honor so that it will include all of our campus life, and I believe that both faculty and students stand ready to help them in this very important enterprise."

'Who's Who at FSU' Selects Thirty-One Campus Leaders

Thirty-one Florida State University students were tapped yesterday afternoon by a University Council commttee as members of Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities.

The committee was appointed in December after the University Council voted to take part in Who's Who. The group was composed of President Doak S Campbell, ex officio chairman; Dean Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare; Dr Otis McBride, dean of men; Dr Thomas Warren, dean of women; Rube Askew, president of the student association; Bill Hayes, vice president in charge of women's affairs; Bill Hayes, vice president in charge of men's affairs, and Bob Lanigan, president of the senior class.

THE COMMITTEE met several times and adopted a point system limiting employment by many national honoraries, Leadership and participation in extra-curricula activities counted 75 per cent and scholarship, 25 per cent. The system arrived at was objective and there was no possibility of personal options.

A certain number of points were given for each office held or participation in an activity such as president of a club, the presidents of UGA, chief justice of Honor Court, and the three editors of campus publications were placed in the five point bracket with different honors and offices being in the four, three and two bracket. One point was given for membership in any recognized organization, honors and any office held in an organization other than president.

ALL ACTIVITIES were covered

Senator Pepper Will Speak to FSU Senate This Afternoon

Former United States Senator Claude Pepper will address the student Senate of Florida State University tomorrow afternoon at 5:15 in the Student Alumni Building auditorium.

The 14 year veteran of the US Senate will speak on "Can Democracy Meet the Challenge of Totalitarianism."

Senator Pepper's visit to the FSU campus was arranged by Freshman student Senator Jim Turnbull.

Turnbull urged that all students and faculty turn out to hear Pepper address and stated as it has a bearing on the lives of all Americans.

Speech Dept Posts Play Tryout Lists

A list of persons invited to tryout for the two spring speech productions Family Portrait and Jim Dandy are posted on the dramatic bulletin board, first floor of the history building.

Readings will be held tonight through Thursday in the Conrad Theatre beginning at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday tryouts are posted.

Congressman Slated To Give Address For Feb Graduation

Florida Congressman Bob Sikes will be speaker for the February graduation exercises, according to an announcement by President Doak S Campbell.

The graduation ceremony will be held at 4 p m, Saturday, February 3, in Westcott auditorium.

The Florida congressman will discuss the importance of education for the youth of the state and nation in the development of leadership for the future. At the end of the exercises, Dr Campbell will award degrees to some 250 graduates.

The commencement exercises will be the first for the new semester system inaugurated at the beginning of this term which replaced the quarter system previously in effect.

Service Frat Slates

A meeting of the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity, will be held next Wednesday night at 7 p m in room 121 of the Social Work Building.

Jimmie Evans, president, has announced that plans for ushering at Honor Emphasis Week will be discussed as well as the election of a secretary and vice-president.

Afternoon Courses Offered Journalists

Four late afternoon courses in Journalism will be offered in the spring semester, which begins February 12, according to Dean Laurence B Campbell of Florida State University School of Journalism.

They are bulletin and magazine editing, specialized reporting, public opinion, and graduate seminar. They are open to part-time as well as full-time students.

which can be preserved indefinitely.

"The blood bank can will be the means by which a life is saved," said Dr Thomas Brooks as he recommended CDK for sponsoring the project. Dr Brooks explained now, in many instances, students have needed transfusions and time has been lost in contacting a donor with the right type of blood. The blood bank will remedy this situation as blood will be readily available at the Tallahassee hospital.

DOUG ALLEY, president of CDK, expressed his thanks to all those who had signed to contribute blood and urged other students to join in keeping the blood bank in operation. "The blood you give now may help your best friend or even yourself," he said.

The idea of the blood bank for FSU originated just before Christmas when it became known that a student was badly in need of blood and no donor could be found. Dean Otis McBride happened to visit the infirmary at that time and gave the needed blood. Dr McBride's blood will match any other type although there is only one type who will match his own.

STUDENTS WHO donate blood receive a card with their blood type and rh factor on it thereon. There is also a space for the dates when blood is given.

Omicron Delta Kappa is now working on another project which will benefit Florida State University. This project will be announced later when all details are completed.

Modern Languages Sponsors Lectures

Dr Margaret Campbell, assistant professor of Spanish, will be the first speaker in a series of free public lectures sponsored by the department of modern languages.

She will give the lecture at 7:30 p m. January 18, in the Longmire auditorium on "South American Travelogue." Dr Campbell spent a lengthy period in South America recently studying under a United State Department Scholarship.

The new lecture series will feature Dr Thomas Navarro, professor of Spanish at Columbia University, on January 23, Dr Navarro is also director of the summer session of the School of Spanish at Middlebury College, Middlebury, Vermont.

Two FSU Students Named Top Seniors

Two Florida State University students have been selected as two of the top colleg seniors of the south majoring in scientific courses. They are Warren Arthur Birt, majoring in zoology, and George Kelly, majoring in chemistry.

The two students have been notified by the Southern Association of Science and Industry of their appointment as honorary members of the association.

In a program involving every major college and university in 14 southern states, the SASI selected 200 college seniors, majoring in scientific subjects, including the two FSU students.

On August 1 each year Switzerland celebrates its "Confederation Day." Expert mountaineers make their way to peaks and set off fireworks displays and bonfires.

Honor Committee Consists of Groups With Main Interest Working Together

Honor Committee consists of many small committees which work together with one common interest—that of helping the faculty and student body alike to understand the Honor Code and System.

Charlotte Lischka is chairman of Honor Committee, assistant co-chairmen are Jennie Adams and Claude Johns. Secretariat is Terry Stein.

These students have the responsibility of organizing into one main working body the various smaller committees. There are 10 of these which range from faculty contact to fraternity and sorority contact, with seven others in between.

This is their report to you, the faculty and students alike. This is what they have been doing in the past and what they will do in the near future.

FACULTY CONTACT— Marion Doro. Since the spring of 1950 there has been a faculty-student committee on the Honor Code, its duty has been to co-ordinate the aims of students and faculty. Last spring this committee received the Honor Code as it had been written and approved by the Honor Committee. Since then the code has been reviewed and revised in order to make its provisions clear to both faculty and students. Members of this committee are: Dr Marian Irish, chairman of the faculty group; Dr James F Stokes; Dr Arthur J Kent; Marion Doro, chairman of the student group; Zoe Rents and John Wheeler.

STAFF CONTACT — Shirley Gregory. This committee strives to clarify the Honor System for the FSU personnel, so that through mutual staff-student understanding of the system a workable Honor System might be achieved.

SORORITY CONTACT— Myra Kight. To reach every sorority on campus through student speakers on the Honor Code is the aim of this group. The response given by the sorority groups contacted show that they are in favor of the Honor Code and are willing to cooperate both the Code and Honor Emphasis Week. Plans are now under way to have a member from each sorority and the Panhellenic Council attend meetings of the Honor Committee.

EDUCATION—Nancy Day. The educational branch began the year with a series of training meetings designed especially for freshmen but open to all students who expressed a desire to actively support the Honor System. Many of the 60 or more students who responded have been called on to talk to various groups to create interest in the coming Honor Emphasis Week.

ORGANIZATIONS—Zoe Rents. Many of FSU's 180 organizations have been contacted personally, and letters have been sent to their presidents concerning Honor Emphasis Week. Their presidents have been asked to actively participate in the program at the student body Friday night.

PRE-ORIENTATION — Eunice Thompson. Since it is the desire of the Honor Committee to reach incoming freshmen and transfers, personal letters are sent to all these students and their parents before they arrive at FSU. The Registrar's office has agreed to assist the committee during the coming year by enclosing a booklet about our Honor System in all materials sent to prospective students.

ORIENTATION — Mary Ann Siemo. During the training program of the Junior Counselors every year they are informed about the Honor System and given information that in turn they can answer questions which their freshmen might ask. One of the Freshmen Orientation programs is set aside for the Honor Committee and Court System.

PUBLICITY — Alice Jackson. The office of public relations has given the necessary materials and money for posters. Small posters with an "honor" emphasis were placed in every classroom on East campus last spring. These posters will again be placed in all academic buildings.

FLAMBEAU PUBLICITY—Jean Aichley. This group handles all information which goes to the Flambeau about the Honor Committee, what it has been doing and what it plans to do.

Others who are active in Honor Committee are Miss Daisy Parker and Dr Charles Davis, faculty advisors; and Bruce Kirksey, fraternity contact.

If anyone is interested in any particular phase of the committee contact the person in charge. They welcome help and criticism at all times.

Out-of-Staters Give Reasons For Attending Florida State

On the campus of Florida State University are approximately 400 students from states other than Florida.

These nine month tourists have been visiting the state several years ago. One way home for the Christmas holidays. Many need a little-of-the state student from FSU. His name is Bob Selzy and he was going home to New York. Bob is majoring in Guidance and Personal Development. He said he had heard about the Florida sunshine and dreamed of studying under the palm trees. Also he found that FSU was the only school he cared to attend in Florida which would give him a transfer of credits if he should decide to go back to New York.

THE "BEAUTIFUL" FSU campus enticed Karalyn Bardin from the peninsular south. Karalyn a major in radio journalism, came from Buffalo, New York. Karalyn recently played one of the roles in "Arms and the Man," a speech department performance.

Harry Newman, editor of the Tally-Ho, said, "I had a choice of FSU or Mexico." "FSU" Harry commented above the clirk of the Flambeau deadline scurry, "was the deciding factor from home." Home is Indiana.

It seems that there are some people who consider it a privilege to teach in the state of Florida such as Orma Glasscock, a senior. Owen, who is majoring in English, was originally from Kansas. Owen transferred to FSU from Sewanee, Tennessee, to the land of "sunshine and beaches." he laughingly informed.

DOUG ALLEY, a senior also has hopes of remaining in a smaller meeting, that he was from Pocahatl, Virginia. He blandly explained that it is easier for him to attend FSU than his own state university.

There are many various and sundry reasons why the remaining 90% of the 400 students attend Florida State.

It seems that FSU has also obviously gotten its share of the sports field from states other than Florida. We find represented Indiana, North and South Carolina, Ohio, Maryland, and Georgia.

FSU has publicised its advantages throughout the United States both academically and in the sports and entertainment features on its campus.

THE EDITOR'S POST

WHEN NOTHING TO SAY, A WRITER SAYS:

By EARL DOBERT

Bob Fuson, graduate student in the field of geography, has an objection to raise about an article appearing in the Flambeau regarding—of all things—graduate students.

Fellow colegiate Wilbur Smith waxed eloquently that graduate students "search and research trying to find out whether Tallyrand had three yellow cats or four grey cats."

Fuson, a stickler for accuracy, wants it known that Tallyrand "had five cats. My MA thesis provas this conclusively," he added.

Our apologies to Fuson. Tallyrand and the cats. Meow.

Today I try again. Giving blood this is.

Not one to be outdone, I immediately signed up for 4 p m today. I hope I will have company when I part with a pint.

The Spring weather brought out those old urges again. Will Pennell and Bill Conklin.

Will Pennell, I have decided to take up residence under the street-light near the Alumni building and ask their famous question to all the girls passing near. The question: "Do you laugh?"

They won't confide in this columnist what "boodling" is. Do you know?

And while on the subject of Will Pennell, I have a suggestion to pass on to the Junior Class of which he is a member.

With the profits from their new-profit book exchange, the Junior Class would be at great service to the students if they would start a social theater of the "Found of Flesh Club."

Money lenders that is. The book exchange should make lots of capital for such a venture.

A pre-release glimpse of this month's Talaria pleases this columnist no end. No kidding, the next Talaria, which will receive a new name shortly, promises to be the best issue ever produced here at FSU.

The format, I understand, has been changed and there will be a cheesecake section in it. That's news. Now if I can get it. That's newspaperese for "get it."

The student body holds the ace . . . or the joker. It is you who make the decisions. Don't be not let yourself down. Pass their legislation.

"Slaughter on 10th Avenue" is now on the juke box in the Soda Shop of the Alumni building. It's been getting a terrific play. Matter of fact, one person I know, who incidentally owns the tune three or four times every time he gets the chance.

It would be cheaper to buy the records and a phonograph. Both records themselves are terrific. They sound like "Gimmy Sunday" on a Saturday night.

One of the most interesting characters I have met, to steal Maupassant's phrase, is Leonard Digest, is Bud Navarro. This Jovial, witty, Key Westerner, is a junior major in Public Administration.

Among his other talents, Bud never fails to keep one from laughing whenever you see him.

He's a good friend to have a cup of coffee with. Everyone should have a good coffee drinking friend and Bud is mine.

His accomplishments include work with WFSU but his is more noted and favorably so, at becoming a Mason.

How about some coffee, Bud?

CHALLENGE: TO CREATE ATMOSPHERE OF TRUST

By BO BAKER

Chief Justice, University Court

If we want an honor code merely in order to stop lying, cheating, and stealing, let's have the idea right now! It won't work! Each individually, must understand the underlying philosophy of an honor system.

Other systems can stop the honor code's enemy three." The University can put a signature safes in each room and organize a checking system for valuables. The UGA can set up a committee to work with the Sand and the Tallahassee police force. Teachers can develop test systems that are cheat-proof—having several versions of tests given in the classrooms, giving various tests, and shuffling up and down the aisles. Strong set penalties with involved questioning can put the damper on lying.

Of course, the red tape, the finger printing and the time spent filling out checking slips might be burdensome, but, at least, the terrific responsibility we face under an honor system would be done away with.

Do you remember being in a class where the professor gave you test questions, waited a few moments for clarification, and then left the room? Did you ever have a friend who would never lie to you? Have you put a nickel down on a newsstand knowing that you could just as easily take a free paper? Was the important thing in these experiencies the mere elimination of cheating, lying, and stealing? Or did we "feel good" because, as an institute of learning, we basically want to trust and be trusted?

To create an atmosphere of trust is the challenge of an honor system. Can one thousand people on a university campus attain this goal? Classes can do it! Friends can do it! Complete strangers can do it, and we can do it!

But first—we must clasp hands with our thousands of student and faculty friends and say, "WE TRUST EACH OTHER."

MORTAR BD. AGENCY

Many students and faculty members of Florida State University for some time have felt the need for a tutoring agency.

Plans are at last under way for establishment of effective and responsible tutoring service on this campus by the members of Mortar Board as one of their major services to this year.

Such a project calls for more than the time and energy of the twelve members of Mortar Board. A lot depends on you. To establish and operate an effective tutoring agency on this campus, the Mortar Board members must have the support and cooperation of the university students and faculty members.

Faculty aid is needed in securing qualified students to tutor those students requesting help in their studies. Students qualified to tutor others should make every effort to participate in such a program when called upon. Students requesting aid need to observe and understand the rules of a Tutoring Agency.

Most important is the fact that Mortar Board is sponsoring this program as a tutoring Agency, not as an agency that furnishes a supervisor for a Cramming Party the night before a big exam.

Tutors will be selected from the FSU student body—not the small number of members in Mortar Board.

Any student finding himself in need of help or aid in a subject should contact any member of Mortar Board—but remember that a considerable amount of time is needed to secure a dependable and capable tutor of the particular subject.

In beginning this Tutoring Agency as one of her projects, Mortar Board wishes to put forward in the progress of Florida State University. One of the primary purposes of such a service is to further scholarship at FSU.

With the cooperation of the faculty and the 5,000 students on the FSU campus, Mortar Board will be able to establish an effective Tutoring Agency.

This has been needed a long time.

TEACHER AND HONOR

By DAISY PARKER

Political Science Teacher

It is difficult—if not impossible—for me to see how one can believe in the ideal of American democracy without believing in Honor System. If we believe in our democracy, we believe that the individual is the center, that he is usually capable of understanding what it is to be a person of worth and a person worthy of trust.

We believe that individuals can learn honorably in all phases and relations of life—in obeying traffic regulations, in filing income tax returns, in assuming responsibilities in our system of government, in respecting the property of others—whether it be real estate, an automobile, a term paper, or an examination answer.

I would see no reason for teaching a course in United States government if I did not believe that individuals can learn and act on the basic principles of democracy and that honor system—respect for the individual, his rights and his property, and the responsibility of each individual to every other individual and the group. Naturally, I have found those students who have not comprehended the way of honor, but they have been in the minority.

I have found most students more than willing to accept the responsibility to try to achieve a system of student government which will be read by the people of this and our youths the combined spirit of order and self-respect so congenial with our political institutions and so important to be woven into the American character."

● HONOR OPPORTUNITY

By CHARLOTTE LISCHKA

Many students and faculty members may be asking: What is Honor Emphasis Week? What is its purpose? It is not the culmination of honor, nor is it the beginning of honor on our campus. This program is to illustrate the growth and strength of our Honor System, to illustrate the active participation of many students in its furtherance.

The Honor Committee has chosen one week specifically for the purpose of giving everyone an opportunity to air his opinion, acquire information and more fully understand his honor system. For as with everything, one cannot accept, criticize, or discard something he does not understand. At the end of the week there will be three or four fewer questions and a greater active support of the system.

The purpose of Honor Committee is: (1) to educate the FSU campus to our Honor System; (2) to place the system's responsibility on students; (3) no faculty monitoring of classes; (4) Honor System should be similar to University of Virginia and University of Florida as it relates basically to the needs of FSU.

Four methods by which these goals will be achieved are Open Honor Committee meetings and Honor Emphsis Week plus informative articles in the Flambeau; student-run trials by the court and the University Council; and future meetings with the deans of various colleges within FSU concerning classroom procedure, and dated information and speakers from numerous universities containing a working Honor System.

Yes, we have a working honor system, but due to its comparative newness, it is not a complete working unit. Many schools have been cited throughout our "growing" period, but we realize that this system must be given to us, not to them. We have used them as examples to show what has been done, now we want to show them what we have accomplished. To achieve this goal, all of us who firmly believe in integrity, honor and an honor system here at FSU need your help, your cooperation, your interest and support. We as members of Florida State University, need the honor system, and in equal proportion, the honor system, to be wholly successful, needs you.

The best thing about building castles in the air is that they are tax free.—Flambeau, September 29, 1933.

Many students are determined not to let their studies interfere with their education. —Flambeau, September 22, 1933.

A great many bright students come to Florida from other states. And the brighter they are, the sooner they come.—Flambeau, September 22, 1933.

BOTH BARRELS GONE... LET'S RELOAD

By JERRY THOMAS

The Committee for Student Rights finally exploded with both barrels last week.

Members of this committee have been giving speeches to organizations on campus for the past few months.

Many meetings have been held, both open and closed, in an effort to draw up a acceptable policy.

Many hours have been spent on argumentation and investigation.

Every proposals have been accepted, still others have been rejected.

In short, much time and effort has been expended by a very few to help Florida State progress.

The final few, who number less than 10, have carried on this progressive action unselfishly.

It is doubtful that any of these members will have the opportunity to return to FSU next year, because of the International crisis.

Therefore, it is quite easy to understand that their objectives are solely for the betterment of the University.

Their participation plays no parallel to student politics. They are sincere.

This group has compiled notes from almost every university in the United States. Their findings are accurate.

They have studied the court's system in many of our leading universities. Also, in turn, compared them with Florida State's.

Student records are compendious. They have been careful. They are prepared to answer any questions.

Finally the committee was still in its rudimentary stage, some of the members were recommended to dens of student welfare's office for confirmation of their activities.

Their report was comprehensive. The welfare group was satisfied. The committee continued its work.

Even today their work is far from being finished, but it has passed its embryonic stage.

The student body holds the ace

The forum scheduled for Thursday night should be quite interesting.

The question will be "How Can FSU's Judicial System Be Improved?"

Any student who has had any affiliation with the court system, either as a member, as defendant, fully realizes what an opportunity subject the Forums Chairman has offered.

This is the one opportunity for students to receive the true "dope" on our judicial system.

If there are any points about the courts that any student or faculty feels dubious about, he will probably be given the opportunity to address his question to the forum.

This is a public forum to be held this year. Student participation will decide if it is to be the last.

FANCY THIS

FORUM TRAVELS A ROCKY PATH

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

The forum mentioned in last Friday's column concerning the FSU court system has been travelling a rocky path.

It seems that Rube Askew, University Government president, was the guest speaker at a forum's chairman, Allan Head, and called in a few of the speakers to postpone the forum until a later date.

When one of the speakers called Allan and asked him if he would postpone the forum until after Honor Emphsis Week, Allen smelled a fish. He knew that if the forum were held after this week, its effect would be lost and it would be just another campus event. But, he did think Emphasis week, the subject would fit rights in with the schedule.

Could it be that Rube doesn't want certain facts to come out into the light in this public discussion? I believe that Rube is a square, good government, but simply afraid of change. Rube asked me to make a study of the various court systems in the judicial courts earlier this semester, so that means that our president is attempting to hide from the court.

But when an incident such as the one above happens, it starts a rocky path.

I went to the Artist Series Committee meeting last Thursday and submitted a list of 57 artists and groups of artists that students on campus have told me they would like to see on the FSU Artist Series. I read the names to the committee and then left the room. They told me that of these artists would cost too much money to bring to this campus.

They said that if we had just FSU students on campus there would be enough money for anyone each during the year. They said they would try and see what they could do for us but . . .

There are a few more facts I would like to gather on these artists concerning their southern tours and their prices. Until the information comes in on that, there will be no facts to do. There will be the facts and we'll either be able to have the artists or not have them.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

CONGRATULATIONS DUE FSU'S PHI DELTS

By JOEL P SMITH

Congratulations are in order to Florida State's local chapter of Beta Phi fraternity for their installation as a national collegiate chapter of Phi Delta Theta. Beta Phi, as most of you will remember, was one of the original eight local fraternities chartered by the university when the present FSCW became coeducational in 1947.

Beta Phi was founded by 10 Phi Delt transfers from various universities in the south. The local fraternity has been most active in campus activities since its birth as a national unit. They have held such offices as president of the university student body, members of the senate, student courts, and president of the IFC.

Cherbe Chowning is the petitioning president of the local chapter of Phi Delta Theta. Much credit is due him for his efforts in making Florida State's Beta Phi local an affiliated member of one of the oldest national fraternities.

O H Williamson is the chapter counselor. Other alumni who have been affiliated with the local longer than any other Phi Delt in Tallahassee. They attended the national convention in Atlanta. Alumni will have to urge the acceptance of Beta Phi.

Frank Wright, assistant to Governor Cone Johnson, was instrumental in helping the local receive national recognition. He is a graduate of FSU in 1932. One of the general council of Phi Delta Theta, the governing body . . . yes, congratulations are in order for one of FSU's prominent graduates . . . who brings the number of national fraternities to a total of 13.

FSU should feel flattered at being chosen one of three university cities out of approximately 60 petitioning locals to be accepted into Phi Delta Theta.

Indications are that the dog's license bureau is going to outsell motor vehicle department in actual sales this winter . . . no, the dog population in Tally hasn't increased that much, but at the rate the male students are swearing off having their hair cut, Tallahassee will have to pay several thousand snaggy heads. WHAT'S BUTCHER? "We Refuse To Patronize Tallahassee Barber Shops Until They Reduce Prices," is making much headway around found campus these days. The Editor's Post should be awarded a medal for its efforts in criticizing the Tallahassee barber shops' prices for a 50c hair cut instead of a hair cut. It is utterly ridiculous for a semi-civilized, practical thing for about 15 minutes work . . . It's robbery, that's what it is!

There ain't no such thing as a local chapter of WKTP-SOUTH at Florida State . . . but I'm all for organizing the alpha chapter. This is one time the bold headed men on campus can thank their lucky stars. Mee, lelz make this "Foo ee Tallahassee Barbers Week," and continue the campaign until we start an evolution in men's hair styles or the Tallahassee Barbers repent!

Poetically Yours

PONDERING

By Sara Beth Williams

Those things of beauty that my heart is seeking.
Those fleeting images of the imagination
That flutter only for a second, hardly seen at all.
Happy is the poet who can capture them.
For a few brief seconds and hold them always.

So beautiful are they, that my soul is in pain.
More precious are those than the pearl,
Brought from the sea to lose its luster to light.
And is the heart that can not grasp it.
As the hand that can not hold the pearl.

In mourning is my heart and soul because of loss;
Would that they could give, so as to borrow
From the ever increasing stores of fate—
A happiness, misery not benefited—
Would any price be too great?

THE CAVALIER WALTZ

By Doug Alter

Written as lyrics to become the National Cavalier Song with music by Professor Thomas Wright of the FSU School of Music, "The Cavalier Waltz" will be introduced to the student body in the Tenth Annual Ball of the Cavalier Vaudeville Show on Thursday night at Westcott Auditorium.

When a Cavalier hears magic would Then a Cavalier will find romance;
Silver swords will dance.
Hearts will take a chance,
Kisses will salute a dream.
Men of valor then will find a new love
Blue Nemesis will be left behind
Take your sweetheart in your arms and dance
Dance to heaven with a Cavalier.

Dear Editor...

WANTS A REASON

Dear Editor:

I would like to know why my name was published as a member of the Student Rights Committee? I have not committed myself or the office that I hold to any such organization. The said committee was in many instances a farce. I would like to first investigate their proposals and make my own decision. To the students of the Junior Class I would like to apologize for whoever was responsible for the gross misuse of my name.

Sincerely,
WILL PENNELL

Editor's Note: It may have been because we were under the impression all campus leaders were associated with the project. We did not let your office so it was a matter of the committee, we later it as one of your accomplishments.

The phrased, Chairman Dal Albritten who said "This certainly was as a surprise to me. We were under the impression that Will was behind us all the way in this. We wondered why he didn't attend meetings. Naturally, we regret the incident and we apologize. We do not want the support of those who do not support the Scholarship." The other three class presidents are definitely behind us."

Coeds Find They Save Money Designing, Sewing Own Clothes

With prices soaring again, the coed who can make her own clothes discovers a vast difference in this initial cost of materials and the price of ready made goods.

A group of girls at Florida State University realize this and, are taking advantage of a class in Clothing Construction, art of designing hand made wardrobes which would be the envy of any young woman's eye.

ALTHOUGH everything from evening wear to tailored street ensembles are being made by the co-eds, the beautiful woolen fabric that they are working with today is the order things happen.

This year the editor is doing fine FSU work. Working on the annual seem to be getting their materials and have become very important department that is all fouled up.

There seems to have been a little dirty dealing in a contest. Watch this column for the facts.

Student Gives Report on Florida State's Civil Liberties

Editor's note: The following report was prepared by Dirk Barlow, graduate student in political science, at the request of the editor. It is a report issued to the American Civil Liberties Union in the status of academic freedom on the FSU campus. This is but one of several hundred such reports being prepared on campuses throughout the United States.

By DICK BARLOW

Mr. Patrick M. Malin, Executive Director
American Civil Liberties Union
170 Fifth Avenue
New York 10, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Malin:

I have been asked by the editor of our student newspaper to cooperate with your admirable organization in its project to survey the status of academic freedom on the American college campus. In my estimation nothing could more sincerely commemorate the 159th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights than such an undertaking.

As a student of political science I am interested in the problem of preserving academic freedom in education, and primarily on the college campus. This report is offered in an attempt to help in the examination of the progress of free thought and expression.

My observations in this study are, naturally, limited by the inability to get "all" the facts on what is usually a many-sided issue. So, while I recognize my limitations, I have aspired to be as detached as possible in reporting the facts as I have faced seen, and had them confronted to me.

AND NOW, to your first question: "Have there been instances at your institution of organizations being deprived of official recognition or the use of facilities because of the political views alleged to have been expressed by the organizations?"

As you doubtless know, the subtle suppressor of unorthodox ideas will not usually deprive official recognition to a group because such groups' ideas are "dangerous." He will give another reason for his action. So, I don't think I am adequate to give a black or white answer to the question. I can say though that in my judgment there is no surprising lack of worthwhile organizations on this campus. We have been "organized" to death, but little liberal expression seems to come out of it all. Attempts have been made to form chapters of the American Veterans Committee and Americans for Democratic Action, but the results have been discouraging. I would not venture to say what the official attitude would be toward these groups if they were ever established on the FSU campus, especially AVC and its non-segregated chapters which would, naturally lead to "miscegenation," and "a violation of Southern, white, Protestant, American born womanhood. We like to jimp into bed with the race question in the South.

I KNOW of no instances where students have been expelled because of their extra-curricular utterances or political views. Probably the most revolutionary utterances made here by a majority of the student body is what is known as the "rebel yell" when the Confederate flag comes into sight. Such action is quite generally tolerated. I don't think, however, that a displayer of a red flag would be so accepted—although they both symbolize a common feeling—revolution.

To my knowledge, subject to limitations, there have been no attempts by the institution's authorities to censor student newspapers or magazines or to discipline students for material which has appeared in student newspapers or magazines. We have the right to criticize Joe Stalin, Vito Marcantonio, Henry Wallace and sin, am I repeating myself? any time we want to, although nothing controversial has graced the pages of any of our school publications lately. So it is hard to say what would happen if anyone wanted to use the situation to change the status quo.

THERE HAVE definitely been attempts to require students, if they are employed by the State, to sign loyalty oaths. However, this has not been the University's doing, but rather pursuant to a state law. I was present at most of the hearings held on the legislation, which was finally enacted, and to my knowledge the president of the University of Florida expressed himself very well on the issue. To a libertarian's way of thinking, his stand was admirable.

Here at Florida State University the faculty members, as far as I know, have the right to express themselves on issues without fear of being penalized. I am sure that no one would attempt to suppress the utterances of teachers in such fields as labor and restaurant management, personal adjustment, literary science, and home economics if they put their students the facts of life. You can't get very controversial about dress-making and meal planning.

There have been, and will continue to be, attempts by our University to require loyalty oaths from faculty and prospective faculty members. This, however, is also pursuant to the state law I mentioned above.

THERE HAVE been investigations by legislative committees of the faculty, students, subject matter taught, and student publications. In fact, a committee set up by the state legislature to investigate communism in the schools still has the bound volumes of our school newspaper, which they neglected to return. And in line with this, there is a committee of book burners called the Florida Committee for American Action running around the State looking under all the beds for those who have strayed away from the herd. At this writing, they have discovered that some Florida text-books are slanted toward "Socialism and Communism." Whether this will result in an attempt to play God will remain to be seen. I've noticed that a number of newspapers have given them editorial encouragement, so we will probably have a book burning soon. We do need a little heat around here though, cause its been awfully cold lat . . . whoops!—I signed the loyalty oath . . . well, I'll bet, it's a damn sight colder in California right now.

TO SUM THE situation up, I find a great deal of inactivity on the part of the students, an inactivity which causes a minimum of worry in high places. The only time you'll find a sizeable group around here fired up with revolutionary ideas, is our football team (the first undefeated college team in Florida's history I'll have you know) in a huddle on the opponent's ten-yard line.

The safe sanes have so completely stolen the attraction from the main issue, that many don't have time to be exposed to the teachings of the heretics. The analogy reminds me that we've even got a circus here—one of our great claims to fame. But please don't tell that to John Dewey—the old man who has earned his rest from trying to reform the school system.

Those few who have not lost sight of the original purpose of a college are, to my knowledge, greatly outnumbered. They are here though, but I suspect for many of them the most the least amount of resistance is the one most traveled.

FOR MY final word I will try to quote from a study of students. The survey found "the FSU students are predominately Democratic in their political beliefs as Southerners; several generations standing are sensitive to the fine traditions of the South." Southern Decratia, that is—and all that along with the feeling stated to that label.

Sincerely,
Richard L. Barlow

FSU Will Compete In Bridge Tourney

The National Inter-collegiate Bridge Tournament committee has extended Florida State University an invitation to participate in the 1951 National Inter-collegiate Bridge Tournament.

This was announced by Mrs Lavra Kendall, assistant director of the West Campus Student Union.

EACH participating college will select a team of eight players to participate in the round-by-mail to be played in mid-February. As the result of this round the two highest pairs from each of the eight zones into which the country has been divided will compete in a face-to-face final match in Chicago. The finalists play in late April, and their expenses to, from, and in Chicago are borne by the committee.

FSU IS IN zone five and will compete with: Centre College of Kentucky, Duke University, Georgia School of Technology, Hendrix College, Tulane University, University of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Women's College of the University of North Carolina.

There will be the elimination games to select the four teams to play in the inter-collegiate semi-finals round-by-mail which will be played on February 24. The eight people with the highest average three games out of five will play in the semi-finals.

The games will be held at 2 p m on Saturdays in the West Campus Student Union. Players must have their own partner and reservations must be made by noon each Saturday. For further information and reservations, phone 2-3986.

Dance Introduction Subject Of Speech

Dr Janet K Smith, professor of Home and Family Life will speak Sunday, January 28 at 5 p m in the Augusta Conradi Theatre on "Introduction to the Dance."

Honor Court Has New Syste For Handling Its Business

The University Court opened the year with a new system for handling its business.

The nine members decided in October to initiate a Court Affairs Hour during which they would investigate cases and exchange information with other students concerning the UGA Judicial System, and the Honor Code. Each evening from 6:30 to 7:30, Monday through Friday, the Chief Justice, Bo Baker, and one member of the court can be found in the University Court room located on the second floor of the Alum.

Court responsibilities have been divided among the several members. Alice Jackson is in charge of contacting members for court meetings. Regular meetings are held on Tuesday nights at 9:30 and emergency meetings are called as they are needed.

Because the keeping of court records is a tremendous undertaking the court decided this year to appoint a court clerk. Charline Weitzne, the clerk, works with Patti Mims, junior representative, in taking notes during meetings, typing copies of the cases, and issuing summons. Copies of all cases are available to the student body during Court Affairs Hour.

The task of successfully operating Court Affairs Hour is that of Doris Harding, senior representative. Another senior representative, Peg Rizz, represents the Court in the women's dormitories. Other problems such as the investigation of stealing, are handled by the investigation committee of the Court. Bob Schmels and Glenn Allen, Darby Crum, and Ralph Saffer have recently joined the armed forces and will be replaced.

One of the major tasks of the Court, Psychology, and Political Science Departments

The Court has handled a minimum of cases this year. Since September there have been three constitutional cases and one code violation case. Of these cases involving Phi Beta restricted or suspension are presented to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Plans are being made for a courtroom, probably to be located on the fourth floor of the Alum. The present room is inadequate for open courts.

In case of emergencies which would involve the court, students are asked to contact the Chief Justice, Bo Baker, at Senior (Phone 2-0147). A copy of the weekly schedule is on file in the Dean of Women's Office.

Diane Van Deusen Named Phi Delta Theta Princess

Highlighting the Phi Delta Theta Installation weekend was the coronation of Diane Van Deusen as Phi Princess at the formal Installation Dance Saturday night.

Members of the princess' court were Patsy Charlotte, Anne Warren, Arra Mae Hiscock and Jo Ann Vaughan. Bouquets of white carnations were presented to each of the girls.

The dance was the climax of a weekend of busy activity during which the Beta Phi colony became the Florida Gamma chapter of Phi Delta Theta. Held in the American Legion home, the dance featured the music of Bob Cole's orchestra and an Old English theme. The princess was crowned by Frank Wright, assistant to the governor.

Installation ceremonies were held Saturday afternoon in the amphitheatre of the music building. Immediately following the services a reception and open house were held at the Phi Delt house honoring members of the General Council of Phi Delt Theta who gave the chapter national recognition by their presence at the initiation.

Other activities of the weekend included luncheons, initiation services, a dinner and a formal banquet Saturday evening at the Duck Barrel Hirsch, member at large of the General Council, officiated as toastmaster.

Present for all events of the weekend were members of the General Council of Phi Delta Theta, of which George Heinzer is president; the official delegates of Epsilon province; and members of Florida Gamma.

Official hostesses for the Phi Delta were the Vita Vamps.

Present officers of the chapter are Charles Chowning, president; O H Williamson, vice president; Bobby Sertee, secretary; Gene Sikes, treasurer; and Jack Nooney, pledge trainer.

"Which one," is the reply of the desk clerk.

"The Peggy Reed in 227 Christ," is the answer.

"Which one," is the reply again.

SLOWLY getting mad the asked pointedly, "Is this some kind of game. I want Peggy Reed art education major, who lives 227 Gilchrist."

A smile breaks on the assistant's face. "This happens often let me make this statement that I give all students asking for the Reeds.

"In 227 Gilchrist live two Margaret Reeds and both are art education majors."

PEGGY REED, whose middle name is Emery, gave this reason:

"We decided that because we had so many complications even in library books, mail, and laundry we could solve the problem by rooming together.

"Our main difference is that my middle name is Emery, my roommate's is Joyce.

To confuse matters even more their both date bees named Bill.

Seminole Cagers Face Tampa Spartans Here Tomorrow

Hatters Eke Out 67-66 Win Over Florida State Quintet

Florida State University's cage team, operating without the services of their star center and rebound artist, Tom McLaughlin, dropped a thrilling 67-66 basketball game to Stetson Hatters Friday night.

McLaughlin took part in a fraternity installation and was unable to make the game.

The thrill-packed game was witnessed by 1,000 fans—one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds ever to attend a game in the West campus gymnasium.

JIM DINGE, 6-7 Hatter center, dropped in the winning toss from the free throw line with 30 seconds remaining in the contest.

With 18 seconds remaining Bob Hartman, stellar FSU guard, was fouled, giving the Seminoles a chance to tie the game and send it into overtime. Hartman's free throw was no good and the Hatters controlled the ball until the gun.

Hartman was high point man for the Seminoles with 18.

Guard Mike Torbe led the Hatter scoring with 20 points and Yonge followed with 18.

Bud Marsee, FSU forward, tackled 13 points, while Bob Whitmer made 14.

Marsee, who usually plays forward, was assigned to Yonge in the absence of McLaughlin and handled the position creditably.

THE SEMINOLES got off to an early nine-point lead before the Hatters could score. The Hatters began connecting after five minutes had elapsed, wiped out the early Indian lead, and forged ahead to lead, 31-23, at halftime.

The Seminoles came back in the second half to build up their lead but were never able to hold a commanding one. Stetson led by as much as eight points at times but the Indians managed to rally and time again to remain in the game all the way.

Stetson's slight superiority took its toll in the closing minutes of the contest. The Hatters controlled both backboards as the clock neared the end.

(Today's column is written by Dr Howard G. Danford, FSU athletic chairman, on his recent trip to Dallas and the NCAA meeting. Dr. Danford discusses in a forthright manner what he deems of the 'sanity' code may bring about in college athletics.)

By DR HOWARD G DANFORD

I have just returned from Dallas, Texas, where the National Collegiate Athletic Association held its annual conference. The highlight of the conference was the death of the 'sanity' code which has been an attempt to bring some element of sanity into what, a few years ago, was developing rapidly into a wild and almost commercialized scramble for football players. The code, which was good and its athletes, was adopted three years ago with very few dissenting votes by the same institutions which last week voted 130 to 9 to defeat it.

The code was defeated by a combination of the following groups:

1. Those who felt that any regulation on a national basis was another step in the direction of federal control and the further limitations belonging to the NCAA.

2. Those who believed that preservation of the NCAA was more important than preservation of the code.

3. Those who resented any form of regulation; this group had been persistent violators of the code and had lied about their violations.

4. Those who felt that enforcement of the code was impossible.

I trust Florida State University's vote in favor of retaining the code because I would rather live in a city with traffic laws, even though some people violate these laws more than in a city with no traffic laws at all. The code set a limit to the amount of aid the colleges and universities of the nation might give athletes; in fact, the code was a form of self-control and self-protection to the colleges whose intercollegiate athletic budgets were getting large.

Now there are no price controls and the sky is the limit. Those may be all right for the rich schools with large gate receipts and thousands of affluent alumni, but it is not a happy situation for us.

The death of the 'sanity' code eliminates all semblance of a national standard by which to determine the extent of the aid to be given to athletes. The question, 'How much would we give,' must now be answered largely in the light of the amount of money available, which in our case is small. The colleges with the most money will get the best players. It's about like buying an automobile—Cadillacs cost more than Fords.

It is true that many schools have been violating the code, but the very existence of a code served as a guide to us in establishing a policy not unfair to athletes. Our athletic committee said, 'We shall abide by the code. We shall not exceed in any case the amount of aid permitted under the code.'

Now what guide shall we follow? There probably will be as many different codes as there are different conferences, and since we are in the conference, whose code shall we follow? I am afraid that many will look to an attempt to 'go-it-with-the-Joneses' as quite likely to bankrupt many intercollegiate athletic departments, or will eliminate other sports in an effort to secure more funds for football, or will eventually be forced to drop football completely as a financial white elephant.

In any case I believe we can rest assured that the dollar sign will dominate, to an even greater degree, football in most of the colleges of this nation until the word "sports" is spelled in this fashion—$port$; and as one reporter said recently 'they'll need a bank auditor to pick the All-America team.'

The real shead of FSU is not an easy one. The athletic committee must establish its own code on aid to athletes. The committee, I am sure, will first determine as best it can, the financial resources available. We can't spend what we don't have. The available funds will be expended as the good judgment of the committee dictates. It will be necessary to schedule colleges whose aid policy approximates our own; we cannot spend about what we spend on football.

If the committee approves we may ask our alumni and other friends of the university to contribute to an athletic aid fund. The extent to which such aid is forthcoming will determine to a large degree the relative quality of our sports squads at FSU.

Another factor which further complicates an already difficult situation is the threat of war. Within the past few hours Troy State Teachers cancelled the two basketball games scheduled with us this month and next, and a football game tentatively scheduled for next fall was cancelled by Delta State of Mississippi. Both colleges have lost so many boys to the services they feel it impossible to field representative teams.

We plan to go ahead with our present program unless conditions beyond our control prevent. We believe intercollegiate sports develop many of the qualities needed in American youth if we are to survive as a nation. We believe the morale of our people in times of great trouble is strengthened by an extensive program of athletics.

Tampa Cagers Topped Miami, Eastern Fives

Florida State University's cage team faces another state rival tomorrow night when they meet the tough Tampa Spartans in the West campus gymnasium. Game time is 8 p.m.

Students holding ID card numbers 20071 through 20388 will be admitted to see the intra-state battle.

Coach Sam Bailey's Tampans hold a won-lost record of 6-6 at the present time. The unbeaten Spartans have recorded victories over Yale, Dartmouth, Patrick Air Base, Florida Southern and Miami. Losses have been suffered at the hands of Villanova, Harvard, Louisville, Bowling Green, Western Kentucky and Louisville, all powerful fives.

THE SPARTANS chalked up 120 points in the Miami game to win while holding the Fliers to 22. The Clear City aggregation took a slim 54-49 victory from e fighting Southern crew. Florida State toppled the Mocs 65-55 and 44-31. Western, Tampa recently upset Miami 79-71, and is Hurricanes by an 81-60 score.

Coach Bud Kennedy's Psi Cagers are enjoying one of their most successful seasons in history. The Indians lead a 9-3 mark, having won from Charleston, Connecticut Pre, Miami, Maryland, Mercer, Southern twice. They have lost to Miami, David Lipscomb and Stetson.

The Spartans will probably start Mac Williams and Bill Ali Ali at forwards, Holland Aplin at center, and Harry Bryan and Bobby Monti at guards. Williams is an All-State forward who had tallied 201 points in Tampa's first 10 games. Monts was leading the scorers with 173. Bryan had the reason for an average of .606. Dickson has also scored 75 points in FSU's ten games to date. He is expected to see plenty of action tomorrow night when Florida State goes up on the University of Tampa Spartans here.

FREE THROW TURTLE — Pictured above is Larry "Turtle" Dickson, of Tampa, who is the Seminoles' leading free throw artist. The 6-4 three-year letterman has hit 21 out of 24 charity tosses for an average of .606. Dickson has also scored 75 points in FSU's ten games to date. He is expected to see plenty of action tomorrow night when Florida State goes up on the University of Tampa Spartans here.

Indians Rally to Overcome Florida Southern By 44-41

Florida State University's cage team, proving that a good team cannot be held down, notched victory number seven against Florida Southern Saturday night by a 44-41 count.

The game was a marked defensive battle all the way with both sides guarding closely.

Saturday night's win gave the Seminoles an even break in their two game week-end series with state rivals. The Indians had dropped a thrilling 67-66 contest to Stetson Friday night.

THE SEMINOLES were forced to pull the game out of the fire for the win. Southern had taken a 43-41 lead in the closing minutes on guard Gene Fouts' free throw.

Lou Fischer flipped in a field goal and the Indians were in front 43-41. Larry Dickson added two more to make it 44-41 with one minute remaining.

The game was closely contested all the way with the lead changing hands 14 times and the score tied eight times.

Fouts turned in an outstanding game on defense. The speedy Southern guard held Bob Hartman to nine points.

Fischer of the Seminoles was high point man with 17 and held Rocky Pegg, winner of the Dixie Conference individual scoring standing player award to only five points.

D G Sinlaw took the game's scoring laurels with 13 points.

Bob Whitmer and Bill Wallace, Seminole forwards, guarded each other close. Whitmer made six points while Wallace posted only three.

FSU's Tom McLaughlin was in uniform but saw no action in the game. McLaughlin had missed the Stetson game because of a fraternity function.

SOUTHERN got off to an early lead with the free throw and the Mocs led 24-23. Dickson and Hartman scored two points to give the Indians a 27-25 halftime lead.

The second half was nip-and-tuck all the way contested. Dickson tied the score at 40-40 to set the stage for the finish.

Score at halftime: FSU 27-23.

OUT ON the alleys three matches were held. The "red hot" Lambda Chi's rolled to their second win of the season, handing the Alpha Thu Omega's their first defeat against one win. This put them in a two-way tie for first place with Kappa Alphs, who also have two wins. The KA's have not been defeated this season. The Kappa Alphe's and the Lambda Chi's are also tied for first, having won from PSI, in the football league.

In the other two matches, Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Nu broke into the win column by winning over Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Phi Epsilon.

'Flying High' Troupe Departs For St. Petersburg State Festival

'Flying High,' FSU's student circus, left this morning for St Petersburg to participate in the annual 'Festival of States' pageant tomorrow. The circus will present an afternoon and evening performance in the St. Petersburg football stadium.

The troupe left by bus and is scheduled to arrive in St Petersburg this afternoon and will return Thursday.

The entire cast of 225 made the trip. Coach Jack Hamill has announced that 35 acts will be presented. Entire equipment was taken including five rings and three stages.

The 'Marching Chiefs' under the direction of Robert Brausnaet, also made the trip and will accompany the circus with a musical score.

TOMORROW the show will mark the debut of the new metal rigging, designed to set off the circus, let to run around so as not to injure a field or floor.

The circus is equipped with a new lighting system and this will also be used for the first time.

Approximately one-half the costumes are new and will be displayed in tomorrow's performance. New costumes will be worn by the ladder, web, achalo, aerobatic and cloud swing performers.

The circus will appear in Orlando February 20-23 for the Central Florida Exposition.

An appearance in the Miami Orange Bowl stadium has been set for March 16, to be sponsored by Lion's clubs in and around Miami.

One of the new acts in the show is by Bernadean and Doris Kittrell. Johnson stands on an unstable rolls and balances Doris on a 30-foot pole.

Intramural Highlights

By JIM COUCH

Results of the Fraternity league football games published in last Friday's edition are corrected to read as follows: Theta Chi and Kappa Alpha over fo rfeit; Sigma Nu 6 Sigma Pi and Kappa Kappa.

Thursday saw more action on the freternity football and bowling scene, with one record shattered and another some behind posted. That game was the Pi Kappa Alpha's stunning defeat of the Delta Sigma Pi business fraternity, by a score of 27-0. A score like this is unusual in the seven-man touch football played by the fraternities.

The Kappa Alpha's and Theta Chi's were continuing their unbeaten ways also as they turned back the Phi Kappa Tau's and Delta Tau Delta's by respective scores of 6-0 and 13-0.

The only other items of the day saw some leaden feet and slums break in the win column by handing Kappa Kappa their second setback without a win.

FSU Swimmers Meet 'Dogs Here Thursday

FSU's swimming team, coached by Bim Stults, opens their 1951 season in the West campus pool Thursday night against the strong University of Georgia Bulldogs. The meet will start at 7 p m and the public invited.

The Seminoles will face one of their stiffest tests of the season in Georgia. The Bulldogs showed surprising strength in the recent North Carolina Invitational meet.

Coach Jim Honerkamp, Georgia has one of the Southeast's best breast strokemen. Honerkamp recently defeated Charlie Small of Miami in the North Carolina meet. Small is one of the Southeastern's top Florida championship.

FSU's team has 16 lettermen returning from the 1950 season which won seven meets while losing only two. They are Walter Jardine Mike Castagna, Buddy Browning, Dick Wells, Pat Farrell, Jack Farrell, Jack White, Pete Dumnranklin, Jack Holmes, Wilson Jardine, Owen Boone, Joe Mills, Tony Stormont, Scotty Ramsey, Tom Conway, and Roger Slater.

Slater was selected by the American College Swimming Coaches Association as the All-America diving list in 1950.

Due to the limited seating capacity of East campus pool, seats will be on a first come first served basis.

THE FOLLOW-THROUGH—The hand ideal follow-through is one in which the hand is carried by his hand in front of his eyes, with the hand directly in line with the tip on the bar a moment after the hit. If performed correctly, the bowler will be in the position of shaking hands. As you can see in the above photo, our bowlerette has followed that ideal to completion.

The follow-through, as evidenced here, is the finish to the delivery. While monologues in itself, since the ball has long ances left the bowler's hand, the follow-through is the key to accuracy, since the ball will travel along the line described by the hand as it completes the downswing release, and follow-through. The follow-through removes the swing and is almost indispensable on spares, where the correct line of sight is a "must."

Note that the left foot of this bowler has now completed its slide, safely behind the foul line. The right leg, having finished its braking action, is supporting the weight of the kegler in perfect balance. A ball delivered in such a position will be very little, if any, off the target.

Third Newman Ball Open to Students

First Weekend Opens Friday, With Masquerade, Picnic

The third annual Newman Club ball will be given January 20, from 9-12 at the Student Union on West campus. As has been the custom for the past two years, all members of the student body and faculty have been invited to join in the festivities of the formal dance.

Jerry Kohler and his orchestra will furnish dance music. Corsages have been banned.

THIS YEAR the Newman club, a Catholic student organization, will inaugurate its first annual week end. It will open Friday night, January 19, with a costume party for Newmanites and their guests at the Newman house, Colege and Macomb Streets, from 8 until 11 p.m.

Saturday morning and afternoon there will be a decorating party at the Student Union for all Newmanites interested in helping decorate for the dance that evening.

Sunday morning Newmanites and their guests will hear 10:30 Mass at the Newman House, to be followed by the serving of coffee and doughnuts. They will meet again at the house at 1 p.m. for transportation to LaGrevie Park for an afternoon of fun to be followed by a picnic supper.

THE NEWMAN Club ball has been held for the past two years but this is the first time that it has been included in a whole week end of activities for the Newmanites and their guests. Although the other activities of the week end are restricted to guests of the Newman club, the whole student body has been again invited to enjoy the formal dance at the Student Union Saturday evening.

Invitations have been sent to colleges all over the state of Florida to join in the Newman week end. Guests are expected from the University of Florida, Florida Southern University, Rollins College, Barry College for Women, and Tampa University.

Methodist

Four Methodist students and an adult counselor went to Monticello this past week-end as the first deputation team of the year.

Mrs Dan Grubb was counselor. Student members were Jeannette Griffin, Betty Connell, Carolyn Moore and Ralph Hicks.

Deputations is a yearly project of the Methodist Student House, in which several teams, beginning in the early fall of January and extending over the remainder of the college year, go out on Saturday and Sunday to different churches surrounding Tallahassee. These teams lead recreation, discussion, and worship programs in an effort to bring Christianity closer to the people the groups meet.

A new Deputation team will go to Pine Grove tomorrow afternoon and return Sunday night. This team includes as adult counselor, Miss Gladys McFarlin, and the following students: Ann Clayton, Rhoda Letton, Betty Carraway, and Rahl Williamson.

"Our Church" is the theme for this year's Deputation project.

Dr Edwin Harris, professor of the department of social welfare, began a series of informal lecture-discussions on character last Sunday evening at the Fellowship hour. His topic was "Building Character in Your Life."

He will continue Sunday evening at 6:15 with "The Joys That Influence Your Behavior." On the following Sunday he will conclude the series with an emphasis upon "Living Happily With Others."

At 2:45 Saturday afternoon, Mrs W H Covington and Mrs Carl Whitehead of Tallahassee will lead a session at the Methodist Student House on proper flower arrangements. Included will be points on church arrangements.

B S U

Ray Koonce, Florida Baptist Student Union secretary, who will arrive in Tallahassee on Saturday of this week, is the principal speaker for BSU Winter Retreat, will also speak at the Sunday School University department of the First Baptist Church on the subject of "God and You."

In the Sunday morning worship service of the First Baptist church "Life Commitment Day" will be observed in relation to the theme of the week of January 7-14 which was "My Vocation; A Ministry from God."

Christian

Sunday night the college-age group of the Capital Christian Church will begin a series of programs on comparative religion. The series will continue from week to week over a period of several months, during which the major religions of the world will be studied, discussed and compared.

The series will begin with a survey of Protestantism. Reverend T A Corbett, pastor of the Christian Church, will lead the discussion Sunday night. On succeeding Sunday nights Judaism, Roman Catholicism, Orthodox Catholicism, Shintism, Hinduism and Mohammedanism will be discussed. Two or more meetings will be devoted to each of the outstanding religions of the United States.

The college group meets every Sunday night at 6:30 at the Christian Church, following "Dine-A-Mite" at 5:30. Dine-A-Mite features a light but complete meal for 30 cents, served in the church recreation room. All students are invited to attend both Dine-A-Mite and the worship-discussion period following.

Book Exchange Hours Revealed

Office Located in Alum; Gregory Is Chairman

Opening hours for the Student Book Exchange have been announced by Shirley Gregory, chairman of the Exchange committee.

Regular week-day hours will be 8:30 a.m until 4:30 p.m. On Saturday the Exchange will open at 8.30 and will close at 12 noon.

The Student Exchange will be located in the Alumni Building. The committee remains undecided as to which floor will be used, however.

SHIRLEY stressed that students turn in books the week of January 29-February 3. That," the chairman explained, "is to get a supply of books on hand before the mid-semester vacation."

The Exchange wants to have a stock of books large enough for sale exchange when the second semester opens, Shirley said. The committee will continue operation after the holidays for three weeks only.

THE FACULTY list will be posted just prior to the opening on January 29, Gregory said. Students are requested to check this list to see if their books are acceptable for exchange.

The Used Book Exchange will make it possible to sell and procure old texts at reasonable reduced rates. The student will set the price for his book. For every book exceeding one dollar, the buyer and seller will contribute a 10 cent fee. For books under one dollar, a five-cent fee will be paid by each.

STUDENTS will be given receipts or certificates with each book sold. These will expedite sales. They will present this certificate at the end of the book weeks operation or before. If the book is sold, they will receive their money. If not, the book will be redeemed to the owner.

The Alpha Chi Omega honorary fraternity has offered its services in the operation of the Exchange. The student exchange committee will also assist in the handling of the books. Shirley said that any volunteers will be welcomed and may contact any committee member or the Junior class president, Will Pennell.

THE COMMITTEE chairman said, will meet soon for special personnel training sessions to acquaint the student workers how the mechanics of the exchange should be done.

The Exchange is a junior project. It has been modeled after the two book exchanges at New York University.

Members of the Exchange committee are to be commended for their supports and continued ef-

State Symphony Presents Concert

Second Piano Concerto Of Dohnanyi's Featured

The second subscription concert of the State Symphony of Florida, to be presented on January 22 in Westcott auditorium, will feature music which has been especially requested by a large number of the symphony audience.

Dr Karl Kuersteiner, conductor of the orchestra, said that in response to large numbers of request the orchestra will include in its program two of the most popular orchestral numbers in the repertoire, the Nutcracker Suite of Tschaikowsky and the overture to William Tell by Rossini.

THE PRINCIPAL work on the program will be the second piano concerto of Ernst von Dohnanyi, with the composer as soloist. This will be the first performance of this composition in this part of the country. The concerto has been performed in Europe and was first played in the United States by the Detroit Symphond in 1946.

In addition to the concerto and the two request numbers, the program will include the Hungarian March from the dramatic legend The Damnation of Faust by Hector Berlioz. This rousing, spirited piece of music is famous for its association with intense Hungarian patriotic feeling.

Season ticket holders will have the same seats they reserved for the first concert. Individual tickets may be secured from the School of Music office at any time, or at the box office on the night of the performance. Ticket price is $2.46, including tax.

Tally Ho Deadline Extended To Jan 20

Because some students have requested extended time to obtain extra prints of their favorite pictures, the Tally-Ho has extended the deadline for the snapshot section to January 20, announced Harry Newman, editor. Boxes to receive the pictures will remain in the dormitory offices through this date.

Torts in this project, the chairman said, Committee members are Margaret Earnest, Mae Gautier, Carolyn Whitmire, Bill Cummings, Carlos Taylor and Buddy Allen. Publicity members of the committee are Mary Ann Brown and Jean Flynn and Hazel Morrison. Flambeau publicity, Helen Howes, has been active in helping with the bookkeeping set-up.

Schools With Honor System Have Effective Operation

At all schools with honor systems their effective operation is dependent on each individual student. Students at schools like Agnes Scott, Wesleyan College, University of Virginia and College of William and Mary are made to realize this responsibility.

The Honor System of Princeton University was established in 1893. Under their system if a man does not sign the pledge on an examination paper, he will be reported to the Honor Committee for investigation. Not signing the pledge is used as evidence of violation of the Honor System. The Constitution of Princeton's Honor System is printed in the school paper during the first month of each college year and within a week of examinations.

GENERAL MacArthur officially recognized the Honor System at the United States Military Academy in 1922, but its basic principles date back for a century and a half. The Honor system is not just a set of rules but a spirit of mind of each cadet. The principles are simply that a cadet will not lie, cheat, or steal. The only punishment when reports are given at revile until "silhi" a taps re spection, the Honor system is an integral part of cadet life.

The Honor System here at West Point is not a disciplinary or punishing body. Its functions are instructional, investigative, and advisory. Two purposes of the Honor System at the Academy are to bring out the courage which it takes to live uncompromisingly by the principles of honesty and integrity and to make life at the academy a little bit apart from other communal life in the greater feeling of security and well-being.

THE UNIVERSITY of Virginia is the classic example of a working Honor system. Articles about its system have appeared in such leading magazines as Reader's Digest. In 1842 Professor Henry St George Tucker presented "a resolution that on every exam paper, a student pledge he did not give or receive assistance. The adoption of the Honor system marked a new era. In relations between the faculty and student body. Previously, the suspicious attitude of the faculty had brought on a spirit of seeing who could get away with cheating. Today the system is run entirely by the students. The examination papers are given out and then student may leave the room take a test.

At Virginia anyone who sees fellow student in suspicious circumstances and fails to investigate the matter is himself guilty of a breach of honor. Loyalty the student body demands, that one make this investigation. The Honor Committee, elected by the students represents the opinion of the students and is in no way responsible to the faculty.

Dismissal from school is a penalty for infractions of the honor code at both Sewanee and Emory. A notice is published in the school paper of Emory announcing that someone has been dismissed from school for cheating, with the name withheld.

Sandspur Leading Lady, Morris, Is Young, Beautiful, Bewitching

Jacqueline "Jackie" Morris filled three requirements to qualify as leading lady in Sandspur's 1951 musical production "Gypsy Holiday."

Jackie is cast as sultry Sharon in the musical; a young, beautiful, and bewitching gypsy.

A SOPHOMORE Kappa Alpha Theta, Jackie says she enjoys hunting, swimming and dancing. Her firs love, though, is singing, and also, says Jackie, means FSU's original production, Sandspur.

As a student at Gadsden High School in Quincy, Florida, Jackie gave musical programs for local organizations, was a cheerleader, glee club member, National Thespian and honor society member.

AT FLORIDA State, the five foot five music education major was elected Sandspur Queen candidate for Homecoming queen.

The tempo of activity is increasing in the Sandspur Gypsy Holiday playhouse. Complete production rehearsals start this week.

The fifth all-student Sandspur production will be presented in Westcott auditorium February 21-23. Elliot Lawrence will play for the Sandspur dance February 24.

Council Praises Student Group

A resolution commending the Student's Rights Committee for its work, and urging it to continue along the path proposed in its "Statement of Aims," was passed by the University Council in its Wednesday night meeting. Similar action gave official UGA sanction to the group, according to Rube Askew, president of UGA.

Dr. Hugh Hind proposed the measure which was supported by Charles Curtis, freshman class president. Curtis said, "The group has done a fine job which needs to be done, and I think we need more things we are behind in their attempts to improve student government here."

AT THIS point, Dean stated he did entertain a motion to postpone action on the resolution because the Student's Rights was not group set up by the UGA.

The delaying motion which was asked for was not offered, so the commending measure was put to and passed by the University Council. Cass Yonge and Dr. Maxine Merkbreit cast the only dissenting votes.

Dr. Allerton, chairman of the Student's Rights committee, when informed of the council's commending action, said, "This is another pleasing indication of the interest and co-operation the student's rights committee is receiving on campus. I only wish that we had more enthusiastic."

BOB LANIGAN, Will Pennell, and Ted Steinmeyer failed to attend this afternoon's meeting on a measure proposed by Alfred Head, and amended by Dr. Myers, for the production was awarded $1.25 per person per day in meals, and $1.00 per day in a cot banquet February 25.

Bill Hess, president of SCA, was granted permission to speak before Council by unanimous consent of the council.

The council voted campus recognition to the Foreign Student's Club, Pi Alpha Nu, and the University Recreation Association.

Allan Head was appointed to obtain information on the National Student's Association and its membership, the publication of which is pressuring a chapter of the group at FSU.

Speakers Propose "Sit Tight" Policy

Five officials representing the University, Selective Service, and AROTC discussed the draft situation at a mass meeting of ROTC men last Tuesday night.

Speakers were Dean S Campbell, president of FSU; J Broward Culpepper, dean of student welfare, who is just back from a week of fact-finding in Washington; Otis Mitchell, dean of men; Col Berniece L Barr, head of the AROTC program here, and Bill Cox, chairman of the Leon County Draft Board.

THE MAIN theme of all the speakers was that if a man is doing well in his work he should "sit tight," President Campbell and Dr Culpepper both stated that Washington officials consider continued college training an important part of long-run mobilization. The draft, they said, can as well-prepared as possible and each man in the job for which he is best suited. "The University is the officers candidate school of today" Dean Mitchell said.

The speakers were more specific on certain points, which follow:

1—POSTPONEMENT. Any registrant who graduates from the University may have his induction postponed until June, the end of the semester in which he took his letter what his grades. The local board is authorized, at that time, when a man gets his notice, to "postpone induction upon proper request." Summer graduation, however, one may not enlist.

2—GRADES. A student in good standing in the upper half of his class (above "C" average at FSU) may postpone induction for a short time before he is called up. This gives one the right to take up a personal request to the local draft board, and a request for a supporting letter to the University. See Mr Young in 204 Dr Bradford, warned Dean Mitchell. Grades fall below "C" FSU is obliged to notify the man's board.

3—ENLISTMENT. It is well known what will happen to deferments if one enlists. Besides, at the end of this year—whether deferments will be extended or not, enlistments will cut off the draft in the near future.

Dean J Broward Culpepper

4—VOLUNTEERING. It was repeatedly advised Tuesday night that students refrain from volunteering. Rather they should enlist. President Campbell pointed out that recent Air Force enlistments of one thousand a week had filled quotas and schools temporarily and considerably lessened opportunity. According to Dr Culpepper the Army, under present plans, will call not more than one-third of the college men by next fall. The reason for this is that the mass education one has, is better fit opportunities for a commission in any force when the time does come. However, certain educational opportunities with the Navy and Marine Corps were described.

6—ROTC. Col Barr reported that ROTC is expanding, not contracting. There are plans for a unit in ordnance here next fall in addition to the present air unit.

5—DRAFT BOARD. Bill Cash, chairman fo the Leon County Draft Board, warned students to keep in touch with their local boards on such matters as marital or educational status. A man is just another number until he writes his board himself.

6—FOR INFORMATION or help with problems students should see Mr Flournoy in 204 Westcott. The University has made him special advisor of the draft.

Army Dept Okays Senior ROTC Unit

The Department of the Army has approved the establishment of a Senior Division Ordinance ROTC unit at Florida State University for enrollment of students at the beginning of the 1951-52 academic year.

A confirming telegram of the new ROTC unit being established was received by President Doak S Campbell from U S Senators Spessard Holland and George Smathers and Congressman Robert Sikes. FSU now has an Air ROTC unit under supervision of Col Bernice Barr, professor of Air Science and Tactics.

DR CAMPBELL pointed to the establishment of the new ROTC unit on the university campus as further indication that the armed forces recognize fully the objective of higher education for the youth of the nation as a continuing supply of officer material in the future.

Major General Edward P Witsell of the Adjutant General's office in the Army in informing Dr Campbell of establishment of the new Army ROTC unit, said unity the university president that "your institution can perform a real service in the interest of national defense by actively assisting the program in this important way."

"CONTINUATION of ROTC through any foreseable emergency is firmly contemplated." Maj General Witsell further stated. Dr Campbell. "A continuing supply of junior officers with educational qualifications in engineering, management and the several sciences will be required."

Dr Campbell was also informed that the commanding general of the Army Area in which the university is located will take the necessary action to have the unit activated and that "such ROTC unit will result in a three-fold benefit, to the individual, to the institute and to the country."

Pro Business Frat Elects New Officers

At the final meeting of the Alpha Kappa Psi, Professional Business Fraternity, for this semester, four officers were elected as follows: President, Walter K Lowe;; vice president, Cy Kropf; secretary, Bill Allen, and master of rituals, Evan O Shaw. These men will go into office February 14 and will serve for a period of one year.

Student-Faculty Assembly Climaxes Emphasis Week

Book Exchange to Open Jan 29 to Feb 3 in Alum

The Student Book Exchange will be located in the recreation room on the ground floor of the Student Alumnae building, it has been announced by Gentry Crews, chairman. All books will be accepted here January 29-February 3. It will again reopen the first three weeks of the second semester.

Hours for the Exchange will be 8:30 a m until 4:30 p m regular weekdays. On Saturday the Exchange will be open at 8:30 but close at 12 noon.

AN INFORMATION desk will be located in the Seminole dining hall lobby, Shirley said.

The faculty book list will be posted at the information desk and in the FSU Book Store on Saturday, January 27. This list will enable students to know which books will be accepted and are acceptable by the book exchange.

Shirley has requested that all students interested in helping to operate the book exchange contact the project to attend the two training sessions which will be held Wednesday and Thursday nights. These meetings will be held in Westcott 208 at 8 p.m.

APPROXIMATELY 25 personnel are wanted.

It was announced also asked that students bring a copy of their class schedule with them when to appoint working hours for each operator.

Shirley will talk to the students on Wednesday night and Mr Gordon P Whiteker, manager of the FSU Book Store, will talk to them on Thursday night. These sessions are to acquaint the student operators with the management of the book exchange. Mr Whiteker will present a few pointers on how to evaluate books in the operation of the book exchange. A discussion period will follow.

The Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity has volunteered services to help with the Exchange.

THIS EXCHANGE will enable students to sell and procure old texts at reasonably reduced prices. The student will set the price for his book. For every book sold between one dollar, the buyer and seller will contribute a 10-cent fee. For books under one dollar, a five-cent fee will be paid by each.

Students will be given receipts or certificates with each book they turn in to the exchange. They will receive their certificate at the end of the three weeks operation or before. If the book is sold, they will receive their money: If not, the book will be returned to the owner.

THE BOOK exchange is a Junior Class project and has been modeled after the successful one changes in operation at New York University.

Committee members are Shirley Gregory, chairman; Margaret Barnes, Mac Gautier, Carolyn Whitmire, Bill Cummings Carlos Taylor, and Buddy Allen. Publicity chairmen for the project are Mary Ann Slemp, Jean Firnn and Eugenie Lamar. Business publicity, Helen Howes has been active in helping with the bookkeeping set-up.

Meeting Scheduled for Tonight With Harwell as Guest Speaker

A student-faculty assembly in Westcott Auditorium will climax the Honor Emphasis Week program tonight. The meeting will begin at 8 as planned, it was announced by Charlotte Lischka, chairman of the honor committee.

Lacy B Harwell, a senior from Sewanee College, Tennessee will arrive by plane today to preside as guest speaker. Short former scheduled speakers, the President of the University of Florida and the selected alumnus of the University of Virginia were unable to appear.

CHARLOTTE said that Harwell is a prominent leader of the honor code on his campus. The six foot blonde is the president of the Debate Club, is a member of the German Club, the ODK, Blue Key, and a social fraternity. The senior was also listed in the Who's Who of American Colleges and Universities.

Charlotte as chairman of the honor committee will present the introductory remarks of this highlighting event of the week.

After the guest's address the honor code affirmation ceremony will follow in three parts. President Doak Campbell will give a faculty affirmation, Charles Frost, President of the University Government Association, Rube Askew, will present the student affirmation. A combined student and faculty affirmation will conclude the ceremony.

AFTER a statement of the honor code by Charlotte Lischka, the Alma Mater will be sung and thus close the week of honor emphasis. Dr. Bo Bennett, chairman of the honor committee, has assuredly stated that the meeting will not exceed one hour.

This meeting will complete all the student programs which have consisted of forums, lectures, teas and a special edition of the Flambeau.

For the Faculty only, a panel was held Tuesday night in the Music building. Approximately 25 faculty members representing the various departments were present. So said that suggestions were prepared for the Honor Week. It was decided to recall the faculty-student committee of which prized $50,000 for a student fund. This committee is composed of three faculty members and three student representatives of the honor committee. Classroom procedures and methods of education the faculty were "presented.

DR SAMUEL Neel acted as chairman of the faculty panel. Miss Daisy Parker spoke on experiences with the honor systems of other schools. Charlotte Lischka talked on the background of our system and Mr Baker presented the situation now, problems and faculty-student relations.

Wednesday night the presidents of organizations and UGA officers met in the Student Activities Building. President of the UGA Rube Askew acted as chairman. Dr Bo Bennett, chairman of the off-campus court, presented the honor code system and outlines in general. Dean Charles Davis, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, spoke briefly and interest and cooperation. Augustus Mayo, president of the president. May Rosenbush and Patricia Kirby represented FSU at this convention.

Honor Group Taps 22 Outstanding Men

Twenty-two men campus leaders were tapped by Gold Key, local service honorary, yesterday at noon on the steps of Westcott. Bill Brinkin, president of Gold Key, presented each tap an emblem which they will wear about their left for one day.

The 22 who tapped for the honorary were: Lee Bailey, Willard Baker, James Ball, Dick Bradley, Bob Cole, Wm. Dunn, Bill Everett, Charles Floyd, Paul Garrison, Stan Goodall, Alan Hirsch, Ted Hewitt, Neil Jacoby, Donald Koons, Bob Lanigan, Dale Lowry, Duke Maddox, Sonny Morrison, Jack Mooney, Jerry Thomas, Bill Upshaw and Bill Waters.

Brinkin disclosed that initiation of the taps will be held the first week of the new semester.

String Quartet Appears Here On Artist Series

Paganini Group Slated To Perform in Westcott On Tuesday, January 23

The Paganini String Quartet, which has played hundreds of concerts throughout the United States, Canada and Europe will appear in a Florida State University Artist Series Concert at 8:15 pm, Tuesday, January 23 in Westcott auditorium.

The Quartet is composed of Henri Temianka, first violin; Gratian Strakhovsky, second; Charles Fodaski, viola; and Adolphe Frezin, cello, four noted artists who knew each other musically and personally for many years before they formed the Quartet was formed.

THE QUARTET takes its name from the instruments it uses—all made by the famous master violin maker Stradivarius, and at one time owned by Nicolo Paganini, the string virtuoso.

Since the group made its first appearance in concert in 1946 it has been called a leader addition to the musical scene.

Individually, each member of the group has achieved international reputation. Temianka is known throughout the United States and Europe both as a soloist and chamber music performer, while Strakhovsky, Fodaski, Frezin were members of the faculty of the Royal Conservatory in Brussels.

JOINED together in the Paganini Quartet, the group in their concerts in America and Europe have attracted capacity audiences. They have made a number of recordings which are now best sellers in the musical world and have been widely acclaimed by critics.

Today is the last day to obtain student tickets at the Artist series window in the Music Building by presenting I.D. cards. The office is open from 8:30 to 1:00 and from 2:00 to 4:00 in the afternoon.

Honor Frat Elects Coleman As Prexy

In the meeting of Alpha Phi Omega, honorary fraternity last Wednesday evening, Richard Coleman was elected president to succeed Bill Hess, who is entering the service after the semester.

Alpha Phi Omega will also supply ushers and workers for the junior class book exchange. Ushers at the Honor Program will also be members of the APO.

A meeting has been called for next Wednesday at caucus plans for helping in the orientation of first semester freshmen in February.

Clarinetist Gives Recital Tonight

Barry Schmidt, clarinetist, will present a recital in the Music Hall tonight at 8 p.m. He will be assisted by John Boda, piano, and Bruce Kirkery, violin. The public is invited to attend.

The program will be in the form of clarinet, cello and piano by Mendelssohn, a work which is seldom heard in public. An adagio, the program will include Mozart's trio in E minor for violin, clarinet and piano by Leonard Bernstein, young American composer, and three pieces for clarinet without accompaniment by Igor Stravinsky.

Mr Schmidt, who is now in his second year on the FSU music faculty studied at Ohio State University and the New England Conservatory. He participated in the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Massachusetts, in 1948. He played in the Columbus (Ohio) Philharmonic Orchestra for two years.

New Course Offered

Dr Warren D Allen of the music faculty will present a special course in "Music in Society" during the second semester. Dean Carl Kuersteiner announced yesterday. The course which will be open to all students and others who wish to pay the fee, is a non-technical nature, designed to show the influence of music upon mankind's sociological traits, and vice versa.

Sen Pepper Stresses Dangers Of Communism in Our World

Former U S Senator Claude Pepper spoke to the University's student forum Tuesday night. His topic: "Democracy Meet the Challenge of Communism."

Mr Pepper stressed the danger the world faces from communism on all fronts, but in the end this is overcome ever taking over a country by force or terrorism. He said that although communism has fewer people of any belief than they had under their old systems of government, democracy offers them a plan through which does, and that democratic nations must make use of all-out effort to serve all peoples how much better democracy is.

"We must be the kind of democracy that deserves to win, and therefore we will win in this world struggle." Mr Pepper said in closing his speech.

AFTER Mr Pepper's speech, the a amendment prepared by Ronald Koons' committee setting up a Traffic Court and a Traffic Control System was passed. Traffic regulations and laws will be passed at future meetings of the Senate.

Senator Bradley offered a bill setting up committees to study the Senate investigating committee. This bill was opposed by Senator Ronald Koons who said committees take much of the power away from the Senate. The bill was passed by a majority vote. This is the same bill which Jerry Thomas introduced to the Senate last year, at which time it was defeated.

Bill Cummings, president of the UGA, announced that members of the Student Publication Board, Student Union Board, Ed Barbet, Betsy Blanton, Harry Newman, Jerry Thomas, Bill Wallace, Gail Kelley assistant chairman) and Nancy Rettig.

President Pro Tempore Bill Waters spoke on Senator James Turnbull's bill amending the legislative sections of the constitution which was passed last week and said that since the bill did not mention "areas of student life under administrative jurisdiction," the Student Union Board would not be presented to the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

Barbers Heed Pleas Of Local Students

Five Tallahassee barber shops have returned to the old 75 cent price for haircuts, according to a survey made by a Flambeau representative Wednesday.

The five shops are: Meloy's 107½ E Jefferson, Capital, 118 East Seventh, Florida, 124 E Monroe, Sanitary, 219 South Adams, and Tedlock's at 1122 N Monroe. A spokesman for Tadlock's said he expected the price rise to be temporary and that the union was meeting Thursday night when the price probably would go back up.

Fisher's Barber shop on West Tennessee and the Palace Barber shop on South Monroe maintained their one dollar rate.

CAMPUS BABY NURSERY

Reinhard Announces Sandspur's Latest

Another Sandspur "first" was announced this week by Chairman Herb Reinhard.

"For the first time in Sandspur history we have decided to have a Beauty Night," Reinhard said. He explained that many married couples say they would like to see the show but have children and cannot possibly get baby sitters. "Sandspur will conduct its own nursery where married couples can leave their children and enjoy the show, knowing that the children are in good hands, he announced.

THE DATE for the special Parents Night performance has not definitely been set as yet, Reinhard said. He emphasized, however, that the performance will not be limited to only parents.

Letters were sent out this week to women's organizations and sororities asking if they would be interested in taking complete charge of such a nursery. Any organization or sorority interested is asked to contact Reinhard or Jerry Gaines, mail, in care of the Alumni building before Wednesday. The Sandspur group will meet Wednesday to consider all applications and to choose a group to assist in charge of the nursery.

"We intend to give the organization a chance to receive thanks and credit for helping us with our nursery and this project should certainly be one used each year during the Sandspur production," the chairman said. He pointed out that the Pranny Night idea is used by the Cleveland Indians baseball team.

REINHARD also asked that parents who would be interested in attending the Family Night performance and using the nursery drop him a note through campus mail. In this way we can get an idea of how many families we can plan on, he said. If the response is large enough, the nursery might be conducted on more than one night, or possibly every night of the production.

"I believe that this is the first time any such project has been undertaken here at FSU and should certainly make the parents very happy since they can see this year's two-hour show and never once worry about little Junior or little Mary crying," the '51 chairman continued.

Several people have mentioned playpens and pacifiers for the kiddies and we have talked to several merchants in Tallahassee. They seem very enthused over our idea and I am sure will donate toys for that night.

Officer Gives Talk To Public Ad Class

Health Director Discusses Early Growth of State

The full development of Florida as a thickly populated state undoubtedly was retarded for many years through the outbreak of communicable diseases in epidemic form in the state's early history.

This opinion was expressed by Dr Wilson T Bowder, state health officer, speaking to a class in the school of Public Administration which is studying state government operations under Dr E Max Weil Benton. The state health officer said that such an academic occurred in Jacksonville many years ago when a large number of persons died and others moved away.

HE SAID that with the introduction of modern health methods, the daily constant testing of the public water supplies and various state health department regulations, Florida is now rated a leader of the healthiest states of the nation in which to live.

Dr Bowder reported that at present in the civil defense planning of the state a sanitation unit is being given to the protection of drinking water supplies, public health conditions against possible contamination by an enemy in event of war.

He said that with the exception of two small counties in the state all the remainder now have county health departments working in close cooperation with the municipalities in which they are located.

THE STATE health officer traced the growth and development of the state board of health from its inception in 1889 after the State Legislature had appropriated $50,000 for a state health department and provided for a three-man board.

Today the board now has a five man membership and an annual budget of some $3,000,000 in federal, country, and state funds to carry out a state-wide program of public health.

Sig Iotas Honor Province Prexy

A weekend of activities have been planned for members, pledges and faculty who are members of the Beta Alpha Chapter of Sigma Iota Chi, musical music fraternity. They will honor Mrs Rose Mansour, province president of the province, who will arrive tomorrow.

The Iota province includes colleges and alumnae chapters of SAI in seven states. Mrs Sansone was elected to the presidency at the National Convention last August, succeeding Mrs Mansour, president. May Rosenbush and Patricia Kirby represented FSU at this convention.

News Editor Coils Reporter's Meeting

Students wishing to be reporters on the Flambeau during the coming semester are asked to attend a special meeting, Tuesday, January 23, at 5 p.m. in the Flambeau office.

"It is most important that everyone wishing to be a reporter attend this meeting so that we may get an idea of how many reporters we may depend upon," said Anne Marie Gregory, news editor.

Students in reporting classes, as well as students having reportorial experience are desired. Each person attending is asked to bring a copy of the editorial they have arranged for the semester.

Men's Judiciary Members Have Varied Backgrounds, Interests

Many news stories have been printed concerning meetings of Men's Judiciary and purposes of Men's Judiciary, but most students have never been introduced to the men who make up this court.

Senior representative to Men's Judiciary is Waldon Padgett. Waldon graduated from Bay County High School and entered FSU in September of 1947. He is a naval veteran, and is twenty-three years old. He is an active member of the Baptist Student Union, having served on the B S U Executive Council as Emmanuel Vice-President and President of the Brotherhood. Waldon, whose major is Mathematics, states that the stands for high Christian principles and attitudes toward my fellow men."

ANOTHER senior representative is Bill Yon, who lives in the new Senior Hall. Bill entered FSU in the fall quarter of 1946, and is a major in Geology. A member of Gold Key and Vice-President of Delta Tau Delta, Bill states that "I ran for this office not only because I was interested in Student Government, but also to do all that I could to see that students coming before Judiciary are given a fair chance and that they are dealt with fairly."

George Gnann Jr., who represents the junior class, is a transfer student from Spring Hill College in Mobile, Alabama. George, who is twenty years old and a major in social studies, has his home in Deerfield Beach. George has been with Sandspur for two years and is also a member of the Student Christian Association and Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity.

RED-HEADED John J Buckley of the Sophomore class, came to Florida from California some three years ago to major in Spanish. He is a member of the newly-formed Alpha Phi Omega, and a member of the Newman Club. Six-foot John lives in Marianna.

Recently elected junior representative is Jim Ball from Belle Glade. Jim entered FSU in 1948 and began majoring in Public Administration. Jim is past president of the Rifle club, Vice-President of the Kappa Alpha's, a member of the UGA Funds Committee and IPC, and a member of Pi Alpha Sigma and the Students Rights Committee. Jim plans a career in criminal investigation and will get a decree in law after completing his studies at Florida State.

DON ALBRITTON, a sophomore representative, will leave college after this semester to join the armed forces. Don has been quite active on campus, being a member of Kappa Alpha and secretary of Alpha Phi Omega. Don was very helpful in establishing an active chapter of Alpha Phi Omega on campus.

Jerry Thomas, chairman of Men's Judiciary, transferred from Palm Beach Junior College where he was president of Men's Government, president of the Lettermen's club, and a member of the Executive Council. Here at FSU, Jerry is a columnist for the Flambeau, fiction editor of Talari, commentator for WFSU, member of Sigma Nu, and Pi Alpha Sigma treasurer, and president of the Palm Beach County club. Jerry was a midshipman in the USNR and is now in OCS with the USMCR. Jerry, who was recently elected national vice president of the Cavaliers, is a major in Public Administration and hopes to be around for another year.

Doug Ailey, new clerk of Men's Judiciary, is a graduate student from Pulaski, Virginia. Doug received his degree in education last year from FSU and is now doing work in philosophy of education. He is president of Omicron Delta Kappa, past treasurer of Golden Key, director of writers for WFSU, past promotion and publicity director for the radio station, ex-fiction editor of Talaria, member of Kappa Delta Pi, author of this year's Sandspur production, "Gypsy Holiday," and other activities. Doug plans to teach and do fiction writing on the side when he gets his master's degree in June.

BSU Seniors Hold Vesper Services

BSU

Tuesday night at the Baptist Student House the vesper service was turned over to the Seniors who will graduate in February. Choosing the subject, "If I Were You," these three graduates, Reba Kinsey, Charlie Hebb, and Waldon Padgett inspired the group with advice taken from their own experiences in religious life on FSU campus.

Today at the new Baptist Students Center of Stetson University a group composed of the state BSU officers, local presidents from the campuses over the state, local student secretaries, and the state student secretary are meeting to make the plans for state BSU affairs for the remainder of the year. Significant among the plans that are to be made is the program of the annual state-wide Spring Retreat at Camp O'Leno. Representatives from this campus who will be attending the meeting this weekend are state president, Harrell Cushing, state social secretary-elect, Lou Ray, local president, Evelyn Lumsden, and local student secretary, Miss Mary Elizabeth Ainsworth.

All of the churches of the city are sponsoring a city-wide cen-sus-taking Sunday, Jan. 21. The First Baptist Church is planning on about 100 students to help in this most important undertaking. All Baptist students who would like to assist meet at the church at 1:30 p m.

Christian

In connection with its study of world religion, the university group of the Capital Christian church will attend the service tonight at Temple Israel. Those who wish to attend are asked to meet in front of Westcott at 7:40 p m in order that all may go as a group.

Sunday night Rabbi Julius Kravets will join the group at its regular 6:30 meeting at the Capital Christian church. Rabbi Kravets will speak on the subject of "Judaism Today." This will be the second in a series of discussions on comparative religion.

Lou Riley, president of the University group, urges all members and friends to join the group tonight in front of Westcott. Time-a-Mite will be held as usual at 5:30 Sunday afternoon at the church preceding the talk by Rabbi Kravets.

O'Neil Will Preside Over Sigma Delta Pi

Robert O'Neil was elected president for the coming semester, during a short business meeting Wednesday evening of Sigma Delta Pi, Spanish honorary.

Following the meeting Mrs Rozer Farley spoke to the members about the University of Madrid. As a graduate of the celebrated university, she recalled several interesting experiences, including serenading by the "senores."

On Monday evening the honorary initiated 12 new members during a candlelight ceremony. Those initiated included Gerald Gay Anderson, Betty Jean Byrd, Nancy Sartyn Day, Robert de Vetje, Ruth Engel, Rodger Farley, Jack Holmes, Rea Lathers, Sara Allen Mathews, Dean Obrecht, Patricia Weigand and Clara Williams.

THE BACKSWING—In one sense, this is the most important feature of good bowling, but most keglers fail to realize it and consequently never improve beyond a certain point. Even though I probably have one of the highest backswings in the game of bowling, I don't advocate adopting my style. While it is part of my timing, it would no doubt be unnatural to the average bowler.

I like this backswing pictured above. Shown at its peak, it demonstrates the relaxed and smooth motion that I try to get over to my pupils. Too many bowlers check their backswing with the result that their timing is off and the ball is pushed on the alley rather than allowed to roll. There is plenty of allowance made here for a medium-speed ball, which incidentally is the type used by most of the topnotch bowlers of both sexes. A medium speed ball sets the pins to "mixing," or sweeping among the other pins horizontally, while a fast ball has a tendency to cut right through the pins. Pins moving in a vertical position often miss contact with the others because they pass between them without touching them. Over a period of time this will cost many, many pins in your average.

"Family Portrait" Schedules Tryouts

Final tryouts will be held tonight for "Family Portrait" the new speech department play to be presented March 14, 17 and 19. This information was announced at a recent tryout performance by Mr Roger Busfield, director of the play. Tryouts are held in the History building room 208.

Mr Busfield said that the cast will be posted Monday and the first rehearsal will be held Monday night.

It has been estimated that approximately 150 students have tried out for this new play. The speech director explained that "Family Portrait" is a story of the family of Jesus. He emphasized that the play was not a Biblical play, however. The force of the play is reflected through Jesus' mother Mary. Jesus never appears on the scene, although he is the protagonist of the play.

Far East Quarterly Uses Prof's Article

Prof George Alexander Lensen, a lecturer of Far Eastern History, has had an article on "Early Russo-Japanese Relations" published in the Far Eastern Quarterly. The article was part of an essay for his master's degree in a survey of Russo-Japanese relations from 1700 to 1860.

Prof Lensen stated in the article that the Japanese had mistrusted the Russians ever since their first relations with them, and that the first generation of the Russians into Japan did not arouse any concern or panic among the people.

COUNCIL RECOGNIZES STUDENTS RIGHTS

Action taken by the University council at Wednesday's meeting in passing a resolution commending the project of the Students Rights Committee stands as recognition of the committee for the entire student body.

It means the University council has recognized the ills in our Honor System, the Court System and the social rules existing now at Florida State University. The members of the University council are in the position to see that many of the advocated changes take place as quickly as possible.

We trust that now, since the University council has seen fit to recognize the Students Rights Committee, the membership of our organization will soon be increased again. Students interested in joining may do so by leaving their name in the Flambeau office. They will be notified of meetings by postcard.

Official sanction has been given the committee by the University council. You can back up that sanction by taking an active part in helping the students get the benefits we deserve in the social regulations, the Honor System and the Court System.

The Committee will work through regular channels to get their aims passed. They do not believe in subversive tactics to accomplish their goals. The University council has seen this. Now the Students Rights Committee needs student backing so their plans will become a reality. Plans that help you.

Two Executive council members—Cass Yonge and Marjorie Meckstroth—voted against the resolution. It is evident these members have not availed themselves of full knowledge of the aims of the Students Rights Committee or they would have. In order to represent their students to a greater degree, voted for the measure. We are hopeful that these two ladies will join the Students Rights Committee so they can see firsthand from their democratic committee will operate to pass measures benefiting the students.

In the meantime, more student sentiment is going for the Students Rights Committee. The students know what they want and the Students Rights Committee will continue to help them get it.

RESERVE FUND

Ever heard of the Student Activity Reserve Fund? Know what it is and how it operates?

It matters a great deal whether your answer is yes or no. This knowledge is something that every well-informed Florida State University student should possess.

The Student Activities Reserve Fund is made up mainly of the "left-overs." Students at Florida State University pay approximately $36 dollars for activity fees at registration. Out of this fee comes one dollar that goes into a building fund. Business Manager Rod K Shaw says that this is the only money that has been paid into the general reserve fund in some time.

However, when any organization that receives student activity money builds up an unusually large reserve fund, a portion of that fund may be transferred into the general reserve fund.

Mr Shaw explained that the Student Activity Reserve Fund is used for student benefits which are not financed by the state appropriations. New buildings at Camp Flastacowo are examples of student benefits financed by this fund.

Any worthwhile project suggested either by the faculty or students could be financed by the fund. Here lies an opportunity for the students at Florida State University. Orders of a project that would benefit the students and that could not be financed by the state funds could be submitted for approval by the Faculty Budget Committee. All note: Getting it would be another thing).

That is your Student Activities Reserve Fund. It takes a great length of time to build up the fund. But it seems this fund does offer a great opportunity for student benefits in other areas besides Camp Flastacowo.

STUDY TIPS I

(Editor's note: The following editorial is the first in a series of three articles of study tips to be printed in the Flambeau. The articles are being offered by Morton Weil as an aid for study and as an effort to promote scholarship, one of the three goals of the honorary.)

Your Study schedule is important. Make yourself an efficient study schedule and stick to it. Record assignments adequately and precisely.

Your study environment is important. Do your studying at the same times and in the same places. Keep distraction off your desk and from your place of study. Make an agreement with your roommate from the beginning about studying and stick to it.

Your personal "self" work is important. Do not attempt too many kinds of activities. Make an honest attempt to reach them.

Start studying the minute you sit down to study. If your mind wanders, analyze the difficulty and remove the distraction if possible. Warming up mentally is not necessary. Get the "begin at once" habit, and apply it to all your studying.

Begin with a positive "I can" and "I will" attitude. Mental discipline is essential for effective concentration.

Focus all your mental energy upon the material with which you are dealing.

(The second in this series of study tips will appear in next Tuesday's Flambeau. Watch for it. Exams are just around the corner.)

EDITORIAL NO. 3

Editorial number three concerning the parking problem:

On September 29 and again on November 17, Editor Flambeau pointed out what we thought were good prospects for the location of the proposed new parking area. The lot adjoining Jennie Murphree dormitory won our vote and no one has raised any objections.

University Council thought it was a good idea, too. But something happened to the plan, for nothing has been heard of the proposal since it received the Council's sanction.

Is anything to be gained by wasting time in this matter? Cars on campus will not be any fewer and traffic congestion will not lessen if we only try to relieve the situation by waiting. And materials will be more difficult to obtain within the next few weeks.

We suggest immediate action by University Council and the business office on this project. We hope that editorial number four can be a progress report rather than a hell-raiser.

Commends Who's Who

Editor:

I would like to commend the Who's Who selection committee for the strictly objective system by which they selected their students. I've had that there wasn't a political election, because this kind of election is the only one that is strictly contest.

Through the objective system, the committee recognized some students who may not have held high position in student affairs, but who had held minor offices and had participated in many activities over a period of four years. I believe the committee should be commended for the fair objective way it used to select those names.

Sincerely,
MARTIN D SULLIVAN

THE EDITOR'S POST

TWO WHO'S OMITTED FROM WHO'S WHO

By EARL DOBERT

The Who's Who selection committee overlooked—some way—two prominent FSU men and undoubtedly some of the people who were chosen.

The two I refer to, of course, are Bill Warren, student president, and Herb Marsh, senator from the Senior Class. Just why were these candidates ever looked when such people as myself were included is the mystery? I cannot claim one-fourth the activities these men have been in at FSU and yet I've been neglected mention in the final tally.

Something's wrong.

Bill Waters is vice-president of the Men's Dorm Government Association. This duty automatically makes him president of the UGA Senate, ex-officio member of all UGA committees and a member of the Student Faculty council. Bill owned the male lead in last year's Sandspur, "Make Up Your Heart."

In addition, he was a member of the Male Chorus the last two years and of the University chorus the same years. Bill is a member of the InterFraternity council and has worked on many IFC committees. In the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, Bill has been vice-president, rush chairman and social chairman. He is a member of L'Apache and was tapped for Omicron. He is a member of the Pinellas County club.

Bill's overall academic average for four years of college is 1.33 and overall FSU average included, only C's transferred from the University of Georgia is 1.5.

According to the point system given to me by Rube Askew, I Bill and, offhand, that Bill had quite a few more points than I did. I made it; he didn't.

Herb Marsh has a 1.5 average. He has been a member of the Pre-Law club, Press club, Flambeau, Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity and historian of Gold Key. He was business manager for the 1950 Sandspur and is business manager for this year's Tally Ho. As vice-president of the Men's Government Association: in 1949-50, he was a member of the University Senate, and in 1950-51 he was one of Homecoming committees this past year and now he is serving as Senator from the Senior class.

What happened here? Not enough points? He has more than I do.

I am editor of the Flambeau and I have been a reporter, assistant managing editor and columnist. I have been on station WFSU, a member of the publications committee and dean's list. Men's Honor Court. I am now a member of Omicron Delta Kappa.

That's not many points, yet I was chosen and Bill Waters and Herb Marsh were not. Something wrong someplace.

The evaluation of Who's Who is done, according to President Askew, on a "strict point system." A device of giving from five points to one point is used for all the recognized activities a person has undertaken and attained in his four years of college.

Cadet KOTC officers are given points. So are social chairman, house vice-presidents, membership in any recognized organization, staff position (vague) and member. The five point mentions are UGA president, UGA vice-presidents (which I've never found. I take for granted it means the vice-presidents in charge of men's and women's affairs), editors of three publications (there are four), and the Chief Justice.

The committee also evaluates such honors as all-state athletic teams.

There you have your Who's Who at FSU. But something happened someplace. Take my name in the committee yet I was chosen. How did that happen? And why weren't Herb Marsh and Bill Waters chosen. They are real campus leaders.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

AUTHOR TURNS RECRUITER FOR USMC

By JERRY THOMAS

Big news for those students that are interested in volunteering for a fighting unit that has often proven its capabilities as the greatest fighting force on the face of the earth.

The United States Marine Corps is anxious to enlist any men who are interested in joining a proud unit.

Master Sergeant H A Doan, Marine Corps Recruiting Officer for Tallahassee, visited this columnist Monday and explained that certain facts about the Corps struck a recent column.

Although I specifically wrote that the Air Force was in the process of freezing certain volunteering, and that the Navy would soon follow, some students interpreted the statement to include the Corps.

The Marine Corps will not freeze enlistments. As a matter of fact, the call is for men who are interested in are volunteers.

Unlike the Army and Navy, the Marine Corps disavows drafting men into their branch.

The Marines contend that they "only want men who are interested in volunteering with them—not forced to join with them."

By this policy, they agreed Recruiting Officer Doan, "the Marines get the best men—men that have joined by a personal choice."

M'Sgt Doan listed the present Marine enlistments as threefold.

(1) Regular enlistments are open to those men 18 to 28 years of age for 17-21 years of age, inclusive, for a four year hitch.

(2) Reserve enlistments have an age range of 18-32 years of age. These may be allowed as many as four dependents. All rules of servicemen and below may reenlist with their former rank, for immediate active duty.

(3) All ex-Marines who held the rank of Staff-Sergeant and above may enlist in the inactive reserves with their former rank, and can be called to active duty with that rank.

If any women are interested in joining the Marine Corps Reserve, Ages for women reserve are 18-28 inclusive, with no dependents. All girls who are under twenty-one, must have their parents' consent.

While I was training with the Corps in Quantico last summer, I met two women students at FSU who were in the Marine Reserves.

This was their first summer of training with the Corps and they found it very satisfied. They looked "mighty sharp" in those reserve uniforms.

If any student, man or woman, is interested in joining the Marine Corps, M'Sgt Doan is in the downtown Post Office, 8:00 a m to 4:30 p m, Monday through Saturday.

Sergeant Doan does not encourage anybody to quit college and enlist; however, if any student feels that he is going to be drafted soon, anyway, he should, if interested, investigate the possibility of volunteering.

FANCY THIS

SENATE VS REVIEWING BOARD

By JEANNE O'RORDEN

A bill to come up in University Senate which will test the Florida State University constitution.

This bill, introduced by Senator Turnbull, is a matter of procedure. It will speed up all business in the senate and aid in the quick passage of bills.

This bill comes under Article III, Section 3, paragraph 3 of the constitution which says: "All legislation pertaining to areas of student life under the jurisdiction shall become law immediately." Therefore, this bill is not constitutionally so before the faculty reviewing board.

The Senate has set a precedent by not sending the bill to the FRB since the constitutional infliction is purely administrative (only bills pertaining of health, safety, student welfare, maintenance of buildings and property, academic standards and public relations must have the approval of the board).

This bill is a test case, trying the power of our student constitution over the whims of the administration.

Last Tuesday night I went to hear Claude Pepper speak in the Alumni building. The subject of his talk wasn't unusual: "Can Democracy Meet the Challenge of Totalitarianism." Except for the fact that ex-Senator Pepper probably knows more about this subject than most people, having traveled in Europe and Asia for the last few months.

But what struck me was his method of delivery. The last time I heard him speak was when he was running for re-election to the U S Senate, and he was talking to a crowd of country folk in middle Florida. Being an uneducated people, they wouldn't have understood him if he had spoken to them as he spoke to me. Instead he used simple but colorful language; he used more poise and emotionality than he used in deep southern accent.

Last night he spoke intelligently and more or less intellectually. His southern accent was almost gone. He stated facts and used a more complex language compared to that first speech. His delivery was comparatively no emotionalism.

These contrasts are another reason why a college education always been a good politician . . .

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

COLUMNIST FLATTERED BY HEARST PAPER

By JOEL P SMITH

Ye ole columnist has been flattered by the Tallahassee Journal's American in their January 14 magazine section. Believe it or not, but they printed a portion of CAMPUS CAROUSEL along with a number of other Florida college papers.

The quote they borrowed from this column was extracted from an article I wrote concerning the residence hall situation . . . and I quote myself: "Some of our residence halls for college women may be a bit old-fashioned. One of the counselors told her girls to put a marshmellow in sterile mouths it a boy looked as if he was going to kiss them goodnight. Another residence counsellor was horrified at the illegality of one of her girls, clad in pajamas, talking over the telephone to her boy friend. "It just isn't nice," she says."

All credit line was given this FLAMBEAU along with the reprint. Another FLAMBEAU quote appeared on the two page feature . . . and I quote:

"Bill will bite into three with none left over, but there may be one to cover." Ye columnist believe tells me the FLAMBEAU will receive a small check as payment for the use of the material.

The spirit of Dixie Old South still lives with renewed interest for a group of FSU coeds who call themselves the Confederettes. To be eligible for membership you must be a junior counsellor. Due to the fact that all JCs must move from their upper class rooms and take up residence with the freshmen girls, the Confederettes consider versatility of language and method of delivery.

NOTE: To the people who say they don't have time to help effectively type for the students on this campus, I have this to say. If you would spend less time coddling the administration and creating as many honors for yourself as possible before graduation, you'd have lots more time.

There's the one about the two goons who met on the street while strolling down one day.

"Hey," said the first one, "You ought to keep your shades pulled down at night."

"Why," asked the second one, puzzled.

"Well, last night I passed your house and saw your wife sitting on your lap."

The second one queried, "What time was that?"

"Oh, about 9 o'clock."

"Ha," the second one answered. That's one on you. I wasn't home at 9 o'clock."

Poetically Yours

WASH CLEAN YOUR HEART
(Based on a Buddhist Scripture)
By DELL LESO

Suffering rude the heat and cold
Beneath a coat of ash and mold,
Shining silent with masked hair
Fasting, sleeping on hard stone bare,
Holding postures of sharp torment;
All this, my friend, has not been meant
To lead to Him for whom you yearn.
What use in pain with every turn?
What use of coat of filthy skin
When your heart beats with awful sin?
Wash clean your heart of its desire,
Turn in your eye beneath the mire.
Only your flesh is thus destroyed
And knowing Him is not enjoyed.
Wash clean your heart of its desire
And seek not Him in such attire.

MIDNIGHT
By DOUG ALLEY

Midnight on the campus—
A shade across the moon.
A tear upon a sheet of one
Who lived but loved too soon.
A beer is raised to someone's lips
A picture on the bar;
An unused laugh escaped the lips
As pain sounds from afar.
Two people lost in silhouettes
Of sorrow, heartaches and regrets.

A group of men in naked skin
Sit and talk of fame;
That came to them this very night
With some girl in the game.
They laugh, they joke, they tell the tale
Of how the night was gay;
But ev'ry heart is lost in dreams
That somehow fade away.
These men in tanned but naked skin
Talk on and on of uncommitted sin.

A smoker in the women's dorm—
A hushed voice sings on;
While others lay the tale
With sleepy eyes now gone.
A wish within their ev'ry heart
That somehow they might tell
A story such as now is told
By hushed voice about a male.
'Tis midnight dreams and day is done
And love is lost or love is won.

"The Gossips," a lithograph by Sigmund Abeles, former FSU art student, is now showing in the Twentieth Century Graphic Arts Exhibition of the Witchita Art Association held in Wichita, Kansas.

Knobler, a graduate assistant in the Art Department, is assisting Hale O Smith, FSU Museum director, in the installation of the new anthropology museum. He has had his work shown in Philadelphia, Syracuse, Newark and Utica. Last year he won first place in graphics at the Witte Museum in San Antonio, Texas.

Business is booming for the fruits on campus as far as drooping their hardware 'twixt legs and serenading the girls that are pinned are concerned. The Sigma Nus are giving the Phi Mus college custom of serenading a new pinnie. When they came to Betty Rushing at the Alpha Gam house last week, everything went smooth and sentimental until the group broke out with lived-up strands of "Anchors Aweigh." . . . It is a pity that more organizations around campus don't follow suit when they make plans for their annual dances.

It would be a fine thing for the male population if the Sandspur dance committee would outlaw corsages at the annual Sandspur dance there, which is scheduled for February.

FSU Swimmers Overpower Georgia Bulldogs, 43-32

Toma-Hawk

By BENNETT LAND,
Flambeau Sports Editor

Within the past 10 days Seminole cagers have posted their most successful home stand record in the history of the sport here. The Indians met four good teams and came through with three impressive wins. That's good basketball in anyone's league.

Perbaps the most startling and convincing win was the Wednesday affair with Tampa. The team was handling the ball with finesse aad polish all the way aad showed vivid results of long hours in drills. The weave patterns were at an increased tempo and the Indiana trio, Hartman, Whitmer aad Scott, were hitting the hoops with amazing ability. Whitmer turned in his best rebounding job af the season.

'Bud' Kennedy stated the team played one of the greatest games against Tampa that any team of his has ever played. Perhaps the success of the FSU five lies in the tremendous 'esprit de corps.' A spectator immediately can see that this year's edition is a smoothly functioning unit, and that the desire to win is keen.

If the Seminoles can get by Stetson in DeLand January 27, don't be surprised if they represent Florida in one of the national meets. But in the meantime Kennedy states that "we'll play each games as it comes."

We are happy to announce the addition of Jean Wetherell to the sports staff. Jean will handle all women's sporting events and will write a semi-weekly column, the first of which appears today. We know that Jean will capably handle a long existing vacancy on the staff.

Tuesday night's Quarterback Club banquet should have been recorded for posterity, at least in spots. The local group served up three aad a half hours of riot.

Governor Fuller Warren served as master of ceremonies and demonstrated why he is considered by friend and foe alike, one of Florida's top orators. But Fuller was not alone. A galaxy of oratorical wizards, including coaches, politicians, and college presidenta all had a story to tell.

Highlight of the eveniag for the Seminole guests was the preseatatioa of all-state medals to Mike Sellers and Bill Dawkins. Arnold Finnefrock, sports editor of the Florida Times-Union, made the preseatatioa.

Wally Butts, the principal speaker, must have wondered as the evening progressed if he had not been taken for a ride with regards to speaking. Wally mounted the atand at 9:30 p m.

Governor Warren latroduced Don Veller as "the man wha has defeated every team in this section except the Rattlers (A and M) and with a couple more Supreme court decisions that might be arranged."

Charlie Smith, President of South Georgia Junior College, paid high tribute to Dr Campbell. Smith stated that "the general education program being developed at FSU under Dr Campbell is attracting nationwide attention in educational circles." Smith also said he had been unsuccessful in his attempts to get his school a farm club for Butts.

Dr Campbell retnrnrd the fire in his usual deft manner aad stated tht "College Presidents feel their position in the presence of football coaches."

Supreme Court Justice Tom Sebring, former 'Gator coach, paid some kind words to Governor Warren which were deeply appreciated by the chief executive. Warren stated kiad words in his direction had been altogether too few the past two years.

Finally, Wally Butts got the floor and annouaced he didn't like to make speeches but like Warren, did to keep people from noticing the kind of job he was doing.

Wally pointed out that after the opening game with Maryland he was carried off the field. After the Georgia Tech game he walked off alone.

The ald bowlmaster got aff a good yarn aa ane af his eads, who accordiag to Butts was at the positioa oaly because he looked good la a ualform. The flankmaa was warned prior to the North Carolina game to keep his eyes on Billy Hayes—that Hayes was particularly fond of end sweeps and was a dangerous runner. Soon after the game got underway, Hayes swept end for a 35 yard gain. Butts called the terminalman to the benrh for an interview. "Why didn't you handle Hayes as you were told," roared Wally. The end replied: "I did coach. I did just what yan told me to do aad kept my eyes an bim all the way. He's just as good as you said be was."

Butts lauded Don Veller and atated he knew when Don came down from Indiana that he would bring that Big 10 system and produce winners without subsidization as that conference did.

Wally predicted a bright future for football in Florida and looks for FSU, Florida, and Miami to be in the gridiron limelight.

On Your Mark

By JEAN WETHERELL

You've heard about the football player running around his own end, well, that's practically what I'm doing trying to think up an introduction for this column. At any rate, I'm off.

It seems that the male sports population at FSU gets all the attention, at least it did before now. In this column I hope to present to you the women's side of sports.

Let's start off with a survey of women's sports on this campus. Odd-Even sports are open to all women at FSU. The Odd team is made up of those students graduating in an odd year, ('51 or '53); the Even, of those graduating in an even year, ('52 or '54). During each semester six sports are offered from which a co-ed may choose.

The first half of first semester is devoted to golf, hockey and soccer, while the second half offers archery, badminton and basketball. By the way, the archery tournament and the badminton and basketball contests started yesterday and the second games are to be played tomorrow. The next sports to be offered during this school year will be bowling, dance and volleyball; these will be followed in the latter part of the second semester by softball, swimming and tennis.

Also during the year these and many other sports are included in the intramural tournaments. Such additional sports as bridge, horseshoes, ping pong and shuffleboard are played by the sorority and dorm girls.

Included in the category of women's sports at FSU is the Tarpon club, which is known through the United States for their swimming demonstrations. Twice yearly this select group of expert swimmers present performances of water ballet and acrobatics. These shows are one of the highlights of women's athletics.

The time and energy spent in these different sports cannot be considered as wasted, for one of the highest honors for a woman's participation in athletics is to be tapped for "F" club. Membership in this organization makes the splendid ideals in athletics more real.

Without taking a poll of the men and women on campus, I would be willing to wager that not more than half of the student body recognize the wide variety of sports offered to the women at FSU.

Florida State Tankers Take Seven Firsts

Florida State University's 1951 swimming team opened its season last night defeating the strong University of Georgia Bulldogs 43-32 in the East campus pool before a capacity crowd.

Coach Bim Sults' tankers took seven first places in the 9-event beet, set five new records and tied one in the one sided contest.

Jack White broke the school mark and tied the pool record with a 24.6 in the 50 yarda free style event. Dick Wells established a new school and pool mark in the 100 yard free style with a 54.5, and Mike Castagna began the school and pool record in the 200 yard back stroke with a 2:25.7. It was the first time such a distaace in the back atroke had been used in competition.

The Southeastern Conference Georgia combine finished first in the 200-yard breast stroke and in the 400 yards free style relay.

ROGER SLATE, Florida State's All-America diver, who ended tenth in the National meet last year, dominated the diving event and won with 133.4 points. Tom Conway, who finished second to Slater in the Southeastern AAU last year, was close behind the Seminole ace.

Perhaps one of the most thrilling race of the night was Well's victory over Georgia's crack Charlie Cooper in the 100 yards free style. The tall Seminole sprint man hit the water first and led all the way. However, Cooper was in the race from the beginning.

Coach Stults' smooth swimming tankmen showed plenty of promise for the coming meets, aad after the Georgia victory it looks as if Florida State will have another successful season in the pool.

300 yard medley relay: FSU (Ramsey, Browning, Wells), Georgia. Time 3:16.5.

200 yard free style: Walter Jardine (FSU), Cooper (Georgia), Guyer (Georgia). Time: 2:06.8.

50 yard free style White (FSU), Fisch (Georgia), Mitchell (Georgia). Time: 24.6.

Diving: Slater (FSU), Conway (FSU), Hirshburg (Georgia).

100 yard free style: Wells (FSU), Cooper (Georgia), Guyer (Georgia). Time: 54.5.

200 yard back stroke: Castagna (FSU), Holmes (FSU), Sligh (Georgia). Time: 2:25.7.

200 yard breast stroke: Henninger (Georgia), Morris (Georgia), Browning (FSU). Time. 2:35 4.

400 yard free style: Burnett (FSU), Stolz (Georgia), Stormont (FSU). Time: 4:55.4.

400 yard free style relay: Georgia (Cooper, Fisch, Guyer, Whelch), FSU. Time: 3:52.8.

FSU Cagers Meet Howard In 'Bama Tonite

Florida State University's basketball team left this morning for Birmingham, Alabama and tonight's meeting with the Howard College Bulldogs. Tonight's game is a Dixie Conference contest.

With three wins in their last four home outings under the belts the Seminoles will be out to notch season win number nine. The Indians have defeated Charleston, Mercer, Connecticut State, Howard, Florida Southern (twice), Mississippi, and Tampa.

The three losses have been to Miami, Lipscomb, and Stetson.

The Seminoles and the Howard five met in Tallahassee in December with the Indians winning 60-44.

Coach 'Bud' Kennery took nine men on the trip. They are Bob Whitmer, Bob Hartman, Bud Marsee, Whitey Wyman, Ronnie Nettles, Bud Scott, Lou Fischer, Dick Trobaugh and Larry Dickson.

Kennedy stated he would start Whitmer at center, Hartman and Marsee at guards, and Scott and Trobaugh at forwards.

Intramural Highlights

By JIM COUCH

There was quite a bit of action on both the football and bowling scenes the first of the week, with 20 pigskin contests and 10 pin spilling matches being held.

In the fraternity league, Theta Chi and Pi Kappa Alpha took two tilts apiece to remain the only teams with an unblemished record and have four wins to their credit. Also undefeated are Lambda Chi and Sigma Nu with three and two victories respectively.

The Theta Chi's won over Kappa Alpha and Chi Sigma by scores of 12-6 and 13-0; while the "Pikes" were defeating Kappa Kappa and Delta Tau Delta by 21-0 and 19-0 margins.

Meanwhile the Lambda Chi's were awarded a forfeit over the Sigma Phi's. Other games included a tie game between the Chi Sigma's and Phi Tau's which was deadlocked when neither team was able to score and the game ended with each team having only two first downs.

In the dormitory league, there were only three of the nine scheduled matches played. 396 Upper won over the ROTC team by a 12-0 score. 514 beat 390 Upper 14-6, and the Newman Club squeezed past 396 Upper by a 6-0 score. The rest of the games were won by forfeits, and are listed below.

In the fraternity bowling, Kappa Alpha went out in front with a win over the Theta Chi's. They have a 3-0 record, followed by Delta Tau Delta, the only other undefeated team, who scored a win over Delta Sigma Pi. Other results are listed below.

Ex-Irish Mentor Raps Grid Trend

By FRED J. WALKER
Central Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Jesse Harper, whose 1913 Notre Dame football team started the Irish on the road to football greatness, feels sorry for present-day coaches.

"The football situation today is ridiculous," said Harper. "Most coaches are up against pressure from alumni, students and any old grad who has lost a five dollar bet—to win, or else.

"I certainly wouldn't advise a young fellow to go in for coaching. Common sense would tell him to go in for something else if he would have peace of mind and job security."

Harper came to San Francisco from his large ranch at Sitka, Kan., to attend a national cattlemen's convention.

As football coach at Notre Dame from 1913 through 1917, Harper is credited with developing nationally-famous passing teams in a day when emphasis was on smashes at the line.

Harper's 1913 team, captained by the great Knute Rockne, stunned the nation's sports fans with its decisive 35-13 defeat of Army, then, as now, a recognized contender for top honors.

The passing combination of Gus Dorais to Rockne literally left Army flatfooted in one of the great upsets of that era.

Notre Dame then was relatively unknown in football and went to West Point for a guaranteed $1-000, paying its own traveling expenses.

"We took along only 16 players," recalled Harper. "To save money we left Cap Edwards, my assistant coach, at home.

"There was no paid gate to the game, so the guarantee was all we got. We barely broken even, but there's no telling how much Notre Dame eventually profited from the victory.

"It spread the school's name throughout the country and the ultimate return probably would have to be estimated in the millions. Some say it stands as the most financially significant win in football history."

The 18-man squad that made the trip wasn't needed.

"Eleven men played the entire 60 minutes," chuckled Harper, "without taking a time out."

The famous Notre Dame shift as well as a devastating passing attack was introduced to the East in that game. The same shift, refined by the immortal "Rock," later became known as the "Rockne shift."

ONE of Harper's first moves when he reached San Francisco was to telephone Marchmont Schwartz, resigned head football coach at Stanford University. Harper went back to Notre Dame in 1931 for a two-year stint as athletic director. Schwartz was All-America halfback at Notre Dame in 1931.

"I told Marchie," said Harper, "that I'd known him for quite a spell and favorably, too, and that I thought he was getting smarter by giving up coaching.

"I told him I thought he'd made the right move and not to let them talk him into going back until it's all changed."

HARPER now a white-haired 67, said coaching in his day was a reasonably attractive occupation.

"Sure," he remarked, "they fired coaches from time to time, but nothing like today when a coach is called a bum if he doesn't win 'em all."

Alonzo Stagg at University of Chi-
Harper went to Notre Dame after playing football under Amos cago, and coaching five years at Wabash College.

In 1914 Harper made Rochne his assistant.

"It didn't require any mentality on my part," remarked Harper. "Rock was a standout in every way. Anyone could see he was marked for greatness."

Dorais, the other half of the great Notre Dame passing combination, also became a successful coach. He was in the game until three years ago when he left the Detroit Lions.

"Gus felt badly about leaving the Lions," continued Harper. "To him it was a personal tragedy, no doubt, but it turned out to be a blessing.

"He went into the automobile business in Wabash and recently he told me how happy he was and what a fool he'd been to take all of those headaches.

"Marchie Schwarts will be saying the same thing. Football coaching today is just no good."

FSU Trackmen Begin Practice Under Miller

Florida State University's track team, coached by Ken Miller, has begun workouts for the coming season.

Ten returning lettermen from the 1950 Dixie Conference championship squad are on hand. They are Joe Fracassi, conference pole vaulting champion; Peter Fraschetti, conference half-mile titleholder; Richard Mize conference 440-yard dash champion; Frank Pearson, middle distance runner; Captain Max Watson, hurdler; Edward Kucera, two-miler; Rickey Mahoney, distance runner; Monty May, shot and high jump performer; Bill Rogers, holder of the Dixie Conference javelin mark, and John Thombleson, broad jump.

Coach Miller attended Oregon University, where he received his bachelor and master degrees.

Miller was star track performer at Oregon. He holds the all-time record there in the 440-yard dash, with a time of 48 seconds. Miller also holds the half-mile record with a time of 1:53.4 minutes.

Coach Miller served in World War II as a Naval aviator. Upon discharge in 1946 he accepted the track coaching position at State Teachers College, Lockhaven, Pennsylvania. Miller came to FSU in 1948.

The tentative track schedule:

March 28—Duke, here.
March 31—Mercer at Macon Ga.
April 7—Miami at Coral Gables.
April 14—Southern Relays at Birmingham.
April 21—Emory at Tallahassee.
April 28—Florida Southern at Tallahassee.
May 5—Mississippi College, here.
May 12—Howard at Birmingham.
May 19—Dixie Conference Meet at Clinton, Mississippi.

Coach Miller is interested in obtaining track squad managers for the coming season. Any persons interested should contact him at the West campus athletic office.

Indiana Boys Pace FSU To Season Peak

By SCOTT MARSHALL

Florida State University's basketball team reached its season peak Wednesday night with a highly convincing 80-69 victory over the strong University of Tampa Spartans before a crowd of 736 at the West campus gym.

A threesome of Indiana boys, Bob Hartman (South Bend), Bob Whitmer (South Bend), and Bud Scott (Madison), led the Seminoles to their third intra-state victory. In addition to the Spartan triumph, Florida State has whipped Florida Southern twice.

Hartman, who had scored 15 points prior to the Tampa contest, was again shooting above par. The sharpshooting Seminole guard scored on nine of 15 shots from the floor and ended the night with 23 points, the game high scorer.

WHITMER played perhaps his top game of the season thus far. The converted pivot man handled himself well under the basket, and tallied 20 points. Scott also played one of his better games, scoring an even 20 points.

The intra-state tilt was unusually rough, the officials calling 65 personal fouls, 34 against FSU and 31 against Tampa. The Seminoles' Bud Marsee, Lou Fischer, Dick Trobaugh, Scott and Whitmer fouled out while Tampa's George Montz, Bill Thrift, Glen Kogel, Avron Bryan and Holland Aplin left the game with five personals.

Aplin, Coach Sam Bailey's number one center, led the Spartan attack with 16 points. He was followed by Bill Mullen, 15; Harry Bryan, 12; and Montz, 10. The elever Montz, who had tallied 17 points in Tampa's first 10 games, fouled out late in the first half and was of no service to the Cigar City five in the second canto.

The victory gives Florida State a won-lost record of 8-3. The Spartans, who were unimpressive, now have a 5-7 mark.

TAMPA took the court slight favorites to win its sixth straight contest, having beaten Yale, Dartmouth, Patrick Air Base, Florida Southern and Miami, and losing to Villanova, Hartwick, Louisville twice, Bowling Green and Western Kentucky.

FSU had scored victories over Charleston, Mercer, Connecticut State Teachers, Mississippi and Southern twice. They had lost three close decision games—David Lipscomb, Miami, and Stetson.

Tampa's Mullen tipped in the first field goal after a slow beginning. After Scott tied the score at 4-4, Tampa's Montz put the Spartans back in the lead to stay until almost 15 minutes of the first half had elapsed.

WHITMER'S field goal put the Seminoles out in front 26-25, but Montz tied the score with a charity toss and then put the Spartans ahead with another free throw. Scott sent the Tribe back into a 28-27 lead, and then Mullen tied the score. After Whitmer put FSU ahead and Kogel tied the score again, Scott propelled Florida State into a 32-30 lead which the Seminoles held the remainder of the half. At halftime FSU was out in front 37-35.

Early in the second canto, with Mullen and Aplin hitting the hoop the Spartans forged ahead 41-40 after Fischer and Whitmer had dropped in free throws for FSU.

Marsee then tied the score with a charity toss and Whitmer's free throw put the Tallahassee Cagers in front 43-41, and they were never headed from there.

Hartman, Whitmer, and Scott who contributed 63 FSU points teamed to give the Seminoles a 66-53 margin midway in the second half. From there it was evident that Florida State was on the way to the season's eighth victory in 11 starts.

FSU Gymnastics Team Will Meet Maryland, Army, Navy, On East Tour

Florida State University's championship gymnastics team will open its 1951 season tonight at College Park, Maryland against the University of Maryland in the first of three road meets.

Saturday the Seminoles will compete in a triangular meet at West Point, N Y, against the United States Military Academy and the University of Delaware. A dual meet with the Naval Academy is scheduled for Monday.

The Seminole gymnasts, starting their second year of intercollege competition, have never been defeated in a dual meet but Coach Price is worried about the meets with Army and Navy. In these meets FSU must compete under Eastern Intercollegiate rules which state that a man may enter only three events. This may prove to be the downfall of the Seminoles as Roetzheim usually scores well in all events.

Roetzheim will be eligible to enter all events against Maryland as the 'Terps' operate under the Southern rules.

The Florida State gymnasts will get their stiffest test at Annapolis Monday. Bill Lewis, Navy star, is rated by experts as one of the finest gymnasts ever developed in recent years. He will compete against Roetzheim on the high bar and parallel bars. Their duel should be the highlight ofthe trip.

WFSU Celebrates Second Anniversary

Two years ago, WFSU, our campus student station, spun into action over the airways with a two and a half hour platter party.

Jim McGhee announced his first show, "You're on 660," on that January 21, 1949, at 8:30 in the evening.

THE IDEA of a student station, and the realization of its vast possibilities began taking shape in the minds of Harry Hughey and Dennis DeLacure during summer workshop of 1948. When school began that fall, work had already begun on the transmitter, which was to make broadcast possible.

Thomas Bedwell built the transmitter and had as his assistants in this undertaking Bob Kohler and Roy Dungan. In December Roy Flynn joined the group in the capacity of advisor.

SINCE then, it has offered students the chance for new areas of work and the spread and stimulation of ideas. It has progressed from a broadcast schedule of two and a half hours, five nights a week to eight hours a day: two in the morning and six in the evening. Its list of programs include music, both popular, semi-classical and classical, news, and dramas.

Den DeLacure, station manager, in a summary of the station's policies for this coming year said:

"It is up to your campus radio station to present to te listeners reports on the policies and activities of WFSU, in regards to how they affect you as listeners and students of this university."

CONTINUING, he said, "Radio is an effective means of mass communication, and because radio can influence people in their thinking and actions, it holds a very high sense of responsibility to the persons receiving the ideas communicated. Often radio does not live up to this serious obligation of responsibility. It should, and the entire staff of your campus station has striven dilligently in the past to do so. We will continue to try to live up to the responsibility we are charged with, as a means of reaching many people on our campus."

Den further pointed out that students can help by understanding the policies and regulations of the station. "We often get requests from people who want time on the air to express their views on various matters. We'd like to grant this time, and will when it is possible, but here again we feel strongly our responsibility to the listener."

OFTEN criticism is unjust and not always based on actual fact. A radio station cannot simply broadcast 'gripes' but whenever opinions and ideas represent organized thinking on our campus, then your campus station will be very happy to allot all the time at our disposal for the presentation of these ideas and suggestions."

He also reminds the students that WFSU, is always open to new personnel from the campus in all departments. Visitors are always welcome in the studios of the station located on the fourth floor of the Alum.

Students of this campus should remember that first, last, and always, WFSU belongs to you! It is up to you to criticise what you hear and don't like as well as cheer when you hear something you do like. Unless you let the members of the station know what you want to hear they can only rely upon their own judgments.

AMC Sponsors Talk By Black Tomorrow

The Florida Section of the American Chemical Society will sponsor a free public lecture by Dr A P Black at 4 p m tomorrow in the Florida State University's new Science lecture hall.

Dr Black, who has done much research work and pioneered in the field of water chemistry, will speak on "Fluoridation of Public Water Supplies for the Control of Dental Caries."

He is a member of twelve professional organizations and eight honorary groups and has served both the American Chemical Society and the American Water Works association.

He is a registered chemical engineer in Florida and has served as consulting chemical engineer to a large number of Florida municipalities, corporations and organizations. He is the author of some 40 papers, largely in the field of water supply and treatment.

Dr Black has received many honors, including the Fuller Award in 1939 and Golden Prize of 1950, and in his spare time has been editor of "The Ray," national publication of Gamma Sigma Epsilon, for four years and was national president of that organization for two years.

SUGAR'S HOME WITH JUST THAT

BOXING'S NO. 1 figure, Sugar Ray Robinson, the world's welterweight champion, returns to New York from a successful European tour and has a hug for his wife and son, Ray, Jr. The boxer won five bouts in Europe and picked up several handsome checks. (International)

FOOTBALL pays the freight for the major colleges which build stadiums and pay off their athletic programs from the gridiron gate receipts.

For the small colleges, however, basketball, in many cases, has been a life saver.

The introduction of basketball, as a peach basket gym sport back in 1892, was scarcely noticed. Historians tell us that the sport, with many provisions barring bodily contact, was actually called a sissy game.

It has proven otherwise, however, and today it ranks among the boys in sporting and participant games.

College basketball has grown up, and that can be taken two ways. It has grown "up" in the height of the players for today it is the rule, not the exception, to cram your lineup full of stringbeans.

But it also has grown up through intersectional carnivals and as a result it has been the life-saver for expanding athletic programs at the smaller colleges.

BACK IN 1935 Ned Irish, then a sportswriter, conceived the plan that New York's Madison Square Garden would be an ideal place to stage intersectional basketball games, which were payed in smaller gyms with limited seating capacity.

The idea caught on and the fans began to flock to the Garden and grounds frequently reached 10,000 and more.

He also conceived the idea of an invitational tourney, a post-season event featuring the best teams in the nation.

These events were successes, too.

Other cities began to set up carnivals and today we find such intersectional games played from coast to coast as part of double-header programs.

SMALLER SCHOOLS, given a much better chance to compete with the larger schools in basketball, began to develop and search for talent. As their records improved, they, too, were invited to the big carnivals.

As a result, today we save the smaller schools being rated along with the big universities as basketball powers. Athletic programme at these schools continue to expand. It means bigger fieldhouses and better facilities and nation-wide publicity.

AN EXAMPLE might be Bradley Tech of Peoria, Ill., virtually unheard of in the field of major league football.

Bradley, founded as a non-denominational university in 1897, today is rated the No. 1 basketball team in the nation and, for the last dozen years, it has been a basketball power.

Last year, for example, Bradley played to 342,706 spectators, ranking second in the U. S. The Braves traveled 15,000 miles to show their wares and in 31 home games the new fieldhouse was sold out for every game.

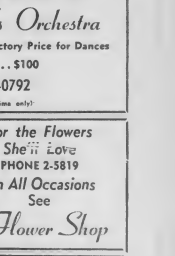
FOOTBALL may be king for the major schools but basketball certainly is king for many of the smaller schools.

Arts Panel Slated In Alum Building

A forum on "The Arts and Creativity in Teaching" will be held at 7:30 p m Monday in the auditorium of the Longmire building. Though sponsored by the Arts Education department for its students, the program, including discussion and social period, is open to students, faculty and townspeople.

Experts in the fields foart and education will discuss these topics: the creative process; classroom situations conducive to creative experience; and outcomes which may be expected for students. Panel members will elle examples from their own experience to clarify their interpretations of the term "creative."

BOWLING — No. 10.



COVERING THE PINS — One of the axioms of bowling is making sure of the largest number of pins possible. Above is a graphic example, showing, front to rear, the 1-2-4 setup. If we were to attempt to convert this spare by striking the 1-pin on the right, we could, conceivably do so, but if we missed the 1-pin, we would leave all three standing for only a seven count.

On the other hand, by playing this leave correctly, or attempting to hit between the 1-pin and the 2-pin, we leave a good margin for error. If we hit too far to the right, we may drive the 1-pin into the 2-pin and the latter into the 4-pin for a spare. If we shoot too far to the left, we may still carry off the 2-pin and the 4-pin. If we hit exactly where we are supposed to, between the 1-pin and the 2-pin, we will probably carry all three. In any case, there will be little chance of missing all three if we aim for this spot. Our best angle here finde the ball coming in from the right for a driving sweep of the spare.

Always cover the pins as much as possible. A pin here and a pin there frequently mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Second Forensics Tourney Slated

The Second Invitational Debate Tournament of Florida State University will be held here today and tomorrow according to Dr Gregg Phifer, director of forensics.

Registration for entrants, in the debate tournament was held yesterday. Dr Phifer said that any enrolled undergraduate student was eligible to participate.

Universities participating in the tournament are Rollins College, University of Florida, University of Miami, Stetson University, Auburn University, Emory University, Florida Christian College, Mercer University, and Emory University at Valdosta.

ENTRIES consist of two two-person teams, prepared to debate the affirmative and the negative of the national question, "Resolved: That the Non-Communist Nations Should Form a New International Organization."

Round number one commenced at a general assembly in Longmire auditrium this morning from 8:30 until 9.

Round two will be held at 11, followed by a luncheon period. At 2 p m. the preliminaries in original oratory and drawings for the extemporaneous speaking are scheduled. Preliminaries in extemporaneous speaking and preliminaries in interpretative reading start at 3 p m.

ROUND THREE of the tournament will begin at 4 p m and Round four at 5:15 p m with the annual tournament banquet and after dinner speaking contest at 7 p m in the Lafayette room.

The finals of the debate will commence at 8 a m tomorrow. The finals in original oratory is scheduled for 9 a m in the Longmire Building. Drawings will also be held at 9 a m for the finals in extemporaneous speaking to take place at 10 a m.

A parliamentary debate on the United States foreign policy will be held in the Longmire Building at 11 a m tomorrow.

THE CLOSING tournament luncheon will be held at 12:30 p m when the finals in interpretative reading will commence. The results of the tournament will also be announced then.

It was explained that substitution of speakers may be made at anytime. Each participating school will be required to furnish a faculty member to assist in judging. Any school entering more than one affirmative-negative unit will be required to furnish an additional judge for each unit of two teams.

Counselors Seminar Here Last Tuesday

Some 125 educational and residence counsellors met Tuesday in a series of group meetings for a seminar on the subject of "Counseling the student with particular talents and exceptional ability."

The program, arranged by Dr Melvene Hardee, coordinator of counselling, was held in North and South Cawthon, Jennie Murphree and Bowand Hall parlors, with the hostess, the meeting chairman, the discussion counsellors, consultants and recorders participating.

Dr Hardee explained the aim of the counselors on both the educational and residence levels is to get a better understanding of ways and means by which the interest, abilities, aptitudes and personalities of the superior student in the university can best be utilized in a program of higher education.

Newmanites Start Weekend

Annual Dance Scheduled For Saturday from 9-12

Students will be arriving from universities and colleges throughout Florida today and tomorrow to participate in the first annual Newman Club weekend. The weekend opens tonight with a Masquerade party at the Newman house.

Tomorrow night the students and faculty of Florida State University have been invited to join the Newmanites at the third annual Newman Ball at the Student Union on West campus.

JERRY KOHLER and his orchestra will play for dancing from 9 until midnight. Corsages have been banned at the dance.

The Masquerade party tonight, which will be held from 8 until 11 p m, will feature special entertainment and novelty dances under the direction of Jim Fisher as master of ceremonies. A prize will be awarded for the most unusual costume.

Tomorrow morning and afternoon the Newmanites will hold an informal dedication party at the Student Union in preparation for the dance. "All Newmanites are urged to dor their oldest jeans and come out to decorate," said Mary Agnes Hanzo, decorations chairman.

SUNDAY MORNING the Catholic students and their guests will hear Holy Communion Mass, administrator of Blessed Sacrament Church in Tallahassee, celebrate the Mass. Following the Mass coffee and doughnuts will be served. They will meet again at the Newman House at 1 p m for transportatoin to Lafayette Park for an afternoon of fun to be followed by a picnic supper.

"Students owning cars are asked to join a car pool for the picnic," said James Wilkie, chairman for the picnic. He is being assisted in picnic preparations by Mary Ida Suarisco.

"Although the other activities of the weekend are for the Newmanites and their guests, all university students are most cordially invited to enjoy the formal dance at the Student Union tomorrow evening," said Edna Faber, general chairman for the weekend.

Other chairmen for the weekend dare Sunny Livingstone, refreshments; John Buckley, cleanup, Molly Panlello, publicity; and Barbara Edgren and Bob Hicks, housing.

Journalism School Takes Postcard Poll

A series of Penny Postcard Polls to sample reaction to timely topics has been inaugurated by the School of Journalism.

Dean Laurence Campbell announced that newspaper publishers this week will be polled on the question-of-the-month for them: Do you believe that production costs and other factors justify an increase in weekly subscription rates of 1951?

The survey is being made to serve the press of Florida. A second question which will be asked is: Do you believe that the possibilities of a third World War may make it necessary to replace some of the men on your staff if called to the armed forces with women?

Findings of these monthly inquiries will be released to the press, Dean Campbell said. Suggested questions may be sent to him at the School of Journalism. Usually the survey will be made early in the month.

Ballots to Assist Mortar Board Girls In New Selections

Ballots to be used as a guide in the selection of new members is being distributed this week by Mortar Board girls.

Members for this honorary are chosen in the spring from women students who will be seniors the following fall.

BALLOTS listing the names of junior women students and explain the qualifications for Mortar Board membership are being distributed to campus organization presidents, residence counselors, department heads, and all women students registered as members of the junior class. These persons are asked to consider the qualification carefully and to vote for those persons whom they think merit election to Mortar Board. They may check the names of as many persons as they believe to be worthy candidates.

President Doris Harding explained that Mortar Board will use these ballots as a guide only in the choosing of new members. "The final decision rests with the members of Mortar Board," she said.

Positions Are Open For Air Hostesses

The Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement has received word from Eastern Airlines that there are postions open for students who are interested in becoming stewardesses.

A student who has had at least two years of college work is eligible. The need is urgent and it is requested that those who are interested come at once to 203 Westcott for further details.

Of interest to men who are planning to enter the field of selling are the openings with the Hormel Company of Austin, Minnesota. The company needs general salesman, livestock buyers, production students of trainees for plant foremen and supervisory employees.

English Frat Initiates

Sigma Tau Delta, National Professional English Fraternity, will hold its first initiation on Sunday, January 21 at 3:30 p m in Large Lounge of the Longmire building. The initiation will be followed by a formal reception honoring the new members to which the English faculty has been invited.

Reporter Reviews 'Clarence', Theater-in-Round Production

By HAZEL MORRISON

The final performance of the Freshman play Clarence was presented in its featured "theater-in-the-round" style last night. The Tarkington comedy was portrayed at the Little Theater on West campus.

The sponsored attraction of the speech department concerned the humorous experiences of a returned war veteran, Clarence. His experiences began in the home of a New York business man where he became general handyman. He also became involved in the household's love affairs.

George Sims was single cast as the expressionless Clarence. Bobby, who was played by Donald Remington, had been expelled from three schools and was in love with his attractive governess, Miss Pinny. Miss Pinny was played by Dora Godwin and Dorothy Whitmore.

The governess had aroused the jealousy of the temperamental Mrs Wheeler who was portrayed by Rosalyn Moss.

The naive Cora displayed the role of a spoiled teenager who was one of the several problems of her dignified and upset father played by Lee Hickman. Mr Wheeler described Clarence as a "friendly sort of friendless character."

The more reserved of the cast, as the secretary of Mr Wheeler, was Mrs Marlyn. The secretary was played by Marcia Morris and Marilyn Hutchison.

English Dept Plans Three New Courses

The English department will offer three new courses next semester, according to an announcement by Dr W H Rogers, head of the department.

One of the courses, "The Bible As Literature," will be taught by Dr Sarah Herndon and is designed to meet the needs of students who wish to know more about the English Bible. The book itself will be the text and will be studied as a record of human experience and a document of rich literary value.

Another new course, English 417 The Renaissance Epic," to be taught by Dr Mary Parmenter, will deal with the writings of poets such as Ariosto, Tasso, and Spenser as expressive of a period not unlike our own.

Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Proust, Flaubert, Mann and Hamsun will be the European novelists considered in Dr Laura Jepsen's new course, "The World Novel."

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 11... THE OPOSSUM

"Thereby hangs a tale!"

The class clown went out on a limb and tried to prove cigarette mildness by the quick-trick method! He tried the fast inhale, fast exhale test—a whiff, a sniff—and they still left him up in the air!

But then he got his feet on the ground. He learned that there is a reliable way to discover how mild a cigarette can be!

And that test is . . .

The sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke—on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Group Probes Who's Who Selection Mode

FSU Students Invited To Attend Wed Meeting In UGA Senate Chamber

The first order of business for the newly created Senate Investigating Committee will be to probe the manner in which the candidates for Who's Who Among American Colleges was handled by the selection committee.

Dal Albritton has been selected as special investigator for the probe and Dick Bradley will preside at the Wednesday afternoon session of the investigators. All University students are invited to go in on the open meeting which will commence at 4:30 o m in the UGA Senate room.

The investigating committee has requested that the Who's Who person committee, consisting of Eric Askew, Cass Vance, Bob Langan and Bill Hayes, appear to give testimony.

THE COMMITTEE will consider all the points received by the 31 receiver for degrees in this year's edition of Who's Who. They will also discuss the point system under which the degrees are selected and how this system was determined.

Rube Askew, president of the University Government Association and member of the selection committee, has said that "a strict point system similar to that used by Omicron Delta Kappa" was used in determining the notables awards.

Other witnesses will probably be called to testify before the committee.

WHO'S WHO came under fire for years and years at the State University campus and was dropped last year by the University Council. It was reinstated this year by the 1950-51 version of the University Council.

Many students have expressed dissatisfaction with the manner in which the awards were chosen for the award.

IT WAS for this reason that the Who's Who selection was not held last year and why it is being investigated this year, say members of the committee.

Senators Jim Turnbull and Betty Rich are co-chairmen of the Senate investigating committee.

Honorary Frat Taps Bob Lee Bannerman In Special Ceremony

In a surprise ceremony, Omicron Delta Kappa, honorary leadership fraternity, tapped Bob Lee Bannerman yesterday at noon in the office of Deane G Campbell, president of the University.

The short ceremony was presided over by Dean Campbell, president o the FSU circle, and was attended by Dal Albritton, Herb Gray, Eric Askew, Dean Charles Davis and Campbell, all ODK members.

Bannerman was honored before between semester tapping because he will not be around the school at the end of the present semester and the ODK circle wanted to honor him before he graduated.

The tapping dates are in the spring ater UGA elections but an exception was made in Bannerman s case.

Sandspurites Meet Tomorrow Evening

The 1951 Sandspur company will meet Wednesday evening at 4:30 in Westcott auditorium to discuss future schedules and plans.

Saturday beginning at 1:30 the Skire show will be rehearsed with the orchestra. Everyone is expected to be on time, said Herb Reinhard, chairman.

The Sandspur stage crew needs more people to work with lighting and sets. Anyone interested in filling out should contact stage manager Bill Bowen by leaving a note on the Sandspur bulletin board in lower Westcott, or by attending the 6:30 meeting this Wednesday. They may also come to the Sandspur Playhouse, Building 781 West Campus any evening at 7:30.

Attention Seniors

Senior announcements have arrived at the University bookstore and may be picked up there, Manager Gordon Wheeler announced today.

Investigation Suggested For Courts in UGA Forum

Albritton Proposes Judiciary "Get The Facts" By Impartial Committee

An impartial investigation committee to "get the facts" about individual cases was suggested in the forum "How can FSU's judicial system be improved?" Thursday evening in Longmire auditorium.

Policies of the present system were explained, and proposed improvements were presented in the audience by speakers from the Judicial System and from the Student Affairs Committee.

Dal Albritton, president of the Senior Class of 1950, suggested that the investigation committee be composed of individuals outside of the Judicial System itself. They would investigate the cases brought before the courts, questioning witnesses and other persons connected with the cases before presenting the facts to the Court.

"This would be a strictly impartial committee interested solely in ascertaining the facts and presenting them to the court whether they be for or against the defendant," Albritton explained.

The cases are now investigated by the chairmen of the courts, and such other court members as the court chairman may ask to help with the investigation, he pointed out.

Bob Lee Bannerman, past president, Junior Class, said that the most needed improvement in the Judicial system was the elimination of the faculty reviewing board except as a "court of last appeal." He deplored "the fact that the faculty reviewing board often refuses to accept the decisions of the Judicial System and insists on penalties differing from the ones the Judicial System has decided upon."

Play Director Announces Tryout Results For Family Portrait

The first rehearsal of Family Portrait was held last night with the selected cast.

The selected cast members are Don Mowrer as James, Bill Yarbrough as Joseph, Charles Bonner as Simon, Blair Hennocer as Judah, Georgs Cary as Mordical, George Sims as Eben, Jack Holmes as the disciple, Jack as Thomas Granahan as Mathias, Fred Myers as Mendel, Robert Griffin as Nathan, George Guterie as the 16-year-old Daniel, J W Mannin as Gideon, Bernard Johnston as Joshua, John Mader as Applus Hadrian, George Cary as the Rabbi and Ben Stuart as Amos.

JAN VANTURE will portray Mary, Julie Storm will play Mary Cleophas, Barbara Lewis is cast as Reba, Betty Orr as Namomi, Lois Goldberg as Sellma, Jayne Gardner as Magdalen, Shirley Hurlburt as Hepsibah, Leah Le Plante as Anna. The Woman of Samaria will be played by Mary Alice Newsom, while Maurita Button is cast as Esther. Jean Flynn will portray Rebah.

Roger Busfield, director of the new speech department play has announced that the posted cast is subject to change, however.

The cast was selected after seven scheduled tryouts. Approximately 150 students tried out for this new performance, Mr Busfield estimated.

THE DIRECTOR explained that Family Portrait is the story of the family of Jesus. Mr Busfield stated that the production will not be a Biblical play however. The force of the drama will be reflected in "how did Mary, the mother of Jesus, he continued. Jesus never appears on the scene although he is the protagonist of the story.

The stage manager for the production will be Jayne Gardner, the first assistant stage manager, Barbara Hull, the second assistant stage manager is yet to be filled.

Assistant directors are Lyla Goldberg and Evelyn Gray

Quartet To Perform On Campus Tonight

Paganini's Famous Group On Stage Here in Westcott

The Paganini String Quartet, famous for its concerts throughout Europe and the United States, will appear on the Artist Series tonight at 8:15 in Westcott.

The group acquired its name from Nicolo Paganini, the virtuoso, who once owned the priceless Stradivarii now belonging to individual members of the quartet. All four instruments — violins, viola, and 'cello—were made by one Italian craftsman 250 years ago.

The quartet members, who were personal friends for many years in Belgium before they joined together, are Henri Temanka, Gustave Roseels, Charles Poidart and Adolph Prenin.

After forming the quartet the group played concerts in several major cities of the United States and became such a success that they had to extend their original tour. Since then, between concerts, they have made a number of recordings which are listed in the top brackets as best sellers in classical music.

Reserved seats are $1.35 and $1.10. Students may present ID cards at the Artist Series window in the Music building to obtain tickets at half price.

Honor Rally Draws Large FSU Crowd

University of South Senior Tells How System Works

Approximately 1,000 students gathered at Westcott Auditorium Friday night for the scheduled Honor Rally which ended the celebration of Honor Emphasis week.

Lacy R Harwell, a graduating senior from the University of the South, an honor speaker at the event, Mr Harwell said the honor system in force at his school worked well and that students convicted of violating the Honor Code were expelled from school.

The University of the South is a church operated institution chartered in 1857 by the southern diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church. It has only male students and in 1946 its average number of students was 360.

Dean Carothers, of the graduate school, spoke in place of President Campbell. Dean Carothers stated he was pleased to see FSU students striving toward a working honor system.

Charlotte Lischka, chairman of the honor committee, presented the opening speech. Mr Harwell then spoke, and was followed by Dean Carothers who affirmed for the faculty, the Honor Code. Rube Askew affirmed for all students, the Honor Code as the next speaker.

The speeches were followed by a combined student and faculty affirmation. The Alma Mater was then sung to the accompaniment of organ music provided by Alice Jackson.

Pol Science Offers Three New Courses

Three new courses are being offered by the department of political science next semester, according to an announcement by Dr Marian D Irish, head of the department.

Miss Emily Parker will teach a one-hour course in parliamentary law. This course will be offered with the speech department which will teach it next year. Considerable attention will be given to procedures in the U S Congress and the Florida Legislature.

Dr Andre Van Assenderp is offering a new course on Asia in International Relations. It will be in the nature of directed individual study with seminar analyses of selected areas in Asia.

Another course of special interest to students in political science for next semester is a course on legislative organization and procedure to be offered by Miss Parker.

Cotillion Party Tonite

Cotillion taps will give a party for members in the North Cavalier room recreation room tonight at 7:30. Taps will demonstrate original steps and sing an original song for the members. They will also make the traditional "Tap Hat" for members to don. All Cotillion and Cavalier members are invited.

Ballet Theatre To Perform

Monday, Tuesday Night Dates for Westcott Show

At 8:15 next Monday and Tuesday nights Ballet Theatre will take its troupe of one hundred to Westcott stage to dance eight of the best-known numbers in ballet.

The company, entering its eleventh season this year, has been described by Life magazine as "the best ballet troupe in the U S." The purpose of the group, as stated by Lucia Chase, administrative director of Ballet Theatre, is to create an international ballet which is yet expressive of the American character.

SHE SAID, "We think performances of Fancy Free, Billy the Kid, Fall River Legend, Rodeo and Interplay [the ones scheduled] that Americans have developed a distinct style of dancing, that choreographers have devised new movements to express the American character, and that composers and designers are bringing to the traditional ballet a fresh American viewpoint. Certainly, Europeans found this provocative and stimulating and it is time that America an admiration, or at least a respect, for its culture."

Monday night's program will open with the neo-classical Theme and Variations, based on one of Tchaikovsky's suites. Similarly classical will be the Tuesday night finale, Graduation Ball, which has been described as a "lovely series of moonlit dances to music of Johann Strauss." Fall River Legend is given in the earlier performance. It dances Mike Wilke's intense drama of murder in Massachusetts, for which Morton Gould wrote the score.

ANOTHER GOULD composition is Interplay, to come on the second night. It was by Aaron Copland. Rodeo one night and Billy the Kid the other, have a western tang unmistakably American.

Ballet Theatre toured Europe in 1946, receiving high praise for its vigorous yet sensitive interpretations. The company is now under contract to produce the ballet of the Metropolitan Opera Company next season.

Reserved seats are $2.45 and $1.85 tax included. Students may buy tickets at half price by presenting ID cards at the Artist Series window in the Music Building.

Duo-Pianists Take First Place Honor In Cavalier Show

Duo-pianists, Jane Sheppard and Jim Harris played their way to first place in the first annual vaudeville night sponsored by the Cavaliers last Thursday in Westcott auditorium.

Jack Watkins, who sang two of the original 1951 Sandspur songs on the second place winner. He sang "I Can See a Picture," and as an encore "Gypsy Holiday" songs written by Doug Alley and George Boldi.

Third place was taken by Joe Calvetti and Frank Kiligo, Billed as the "Sentimental Gentlemen of Flip," they performed a comic tumbling act.

Emcee for the evening was Herb Reinhard. The judges were Dr Benion of the public administration department, Dr Arends of the department of philosophy, and Doug Alley, a graduate student.

Dal Albritton, chairman of the program included: Sandi Horton, Frankie Clark, George Gnanti, Barbara Stroeder, Bob Dobrey, and Nick Pappas.

Pepper Rebroadcast

Campus station WFSU will rebroadcast the speech made by former Senator Claude Pepper tonight at 8 p m. The speech may be heard over WFSU, 660 on the radio dial.

Wednesday night the station will broadcast the recorded final debate of the FSU debate team vs the University of Miami which was held in the recent FSU invitational debate tournament.

Election or No Election? That Is the UGA Question

Some Say There Will Be, Some Say There Won't; Who Knows?

An Editorial

From latest reports we are unable to ascertain whether or not the students will participate in a constitutional election this week or not. Bill Waters, vice-president of the University Government Association tells us we will and Elections Committee Chairman Paul Garrison tells us we won't.

Thus the reason for this valuable space being taken up to tell you our troubles.

We want to give you the news of the campus. How are we to accomplish this task if we are subjected to the abuses of those in power?

Paul Garrison explained that the election could not possibly be held because the Senate had not sent him instructions for printing the ballot and be cannot get enough people to work on the polls even if the election was to be held because this is "dead week" and his committee is studying for exams. (Dead Week has been out of existence for a year now, but why quibble over little discrepancies like that?)

Another reason offered by Garrison is that there may be more constitutional amendments so why not stop the election until they could all be voted for at one time?

Bill Waters, on the other hand, is assuming the election will be held. He came trotting into the Flambeau office at 3 pm yesterday and gave us copies of three amendments which were to be, will be, or were supposed to be (take your choice) voted upon.

The amendments to be voted upon (sometime) call for the establishment of a safety court to deal with traffic violations, order of succession in case any vice-president of the University Government and that all legislation passed by the men's or women's senate be subject to ratification by the University Senate.

Well leave it up to you. If you want to, vote Wednesday or Thursday, or whenever it was supposed to be. If no one is there (where?) to take your ballot, don't fuss. It is your University Government Association.

The only suggestion we make is that offered by Bo Baker when it was uncertain whether Honor Emphasis Week would be held as planned. That was, "Flip a coin."

We don't have any change.

Bradley Presents Drafts to Senate

Three proposed constitutional amendments one safety court bill were presented by Dick Bradley for the initial reading at a special session of the University Senate, Thursday night.

The first amendment would make Section 2 of Article V of the constitution state that "the University Senate shall be composed of three men and three women from each class.

THIS AMENDMENT would nullify subdivisions A, B C and D of the section which provide that the vice-president in charge of legislative affairs, the vice-president of women's affairs, and the vice-president of student affairs would sit on University Senate and that the president of UGA would be an ex-officio member of the Senate for the purpose of breaking ties.

An amendment passed recently by the senate provides for a president pro-tem to preside over Senate instead of the vice-president of legislative affairs. A secretary for Senate is provided for under Article VI, which outlines the duties and duties of the secretary of UGA.

The second amendment provides for a safety court to be set up with the board of Student Publications. The safety committee would abolish the forums chairman as a major office and set up a forums committee.

THE STATUTE Bradley presented is one prepared by Jerry Thomas which would give absentee voting privileges to interns and other students unable to reach the polls on election day. Bradley presented Senate investigating committee. The senators to serve on the committee are Margaret Kraeuter, Jane Evans, June Conyers, Burton Welch and Jim Bradley.

Senator Jimmie Evans was appointed to contact the Junior Prom Committee regarding chapter for possible nominations to the Senate food committee.

SENATE President Bill Waters recommended that hereafter only those bills "pertaining to student life under the administrative jurisdiction as stated in the UGA constitution should be sent to the faculty reviewing committee."

Eleven senators were absent from the Thursday meeting. They were Senators Ann Oliver, Nancy Bettis, Bill Skipper, Mary Helen Speed, Virginia Stockman, Burton Welch, Bill Hayes, Bob Worrich and Pete Williams. Wanda Evans and Jack Holmes held excused absences.

The next University Senate meeting is scheduled this afternoon at 5:15 p m.

Watkins To Star In Sandspur's "Gypsy Holiday"

Known for his fine voice and love for music, Jack Watkins will make the Florida State University debut in the leading male role in Sandspur's musical comedy, "Gypsy Holiday."

Jack is cast as Paul Henderson, a man whose aristocratic background makes him an outsider among the Gypsies. This puts the danger of love and the wiles of Sheron, a beautiful, sultry Gypsy girl.

JACK'S singing ability is not unknown on this campus. Last week he won acclaim at the Cavalier's vaudeville night. He also sang a solo in the Men's Glee Club's fall concert.

Along with music, the freshman transfer from Jacksonville of the Alabama likes saltwater fishing and beach parties.

BACK in Thomasville, Georgia, high school, Jack starred in the annual musical follies. Jack found time to win for three consecutive years the first award in trombone and leadership as the Georgia State Band camp.

At Florida State University, Jack is a member of the Men's Glee club, Choral Union, and the Symphonic Band.

"I would like to sing professionally," states Jack, "that is, of course, if the army doesn't have me in too long." Jack is active in the FSU ROTC program at present.

AS THE male lead in Sandspur, Jack will introduce several new songs to the FSU campus.

The Sandspur production will be presented February 21, 22 and 23 in Westcott Auditorium. Elliot Lawrence will play for the third Annual Sandspur dance February 24 Tickets for the production and dance will go on sale early in spring semester.

1951 Statewide Program Hzs Initial Meet At FSU

The 30th annual Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies will open its 1951 State wide program at Florida State University on February 16-17-18 and will continue with sessions in service clubs and high schools.

The chain, of which Miss Louise Woodford, of St Petersburg, is state director, is a religious enterprise designed to stimulate interest in Protestant mission work both here and abroad.

THE CHAIN'S speakers, who are known as "Ambassadors," include well known authorities on youth work, educational and international affairs, and home and foreign missions.

The "Ambassadors" scheduled to appear here at the opening sessions include Rev Edward H Johnson, of New York, general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, who will have charge of the conference; Anauta, of Baffin Island, 400 miles from the North Pole, the only white Eskimo woman on the American platform, who will speak on "An Eskimo Looks at Christmas;" Mrs Kim Kuasa, wife of the first president of the International Christian University of Japan, and active as a modern Japanese woman in planning, politics, education and religion, tells of "Life in New Japan."

Others who will be heard are Rev James K Mathews, an authority on, India; Dr Barney H Morgan, a goodwill ambassador in the Caribbean for 20 years; Rev Dr Vernon B Richardson, pastor of the University Baptist church in Baltimore, Maryland; Rev Charles H Long, r, an assistant secretary in the overseas department of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal church; Dr Arthur L Carson, president of Silliman University in the Philippine Islands.

THE THEME for this year's Chain Program is "This Is Our Father's World." It will be built around the countries where the chain ambassadors will appear.

Hilda Alpharetta Leeper, campus director for the assembly, said that as a part of a well worked-out plan in many local sessions, committees have been set up to handle all preparations and to work with the assembly staff members on our campus. The chairmen of these committees will be composed of students from the various denominational groups on campus, are Ann Kirkpatrick, Jack McRae, Ellen Avia, Bill Beaton, Nancy Day, Betty Ann Young, Hazel Burnett, Walden Padgett, Patty Mimms and Alice Jackson.

The purpose of the chain in arousing interest in missionary work is revealed by statistics announced by the Methodist conference of North America. These figures show that Christian supporters contributed more per capita toward mission work than the citizens of any other state.

Oh, For More Profs— To Serve Breakfast

How ritzy can a class get? This year the campus five students of Journalism 440 asked themselves yesterday morning as they sat down to a breakfast of Canadian bacon, scrambled eggs, hot rolls, and coffee.

They were being feted by Dr Richard Beale Davis, head of journalism at his home.

Dr Ede was just living up to his reputation of entertaining his students.

Oh, for more teachers like this.

● SOMETHING WRONG WITH HONOR EMPHASIS WEEK

Honor Emphasis Week is a thing of the past. It's time to toss posies for jobs well done or heave brickbats for inefficient planning.

The Honor Committee began laying out plans for the activities of last week some time ago. Every one was pleased with the efficient organization of the group. But something went wrong. Much of a sudden the schedule of events had to be postponed a week because someone had not made necessary arrangements for a speaker to preside at the rally.

Two days before the original date set for Honor Emphasis Week the committee had not decided definitely whether to postpone it or not. Some members of the committee told a Flambeau reporter that it was to be held as planned. Other members said it had been postponed. The chairman admitted frankly that he did not know when it was going to be held. His advice to us was to flip a coin to decide.

At the same time, Dean Culpepper's office had not received a request for funds to pay for transportation of the speaker to this campus nor for expense money while he was here. That may have been due to the fact that they didn't know where he would be travelling from nor what day to schedule his arrival.

Since all events are scheduled through the dean of student welfare's office, our reporter thought it was strange that even what date Honor Emphasis Week was scheduled for, but he was wrong. Dean Culpepper said he had heard rumors of three different dates, but the committee had not confided in him either.

If Emphasis Week is to be an annual affair, we can certainly learn a lesson from last week's inefficient planning. Whether the week was a success or not, we cannot decide. That is a thing that can be decided only by individual conscience based on personal benefit received. We do feel certain that the benefits could have reached many more people had the Honor Committee been more efficient.

● STUDY TIPS II

(Editor's note: The following editorial is the second in a series of three articles of study tips to be printed in the Flambeau. The suggestions are being offered by Mortar Board as an aid for study and as an effort to promote scholarship, one of the three ideals of the honorary.)

YOUR READING SKILL IS IMPORTANT. There are numerous ways of improving your reading skill. Try to force yourself to read more rapidly—at least 200 words per minute. Grasp the thought of the material with concentrated attention. Stop frequently to recall essential ideas read. Acquire the habit of looking for essentials.

Test your reading ability at intervals. Learn words and how to spell them. In doing this, pronounce the words correctly; recall them with eyes closed and thought of the recall of the word. Often write, speak, and use these words. Acquire for yourself the dictionary habit for all unknown meanings and spellings.

ASSOCIATIONS ARE IMPORTANT IN STUDYING. Associate the ideas in the lessons with things you already know. Used learned ideas in conversation and thought. Make a preliminary survey of the main points, headings, introductory sentences, and summary before reading a chapter in detail. Write down in your own words the main idea in each paragraph or page.

Begin taking notes in ink and reciting to yourself to see how much you have learned. Recall the learned material to your mind frequently. Pay strict attention in class. Use a fifty-fifty proposition. Learn to assume your share of responsibility for making a worthwhile class. It is stimulating for the teacher as well as to yourself.

● OLD PRACTICES

Although last week was Honor Emphasis Week, the same old practices to encourage dishonor were going on in classes.

We've had honor, honor, honor, drummed into our minds for so long and we as students would like our University to be classed among the colleges which have lofty systems that work. But the faculty doesn't help much. It seems to have no faith in our honor.

This isn't true of all faculty members, but if even one distrusts us, the honor system cannot work.

As an example, a physical science teacher was giving a test to his class during Honor Week. He told the students that they were on their honor and to please sit two seats apart.

Should certain slums who worked so hard to get the chimes in Westcott building repaired and working return to the campus, they would be more than a little disheartened to see that their efforts had been wasted.

Today, only a few months after the chimes were put in working condition, they are out of order. Apparently there has been no attempt to discern the trouble.

On two previous occasions when inquiries have been made, the business office has given the information that one small part was causing the trouble. "That part has been ordered and will be delivered in about two weeks," we were told.

Two and one half months later, we fail to hear the chimes ring.

Why the delay?

'NO PROBLEM. WE'RE IN A DRY COUNTY'

By EARL DOBERT

Ye olde drinking problem reared its head again this week on the Florida State campus. As a matter of fact, the perennial problem was raised twice to my knowledge and maybe even more to yours.

The first time I heard about the drinking this week was in my Public Opinion class.

Bob Fuson and Roberta Alford, gaining practical experience in public opinion polling, asked 200 men and women on the FSU campus on the question "Should Women Be Allowed to Drink Beer?"

The results of the women students showed 42 favoring the proposal, 41 against beer drinking and 17 with no opinion. Broken down into classes was more revealing. This showed Freshmen women did not favor drinking beer, nine were against it, seven were for it and six expressed no opinion. In the Sophomore class, seven to 7 were against it, nine were for it and three had no opinion.

The balance changed remarkably in the Junior class. Fifteen were for beer drinking, eight were against it and one had no opinion.

This shows that as a person you pass judgment on such as this and after entering the Army at Ft Benning on August 1, he was sent almost immediately to Japan.

"I was fortunate to be in Japan long enough to learn a little of their customs and see a few places," he stationed at Kokura on the island of Kyushu for the longest. "It was the city that was chosen as the number two target for the A-bomb in 1945. I so often wonder if those people are glad to die or maybe they should be. I sincerely doubt it.

"I've been over a month age I came to Korea with a Negro Infantry Regiment. We have with these boards of Chinese back across their border. Millions of Chinese—that is one thing I want to bring up. We have been ordered out of Wonsan and later evacuated from Hamhung. We're now attached to the divisionals or pacificators. We still have a command (China on wheels) moving down.

FORUM A RIP ROARING SUCCESS

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

The UGA forum last Thursday night concerning the judicial courts on campus was a rip-roaring success. Although the UGA forum came late in the semester, it was none the less lively.

Probably the most important fact that came out of the discussion was brought out by Baker, one of the speakers who said that the Board has neither an ignorance of the court system on the part of the speakers and the student body. Therefore, probably most of the students.

So began his talk with the statement "our court system isn't quite perfect, but it's on the right. He also said that custom is never a law, nor poor procedure when he spoke of judicial proceedings and punishments handed out.

The judicial system as a whole then came under discussion. The system from house councils through men's and women's judicial boards to the University Judicial Court, through Honor Court and the Faculty Reviewing Board which is as the top was termed by Bob Lee Bankerman as a "chain of command," by Frances Higgen-

This month Pi Alpha Sigma, Administration honorary, received a letter from a Pi Sig in the middle Lt Delsie C Revels, who is fighting in Korea.

Delsie is a veteran of World War II and graduated from Florida State last summer.

The letter, mailed from Utsan, Korea, contained much interesting information, that I have decided to distribute in this column in expectation that my readers will find it of the same descriptive writing as did Pi Alpha Sigma.

Dear Pi Alpha Sigma.

"What a pleasant surprise to receive your letter. I have been considered over any doubts which I might have had concerning the welfare of the fraternity and also sort of rallied together again the ties between us. Notice where you have many—many big plans. In all probability . . .

FORUM A RIP ROARING SUCCESS

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

The judicial system as a whole then came under discussion. The system from house councils through men's and women's judicial boards to the University Judicial Court, through Honor Court and the Faculty Reviewing Board which is as the top was termed by Bob Lee Bankerman as a "chain of command," by Frances Higgenbotham Lowerse as a "hierarchy," Bob Lee's suggestion was to "knock off that top chain of command."

Dal Albritton suggested an investigation of the drinking habits of people not on the court, wholly independent of the system to get a true picture of it. He said statements from witnesses such as bartenders, preachers, and the counselors and anyone else who might be involved. It would be helpful in determining the recording to Dal.

Then the FRB came under fire again. The question next asked the forum was should the Board be allowed to speak to them by a student? Bob Lee Bankerman explained to the audience that the Board has only appelate jurisdiction when a student feels that either the judicial or honor courts have not given him a fair trial.

Jerry Thomas, in talking about the "innocent until proved guilty attitude" of the court said that men's judiciary considers a student innocent until "the people on the hill" consider him guilty. Dal Albritton explained how he got the sincere impression of press ags because he felt he was only a tool of the administration. Jerry stated that if the administration doesn't like his decision of the court, they do what they want to about it. "The Faculty Reviewing Board is like a cancer," said Jerry. "Do we have a student court, or are we puppets?"

One recent case concerning two boys who got in a fight at the Alpha Xi house was discussed. The two boys were taken to the dean of dwellers and he dismissed their case and freed them so he felt the case warranted no further attention.

Dean McBride said for the boys and instead of just letting the them as they expected, he put them both on probation. one for the one his action, the which is about two and one half years.

"Are you actually obligated to tell on students" (when they have been caught in the act of the audience. Not under the honor system, the forum members answered. He now that that fact has been cleared up there is no need for this separating that goes on which is called "snitching" under the honor code.

There was much more—intelligent questions by the audience. Sincerity in spite of press ags because he felt he was only a tool of the administration. Jerry stated that if the administration

Poetically Yours

AT TWILIGHT
By Mary Tarver

As Twilight spread over the earth,
Engulfing the trees in darkness,
I sit at my window, and I dream,
And I am sad.
For life is such a game of chance,
And whether my heart shall be happy
In years to come
Or whether it shall be crushed,
Into a mere unliable—I know not,
But who would not play the game!

DEVOTION
By Janie Wilson

You . . . you, who are adored
By more men shrewd than I,
Have chosen me for your life companion, even Until death do us part
And many ere.

You . . . you, with your impelling
Unapproachable beckoning
Have conquered my poor harmless soul,
Leaving naught behind but ashes of
A former me.

The very thought of you pursues
Me through my every night;
Pursues and catches on my every impulse,
Continues to remind me of
My hopeless plight.

Here! Come where I humbly kneel
And I cast my heart at your feet,
And that you will forebear your torture
For I surrender all to you.

FSU Ambassador

Dear Editor:

In the course of my running around I have visited every major campus in the south and I can say that a number of those in the mid-west and east. From my experience I can say that I have never had a more enjoyable time than I had on your campus. I have never seen a school as large as FSU which was able to maintain such a spirit of friendliness.

I would like to say to each of your 5,500 fellow students, "Thanks for a wonderful week of hospitality." From now on, wherever I go, FSU has a goodwill ambassador in me.

Cordially,

Something "Very Fishy"

Dear Editor:

In looking over the recent list of Florida State University students selected as Who's Who, I did not see the names of two very prominent campus leaders, namely Bill Waters and Herb Marsh. These two student leaders have certainly taken a very active interest in campus activities and have been outstanding in the realm of Government affairs.

There were several accepted for Who's Who that have never been out the end of January, announced Harry Copeland today.

I believe the people selected should certainly be known by their fellow students. This should be a main qualification. The students had no choice as to who they thought were the most qualified student leaders on campus for the past four years. May I say that it looks as though there is something "very fishy" about the voting for fieldcome when I understand that Who's Who was thrown off campus last year because of crooked voting.

Just for kicks, read down the list of students selected and see how many you know and compare their qualifications with the ones of Bill Waters and Herb Marsh.

Herb Reinhard.

Seminole Cagers Meet Spartans in Tampa Thursday

Toma-Hawk

By BENNETT LAND,
Flambeau Sports Editor

Putting up the loose ends . . .

Duquesne University's abandonment of football could be a help break for the FSU grid schedulers if they get 'not' in a hurry. Three open dates are still to be filled for 1951. It's a bad pipe cinch that the 'Dukes' gave several teams open dates by their action.

The post season Duquesne played a nine game schedule, winning five, losing six and tying one. They defeated St Bonaventure 25-12; Louisville 25-20. The 'Dukes' lost to Villanova 39-32; Florida 27; Boston University 21-7; Clemson 53-20; Detroit 47-14 and Cincinnati 33-20. The tie was a 14-14 affair with St Vincent.

At least two of the above teams would fit nicely into FSU's 1951 schedule providing the powers that be are interested. Louisville and Chattanooga would be good competition. Chattanooga has been approached but nothing has resulted.

At the present time a number of teams are under consideration for the schedule makers. These are Jacksonville Navy, Sul Ross, Texas Tech, Ball State Teachers, and Delta State.

The selections of Mike Sellers and Bill Driver in the professional draft is another tribute to the greatness of the '50 combine. Credit is due of the individual players and Coach Don Veller.

Sellers was picked by the Detroit Lions. Driver by the world champion Cleveland Browns. Both are eligible for another year of football at FSU. Chances are they'll stay here too. 'Uncle Sam' does not classify 'pro' ball as a military necessity.

Time was when the gross overlooked some of the schools of great stature in the grid world for the big cleven but that day is past. Some of the harder pressed far cash clubs took 'flyers' on promising players of little renown and they came through to make members of the better heeled organizations.

So you like big-time athletics? In case you do, what about the competition being pursued by the Seminole gymnasts and swimmers? Walter Price's team defeated a good Maryland outfit Friday 62-49 and showed up well against Army Saturday.

Later in the year they will compete in the NCAA meet at Ann Arbor, Michigan, the Southeastern AAU at Atlanta, and the National AAU meet in Chicago. Become a gymnastic performer and see the United States . . .

The FSU swimming team has conquered two good tank teams, Georgia and Pensacola Navy. More top-flight competition is coming up with Clemson, Miami, and Emory. Ron Stultz will take his lankiest backstroker to the Southeastern AAU in Atlanta. National Intercollegiate Meet (he renamed) and the National AAU.

From all reports 'Flying High' put on their best show ever on St. Pete last week, even though weather conditions were not the top usually associated with the 'sunshine state.' The troupe is now working on their appearance in the Orange Bowl next month.

Jack Raikin, circus impresario, desires men not subject to 'greet-ing' cards to try out for the show. Four of the cast have answered the call and others are sweating out the dilemma.

Raikin would like as many as 80 men to register for his circus as an easy semester. They'll be eligible for the big shows here this spring. The class will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday from 2:30 to 4:30 with one semester hour credit.

Coach 'Bos' Kennedy and his cagers plan to leave Tally early Wednesday and arrive in Daytona that afternoon. Kennedy believes a day on the beach, generous glasses of that famous Florida orange juice, a steak or two, and a good night's rest will help bring victories over Tampa Thursday and Stetson Saturday. We're inclined to agree and look for victories 19 and 11.

FSU Seeking Second Win Over Spartans

Florida State University's high scoring basketball team will journey to Tampa Thursday night for a single contest with the University of Tampa Spartans, recent victors over Florida's Gator five.

Coach Bud Kennedy's quintet will be seeking its second victory over the Spartan five, having won the first game here by an 80-68 margin.

Since that FSU engagement, the Spartans bounced back to hand the Gators a 51-49 licking. The Seminoles, in the meantime, topped Howard College 54-51 in Birmingham.

At the present time the Tampa cagers hold a 6-7 record, having beaten Yale, Dartmouth, Patrick Air Base, Florida Southern, Miami and Florida. The Spartans have lost to Villanova, Hartwick, Louisville twice, Bowling Green, Western Kentucky and Florida State.

The Tampa aggregation blasted 120 points through the hoops in the Patrick Air Base victory while bowling the Flyers to 22. The Clear City boys took a slim 56-40 win from a fighting Southern five. FSU defeated the Mocs by scores of 86-58 and 68-49. Tampa, however, upset Miami 79-71, and the Seminoles lost to the Hurricanes 80-61.

FLORIDA State, eclipsing one of its great basketball traditions, holds a 9-3 mark at present. The Seminoles have beaten Citadel, Connecticut, Stetson, Teachers, Mississippi, Mercer, Southern twice, Howard twice and Georgia. They have lost only to Duke, Miami and Stetson.

Coach Sam Bailey will probably start Mac Williams and Bill Wood as the fellow who paced the Spartans in the last meeting with the FSU quint.

FSU is expected to begin with Bud Scott and Bud Marsh at forwards, Bob Wollitzer at the pivot position, and Bob Hartman and Leo Fiedler at the guard slots. Hartman is currently leading the Indian scorers with 186 points in 13 games.

Florida State's next home tilt is scheduled Saturday night when powerful Southwestern (Memphis) segregation.

Hartman Leads FSU Cagers To 58-51 Win

With sharpshooting Bob Hartman hitting 19 points, the Florida State University basketball team defeated the Howard College Bulldogs 58-51 Friday night in Birmingham.

The South Bend, Indiana, guard hit seven field goals and five charity tosses for the 19 point total, but it was Howard's Harold Parks who took scoring honors for the night. The short Bulldog guard hit the hoop for eight shots from the floor and eight free throws. It was Parks' ninth game the Howard five in the ball game, having lost 60-44 to the Seminoles at Tallahassee.

The victory was FSU's ninth against three losses. They tangle with the University of Tampa Spartans in Tampa Thursday night and return home February 5 against Southwestern of Memphis.

The Seminoles moved out in front of Friday night's contest with the Bulldogs and took an 11-6 edge at the 10-minute mark. Howard came back strong, however, in the closing 10 minutes of the opening half and took a 24-21 halftime lead.

Florida State started to move again early in the second half, leading 42-39 with 10 minutes of the half gone. The Seminoles kept their lead the rest of the way.

FSU Gymnasts Top Maryland, Lose To Army

Florida State University's gymnastics team broke even in two extended meets with 12-10 eastern teams.

Friday night the Seminoles were decisively over the University of Maryland, 62-49.

Saturday night FSU placed second in a three-way meet against Army and Delaware. Army won the meet scoring 53 points to State's 43. FSU defeated Delaware 64-32.

A FRIDAY night crowd of 5,000 saw Coach Hartley Price's powerful team completely dominate the event with Maryland. The Florida State gymnasts won first in all six events.

Bill Roetzheim of FSU, national AAU champion, won the side horse, high bar, and tumbling events.

SATURDAY NIGHT Army's exceptional strength in the rope climbing events proved to be the deciding factor in the Cadet's victory.

Saturday's defeat by Army was the first to be recorded against FSU under Dr Hartley Price.

FSU was handicapped by the eastern inter-collegiate rules which limit a performer to three events. The ruling forced Bill Roetzheim of the rings and parallel bars. Roetzheim won two of three events he entered and placed second in a third.

Friday night summaries:

SIDE horse — 1. Roetzheim, FSU; 2—Vinik, FSU; 3—Joe Regna, FSU.

HIGH bar: 1—Roetzheim, FSU; 2—Carmine Regna, FSU; 3—Joe Regna, FSU; 4—Vretos, FSU.

PARALLEL bars: 1—Joe Regna, FSU.

Dick Trobaugh was runnerup to Hartman in the Seminole scoring column with five field goals and 1 charity toss for 11 points. Gann followed Parks in the Howard scoring with 11 points, four shots from the floor and 5 free throws.

On Your Mark

By JEAN WETHERELL

Maybe you've noticed the increase in the number of limping girls on campus and are wondering "Wha' Hop'ned?" Well, it seems that football season is here again and the limps, along with the sprained fingers, scratches, and the broken fingernails, are just a few of the practice injuries.

Yes, the day is drawing near for the fourth annual "Powder Bowl" game, which proves to be a fight to the finish between the Kappa Alpha Thetas and the Pi Beta Phis. In the past years the Phi's have won two out of the three games played on this campus and are expecting to keep the trophy another year. Of course, the Thetas seem to have an entirely different opinion.

Each team has three coaches who are trying their best to get the teams ready for the big game. Walter Jerkins, Bob Schmeltz and Dick Turk are working with the Pi Phi's and Ted Hewlit, Nelson Italiano and Bill Krainert are helping the Thetas; that is when they are not laughing at the girls' attempts at this "man's" game.

The game which will be played March 3 on the soccer field in back of the women's gym, will surely prove to be worth your while. For not only will you get to see some of the sophisticated coeds as FSU get best up, but you will also be helping someone who needs your assistance. You see, each year the proceeds for this game go to some charitable organization.

The game will be modeled after regular football games with cheerleaders, water boys, and nurses with powder puffs, mirrors, and lipsticks. The girls are all working hard and hope to be ready for the big day.

FSU Tank Team Wins Over Pensacola Navy

PENSACOLA, Jan 20—Florida State University's swimming team defeated the Pensacola Navy Saturday afternoon 47 to 26.

Saturday's win was the second of the season in as many outings for Coach Bim Stults' State tankmen. The FSU swimmers had defeated Georgia Thursday night 43 to 32.

State swimmers took six firsts in the eight events. The Indians won the 300 yard medley relay, 300 yard free style, 50 yard free style, 100 yard free style, 200 yard back stroke, and 200 yard breast stroke events.

Navy took firsts in the 400 yard free style and fancy diving events.

Roger Slater, FSU's All-America diver, lost a close decision in the diving event to Bill Stauffer of Navy. Stauffer scored 99.4 points to Slater's 85.1 points.

Florida State's last swimming meet will be on February 3 with Clemson in Tallahassee.

Results of the meet:

1—Florida State, 47 points; 3—Pensacola Navy, 26.

300 YARD medley relay: 1—Florida State, Ramsey, Browning and Wells; time—three minutes 27.3 seconds.

200 YARD free style: 1—Jardine, FSU; 2—Dunn-Rankin, FSU; 3—Tonpus, Navy; time—two minutes 56.8 seconds.

50 YARD free style: 1—White, FSU; 2—Winemann, Navy; 3—Mills, FSU; time—25.1 seconds.

FANCY DIVING: 1—Stauffer, Navy, 99.4 points; 2—Slater, FSU, 85.1; 3—Fox, Navy, 87.8; 4—Conway, FSU, 84.8.

100 YARD free style: 1—Wells, FSU; 2—Lafferty, Navy; 3—Brashears, Navy; time—one minute 54.0 seconds.

200 YARD back stroke: 1—Holmes, FSU; 2—Castarone, FSU; 3—Wideman, Navy; time—two minutes 27.2 seconds.

200 YARD breast stroke: 1—Browning, FSU; 2—Jardine, FSU; 3—Quinn, Navy; time—two minutes 42.9 seconds.

400 YARD free style: 1—Tonpus, Navy; 2—Buzzell, FSU; 3—Stormont, FSU; time—four minutes 47.4 seconds.

400 YARD free style relay: 1—Lafferty, Brashears, Wineman, Tonpus, Navy; time—three minutes 55.8 seconds.

"Any students who are sincerely interested and want to help in the Book Exchange project are welcome to attend," the chairman stated. Approximately 35 personnel are wanted, she said.

ANOTHER SESSION will be conducted Thursday night by Mr Gordon P Wheeler, manager of the FSU Book Store. Mr Wheeler will present necessary points to know in the operation of the Exchange. He will also explain how to evaluate books for students and the fundamentals of managing the Exchange. A discussion period will follow.

Students attending the sessions are asked to bring their exam schedules in order to appoint working hours for each operator.

The sessions are preparatory training for the student operators before the opening next Monday in the Alumni building. The Exchange will be located in the recreation room on the ground floor, Shirley has announced. All books will be accepted there next Monday through Saturday. The Exchange will reopen for the first three weeks of the second semester.

Students are asked to realize that volunteer work in the Exchange will not be a semester objigation but will only last four weeks.

THE EXCHANGE hours will be 8:30 a m to 4:30 p m on weekdays. On Saturdays the Exchange will open at 8:30 a m but will close at 12 noon.

An information desk will be located in the Seminole dining hall lobby, Shirley said. A faculty book list will be posted at the information desk on Saturday. There will also be one posted in the FSU Book Store. Students are asked to check the list to see which books are to be accepted by the Exchange.

The Used Book Exchange will enable students to sell and procure old texts at reasonably reduced rates. The students will be given receipts or certificates with each book they turn in to the Exchange. They will present this certificate at the end of three week's operation or before. If not, the book will be returned to the owner.

The Book Exchange is a junior class project and has been modeled after two successful exchanges in operation at New York University.

Special Reporter Meet

Students wishing to be reporters on the Flambeau during the coming semester are asked to attend a special meeting, today at 5 p m in the Flambeau office.

Those attending are asked to bring a copy of the schedule they have arranged for the coming semester. Students in reporting classes, as well as students having reportorial experience are desired.

Newspaper Confab Will Be Held Here

Advertising, Circulation To Be Emphasized March 9

Practical problems of the press will be examined at the first annual Southern Newspapermen's Short Course to be conducted by the School of Journalism, March 9 and 10.

Emphasis will be on advertising and circulation as well as editorial leadership, according to Dean Laurence R Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism. Newspapermen will also have an opportunity to see the Fairchild engraved in operation at the Tallahassee Democrat.

OLIVER Emmerich, acclaimed in the January Reader's Digest for his record as a crusading editor, will be among the speakers. He is the publisher of the McComb, Mississippi, Enterprise-Journal.

Headline speakers also include Ralph Keller, field manager of the Minnesota Editorial association; Neil O Davis, publisher of the prize-winning "Lee County Bulletin" in Alabama; Philip Ward Burton, author of "Advertising Copy Writing."

Two panels are scheduled. Kenneth Ballinger, capitol representative of the Florida Press association, will be moderator for a discussion on "Looking at the Legislature." J M Tapers, publisher of the Tallahassee Democrat, will conduct a panel on "Newspaper Problems in a Cold War."

REPORTS based on two research projects will be presented. Wilbur Peterson will discuss "Building Classified Advertising," data gathered in his statewide study. Dr Richard B Ende will report findings of his study of wire copy used in Florida dailies.

The program will open with registration at 8:30, March 9, with the first session at 9:15. The luncheon will be at 12:15 and the dinner at 6:30, President Doak S Campbell will greet the guests at the dinner.

The Saturday morning session will open at 9 o'clock and close at noon. Newspaper men may attend the matinee concert of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra on Saturday.

Journalism School Takes School Survey

The question of how many Florida high schools have student newspapers and yearbooks may soon be answered through a school press census now being conducted by the School of Journalism.

Dr Laurence Campbell, dean of the school, said each high school in the state is being requested to report its student publications and data about its journalistic activities.

When the census is completed, Dean Campbell said, plans are to prepare a mimeographed school press directory to be sent to the participating schools and others interested in secondary education.

The "flying professor" traveled to the Air Base and will return in an Air Force plane. He will be working with Air Force officers, who already have at least a master's degree in science or engineering.

Frat Gets Cigars, Hint From ZTA's

Here's a neat trick perpetrated by some neat tricks of the Beta Gamma chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha at FSU.

A few of the gals got together, bought some boxes of cigars and had special cigar bands made featuring the Sigma Nu insignia.

Then they presented the smokes to the Sigma Nu lads, the cigar boxes wrapped in stickers reading "You need not inhale to enjoy a cigar. You need not look beyond ZTA to enjoy a date!"

Pretty subtle, Huh?

Justice of the University Court, said that they were a good group because the student courts could discuss cases with freedom and get facts from them the courts "may have missed" in their investigation of the cases. Bo also said that the deans "are very good and very sensible in discussing all cases" with court members.

Upon closing the forum, Allan Head, Forums Chairman of the UOA, said "I think there is no question as to the advisability of progressive change in the Judicial System, but there still remains a question as to how best make the needed changes. This forum today has made it evident that the most logical way to begin court improvement is through reform of the social rules now in effect on women students here. There out-moded restrictions hold back, not only the Judicial System, but the advancement of the whole University."

THE EDITOR'S POST

By EARL DOBERT

An interesting question was posed in the final session of the Senate Investigating committee of Who's Who.

Jim Turnbull asked the selection committee of Who's Who, which consisted of four University Council members, under what authority the University Council had in starting Who's Who this year. It seems that Who's Who was abolished in last year's Seminole.

It is a precedent in law that the people who abolishes an act is the only body that can reintroduce an act. It wasn't done that way this year but this isn't unusual since the University Council is used to usurping powers of other councils.

They legislate, they judicate and sometimes they even execute. Say, that's not a bad idea at-tall.

But back to the Investigation. President Rube Askew, who was at the carpet, tried to discredit the entire investigation by asking that authority that body had. He pointed out that Turnbull was only a Freshman and wasn't up to what goes on in the University but taste for a president.

It would seem the selection committee had been trying to hide the way they avoided the issues and questions when they arose. This evaluation of the selection committee to bare how in Who's Who they were formed at. They hemmed and hawed and never did give the answer.

They said it would not be fair to everyone if their points were made known. I defended the point that it was not everyone but they self reveled that they had something outside. It looks like it.

Another point brought out in the investigation was the high honor belonging to a scholastic honorary which received points and also receiving points for your scholastic average. This is a fraternity. Name of it? Gamma Sigma Sigma. Name of it? Lambda Delta Lambda and that is the end of it. They do not have any projects.

Also there is the point that a committee awarded half points to their own discretion when they appeared to be deserving of it.

Of course, there is always the hint that the number of points given for honors and achievements was never published in the paper prior to the time that votes were supposed to turn their name in.

The December 12, 1950 issue of the paper stated: "This list, showing activities and honors" to be in the Dean of Student Affairs Office before Wednesday at 4:30 p.m. . . . The selection procedure will be announced on Friday's Flambeau."

This means the committee did not even know what proceedures they were to use so how

Dead Week or Not? No One Can Tell Us

Controversy over whether Florida State University has a "dead week" or was not solved yesterday at press time.

Action of last year's University Council abolished the traditional period immediately preceding finals week. Yesterday's meeting of the present council did not see any action on the matter.

Dean of Students Katherine Warwick asked the council whether the week's vacation had been done away with.

Dean of Men President Rube Askew that it does. "No meetings to be scheduled one week before finals and no parties may be held five days prior to exam week," he ordered. He failed to mention that the University Council was meeting regularly each week according to his statement, this week will be dead week.

Dean Warwick also stated that the Flambeau contact Rube for further information, but he could not be reached for comment at deadline time.

The Used Book Exchange will begin operation Monday morning in the recreation room on the second floor of the Loogmire building at 8:30.

The Exchange will function Monday through Saturday of exam week from 8:30 until 4:30 daily with the exception of Saturday. Saturday hours are from 8:30 until noon.

INVESTIGATORS—The Senate investigating committee asks questions of the Who's Who selection committee. The members of the investigating committee are, in the usual order, Nancy Rattia ,Margaret Kraemer, Jim Turnbull and Betty Rich. Turnbull and Rich are co-chairmen of the committee.

Who's Who Selection Mode Not Aired at UGA Inquiry

An attempt was made Wednesday afternoon to air the means of selection used in announcing seniors who had been named to Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges. An investigation of the selection committee was conducted at 4:30 p.m. in the Senate Chamber of the Alumni Building by a special University Senate Committee appointed expressly for this purpose.

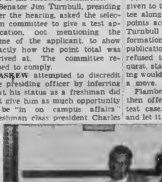
Flambeau Editor Earl Dobert offered the use of his application in the honorary in order to clarify how the total number of points accredited to each applicant was arrived at. The Selection Committee ignored Dobert's request.

Rube Askew, president of the University Government association, had previously expressed a doubt of the authority of the Senate group and refused to give complete information concerning the actual choice of any applicant for Who's Who. Askew was a member of the selection committee.

Senator Jim Turnbull, presiding over the hearing, asked the selection committee to give a test application, not implicating the name of the applicant, to show exactly how the point total was arrived at. The committee refused to comply.

Askew attempted to discredit the presiding officer by inferring that his status as a freshman did not give him as much opportunity to be "in on campus affairs" Freshman chair-president Charles Curtis quickly rose to the defense of his class in saying, "I resent the inference that I, as a freshman, have no business here. We are just as interested to campus affairs as any other class."

Turnbull also asked that the applications of every senior be given to the investigating committee along with a summary of the points accredited to each one. Turnbull stipulated that this information would not be open for publication. The committee again refused to comply with the request, stating that they felt nothing would be accomplished by such a move.



Flambeau Editor Earl Dobert then offered his application as a test case. "Use my application, and let it be used for publication," Dobert said. "Let my name be known and also my activities. I'm not afraid to know how I was selected," he continued.

CASS YONGE, also a member of the selection committee, asked if the entire investigating committee was in favor of airing the Who's Who applications. The committee replied that they had not had a formal meeting prior to the hearing and would like to do so before they gave their decision.

Dobert again insisted that they use his application, but Askew ignored the request saying in an undertone, "Some people are ovaries aren't they."

Dobert requested last night that his name be withdrawn from those chosen for the "dubious honor.

Askew Doubts Authority Of UGA Investigating Group

Rube Askew made the first statement before the Senate Committee investigating Who's Who selection procedures Wednesday afternoon by saying "We are in doubt as to the authority of this committee to investigate our procedures, but we will go along with the proceedings" . . . The students may feel we're trying to hide something, but I assure you we are not. . . . I will answer your question as long as they go along the right lines.

Bob Lanigan next said that he "wanted it understood that he would stand for the investigation so long as it was only an investigation of the Who's Who committee. . . . If any individuals are brought up — like Bill Waters — I'm getting up and walking out."

Lanigan, Senior Class President, later drew a paper from his pocket and said that since the investigators "seemed to be interested in Bill Waters," he would give them the facts on that case. "I didn't want to do this, but here it is."

Vice President in Charge of Women's Affairs Cass Yonge and UGA President Rube Askew both told Lanigan not to continue with any information on Bill Water's case.

IN ANSWER to the question, "Who drew up the point system used in Who's Who selection?" President Askew said: "A subcommittee of the Who's Who Committee consisting of myself and Cass Yonge drew up a very basic system of selection by points which was later revised and passed by the Committee.

When asked if he considered the point system completely fair, Askew replied, "Are you asking us, or do you feel that you already know the answer?" Askew stated that if Turnbull couched his questions in an interrogative manner rather than accusative, he would be more apt to get answers.

SENATOR Jim Turnbull, an Investigating Committee Co-Chairman, asked the Who's Who Committee to submit a record of the basis on which each individual person was selected or rejected for Who's Who.

Askew answered, "The procedure itself is not a secret. If you read the FLAMBEAU you would know how the selections were made."

Cass Yonge said: "If you don't believe the Who's Who committee consisting of myself and

Committee Investigation Continues on Who's Who

Turnbull, Rich Conduct Meet To Be Held in Longmire Today

The second hearing of the University Senate Investigating committee will hear more evidence in the probe of Who's Who selections this afternoon when they met at 5:45 p m in the Senate Chambers of the Alumni building.

A statement released to the Flambeau yesterday afternoon said that no decision or recommendations have been reached by the committee but the entire organization and selections are being reviewed.

THE HEARING today will again call on the members of the selection committee of Who's Who. They are Rube Askew, Cass Yonge, Bill Hayes and Bob Lanigan. This same group appeared before the first hearing held last Wednesday.

The Investigators said they would ask questions concerning the selection and granting of points and the manner of final selection at today's session.

Members of the investigating committee are Betty Rich and Jim Turnbull, co-chairmen, Margaret Kraemer, Nancy Rattie, Jimmie Evans, Burton Welch and Margaret Kennon.

Today's inquiry will be open to the public it was announced by Turnbull.

AT THE FIRST session of the investigating committee, Rube Askew, UGA president, said he doubted the authority of the committee to probe the selection of Who's Who. He tried to discredit the chairman of the group by saying he was a freshman and wasn't up on campus affairs.

Wednesday's hearing revealed the Who's Who board by Who's Who. It was discussed by Askew.

At one point in the meeting Earl Dobert, Flambeau editor, asked that his points be used as an example of how the system worked. The selection committee evaded this and said they did not think any particular student should be made public.

YESTERDAY, in a letter to Rube Askew, Dobert said he wanted his name taken from the list of Who's Who candidates.

Turnbull asked that all points for each candidate be turned over to the investigating committee for examination. The selection group failed to comply with this request

Senate to Check On Co-Ed Visiting In FSU Infirmary

A committee composed of Cass Yonge, Seminole, and Bill Hayes, Pennell was set up by University Council acting Wednesday evening to investigate the possibility of co-educational visiting hours in the FSU Infirmary. Cass Yonge stated this committee would use material made available by the Senate Committee which looked into the same subject in November of 1950.

Bill Hayes made a motion that the Social Standards and Calendar of Events Committee submit a draft of their proposed Social Standards to the Council before turning it over to the deans for final approval. The motion was seconded by Allan Head, was passed.

Will Pennell was approved as a student member of the University Civil Defense Committee. The Council co-ordinate student participation in the activities of this committee. The council stressed that although FSU is not a probable bomb target, it "would be better to have it the Civil Defense Organization and not need it, than need it and not have it."

Unanimous acceptance of Alan Healy's proposed method of dividing Campus Chest Funds was voted by the council. The money will go to WBSF, 60 per cent; Red Cross, 10 per cent; polio, 10 per cent; cancer, 10 per cent, and the University Student Welfare fund, 10 per cent. The Student Welfare fund will be given at the discretion of the University Council for worthy charitable purposes."

Last Issue Of Paper

This is the last issue of the Flambeau for this semester, stated Editor Earl Dobert yesterday.

The Flambeau will resume publication next semester with the first issue slated for February 13.

Campus Grass Week By Junior Class Slated February 10

"The grass's weak." "I want to be alone." and "Your feet are killing me." are just a few of 30 signs that will announce "Campus Grass Week," a project of the junior class. "Campus Grass Week," will be February 10 through 17.

"The idea is to help students form the habit of using sidewalks instead of walking on the grass," announced chairman Mac Gautier.

The 30 signs have been made by the maintenance department and will be placed at each end of the worn dirt paths.

In front of the infirmary will be the sign, "Grass is Sick. NO visitors."

On either side of the ragged path near the music building these signs will remind students are: "Grass? G minor dead," and "Mud is better than grass."

This project has been planned in cooperation with the construction of the new gymnasium.

"THIS," said Mr Walker, "is to eliminate the usual contention due to students' sprawling on floors and stairs." The back of the course schedule book is the trial schedule.

After having his cards checked, each student will go to the Fee Card Table where he will get his fee card and identification card. After he has been signed up for his separate courses, with permission of his dean for underload or overload, every student must get the signature of his counselor or major professor on his IBM schedule cards.

NEXT, all cards should be presented at the Registrar's Table and the Business Office Table, and if finances are entirely clear the student may turn in all IBM cards at the Exit Table and leave. All fees must have been taken care of or registration cannot be completed.

Late registration will be possible on Monday, February 12, with the payment of a $5.00 fee. Courses may be changed from the 12th through the 17th without their appearing on the permanent record.

The office of the registrar was moved to the south end of lower Westcott, rooms 100 A, B and C. The IBM room will remain in its present location — Westcott basement.

Frosh Prexy Names Carnival Chairmen

Committee chairmen for the Freshman Carnival were appointed this week by Charles Curtis, class president.

The Carnival has been tentatively scheduled for March 31, in the East campus gymnasium, Curtis said. Ardis Bourland, class vice president, was named general chairman for the event.

Other chairmen include Judy Simpkins, decorations; Kay Feltham, concessions; Katherine Mann, prizes; Mandel Arnold, clean-up; Doodie Brunsen, floor; Carlton Hule, publicity; Marilyn Wolpert, features; Jimmy McCarthy, food; John Adams and Warren Cobb, skit; and Joyce Whiddon, finance.

Joyce Whiddon, runner-up in the election for class treasurer, was named to the office by Curtis succeeding Dollie Eubanks who is dropping out of school. Joyce is a member of Village Vamps and is Kappa Delta pledge treasurer.

BY AND FOR AMERICANS

Ballet Theatre Opens Next Monday

On its annual nation-wide tour, prior to its spring season at New York's Metropolitan Opera House, Ballet Theatre will appear at FSU in its itinerary. It will appear on the Artist Series in Westcott Auditorium next Monday and Tuesday at 8:15 p m.

"Ballet by and for Americans" is the company's byword according to its directors, Lucia Chase and Oliver Smith, who believe that their troupe has advanced for toward its goal and establishing a company "American in character and internationally famous."

The troupe of one hundred includes a corps de ballet led by Nora Kaye, Diana Adams, Joho Kriza, and Mary Ann Moylan, plus a symphony orchestra and technical staff.

Three seventy-foot baggage cars are required to transport the elaborate scenery, costumes, properties and lighting equipment for the repertory of twenty ballets, from which the following have been selected for the programs here:

Theme and Variations, Fall River Legend, Rodeo, and a Pas de Deux Monday, and on Tuesday, Les Sylphides, Interplay, Billy the Kid, and Pas de Deux.

THE BALLET THEATRE will make it's appearance on the Florida State campus next Monday and Tuesday evenings. Two of the featured performers are Alicia Alonso and Igor Youskevitch.

Registration Set for Spring On February 10

Walker Sets February 9 For Special Students; Late Enrollment Feb 12

Geoeral registration for the spring semester will begin at 8:00 o'clock Saturday, February 10 in the East campus gymnasium. Graduates, transfers, and students with special permission register a day earlier, February 9.

Mr Charles H Walker, registrar, said that his office had attempted to streamline the procedure and that actually the facilitation of registration depends upon how well students follow directions. He emphasized that all cards except the two IBM schedule cards must be filled out in ink before a student may enter the gymnasium.

"THIS," said Mr Walker, "is to eliminate the usual contention due to students' sprawling on floors and stairs." The back of the course schedule book is the trial schedule.

After having his cards checked, each student will go to the Fee Card Table where he will get his fee card and identification card. After he has been signed up for his separate courses, with permission of his dean for underload or overload, every student must get the signature of his counselor or major professor on his IBM schedule cards.

The office of the registrar was moved to the south end of lower Westcott, rooms 100 A, B and C. The IBM room will remain in its present location — Westcott basement.

New Color ID Cards

Student Identification cards will be all-ivlon colored next semester. Students are asked to save the plastic cases on the cards they now have as no new cases will not be issued. This is due to a shortage of materials, said John T Flournoy, director of Personnel Records.

Sigma Xi Presents Known Scientists

Dr Russell S Poor and Dr L S Lashley, two widely known scientists, are being brought to Florida State University during February by Sigma Xi as part of a series of lectures open to the public.

Dr Poor, who is chairman of the University Relations Division of the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies will speak February 5 in the main auditorium of the Science building. Dr Lashley, director of the Yerkes Laboratories of Primate Biology, will speak on "Fixed Structures and Shifting Functions in the Brain" on February 28.

Dining Hall Awards Gift Certificates

Seven Students Receive Prizes for Superior Work

Gift certificates were awarded to the seven most outstanding employees of the FSU dining halls, on Wednesday. These awards, given on the basis of superior service, are for $50. They were presented to the winning students at the first meeting of the dining hall staff and student employees, held in the Suwanee Room.

Patricia Connally received the highest award for the girls, and Lamar Powell was awarded the first prize for the boys. The second place certificates were given to Terry Porter and Howard G Stevens. Alberta Brethaner received third prize for the girls. Edward Gary and Garold Stedman tied in the third place running for the boys.

Dr J Broward Culpepper awarded the certificates, after which he praised the winning students for their good work and initiative. The certificates are given on a point basis, and each student is graded by the dietition who supervises his or her work. The same awards will be given at the end of the second semester. The students who received awards for the first semester will not be eligible to win again until next year, however.

Mr Adams, the dining halls manager, also commended the winning students for their outstanding co-operation, and urged all of the student employees to strive for the award.

FSU Public Ad Class Hears Chief Justice

Chief Justice H L Sebring of the Florida Supreme Court spoke on the operations of Florida's judicial system before a public administration class in state government on Wednesday.

The chief justice, introduced by Dr E Maxwell Benton, in charge of the class, traced the history of the state's court system from the time Florida was admitted as a state in the union. He defined the present system as it was worked out following many constitutional changes and amendments.

"CLASSIFYING the courts generally," he stated, "it may be said that the Supreme Court is an 'appellate' court, while other courts in the states, are in the main, 'trail' courts." He explained the functions of the lower courts is to hear all the facts in a case, then make a lawful decision.

"But it must be understood that the supreme court never tries a case anew," he said. "When a case is properly appealed from one of the inferior courts, the supreme court must decide whether the case was tried in a constitutional manner."

Though there have been many changes in the state's court system the constitution presently calls for seven supreme court justices, he said, and every two years these members select one of their number to act as chief justice. Justice Sebring was only recently elected to that position.

IN MANY CASES, he said, the court operates in two divisions of three members each, with the chief justice presiding over each. In such cases, one panel hears the case, then the other, and finally they join to reach a decision. There are certain types of cases, however, which require all tho members to hear the case as a group he added.

Justice Sebring told the class that he felt every citizen should know of the responsibilities of the state supreme court.

"Statistics show," he asid, "that supreme courts of the 48 states try an average of 246 cases each year." To demonstrate the load assumed by Florida's supreme judicial branch, he pointed out that this state panel disposes of an average of 550 to 1,000 cases each year.

This is a tremendous load, he pointed out, and places a grave responsibility upon the members of his judicial branch of the government.

Christian Students Studying Judaism

The university group of the Capital Christian church, in its study of comparative religion, is at present considering Judaism.

Friday night the group attended the service at Temple Israel. On Sunday night Rabbi Julius Kravets was present at the group's meeting to give an over-all picture of his religion and to answer questions concerning Jewish beliefs.

Next Sunday night the group will continue its study of Judaism by discussing the various aspects of the older religion that have been carried over into Christianity.

Grad Workshop Set By Welfare Dept

The Florida State University School of Social Welfare is holding a workshop, designed to increase the efficiency of graduate student supervision—block placement in an agency setting, February 2-4.

Miss Annie Laurie McElhenie, assistant professor and director of field work in Social Welfare, will serve as conference chairman.

Who's Who

In a letter to the UGA President Dobert said:

"Dear Mr Askew:

"In light of the findings of the current investigation of the procedures used in selecting Who's Who candidates, I request that my name be removed from the list of the 31 selected for this dubious honor.

"I cannot, due to my convictions, be linked with an organization considered a racket. The man that prints the book and sells the keys is purely in the business for selfish motives. The book he produces is not a standard reference work and is therefore valueless. You will not even find a copy in the Florida State University library.

"The manner in which the candidates were chosen leaves a great deal to be desired. I was perplexed in the investigation meeting when my points were not aired at my request. What is the secret? You told me yourself the number of points I had. In addition, you told me that points of some of the other candidetes. Why the discretion now?

"EVEN AFTER my name is removed from the list, I would like the points to be made known. Some of the members of the investigating committee said they did not think it fair for one person's points to be made public and not have others made public; I have esked several of the candidates if they would object to this. Betsy Blanton, Anne Scudder and Montrell Sessions have expressed the desire that they would allow their points to be made public.

"If you do not consider this a mandate, it shall be construed that the selection committee has something to hide. I trust you can see the logic in this.

"It is disappointing to me that this year's version of Who's Who could not have gone over in the method of selection. I believe the actions of the selection committee at the hearing yesterday spoke too plainly for those present.

"With kind personal regards, I am,

"Sincerely yours,
"EARL DOBERT."

ASKEW THEN proceeded to announce the various point brackets and organizations which were given credit. He declined to reveal exactly how many points the committee awarded the epplicants for participation in these organizations.

At the suggestion of the selection committee the hearing was adjourned since University Council was scheduled to meet in the Senate chamber at that time.

Sandi Horton has been named to replace Herb Reinhard as chairman of the Sandspur production, Gypsy Holiday.

The temporary appointment was made by UGA President Rube Askew after Reinhard was called into service Tuesday. Sandi's appointment was approved after her fellow Sandspur workers picked her as their choice for a successor.

CARL BEELER, who has been substituting for Reinhard, is ineligible for the position due to a clause in the UGA constitution which will not allow graduate students to hold the job. Beeler will continue to work with Sandspur in an unofficial capacity.

Reinhard himself was appointed temporary chairman of Sandspur midwey through production last year when Harry Lynch withdrew from school. He was elected chairman of the 1951 production during the UGA elections last spring.

Reinhard was ordered to report Wednesday morning at 8 a m at the Jacksonville Naval Base and will be sent to San Diego for training.

SANDI, who has directed the dancing since the beginning of Gypsy Holiday, will continue to work with the dancers. She was also in charge of the tap chorus for the 1950 production Make Up Your Heart.

Tickets for Gypsy Holiday and the Sandspur dance will go on sale early next semester. Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra will play for the Sandspur dance this year. There will be only a limited number of tickets sold to the dance. This is to keep the dance from becoming too crowded the chairman asid.

FOR THE FIRST time a complete Sandspur rehearsal will be staged in Westcott auditorium beginning Saturday at 1:30.

Both the cast and the tap and kick choruses will have their first practice with the 25-piece pit orchestra.

Bill Backus, stage director, will obtain the use of several trucks to bring the sets from the Gypsy Playhouse to Westcott so that the cast is able to rehearse with the exact props which will be on stage opening night.

BACKUS will also try out different lighting schemes so that the group will adjust to the variating colored spotlighting.

Notices of this rehearsal have been posted on several bulletin boards to stress the importance and necessity of all members of the cast chorus and orchestra being there and on time. This will be the last rehearsal before midsemester vacation.

and said nothing could be accomplished if this were done.

The Investigation halted after an hour since it was time for a University council meeting in that room.

The Investigation committee met again for an hour and a half yesterday afternoon. It was at this meeting they prepared the above statement for release to the Flambeau.

should the student be able to tell? Points were given for committees. Most people didn't know that or they would have listed committees. Points were given for being an officer in a club. Most people did not know this and just listed the club.

The entire selection process was vague. It should have been made known to the students before they were to hand in their list of activities.

Perhaps that is the reason the Who's Who selections are being probed, Mr Askew. Perhaps that is why they are asking you all those questions you refuse to answer. Perhaps that is why the entire student body wants to know about the procedure. You could help, Mr Asker, by answering the questions put to you instead of saying the committee has no authority to investigate.

Getting the right man in the right job is something in which the armed services have never excelled. But it's as right as rain that Tallahassee Safety Council got a "solid citizen" to head their worthwhile work for the coming year. Tuesday the group elected own Dr Howard Danford president, to guide the program of bringing a higher degree of safety to Floride's capital city.

Dr Danford is no novice at handling traffic problems—auto or athletic. On the latter the big fellow has been unjustly criticized as FSU's director of athletics by those who did not bother to get the facts. To know Danford is to love and admire him.

The local safety group knew that Danford was the man for the post. His doctorate thesis was written an "Safety Education" while at New York University. At NYU Danford was for two years assistant to the school's director of safety. He then served for seven years as supervisor af safety education in Madison, Wisconsin.

On the subject of driving safety Danford pointed out that "people have not been educeted to drive properly." On sports he stated that "if the danger is removed from athletics you take much of the value and appeal from them. At FSU we attempt to teach our athletes to meet hazards and overcome them.

"Safety should be first unless there ere values at stake which supersede it. If we placed it first we'd never be in war."

Quoting from Danford's own book entitled "Safety Education for Teachers," we can further sea that his term as president will be a successful one. "Safaty is not simply a subject to be learned, facts to be memorized, information to be acquired. Safety education is a way of living. It is e metter of information, of ettitude, of skill and habit, of social consciousness, of judgment and understanding, and of ability to weigh values. It is each of these and more because the whole is greater than the sum of its parts."

On Your Mark

By JEAN WETHERELL

Probably, one of the things a ... looks forward to most is the ... the Circus comes to town. ... week the youngsters in St Petersburg, Floride were all excited about the circus arriving in ... This was not just an ordinary circus, but it was the FSU ... "Flying High."

This spectacular show is made up mainly of girls, although there are a number of boys in the act. Actually, while looking through the program of acts from the St Pete show, I am amazed by the number of girls participating in the performance.

Let's take a look at one of these ... and some of the acts that make this show one of the outstanding college presentations. One of the largest and most elaborate acts presented in the three ring circus is the "Swinging Ladders." With two girls swinging on each of the five pairs of ladders it is a brilliant display. One really has to see this act to know how delightful it really is.

They say the most fascinating of the Big Top acts is the "Cloud ..." I've never seen this act, but I asked my roommate and some of the other circus performers to explain it and this is approximately the answer I got. "It consists of a rope, sort of like a jump rope; way up in the air; between two poles; and with two loops for the girl's hands." Then they drew a series of pictures showing the act, and still I can't explain it to anyone.

The final act and crowning triumph of the FSU Circus consists of the "Web Act" and the "Girl in the Moon." The "Web Act" was also explained to me by my acrobatic friends, but I won't attempt to repeat their descriptive interpretations. I do understand the "Girl in the Moon," which is the finale done by Miss Bobbie Jones of St Petersburg. It seems she stands in a crescent moon during the last act and then winds up the show by spinning on a leather strap held in her teeth.

The girls in this unusual show work hard and deserve a big hand of applause, as does Jack Haskins who originated this show three years ago.

FSU Pointing To Improve State Record

Florida State University's basketball team left town Wednesday morning on its most important road trip of the year. Coach Bud Kennedy's high scoring Seminoles met the University of Tampa Spartans at Tampa last night, rest today, then take on the Staetson University Hatters at DeLand tomorrow night.

Victories by Florida State in both of these contests would move the Seminoles right up with the leaders in the race for state intercollegiate cage honors. FSU had a 9-8 record against all opponents and a 3-2 mark in state competition before last night's Tampa battle.

Both contests are return games for the Seminoles. They lost a thrilling one point decision, 67-66, to Stetson here two weeks ago, and upset the Spartans, also in the West campus gym, 80-69, last week.

The Seminoles are currently enjoying the most successful season in the school's history, with victories to date over College of Charleston, Connecticut State Teachers, University of Mississippi, Mercer University, University of Tampa, Florida Southern College twice, and Howard College twice. In addition to the Stetson loss, Florida State has also lost to David Lipscomb and the University of Miami.

SETTING the pace for Bud Kennedy's cagers this season has been Guard Bob Hartman, the hustling Hoosier from South Bend, Indiana, who has ripped the cords for 196 points in 12 games for a 18.3 scoring average. Hartman is also a great play-maker and a good rebound man.

The other Florida State basketballers expected to be in the starting lineup against Stetson tomorrow night include rangy Bob Whitmer, who has racked up 134 points for the Tribe, Bud Scott, Bud Marsee, and either Lou Fischer or Dick Trobaugh. Hartman and Marsee will hold down the forward slots, Whitmer will be at center, and Scott and either Fischer or Trobaugh will start at guards. Both Fischer and Trobaugh have been waging a great battle for a starting positino at guard in recent games.

Also making the trip and expected to see plenty of action are Ronnie Nettles, Larry Dickson, Whitey Wyman and Irwin Quinn.

Florida State's next home game is scheduled against Loyola University of New Orleans February 9, the date which begins registration for tha second semester.

Seminole Swimmers Face Georgia Tomorrow Night

Florida State University's swimming team, victorious in its two opening meets this year, is scheduled to tangle with the University of Georgia Bulldogs at Athens tomorrow night.

Coach Bim Stults' Florida State swimmers toppled the Georgia tankmen in Tallahassee January 18 by a 43-32 score. Since that time tho Seminole tankers have also defeated Pensacola Navy and Georgia has won dual meets against University af Florida and University of Miami.

The FSU mermen, who won seven out of nine meets last year, have been on a record setting spree this season.

In the Georgia meet, Co-captain Walter Jardine of the Seminoles set a new 200-yard free style pool record of two minutes 06.8 seconds. Then at Pensacola Jardine broke his own mark by two-tenths of a second.

SOPHOMORE Dick Wells set a new pool record of 4.5 seconds in the 100-yard free style against Georgia and Jack White, another Seminole star, tied the school record for the 50-yard free style event when he swam it in 24.6 seconds.

Florida State and Georgia met twice last season, the Bulldogs winning at Athens and the Seminoles at Tallahassee. With the Georgians fast rounding into the for mthat brought them second place in the Southeastern Conference meet last season, tomorrow's meet with FSU is reted a toss-up.

Following the Georgia meet, Florida State will swim against the following teams: Georgia Tech, Miami, Pensacola Navy, Emory and Clemson. The Pensacola Navy, Emory and Clemson meets are scheduled here. A second meet with Miami will be scheduled at a later date, but will be held here.

Rob Blaik, son of Army's football coach Earl (Red) Blaik, has won major letters in football, baseball and hockey at the Academy.

Odd-Even Tilt Again Won By Freshmen

The traditional Odd-Even girls basketball intramurals led to another consecutive win for the Freshmen Junior team Tuesday afternoon in the annual tournament final with a 33 to 31 victory.

Pat Crum and Nancy Lane racked up 10 points each against the evently matched Odds while Jo Ann Young held high score for the defeated Odds with 13 points. Athansson held a close second top scorer to Young with 10 points.

The Odds displayed a plucky spirit throughout the tournament bout and only bowed to the Evens by two points as Young looped the final two points for the Odds into the basket just as the timekeeper called game.

The Odd team held a matching lead throughout the first half with 18 points, against the 19 of the Green and Gold. The speed and accuracy of Crum and Lane however held luck, while Mary Louise De Wolf was their major defense operator.

The Evens again upheld their win against the Red and White in spite of the evenly balanced speed of the teams. Even technique won out.

Participants in the entire game were, for the Even team, Pet Crum, Charlotte West Nancey Albury, Nancy Lane, Pat Folsom, Mary Louise De Wolf, Jackie Morrison, Martha Eikel, Polly Lassiter, Lucy Hargrave, Mert Herndon, Beatrice De Merritt.

Members of the Odd team were Jo Ann Young, Anna Athansson, Betty Sue Barber, Joan Solomon, Patricia Sharr, Joan Webb, Sally Ellis, Eule MacWilliams, Patricia Gerdean, Marilyn Cobb, and Mary Browdar, and Petriciel Temple.

Timekeeper was Betty Gurney, scorekeeper, Margaret Erikson, referees, Miss Ann Langford and umpire, Miss Catharine Sullivan.

Leader of the Odd team is Loraine Larson, senior, and leeder of the Evens, Mary Louise DeWolf, Junior.

Robert MacMurdie Grasson, Yale's fencing coach, was a fencing master in the Belgian army. He has coached the Eli swordsmen since 1921.

Navy Defeats FSU Gymnasts 51-45 Count

Florida State University's gymnastics team suffered its second setback at the hands of a strong Navy team Monday by a 51-54 score.

The Middies gained their margin of victory in tha rope climb as Nell and Burke both broke the acedemy record, leading Navy to 10 points in the meet.

Florida State had previously beaten Maryland and Deleware and lost to Army.

Bill Roetzheim put on a terrific ona man show for the Seminoles, winning the side horse and high bar and placing second in tumbling. The FSU aca was limited to three events by eastern intercollegiate rulings.

Here's how the Seminoles finished in the Navy meet:

Sida horse — Roetzheim, first; Vinik, second; Joe Regna, fifth.

High bar — Roetzheim, first; Carmine Regna, third; Vrettos, fifth.

Parallel bar — Carmine Regna, second; Joe Regna, third; Vrettos, fifth.

Flying rings—Joe Regna, second; Carmine Regna, fourth.

Tumbling — Roetzheim, second; Platt, third.

FSU Adds Sul Ross 11 To 1951 Grid Schedule

Florida State University's head football coach Don Veller announced late yesterday that the Seminolea will meet Sul Ross College of Alpine, Texaa in Tallahassee on October 20.

The addition of Sul Ross now gives the Seminoles seven eames for next fall. Two open dates remein on the schedule but Veller pointed out they will be filled next week.

The seven Seminoles opponents are: Troy State Teachers, Miami, Sul Ross, Stetson, Wofford, Tampa, and Bradley. The Troy, Sul Ross, Stetson, Wofford, and Bredley games will be played in Campbell stadium.

The 'Lobos' are not a mamber of any conference but play leading independent and Border conference teams annually.

Coach of the Sul Ross eleven is Paul 'Red' Pierce, a former player at the University of Texas. Pierce has enjoyed great success at the Alpine school. In 1948 the Lobos were one of the nation's 13 undefeated and untied elevens. That team won ten games and scored 431 points while holding the opposition to 113 The Lobos led the nation in '48 in total scoring.

January 1, 1949 the Lobos met Murray State in the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando. The game was a 21-21 deadlock.

In 1949 the Lobos won seven games, losing three. They scored 318 points to their opponents' 193.

During the 1950 American league baseball season, little Phil Rizzuto went 58 straight games without an error to erase the previous shortstop mark of 42 made by Eddie Joost in 1947-1948.

FSU Golfers Open Against Rollins Mar 9

FSU's 1950 varsity golf season opens March 9 when the Seminole golfers, coached by Bob Harbison, travel to Winter Park for a match with Rollins. The following day they play Stetson in DeLand.

The first home match will be March 20 with the University of Georgie.

The only other scheduled event so far is the Florida Intercollegiate Tournament held March 22, 23 and 24 in DeLand.

Coach Harbison will have two, or possibly three, returning lettermen. Ted Hawitt and Dick Motney will be back and possibly Sonney Tinney.

New men who should help the team considerebly ere Eddie Johnson, Bud Marsee and Tom Cumbie. Johnson, a local boy, was high school champion last year by virtue of winning the state contest held in DeLand. Marsee was a member of Purdue's golf squad last year.

Although not affiliated with college athletics, the George Washington Birthday Tournament, held each year at the local golf course, will present many outstanding amateur golfers from throughout the southern part of the country.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 12 . . . THE MOURNING DOVE

"Some of them are pretty sad!"

Melancholy and dejected, this gloomy miss found little to titillate her in the recent deluge of quick-trick cigarette tests! She was not enthralled by the idea of judging cigarette mildness with just a fast puff or a single sniff. But, joy of joys! . . . happiness came to her when she discovered one test that left no doubt in her mind.

It was the sensible test! . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as a steady smoke — on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels — and only Camels — for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) we believe you'll know why . . .

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

● NATIONAL STANDARDS NEEDED FOR WHO'S WHO

Commendations are in order for the Senate Investigating Committee for their probe of the selection of candidates for the 1951 Who's Who.

Every year that campus leaders have been chosen for Who's Who, there has been some doubt expressed as to the validity of the process used in determining the persons to be selected. We are sorry that this year could not have been an exception.

Last year the University Senate abolished Who's Who from this campus. We thought that would be the end of the trouble. We are sorry to say it wasn't. If the University council had let well enough alone there would have been no bitterness this year toward the selections; there would have been no investigation of the selection. No one would have missed Who's Who if it had not occurred.

But we had to be plagued with it because it might get 31 people a job. What we want to know is how would it get them a job? The only people who read the book are those students who buy one. Employers don't run for a copy when a young college graduate applies for a job. The employer wouldn't even be able to locate a copy in a library. The book is not standard reference equipment.

The investigating committee attempted to find out by what method and by what criteria the members were selected to Who's Who. They were hamstrung in their efforts by refusal to answer questions and by evasions of the issue.

The selection committee did not at all present a clear picture of the selection process. They did, however, present their point system which was worked out by a sub-committee of the Who's Who committee.

It contained many loopholes and inadequacies.

The committee was vague in publicizing the grounds on which they would base their point system. As a matter of fact, they did not even draw up their system until after all the names were handed in to the committee. The selection committee did not specify they would award points for committee work. Many who would have made Who's Who failed to do so because of this inconsistency.

The point system should have been made available before people were asked to submit their names to the committee. It was not publicly aired until the investigating committee asked it be announced.

The selection committee was reluctant—and still is—to release the number of points each candidate received. One of the 31 Who's Whoers asked that his points be made known to the investigating committee. The selection committee refused to do so.

Is this fair? Is it fair to the students who came within a few points of being chosen for this honor? They would like to know how the committee assigned points. The best way for this to be done would have been an example of what had made it. They refused. What conclusions are we to draw?

There can be a solution to the Who's Who problem we have encountered over the last few years. A standard procedure for choosing candidates could be issue by a national committee. The same procedure should be used in every college and university in the United States. No argument could be raised then as to how people are selected. No arguments on the local level would be prevalent. No investigations would take place.

Until such time as a national standard can be drawn up, we would suggest that Florida State University not take an active part in "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities."

● ARE THE GATORS JUST PLAIN SCARED?

For the past year the Flambeau, representing the students of Florida State University, has been trying to promote athletic relations between our school and the University of Florida.

The State Board of Control still forbids our competing in football, but about a year ago lifted the restrictions against meeting in other sports.

The two schools have not met in any sport. Perhaps it would be well to lay the facts on the line at this time "just to keep the record straight."

Florida State University officials are aware that the restrictions have been lifted in sports other than football. These men have attempted to schedule the Gators since the restriction was relaxed in other sports. As the matter now stands FSU is still awaiting a decision from Florida, which in correspondence Bob Woodruff stated last May would be brought before the Gator Athletic Committee with regard to competing in sports other than football. No further word has been received from Woodruff.

We have been advised that the Florida coaches in other sports desire to compete with the Seminoles. When they brought the matter up they were told to keep quiet on the matter or were refused an answer.

As Winston Churchill once said: "I'll track the beast to his lair and smoke him out." Come out 'Dutch' Stanley, illustrous dean of the Florida school of physical education. Come out, gentlemen of the gentlemen of the press how you dislike FSU, how envious you are of its progress, how you loathe the thought, of competing with FSU, how you even turned your back on a number of FSU's representatives when introduced to them. You're a great sport 'Dutch' . . . tell them you're the log-jam in the deal.

"Dutch, do you think FSU is inferior to Florida? That doesn't click 'Dutch,' old boy. FSU defeated Tampa 80-69, in basketball. And the next night your Gators were defeated by that same Tampa five. The Seminole swimming team defeated Georgia, 43 to 32. The next afternoon the Bulldogs beat your Gator swimming team, 42 to 25. In baseball last spring our team did as well or better against common opponents as did your team. The same story in golf.

You see 'Dutch' you don't have a leg to stand on.

'Dutch,' now what reason can you give the taxpayers of Florida—who pay your salary—for not competing with FSU in these sports?

'Dutch' why don't you admit that you and your 'fighting Gators' are just plain scared of FSU?

● STUDY TIPS III

(Editor's note: The following article is the last in a series of three articles of study tips to be printed in the Flambeau. The suggestions are being offered by Mortar Board as an aid for study and as an effort to promote scholarship, one of its three ideals.)

Good Study Habits Include the Inevitable Review.—Your review should be often. Try setting aside an hour each week for each subject for review.

Above all, don't substitute memory for thinking. You should remember that several short frequent periods of studying give better results than one long period.

Your Study Schedule Should Give Some Consideration for the Eventual Physical Fitness.—(Our Last Parting Word). You can keep physically fit for studying by proper exercise, care of eyes, bodily intake and outgo, and play. It is important that you assume the proper physical and bodily attitude. Remember to sit straight when studying. Sleep and eat regularly during exams.

One important point to keep in mind is that mental efficiency changes very slightly during the school day. Interest, application, and willingness to work are the main elements.

For good study habits, here's a hint that you try developing these suggestions.

● FROSH STUDY HOURS

The Faculty Reviewing Board at their next meeting will consider a bill which will allow Freshmen women to have unlimited light cuts and unrestricted study hours.

It would behoove the Board to grant this permission to the Freshmen women since they are on an equal par with upperclassmen women inasmuch as they must study just as much as do upperclassmen.

The measure was passed unanimously by the Women's Senate. This should serve as a mandate for the Board to act favorably on the request.

ARE YOU READY FOR DEAD WEEK?

Dead week begins today . . . Dead things will start smelling before the weekend is over . . . and the way social activities have disappeared from the calender you can use the month of January for a scratch pad. Chances are you'll engage in some brightly colored games and see every movie in town before this ordeal is over. But then there are some students in our midst who will homestead the library and exam for finals. If you're in class 1-A . . . enroll yourself, it's later than you think!

There is one guy around campus that won't run out of something to do during dead week . . . indications are that he will be kept busy running back and forth from the post office to his room. There are people like me that never get any mail, and then there are people like Tommy Underwood that employ mail clerks on his college expense account. Underwood hasn't had any peace since last week when he and another resident from Senior Hall checked their mail boxes.

Underwood had just remarked to his chum, "guess I better give my box its weekly dusting." Then it happened . . . wham, bam . . . half the deadletter office slid on the floor! Underwood just stood there . . . surely there was some mistake . . . but no, it said on the envelopes, cartons and packages that they were all for one T C Underwood. One manufacturer is sending him, for inspection—free of charge, a set of encyclopedias on sex (These are supposed to be hot off the press) . . . and then another company sent him samples of the latest materials that are being used in fall their boots. Underwood is looking forward to trying out a new boot—about the size of an LST—during the rainy season.

Somebody got the idea that 108 pound Underwood needs some muscles . . . He received a trial offer from Charles Atlas, Incorporated. Just every up and coming company you can name is sending Underwood all kinds of free trial offers of this kind of cream, that kind of padding, and gobs of literature about the new kinds of building materials. Underwood even found it necessary to appeal to his fraternity brothers to stop this nonsense . . . word goes around that this is what the pledges call fun . . . one pledge was heard to remark that he was asking the Commerce department if they couldn't use Underwood as a source of retail information.

Shirley Hurlbert has the best system yet for defeating dead week blues—deadlines. The other night Shirley was just about ready to leave her room to take a shower when the shower room was flooded . . . the nomi went haywire and spurted water like Niagara Falls. Shirley immediately put on . . . or should I say took off . . . all suitable clothes and advanced toward the water like Caesar crossing the Rubicon and several rounds of artificial prespiration . . . the water stopped I heard she is now a member of Tallahassee Local No 291.

SNAP SHOTS . . . Ted Hewitt trying to woo in the Alpha Gam house after winning the house in a bridge game with Peggy Sparkman . . . FIRST Blue Arm student: "You don't even know what a binamist is." To which the second small fry exclaimed, "I sure do . . . it's a crowed up Billemist!" . . . A coed in one of the Longman halls caught the phone and answering, "Third floor. Who in the HALL do you want?" . . . the Sandspur cast bidding Herb Reinhard 'a reservoir' as he left for the West Coast . . . Bob Fuson, geography instructor and member of Georgia Bee's band, all smiles on the days that the cafeteria feeds him fo playing with the orchestra in the dining hall . . . and irritable as heck on the days that he doesn't get fed.

A TYPICAL DAY AT THE COAST

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

There were six of them clad in dungarees and ski shirts, sitting around the fire. They'd eaten ravenously after a day of swimming and playing baseball in the sand.

"How much beer do we have left?" asked the blonde boy. "We might as well finish it off and head for home."

One of the couples got to their feet and walked to the bucket where the fast-melting ice was keeping a few beers cool.

"There's eight cans. Everyone want one?" questioned the girl.

"Good, there's enough for us all with two to carry. Beer, this is."

With this, the couple began opening the cans and passing them out to the other four.

"Don't gulp 'em, girls," laughed the boy with the crew cut. "We've got plenty of time to get back to campus. It's only nine now and we'll be back by eleven. That'll give us time to change and go to the Grill for sandwiches and coffee."

Does this sound familiar? Lots of beach parties like this take place every weekend at the coast with crowds of FSU students jumping into cars at a moments notice and taking off for a day of fun. But there's just a little difference in where this party is held. If students from a "real" college are on the party they think "What fun we've had, and I'm starved already."

What goes on in the mind of an FSU coed is something like this. "Gee, we had fun, today, but when we go in we'll have to sneak in the side door so no one will catch us with beer on our breath. I hope we don't get caught, and if my roommate's home I can't even go in the room. She'll turn me in for sure. Gee, I guess maybe I shouldn't even have gone to the coast today. I knew there'd be beer drinking, but darn it, what's so wrong with beer. Mother lets me drink it at home. She never said beer drinking was bad', etc, etc, etc.

When a situation like this comes up in which an adult lives in fear when she does a commendable thing that would not be censured in the "outside world", there's something wrong somewhere.

Last week at the forum, a question was raised asking "why can't women drink on campus." The answer was that it is not the fault of the administration or the Board of Control. It is merely that some parents would not send their daughters to school here if they knew the girls were allowed to drink beer, therefore, there would be so much pressure brought upon the board and the administration that the rule would have to be rescinded or FSU would lose half of its population.

But on the other hand, Dinks University had the same drinking problem we have; that is, students weren't allowed to drink, so some of them went out and broke the rule anyway. They changed the regulation and it is reported now that the problem is not nearly so great.

How about giving the parents a chance to speak. We may be surprised . . . we might find that quite a few parents trust their girls . . .

Afraid to live when life was ours
I ponder now what might have been
An Arcadian life of sun and showers
Love ahould be tempest, fire, and sin!

What boots it now to woo you back
From far flung battle fronia,
With a paper wife, a paper kiss,
Can paper things convey our wants?

We can't call back those moments gone,
But ahould they come again;
Don't let my priigish whimsies daunt
A soldier . . . and a man!

Think I'd swap Jim's gal for mine?
Doggone right I would!

Who's Who Squabble

Dear Editor:

There seems to be a great deal of controversy concerning Who's Who these days. As a graduate of the University Council in 1948-1949, and again in 1949-1950, I was one of those who worked for the abolition of Who's Who. The Who's Who situation was brought to the attention of the council when the president of DGA and the president of MGA were left out. However, the family selection process was NOT the reason for the abolition of Who's Who. We felt that some type of selection process could be developed that would be satisfactory. The reasons for which the University Senate (not the Council) abolished Who's Who were:

(1) The Who's Who is run by one man for his own profit. He doesn't give a hoot about how the persons are selected, just so he gets a chance to sell his books and keys.

(2) Who's Who is not sanctioned by any national educational group. I proposed that we contact U of F, Rollins, etc, and organize a non-profit group to sponsor a directory called "Outstanding Students in America, or something similar, that would be run by backed by the colleges and that had a selection process identical on every campus.

(3) Many of the more outstanding colleges refuse to be a party to this racket and do not participate. Therefore it is not a truly representative distinction such as Who's Who in America.

(4) Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities is not published by Who's Who in America. It is some one in this area, and is not a standard reference work.

(5) Just as people don't have to gamble, the fact that students don't have to buy keys and books is no excuse for not having preventive measures.

The person responsible for this revival of Who's Who on this campus offered the lame excuse that "it will help you get a job." Maybe so. I personally do not feel that this excuse is justification for participation in a one-man money making scheme. If it more bothers or to put under one's name in the yearbook that are needed, then let whoever wants them try to form a genuine, non-profit, truly representative group with a standard selection procedure. Here is a chance for FSU to write something really worthwhile.

Sincerely,
DAL ALBRITTY

Misleading Headline

Dear Editor:

A headline in the January 5 issue of the Flambeau was misleading to the average reader. The headline "Bradley Favors Drafts to Senate" led us to believe that General Omar Bradley presented our very essential senators with draft notices. However, by reading the article we found the Florida State person.

Perhaps, dear Dobert, your assistants commit such journalistic blunder in their duties as junior journalists.

Perhaps, dear Dobert, they did not realize that such a headline would be a great shock to those students who only glance over the headlines. We were forced to read the whole article to learn that it was not Omar Bradley but only an exaggeration on the campus—Richard Bradley—no relation to the general.

Marsh Clarifies

Dear Editor:

In fairness to the "Who's Who" selection committee the following information is submitted by the Senate Investigation committee.

It has become apparent from the hearings that the public misconceives the proceedings at one time or another. Prior to the hearings it was in the record that I have made publicity or privately, voiced disapproval of the manner in which the "Who's Whoers" were selected. Further I want it made clear that, although I would have deemed it a great honor had I been selected as "Who's Who" I may now reveal I was disappointed to be overlooked by the selection committee. I feel that no part in initiating the investigations which your committee is undertaking.

In fairness to the selection committee one point must be made definitely clear. I do not submit an adequate, nor complete and comprehensive analysis of my activities on campus.

In fairness to myself, I hope and to others who may be involved, I would like to submit my conception of the

Mortar Board Thanks

Dear Editor:

We feel that the Honor Rally in Westcott auditorium Friday night showed definite progress toward the establishment of a more effective honor system on this campus.

We felt inspired as we joined approximately 1,000 fellow students in pledging to "uphold the highest standards of hideesty" at this university.

Speaker Lacy Harwell aptly pointed out that, "It is the spirit that matters." The pledges of those interested FSU students Friday night is evidence that the spirit for an effective honor system on our campus lies within the individuals of our university.

Harwell also said that there must be faith in a working honor system. The climaxing program Friday to Honor Emphasis week proved that hundreds of FSU students believe in our honor code.

We would like to commend the individual members of the Honor Committee who put forth unlimited efforts to further the understanding of the FSU Honor system.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

ADVICE TO MEN: STAY IN SCHOOL

By JERRY THOMAS

With the semester coming to a close and with many students going home to enjoy a short vacation, the question of enlisting in the armed forces will again confroi many male students.

This confrontement and trend of thinking is understandable for no definite information has been released whereby college students will receive exemptions.

However, from available information, the wisest decision for many men—is to remain in college.

Regardless of what branch of the armed forces a man chooses, the amount of education acredited him, will effect his entire career in that particular branch.

The administration has intelligently advised students in every situation where they have been able to do so.

Still, there are certain students who have a decision to make during the holidays, and they are undecided.

In almost every instance, the administration has advised students to remain in college.

Although many men will feel reluctant about returning to school for the second semester, the most intelligent advice is still the same—remain in college as long as possible.

The marines, navy and army are planning to send personnel to FSU to talk to students about the possibility of numerous Reserve Officer Candidate schools.

This should be an incentive for some men to return to college next semester.

As most veterans will agree, "it's mighty hard to get a commission on your own." Consequently, many men are at a great advantage by being in college.

The possibility of seniors receiving a commission also shows promise.

Most reserve officer schools have required that two summers of training be completed before a man graduates from college; however, there is a possibility that this will be waived because of the present emergency.

I might as well round up this last column with a true joke about a couple of reservists.

Upon receipt of his orders to active duty with the marine corps reserve Carl Edwards telephoned his employer to inform him of the event.

"I can't spare you," W H Monic, manager of a food sales firm at Jackson, Miss. told Edwards. "I'll go down to the recruiting office in the post office building and see if I can get you deferred."

On his way through the post office building to the marine recruiting office Mr Monie, an army reserve lieutenant, picked up his mail. Just as he was about to enter the office, he stopped short. The letter on top was from the army ordering him to active duty.

● DELAYED "CHEST"

Several weeks ago the University Council finally approved a campus chest for Florida State University. The joy that we expressed over the decision was short lived, since nothing further has been done on the project.

True, a chairman for the drive has been appointed, but no date has been set aside as Campus Chest Week as yet. No arrangements for money-making projects have been completed. Several service organizations have expressed a desire to sponsor events during that week, but they can make no definite plans until someone decides to confide in them and let them know the date of the affair.

At least one other organization has offered to give a donation, but its proposal was not accepted. The cast of the Sandspur production offered to extend the production to four nights and to donate twenty per cent of their overall profit. Rather than accept this plan, the University Government Association rejected the suggestion but said it would accept fifty percent of the profits of one night's production.

Does it not seem a little irregular for the beneficiary to dictate to the donor his means of donation?

This campus has seen what poor planning can do to an otherwise worthy project. Let's hope the Campus Chest committee is capable of learning a lesson from past committees in other projects who have attempted to be masters at last minute planning.

'Chiefs' to March In Gasparilla

The Florida State University "Marching Chiefs" will be one of the principal marching bands in the annual Gasparilla Day parade in Tampa on February 5. The events of the day revolve around the exploits of the famous pirate Gasparilla who made his headquarters in the Tampa area.

The "Marching Chiefs" in their garnet and gold uniforms will be one of the highlights of the parade, which will feature talent from all over the state.

The band is led by eight majorettes with Cal Tomlinson as head majorette and Jack Blackburn as drum major. Director of the band is Robert T Braunagel.

Service Fraternity Aids In Orientation

Five men of the Alpha Phi Omega, service fraternity petitioning group, will arrive back on campus two and a half days early in order to assist with the orientation of the first semester freshmen.

This will be the first orientation program that the group has taken part in. The men who will work o nthe orientation program are Tommy Bower, Jimmie Evans, John Bodiker, Frank Hirt and James Short.

UM Debaters Take FSU Tournament

State Takes Second With Florida Christian

The Second Florida State University Invitational Debate Tournament ended here Saturday with the University of Miami varsity debate team receiving first place by seven wins and one loss.

Second place went to Florida Christian College, and Florida State, along with Auburn and Tampa tying for third place. Each had five wins and three losses.

SHERWOOD ROSSAND and Tom Spencer, of the affirmative team for the University of Miami, were undefeated, and the negative team of Ray Adkins and Carl Cohen had one defeat.

Second place Florida Christian College chalked up six wins and two losses with its affirmative team of Leolin Russell and Tommy Kelton went undefeated while its negative team, Earl Kimbrough and Jim Sellers, had two losses.

First place for after dinner speaking went to Tommy Kelton, who represented Florida Christian College, second place to Richard Bradley of Florida State and third to Tom Spencer of the University of Miami.

IN ORIGINAL oratory, Larry Perlmutter, the University of Miami, who won first place, Norman Rubenks, FSU, second place, and Dennis DeLacure, FSU, third place.

Emory University, represented by C B Rogers, took first place in extemporaneous speaking and Ray Adkins of Miami and Jim Sellers of Florida Christian won second and third respectively.

Debate teams from Auburn, Emory, Stetson and Tampa were at the meet. The subject was "Resolved, That the Non-Communist Nations Should Form a New International Organization."

Singers To Audition For Touring Chorus

The University Singers will hold auditions today and tomorrow at 11 a m in room 321 Music Building to fill vacancies in all sections, and especially the male sections.

The chorus of sixty will make an East Coast tour the week of March 18 to 23 to sing before various organizations. On March 21 the singers will appear with the University Orchestra in Howard Hanson's Lament for Beowulf, conducted by the composer. The final concert for the year will be in May.

FSU Volleyballers To Meet 'Y' Teams

Florida State University's volleyball team, coached by Bill O'donal, left this morning for Birmingham, Alabama, and tonight's meeting with the YMCA team there.

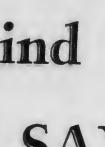
FSU last year won the Florida AAU Tourney.

Saturday night the Seminole volleyballers will meet the YMCA team in Montgomery, Alabama.

Tonight's meet is the first of the season for the Indians.

Thirteen players are making the trip. They are Charles Floyd, Emerson Kramer, James Clark, George Edmiston, Bill Crook, James McPatter, Jim Gouch, Ronald Pickett, Bob Greene, Dick Lapp, Charles McDaniel, Dan Hobbs and Mac McCall.

The Montgomery team has one of the South's better volleyballers in the "one-legged spiker." He has a peg leg, but according to Oldonesi is a real competitor.



O'donal stated that intrasquad games are held in the West campus gym every Wednesday night. The public is invited.

Running Presents Concert Tonight

Joseph M Running, pianist, will present a recital in the Music Hall tonight at 8:15. This is one of this season's faculty concerts and will be open to the public.

Mr Running, a graduate of St Olaf College in Minnesota, has been associated with musical activities in many parts of the country. In addition to his alma mater he has attended Pacific Lutheran College, Stanford University, and Philadelphia Conservatory. At the latter institution he studied with Leopold Stokowski and the noted pianist Olga Samaroff.

He has presented recitals as a professional pianist in the East, in California and in the Northwest, and he was assistant conductor of the St Olaf Lutheran Choir when he returned to that college as a faculty member.

The program will feature the works of modern French composers including Debussy, Ravel, Faure, Mompou, Poulenc, and Poiusel.

Yankee Cites FSU As Negro College

Florida State students will be interested in Dan Parker's column, the Broadway Beats, in the New York Mirror for Sunday, January 28, now on the newsstands.

About half way down the column Parker breaks the amazing news: "Incidentally, Miami U has signed Florida State, a Negro college, for a game in the Orange Bowl next fall after Florida University had turned down the interracial ult."

Students believe Parker became confused between FSU and Florida A and M on the other side of town. He is now in the process of being corrected by a bombardment of letters from student leaders.

Absentee Voting Passed by Senate

Hospitalized, Interns Now Can Ballot

University Senate Tuesday evening approved by unanimous vote the Investigation of Who's Who selection procedures now being conducted by the Senate Investigating Committee. This committee is under the direction of Senator Jim Turnbull and Bett Rich as co-chairmen.

Jerry Thomas' absentee voting bill, presented by Senator Dick Bradley, also received unanimous approval. This measure will permit students confined to the infirmary or away on intern duty, to vote in UGA elections.

Senator Bradley's amendment which will, upon student ratification, eliminate the office of forums chairman in the university government system was passed by the required majority. Bradley proposes a forums committee to handle the work now being done by Forums Chairman Allan Head.

FACULTY advisor Dean Katherine Wu, during the discussion of the Who's Who investigation stated, that she was present when the University Council set up the criteria for judging prospective applicants for the Who's Who publication.

The criteria was decided upon by a sub-committee of the Who's Who committee of the University Council and not by the University Council, according to members of the council.

Senators Ronald Koons and Bill Skipper were absent from the meeting. Jack Holmes was also absent but was excused.

Geology To Give Eight New Courses

Dr James S Cullison, head of the Geology Department, announces eight new courses in geology, restricted to graduate level. The courses will be offered alternate years beginning with the first semester of 1951.

These courses, Dr Cullison said, are designed for students working for their master's degrees and will permit more elasticity and cover a wider area to the master program of study than has been possible in the past.

Map-Reading Offered By Geo Department

A beginner's course in map-reading and interpretation of aerial photographs will be offered next semester by the geography department if sufficient interest is shown.

The class was not to be offered until next fall and is not listed in the latest schedule of courses, but it was felt, according to Mr Robert Leathers of the geography department, that in view of the present military and draft situations many men might desire this type of training now. Those interested should see Mr Leathers in 105 History Building as soon as possible.

Grad Student Gives Recital Tomorrow Nite

Patsy Shinn, graduate student in the School of Music, will be featured in a piano recital to be presented in the Music Hall tomorrow evening. Miss Shinn is a pupil of Prof Mary Esther Winslow. She holds the bachelor's degree from Southwestern Louisiana Institute, at Lafayette, Louisiana.

The recital will be open to the public and is scheduled to begin at 8:15 p m. The program will include the Fantasie and Furue in G minor by Bach, the Concerto No 1 in C by Beethoven, and selected pieces by Debussy, Bartok, Brahms, and Chopin.

Newmanites Slate Founder's Doy

Catholic students will commemorate Newman Club Founder's Day with a Day of Recollection, on Sunday, February 11 at the Newman House. The Founder's Day observance will close with a banquet at Gaza's Restaurant that evening.

The Rev Robert Brush, assistant pastor of Sacred Heart parish in Lake Worth, has accepted an invitation to conduct the Day of Recollection, according to Marge Parker, club president.

The Founder's Day program will honor Cardinal John Henry Newman the founder of the club for Catholic students on non-sectarian campuses throughout the country.

Attarney General Spake Last Night

Attorney General Richard Ervin spoke at a meeting of the Student Union Organization last night at 7:30 p m at the Student Union Building at West Campus.

Ervin discussed the efforts his office has made to supress illegal gambling in Florida. The meeting, was one of a series of monthly meetings planned by the student union.

Campbell Announces Addition To Journalism School Faculty

Author, teacher and experienced newspaperman is Professor Phillip Ward Burton, Professor Burton will be one of the new Journalism faculty members during the spring term at FSU.

Dr Laurence Campbell, dean of the Journalism school, has stated that Burton will be visiting only for the one term. The dean has suggested that it would be a good time for journalism students to take Burton's courses to gain experience under a noted journalist.

PROFESSOR Burton comes directly from Syracuse University to FSU's campus to teach advertising. The author has written a book called Advertising for the Small Retailer and is co-author of a book entitled, Advertising Copy Writing. He has also written for magazines and had an article published recently in the Rotarian.

Former chairman of the department of advertising at the University of Iowa, the young professor was also an account executive at Ruthruff Ryan Advertising Agency.

He worked on the San Jose Mercury Herald and the Palo Alto Times in California as a reporter, in addition to newspaper experience in Chicago.

THIS YEAR Professor Burton has acted as judge of the best advertising idea class in the 1951 Better Newspaper Contest which is sponsored by the National Editorial Association.

A former scenario writer and also a former copy-editor of Procter and Gamble, he was recommended by Dr Campbell, who mentioned that the journalist was a former student and colleague of his at Syracuse.

Next semester the visiting professor will teach three advertising courses and one reporting course.

Burton received his BA and MA degrees from Stanford University.

Accompanying him to FSU for the spring term will be his wife and three children.

Art Show Opens At Student Union

The fall semester Student Art Exhibition opened last night at the Student Union Building on West campus for a two-week showing. The exhibition contains at least one hundred pieces representing almost every field of visual art, including sculpture and painting, and everything from representation to abstraction.

In extending a welcome to students and faculty, Mr Anthony Teremin, director of the exhibition, said: "There ought to be something here to suit everyone." He also expressed the hope that in the future, exhibitions might be held in the new FSU Museum over the Bookstore as well as at the Student Union.

Collegians to Sing To Dorms Tonight

The 40-member Men's Glee club, The Collegians, will serenade East campus dormitories tonight from 11:30-12:30, as designated by the student handbook, the Pow Wow.

New serenade songs include: "I Dream of You," "The Things I Love," and "Take Your Finger Out of Your Mouth," arranged by Jim Harris.

The Collegians will make seven stops on their sing-tour. They will stop between Bryan and Broward in front of Reynolds, in back of Jennie Murphree, in front of North Chieftain, and in back of Landis and Gilchrist.

The Collegians will also combine four part harmony on the "Hymn to the Garnet and the Gold," written by J Dayton Smith, director of the chorus. The hymn was introduced at the Homecoming Pow Wow.

Male students are invited to register for the Men's Glee club at spring semester registration. No try-outs are necessary.

Spring concert for the Men's Glee club will be sometime in early April.

Camp To Stay Open

Camp Flastacowo will be open at 1 p m Tuesday through Friday during the week between semesters. During this week buses will leave campus at 1, 3 and 5 p m and will leave camp at 2, 4 and 6 p m Flastacowo will remain open on weekends as usual.

Missionary Chain Opens State-Wide Program Here

Mrs Kiyo Yuasa Will be Guest Speaker; Theme Features "Our Father's World"

"Life in New Japan" will be Mrs Kiyo Yuasa's topic when she appears here as guest speaker with the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies this weekend.

The 30th annual FCMA will open its 1951 state-wide program at Florida State University Friday through Sunday. It will continue its tour with sessions in service clubs and high schools throughout the state.

"This is Our Father's World," is the theme for this year's chain program. It will be stressed in the 20 cities where the chain speakers, who are known as ambassadors, will speak.

DESIGNED to stimulate interest in Protestant mission work both here and abroad, the chain is directed by Miss Louise Woodford of Petersburg.

Mrs Yuasa is the wife of Dr Hachiro Yuasa, president of the International Christian University in Japan. It has been said of her by a Japanese publisher: "Japan has a thousand women like her, and we'll have quite a country."

An alumna of the Joshi Gakuin Mission school for girls in Tokyo, Mrs Yuasa was graduated from Coe, Indianola, Iowa, (her father's alma mater) in 1916 and a scholarship and was graduated with honors in June, 1922. A day later she was married to Dr Yuasa, who had recently received his doctor's degree in entomology from the University of Illinois.

THE YOUNG couple went to Europe where for two years Dr Yuasa worked and studied on a Japanese fellowship. The Yuasas then moved to Tokyo where he became head of the biology department of the Imperial University, and about 1930 later was elected president of the Christian Zoshiya University.

In 1937 the war-bound Japanese militarists forced Dr Yuasa into exile in the United States. Mrs Yuasa remained in Japan with their son. The family was reunited in 1946.

Mrs Yuasa is accompanying her husband on a speaking tour of the United States that will take them through the entire country in behalf of the proposed $19,000,000 campaign.

OTHER SPEAKERS to be included in the Chain of Missions program this weekend will be Rev Edward H Johnson, of New York, general secretary of the student volunteer movement, who will have charge of the conference; Amata, of Baffin Island, 400 miles from the North Pole, the only Eskimo woman on the American platform, who will speak on "An Eskimo Looks at Christianity."

Others who will be heard are Rev James Wilson Morris, university on India; Dr Barney N Morgan, a Jewish ambassador in the Caribbean for 20 years; Rev Vernon B Richardson, pastor University Baptist church, Maryland; Rev Charles H Long, an assistant secretary in the overseas department of the board of the Protestant Episcopal church, and Arthur L Carson, president of Silliman University in the Philippine Islands.

Series of Lectures Planned For Public

Modern Languages Brings Outstanding Speakers Here

Five lectures, open to the public without charge, will be presented this semester by the Department of Modern Languages.

"Goethe on Goethe's Faust" will be presented February 21 at 7:30 p m in the Longmire auditorium by Prof Bayard Quincy Morgan. Prof Morgan is visiting professor of German at the University of Florida and Professor Emeritus from Stanford University, and has been editor of the Modern Language Journal.

Although weekend will be held here on March 2-3 during which secondary-school students and teachers will come to Florida State to hear Dr Tomas Navarro and other plays and lectures sponsored by the Department of Modern Languages.

Prof Navarro, who is visiting professor of French and Director of Florida State University Extension Teaching at Estes and Tyndall Fields, will give an illustrated lecture on "Post-War France" on April 17.

Prof Albert Leduc, assistant professor of French and Director of Florida State University Extension Teaching at Estes and Tyndall Fields, will give an illustrated lecture on "Post-War France" on April 17.

Frosh Dorm Holds Annual Heart Dance

Sandra Murchison's annual dance will be held Saturday, February 17, from 8:30 until 12 midnight in the Longmire auditorium. The girls in Jennie Murphree Hall will elect a popular and five girls from which the queen of the ball will be chosen.

The girls in the hall pick a number of votes will reign as Queen of Hearts and the remaining four will be her attendants. Admission will be by invitation only.

Project Held By Junior Class

Mae Gautier, Chairman, Announces Date Change

Campus Grass Week is now slated for the week of February 27, it has been announced by Mae Gautier, chairman of the project. This has been changed from the week of February 10 through 17 as formerly announced.

Campus Grass Week has been set by the Junior Class to help students form the habit of using sidewalks instead of walking on the grass.

THIRTY SIGNS have been made by the maintenance department and will be placed at each end of the worn dirt paths.

Mr Rod E Shaw, business manager, has been responsible for having the signs made, Mae said.

Such signs as "I used to be asleep," and "Your feet are killing me" are representative of the slogans among the ones to be posted.

IN FRONT of this infirmary will be the sign, "Grass is Sick. No visitors!" On either side of the infirmary will be the mute appealing students will see, "Grass' dominor dead!"

The project has been planned in cooperation with the construction of the new sidewalks at FSU, according to Mae Gautier, chairman of the Campus Grass project and Mae Gautier, chairman; Margaret Carnesi, Evelyn Gustafson, and Jayne Kerr.

Navy Vet Assumes Ass't Registrar's Job

Willis Caldwell, navy veteran of World War II, has joined the staff of Florida State University as assistant registrar, directing admissions, Dr Doak S Campbell, University president, has announced.

The new assistant registrar received the University of Kentucky where he received his master's degree in education in August, 1949. He served as graduate assistant in the registrar's office there while working on his doctorate in educational administration. He received his master's degree in education.

Caldwell worked with the Veterans Administration during 1946 and 1947 and served in the navy during World War II as a communications officer aboard the aircraft carrier Boxer. He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi fraternities.

Gold Key Initiation

Gold Key formal initiation will be held tomorrow evening at the Alumni Building. It is immediately afterwards individual annual presentations will be taken. This initiation is compulsory for all tapp and members.

Museum, Art Gallery Opens In Dining Hall

Lewandowski To Direct Gallery; Museum Houses New Historical Exhibits

The University Museum and the University Gallery will open tomorrow, it has been announced by Dr Doak S Campbell.

"The joint opening of the museum and the gallery," President Campbell said, "will mark the beginning of permanent housing in all its departments of this special significance and for displays of art."

THE GALLERY and the museum will adjoin one another on the upper floor of the main dining hall.

Mr Edmund Lewandowski, internationally known painter and professor of art at FSU will direct the gallery and has announced that displays will feature work by the FSU art department faculty members and students.

Members of both the department of art, headed by Mrs Beatrice Williams, and the department of archeology and anthropology, headed by Hale G Smith, have been working alongside the painters and carpenters daily to meet the opening date of the Gallery and Museum.

THE GALLERY will open with the exhibition of selected examples of Contemporary American painting. This exhibition will present a cross section of American painting from the year 1925 to the present day. The exhibition will be on view through March 10 without admission.

One feature of the joint opening ceremony will be the visit to the museum and the gallery. It is the internationally famous Neapolitan Children's Choir, directed by Perich. This collection grew out of the work Mr Gaudino was commissioned to do the "Gruppo Guama" of Cuba. The "Grupo Guasha" was the most massive archaelogical organization in the Antilles.

Exhibits in both the gallery and the museum will be changed frequently. The museum will house the University's Carter Collection of 800 artifacts material from prehistoric Florida. There will also be displays from South America and collections of the Seminole Indians.

THE WORK of Marcel Breuer, contemporary architect, will be featured in the Gallery from March 13 through 31. During April there will be an exhibition of selected masterpieces from the permanent collection of the Ringling Museum of Art in Sarasota, Florida.

The art program promises unlimited value not only to the specialties in art, but to the liberal and general student body of FSU, the city of Tallahassee, and the State of Florida, says Mrs Beatrice Williams, head of the department of art.

Sandspur Rehearsal

The second entire Sandspur rehearsal will be held tomorrow night beginning at 7:30. This rehearsal will include the cast, tap and kick chorus, pit orchestra and all specialty numbers.

Amendment Election Set February 15 Says Garrison

Choral Union Resumes Work

Participation Invited If You Like To Sing

The Choral Union at FSU, composed of both townspeople and students, will resume their work at 7:30 p m tonight in the Music Hall. All those who like to sing in harmony with a large group are invited to attend and participate.

Prof Herman Gunter, Choral Union director, said that he hoped most of the 360 persons taking part last semester will return and that many of the people in the Tallahassee area and surrounding communities who did not take part, will also join the Choral Union.

THERE IS no registration necessary and no fees of any kind to pay.

For the Spring semester, the Choral Union will give a dramatized presentation of "Elijah" by Mendelssohn, under the direction Grimm of the FSU School of Music faculty, with Prof Gunter in the production of "Elijah" by handling the dramatization.

The Choral Union last season at the beginning of the past semester gave two performances of the Messiah; both performances were widely acclaimed.

"We might even exceed that success by having more townspeople join with us in harmonious blending of voices and one toward the production of one of the larger works of fine musical literature," Prof Gunter said.

Prof Allen Conducts Lecture Tomorrow

The impact of Western culture on 19th century Russia will be explained by Dr Warren D Allen tomorrow evening in the Music Hall. The lecture, which is scheduled for 7:30 p m, will be open to the public.

The scope of the lecture will include the arrival of the Western system of music in Russia and the Orient during the 19th century. This is the second of a series of class dealing with music in society during the past century. Enrollment is open to all interested persons without pre-requisite. In view of the wide appeal, the lecture session will be open to the public without charge. Dr Allen said.

Warren D Allen, professor of music history and literature, is known throughout the U S as musicologist and concert organist. He was associate editor of Stanford University for many years before coming to Florida State in 1949. He is the author of two books Philosophies of Music History and Music in Eighteenth Century Opera, and numerous articles published in magazines and professional journals.

Campbell is Head Of Heart Campaign

University President Doak S Campbell has accepted the state chairmanship for the Florida Heart Association. As part of the 1951 state drive for funds, plastic hearts have been distributed throughout the state. They have been placed on store counters and other public places to collect coins to help the human heart during National Heart Week, February 11-17.

"The money placed in these plastic hearts," President Campbell said, "is your investment in future health." These funds will be used for research and health education in a nation-wide attempt to reduce the huge toll of deaths due to heart diseases.

It has been estimated, Dr Campbell points out, that some 10,000,000 men, women and children in the United States have some form of heart or blood vessel disease.

The Heart campaign does not include personal canvas for funds. Volunteer deposits in the plastic hearts during the remainder of February constitute the means of raising funds.

Same Precincts Will be Open; Proposals to Change Succession

An election for ratification of three constitutional amendments will be held Thursday, February 15, according to Paul Garrison, Elections Chairman of UGA.

Precincts used will be the same as in the previous elections this year, Lower Westcott hall, lobby of the Seminole Dining Hall and the Student Union at West Campus.

GARRISON stressed that the election will be held for one day only, but that all precincts will remain open from 9 a m to 7 p m.

The three amendments to be voted upon will change the Legislative, Judicial and Succession to Vacancies portions of the UGA constitution.

Senator James Turnbull of the Freshman class presented the amendment dealing with the legislative section which will have the effects of giving the University Senate final approval over all legislation passed by either the Men's or Women's Senate. The University Senate may exercise this right if approval after a majority vote of that body asks for approval rights on a bill.

THE AMENDMENT to the Judicial section was offered by Senator Ronald Koons. This amendment will ordain and establish a Traffic Safety Court as a unit of the UGA Judicial System. The amendment also provides for selection of traffic court members and clarifies the time of election for all members of the University Court, Judicial Court and the Traffic-Safety Court.

The third Amendment, proposed by Ex-President of the Senate Bill Waters, who graduated February 3, concerns the filling of offices made vacant after duly held elections during the school year. By this amendment, the Presidency shall be filled by the Legislative Affairs Vice-President, the Legislative Vice-Presidency shall be filled by the second elected President Pro-tem of the University Senate, and the Vice Presidencies of Men's and Women's Affairs shall be filled by majority vote in their respective Senates.

All other vacancies, including Senatorial and Judicial positions, would be filled by the Executive Council with the confirmation by two-thirds vote of the University Senate.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA Service Fraternity members will officiate at the polls. Campus polls in the Student Union Building and girls of the Sophomore Council will handle the polls on East Campus in Lower Westcott and the Lobby of the Seminole Dining Hall.

Paul Garrison, Elections Chairman, commented that he "hopes students will follow the same trend they have shown in the last few elections by showing up in large numbers at the polls." He said he was gratified by the "increasing interest in student government which the students show by going in the polls and voting for what they themselves want."

Journalism School Announces Change

Students in the University's School of Journalism hereafter will be classified as pre-journalism and professional students, Dean Lawrence Campbell announced.

Freshmen and sophomores will enroll as pre-journalism students and may take one required course, basic reporting, the second year. Pre-journalism students, to be known are Survey of Journalism, Magazine Reading and Mass Communications.

TO QUALIFY for professional status, students must complete requirements for admission and formal applications may be made at the close of the sophomore year. New requirements include 56 semester hours of college work with a minimum average of C, including one general education proogram. The applicant should complete the junior English examination and be able to type 35 words a minute.

Prerequisites for junior and senior courses should be met during the first two years with prefessional students taking 15 hours of 300-400 level courses in one field or nine hours each in two fields during the third and fourth years.

STUDENTS not enrolled in the School of Journalism may take journalism courses for which they have the prerequisites. They also may take a collateral in journalism, subject to the approval of their own school or department.

Non-journalism students who do not wish to become professional students may transfer to other schools. The new requirements are similar to those of many outstanding schools of journalism, Dr Campbell said, but are not sufficiently rigid to deter those with a serious interests in careers in press and radio.

Contest Entries Due For Talaria Friday

Deadline for all entries in the Talaria name contest is February 16. Editor Harry Copeland announced today. All entries should be addressed to Talaria Name Contest, Longmire building or Blanks may be secured from the winter issue of the magazine.

"The name," said Harry, "which receives the most checks will become the official name of the magazine and will appear on the cover of the third issue. Twenty-five dollars in merchandise will be awarded to the person or persons whose original entry is selected from the top five as the winner by the student body."

VA Region Manager Lists Training Rules

Veterans Begin Program By July 25 or Loss Rights

World War II veterans must exercise their rights to begin training under the GI Bill not later than July 25, 1951, or these rights will be lost, according to H P Diekensheets, VA Regional Manager at Pass-a-Grille.

A veteran must be pursuing his training on July 25, 1951, or on the date four years after his discharge from the armed services, whichever is the later, and must remain in study continuously. Non-attendance in summer sessions is not regarded as a break in study.

EXCEPTIONS are being made for those veterans studying for the teaching profession and for those studying to be doctors and dentists. A veteran who is employed as a teacher may continue courses leading to graduate degrees after July 25, 1951, in consecutive, succeeding summer schools following teaching employment in summers succeeding school years.

An undergraduate student may do graduate work after July 25, 1951 if he makes such an application prior to completion of undergraduate work Dickensheets has said that doctors and dentists, who have completed their pre-professional work and are unable to gain admittance to medical college in the following school term or year as shown by applications for admittance, will not be barred from further training but provided the courses are first available opening in an accredited medical school.

University Court Receives Complaint

A bill of complaint has been registered with the University Court protesting the action of the Executive council in restoring "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities" on the Florida State University campus.

The Court will be asked by Emory King, the complainant, to decide whether there is any legal or illegal in being brought back to the campus.

King bases his complaint on the facts that last year's Senate voted over "Who's Who" at that time as the students themselves deemed it proper for it to be reinstated on campus.

The complainant asked for an immediate open hearing of the law "at such time deemed appropriate by the court."

Dr Fults Attends Washington Meet

Dr Anna Carol Fultz, head of home economics education, will attend a two-day meeting in Washington, D C, tomorrow through Monday. The meeting has been called by the U S Office of Education to survey all home economics education programs leading to a doctorate degree.

Dr Fults will also be in attendance February 19-24 at a national meeting of all teachers-trainers in home economics called by the U S Office of Education to work on ways of contributing to family living during the national defense emergency. She will serve as group leader for the discussions and also as an observer and member of the conference planning group.

The educational director has also been asked to conduct an evaluation workshop in Memphis for the small college home economics departments in the south, who are interested in self evaluation programs sponsored by the American Home Economics Association.

Kuder Tests Planned

The Kuder Preference Record, vocational interest test, will be given Thursday, February 15, at 7:30 p m in 403 Education building.

The test is open to any interested student. Since only a limited number can be accommodated students must register on the bulletin board in 203 Westcott, said Mrs Marraret Blair, counselor of vocational audiance and placement.

"Fugitives" Tryouts Slated for Thursday

University wide tryouts will be held Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 p m in the auditorium of the Carlisle Floyd's new three-act music drama, "Fugitives".

The production is for April 11, 18 and 19, and will be staged by Nellie Bond Dickinson. It is to be same type of musical production as last year's "Slow Dusk," only on a more elaborate scale and with different subject matter, Floyd reports.

The candidates are asked to perform one aria or a song of dramatic nature. An accompanist will be provided if necessary. Interested singers from the University are invited to secure the bulletin board in the Music building for particulars.

News Editor Calls Reporters Meeting

An important meeting of all Flambeau reporters will be held this afternoon in the Flambeau office at 4:30. Anna Marie Gressyy arms all reporters to be prompt.

Students wishing to report for the Flambeau are invited jo attend this afternoon's meeting, Anna said. There are still a number of general reporting positions open for this semester, she concluded.

FSU Book Exchange Collects 700 Textbooks for Students

Approximately 700 textbooks had been collected for the three-week registration period by the Exchange yesterday, the Exchange Chairman, Shirley Gressyy said.

Shirley said that only a few of the books had been sold before the reopening. "However, the students have listed reasonable selling prices," the chairman said, "and the students buying the texts seemed to be well satisfied."

Not only students but faculty members also have been using the Exchange, the student operators have noted.

Shirley has asked that the student buyers ask for books for sale by the author. This is because books have been ordered by authors alphabetically. The student will be able to see the various prices offered for the same book.

The Exchange book list has thus far been incomplete, the student operators said, so that they have been accepting many textbooks not named on the incomplete list.

Shirley said that many Freshman English and European History books had been turned in to the Exchange. She also said that the Exchange had a large number of syllabi. Foreign language books with inserted translation will not be accepted by the Exchange, Shirley mentioned, unless the translation has been well erased.

Some of the more numerous and usable copies have been set in a book case in front of the Exchange for the students' convenience, the chairman reported.

An information booth has been set up in the MEMBERS OF THE Junior Class book exchange pose for the photographer before they ready themselves to take the responsibility of the operation of the exchange.

Seminole dining hall lobby for the benefit of the student. It will function until the closing of the Exchange on March 3.

Fourteen student workers have offered their services to the Exchange. This is in addition to the national honorary fraternity Alpha Phi Omega. Students interested in helping in this Junior class project for the remaining three weeks are asked to report to the Exchange and confer with any one of the student operators on duty.

The Exchange is located on the ground floor of the Alumni Building and operates from 8:30 until 4:30 on Mondays through Friday. On Saturday the Exchange will open at 8:30 and close at noon.

Symphony Concert Slated February 26

The third subscription concert of the State Symphony of Florida, in Westcott auditorium on February 26, will feature Soprano Carol Karl O Kuersteiner, conductor of the orchestra, has announced that Sidney Foster, well-known throughout the U S as a brilliant and versatile pianist, will be guest soloist. He will play the popular Concerto in B-flat by Tschaikowsky. This is the concerto from which the popular song "Tonight We Love" was adapted several years ago.

The second Foster on the program is Stephen Foster, whose songs will be featured in an unusual suite by Morton Gould entitled "Stephen Foster Gallery." Cast in a modern idiom, the suite carries through various effects on such familiar tunes as "Camptown Races," "Swannee River," "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair," and "Old Black Joe."

The reserved seats of season ticket holders will be honored as the previous concerts and individuas seats may be purchased at the School of Music office or at the box office

Distinguished Prof To Teach Spanish Courses On Campus

Dr Thomas Navarro, internationally known professor of Spanish Philology at Columbia University, has arrived at Florida State University to assume his post as visiting professor of Spanish for this semester.

WELL known as a phonetician and philologist, Professor Navarro will give two courses in the regular curriculum, Spanish Pronunciation and Current Trends in the Spanish Language, and will give several public lectures in Tallahassee and in other parts of Florida.

The distinguished visiting professor is a native of the province of Murcia, Spain, and earned his Doctor's degree at the University of Madrid. For many years Professor Navarro taught at the Centro de Estudios Historicos and the University of Madrid and was visiting professor at Stanford University, Princeton, Harvard, and Chicago.

HE HAS spent a great deal of time, too, as special lecturer in France and in parts of Latin America. Since the end of the Spanish Civil War, in 1939, Dr Navarro has been professor of Spanish Philology at Columbia University and is now on leave of absence to take up his duties here.

A member of the Spanish Academy since 1934, Navarro is also an honorary member of the American Academy of Sciences and Arts and of the Hispanic Society of America. He is the author of some 15 books on Spanish pronunciation and also many articles. His latest work is an extensive study of the Spanish of Puerto Rico.

Graduate Student Passes CPA Exams

E C Allen, graduate student in accounting, has been notified by the State Board of Accountancy that he has passed the examination for Certified Public Accountant.

Of 171 candidates taking the examination in Florida, only 33 passed. Of the 33 who passed Allen was among the six passing the examination on the first attempt.

Gerry Gray Called Versatile Trooper By Sandspur Head

One of the most versatile troopers appearing in the '51 Sandspur production, Gypsy Holiday, is Gerry Gray, according to Sandy Horton, Sandspur chairman.

Excellently cast, Gerry plays the role of Seelo, an aged Gypsy chief, who weathers the many paternal problems induced by his spirited daughter, Sharon. Not only does Seelo achieve marital bliss for his daughter, but he also figures prominently in the happily - ever - after ending for two other members of his band. His array of songs is delivered in a pleasing manner by Gray.

Coming from Daytona Beach, Gerry is now a senior at FSU. Although he is majoring in journalism advertising, he is also interested in voice, piano and psychology, the three of which he alternately uses as minors.

Gerry's past performances have included successful appearances in organizations such as the Tallahassee and Daytona Beach Little theaters, FSU's University and Male choruses, and debate and psychology clubs.

The rest of this year's showcast features 21 eye-appealing chorus girls; the hilarious Nick Pappas in the surprising role of a nurse, and of course George Boldi, leader of the Sandspur Pit Orchestra.

ARCHAIC, PRUDISH MORAL CODES

Ever-Growing Obsession Noted Among Youth With This Thing Called Sex

There seems to be an ever-growing obsession among youth today with this thing called SEX.

This simple biological phenomena now suffers an unprecedented exploitation and bellyhoo; a fanfare similar to that of the twenties only more superficial.

Witness the hundreds of lurid pulp magazines, the cheap movies, the hack literature, the "scientific" reports sweeping the country today. To say nothing of the time consumed in college dorms, male or female, debating, arguing, exalting, degrading, seriously concerned with this overestimated thing called sex. Now and then we hear shy, girlish titters and harsh, masculine guffaws sounded forth as the latest risque humor is being aired in the form of "the joke." After becoming sick and tired of the very word sex, one sincerely regrets that Freud, Zola, Juna, and Peiy had ever been born.

YOUTH HAS long since discarded its timidity; its false virtue, its "shocked" attitude concerning sex. But what attitude will take its place? There are many important problems in the world today which youth must soon face up to; problems much more important than sex. Yet this one human factor, through misuse, can create a multiplicity of problems. We want a younger generation to develop into leaders, yet somehow we retard them. Again, sex dominates the scene.

However, we cannot deny the importance of this natural freedom to normal individual development. We know that the human mind can transform this simple, in-born urge into an abnormal complexity.

We might freely discuss sex for a short time and then let it take its natural course, leaving the mind free for youth's creative, intellectual curiosity on fundamental things. But this seems to be the sole reason why it cannot take its natural course—it is not allowed this free discussion and expression.

ARCHIAC MORAL codes and prudish Victorianism has blindly suppressed and distorted that which would otherwise develop into a healthy sex attitude. In most of our colleges and universities a ridiculous double standard prevails; a standard which only intensifies the often abnormal curiosity of young men and women into the "mysterier" of sex. Medieval rules are the watchword—you must not discuss this, you can't wear that, you shall be in at such and such an hour, you shan't recline on the campus green, this area "off limits"—such regulations can turn normal young women into hypocritical old maids in a very short time. Other than being unfair, is it often dangerous to restrict people in such a manner.

A well-known psychologist recently stated that it is not the "immoral" inquiry of young people today which causes diseases, homo-sexuality, and most of our sexual tragedies, but rather the restraints, the inhibitions, the fears invoked upon young minds at early periods of education.

PROHIBITION in the twenties, for example, showed the tragic results of a society which attempted to deny a simple pleasure to thousands of men and women.

Man has yet to pass an effective law denying "human nature both of the apple", and there is a serpent in every tree nowadays.

Youth is not the perverse and ignoble animal that an outmoded and prudish Victorianism would prevail; a standard which only intensifies the often abnormal curiosity of young men and women into the "mysterier" of sex. FSU Chemistry Prof Discovers Atomic Traces in Tallahassee

Minute and harmless traces of the atomic blasts some 2,000 miles away in Nevada have been found in the Tallahassee atmosphere by Dr Rowland E Johnson, instructor in chemistry at Florida State University.

During an experiment he conducted during the last several days, Dr Johnson captured a small amount of dust particles from the atmosphere in a wad of cotton. He then tested these particles on a Geiger counter, used by scientists to measure the amount of radioactive materials in any substance.

HE FOUND the dust particles showed significantly more radioactivity than is generally normal in the atmosphere, but still far below that considered harmful and only about 1/200 of the amount the Atomic Energy Commission would consider harmful to health.

Dr Johnson expressed the belief that the mass of cold air coming down from Canada and pushing before it air from other areas of the country, including some of the air from Nevada after the atomic blasts, played an important part in the radioactive particles reaching this far.

Similar radioactive materials in the atmosphere following the atomic blasts are reported to have been discovered in other parts of the country long distances from the Atomic Energy Commission testing grounds in Nevada.

Sand Will Attend Mexican University

Miss Louise Sand, who received her masters degree from FSU February 3, is one of five girls from the entire United States to be awarded a fellowship to the National University of Mexico.

Coming from St. Petersburg, Florida, Louise was a graduate student in Spanish before receiving her degree.

Dr Doak S Campbell, FSU's president, and Dr D Lincoln Canfield, head of the department of modern languages, said the fellowship and grants for her school tuition and other expenses, approved by the granting board, is a United States Department award, administered through the Institute of International Education.

She will do her research work in the "Faculty of Humanities," according to Dr Canfield. Due at the Mexican university between February 12 and 28, she will remain there for the academic year of February through November of 1951.

John Cook to Give Aid to Veterans

Veterans of Florida State University who need assistance in obtaining benefits under the GI Bill, may receive aid from Mr John S Cook, assistant state service officer.

Mr Cook will visit this area February 20-21, and 26-28, for the purpose of helping veterans or their dependents in filling claims for compensation benefits or solving their insurance problems. This free service includes assistance to employers of veterans under the GI Bill, vocational training, subsistence or other problems.

During his visit in this area Cook may be contacted at the office of vocational guidance and placement.

Tedder Reappointed As Chesterfield Rep

T D Tedder, newly reappointed Chesterfield representative on the Florida State University campus, announces that any student planning a trip to New York who wants to see any Chesterfield-sponsored radio television show should contact him three weeks prior to the time of departure for free tickets.

It is important that the student allow three weeks notice for the tickets.

Graduate Students To Serve As Interns

School of Social Welfare Sponsors Program For 23

A group of 23 students in the School of Social Welfare will serve an internship during the spring semester, Dr Coyle Moore, dean of the school announced.

Of the group selected and placed under the supervision of Miss Annie Lourie McElheinie, director of field work, nine of the graduate students will be in the Student Unit of the State Welfare Board in Jacksonville.

THESE students are Doris Appling, Dorothy Lee, Shirley Hunt, Clarence Mertz, Benjamin B Clark, Julius Borrells, James L Johnson, Allen D Daniel and Raymond Anderson.

The other graduate students and their placements for internship include Leontine Seeley and Thomas F Koerner in the Duval County Family Welfare Office, Jacksonville and Paul Hebert, and Harold B Hall in the Thomas County Department of Public Welfare in Thomasville, Ga.

JOHN W Hall will serve his internship with the Travelers Aid Society in Atlanta, and Audrey V Hall Kennedy will be in Group with the Atlanta Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Eugenia Green, and William C Pugh will serve their internship with the Family Welfare Bureau in St. Petersburg: Kenneth Kruger with the Catholic Charities Bureau in Miami; Cecil C Smith and Mia Ray Vann with the Children's Service Bureau in Miami.

Three of the graduate students will serve their internship periods during the spring semester with the Jewish centers Association in Miami. They are Robert E Carroll, Allan W Hoodcap and Arthur D Kalfish.

St Pete Senior Wins Honors

Caroline Everett, St Petersburg graduating senior, has won double honors at the University. She was the top member of her class of some 25 students in beginning Greek Literature. Miss Everett was also awarded an FSU fellowship in comparative literature for the Spring semester as a means of obtaining her masters' degree.

Dr Jernigan said that Miss Everett made the high score of 99 in her final examination. In explaining the procedure of the grades, Dr Jernigan said that all grades were based on a mathematical scale. "Since we do not give college letters for this sort of academic achievement I am following a custom of mine for many years in giving Miss Everett a leather bound volume of Xenophon's Essays for making the highest record in first year Greek this year at FSU," Dr Jernigan said.

"Greek and Latin accounts for nearly 80 percent of our English words and the influence of the classical ideas upon our Western culture is immeasurable. In the day of world conflict and chaos in basic values, it is more necessary than ever to learn anew the fundamental truths that rest in ancient literature and language."

Miss Everett says that she plans a teaching career on a college level.

Walker Participates In Civilian Defense

Dean Edwin R Walker of the College of Arts and Science has been granted a leave of absence for a period of six months in order to perform special assignments for the Federal Civilian Defense administration. Announcement of Walker's leave of absence was made this week by University President Doak S Campbell.

Dean Walker will leave within the next few days to assume his new duties in Washington.

President Campbell announced that Associate Dean Charles Davis has been designated Acting Dean and will be in administrative charge of the College of Arts and Sciences during Dean Walker's absence.

Selective Service

The Director of Selective Service has announced that he would re-open in the last month of the college year the classification of all college students who were deferred for induction during the year. These students will then be able to volunteer by enlistment in the service of their choice.

Reopening these classifications would require the cancellation of any order to report for induction, and therefore automatically revive the right of these students to enlist in the service they desire, according to Vivian Collins, state director of selective service.

Detailed instructions will be announced later.

A JOB WELL DONE, TALARIA STAFF

After receiving much criticism and unfavorable publicity, the Talaria staff came through with flying colors and put out a Winter Issue which pleased many of its most critical readers. Above all, the most recent publication is a student magazine, one which is representative of the majority of students, and yes, we might even say the average reader.

The art work and layout again showed improvement over previous issues, and several articles, short stories and poems should come in for their share of favorable mention. We thoroughly enjoyed the joke page, including the ones about our illustrious editor, since we know that it was all in fun.

One of the chief improvements was the photographic cover which we had suggested earlier in the first semester. The cover chosen was timely in that it gave a boost to the Sandspur production which will be presented later this month.

Such an attractive cover can change the entire tempo and setting of the magazine ... and it did. Rather than a dull, confusing artistic cover, our first impression of the Winter Talaria was that it was livelier, snapper and had more sparkle. Our first impression proved to be a lasting one.

From "Words of the Love Worn" on Page Two to the humorous "Psychology One Fifteen" on the concluding pages, we were pleased with the over-all improvement shown

And now our final dream is about to come true. Students have clamored for a new name for our sister publication. At present, a contest is underway which will determine by popular vote which name appeals to the student body. It will be no trouble at all to clip the coupon from Page Five and check the name of your choice. This is as important as any other election conducted on campus, since it will remain for years to come, while elected officials change yearly.

It is a pleasure to toss a few orchids for a job well done rather than heave brickbats and words of criticism. Our prime objective was never to create a disturbance, but only to offer suggestions for improvement. When a public servant fails to carry out the duties for which he was chosen, it is only proper that those to whom he is responsible make their wants known.

We feel that you accepted criticism in the right spirit, Talaria staff, and made an honest effort to comply with the students' wishes. You did an admirable job, and what's more, you gave us a magazine of which we are proud.

WHEW! IT'S ALL OVER

We have something to be thankful for—we're through with another rat race for a semester. Registration, that is.

It seems to get longer and more complicated each semester, but they say its supposed to be more streamlined. That added attraction at the just-finished registration, the quadruple rows of checkers, really topped off the day. This new method was used to check very closely the cards of each student to insure against any mistakes. But the cursory glances given ten or so cards didn't seem to help much.

The new rule about paying fees before or during registration fouled quite a few people up. Because of the recent railroad strike and a few difficulties caused by broken IBM machines, many bills were not sent out until the last minute. Therefore, even though fees were sent in as soon as the bills were received, they did not get here in time for registration.

The business office was sending students to the Personnel and Guidance office to get loans, the P and G office said. "Sorry, no loans until Tuesday." The registrar's office said: "If you can't get your money till Tuesday you have to pay a five dollar late registration fee, but if the late registration was unavoidable you can petition to have the fee returned," and so on, ad infinitum.

The University of Florida students, our brothers in Gatorland, registered before they went home for the holidays. They are on the semester system, so are we. But we came back two days earlier than they did and what did we have to look forward to over the holidays? Why registration, of course.

What happened? The IMB machine, that impeccable gadget devised by modern science, broke down. There was no human fault as a reason for getting grades incorrectly, it was the fault of the machine age. The only human fault is that we did not have the foresight to have an adequate number of machines installed to assure getting the job done.

A GREAT MAN

Yesterday the birthdate of one of America's great men was celebrated. A man who wanted to do the best for all his country, north, south, east and west, because he loved all of his country, was Abraham Lincoln.

"Honest Abe," in his attempts to tie the United States together, was censured on all sides. The union was split, a great civil war arose, the slaves, which he had freed, were lynched by mobs. The year after Lincoln died, the Ku Klux Klan began riding against negro voters.

But now that we can look back objectively to those times, we remember Lincoln as the Great Emancipator, a man who believed that "government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth."

HEARTS, VALENTINES

St Valentine's Day rolls around again tomorrow. Hundreds of Florida State University coeds will receive boxes of candy, flowers and cards as an old custom is once more observed.

A more serious note has entered this year's Valentine gift season. Florida State University students, along with people all over Florida, have been asked to add their donations to the Heart Campaign, sponsored by the Florida Heart Association. This fund will be used for research and health education in a nationwide attempt to reduce the large number of deaths due to heart diseases. So it is that this week has been appropriately named "Heart Week."

February 14 is the time many persons conduct individual Heart Campaigns. No better time can be found to join in the public Heart Campaign by placing your contribution in the plastic hearts that have been widely distributed over the state and campus.

MACHINE AGE TROUBLE

Grades are an important ingredient in our college life. They serve as a yardstick in determining our status, they tell us whether we are acceptable to Phi Beta Kappa or other honoraries; they tell our parents whether we are "tending to business," and they tell future employers whether we are worth hiring or not.

You see they are pretty important things. But when you get your grades late, unintelligible, with some courses duplicated, with wrong grades registered, and with some courses deleted, you begin to wonder whether the system is worth having or not.

Many students were bewildered when their eyes first saw their grade reports. "Why I had an 'A' average in that course and I made an 'F.' "I wasn't taking 20 hours, I was only taking 17 and I never ever heard of that course, so how could I have made a 'D?', were some of the prevalent remarks when grades were picked up in the post office. Another was, "Why they left out my Philosophy grade completely."

Yes, grades are the measurements for your scholastic attainments while you are in school. Your parents read these same reports. We'll wager there will be some hot correspondence between student and parents and warm conversation between students and professors this week—and it will all be about grades.

GENUINE DILEMMA

The Beacon, student newspaper of Rhode Island State College, was just slightly confused.

"Getting out a newspaper is no picnic," it declared. "If we print jokes, students say we are silly; if we don't, they say we are too serious; if we publish original matter, they say we lack variety; if we publish things from other magazines, they say we are too lazy to write our own; if we stay in the office, we ought to be out rustling material; if we're out rustling material, we are not attending to business in the office; if we wear old clothes, we are insolvent college students; if we wear new ones, we got the money from graft. What the hell are we suppose to do, anyway? Like as not someone will say we swiped this from an exchange. We did."

THE EDITOR'S POST

HONORED ON ST VALENTINE'S DAY

By EARL DOBERT

Tomorrow being St Valentine's Day it was only appropriate that some one of our faithful readers should honor certain members of the Flambeau staff by sending cards to them.

First on the honor roll to receive the illustrated cards was Janet 'Peanut' Pierce. Entitled "Complainer," the card said:

"You're always belly-achin'
Sluggin' down some patent pills,
And rushin' to a doctor,
Nursin' big an' little ills!
You think that you're a martyr
Full of pains and just a wreck,
Well you give your friends a pain too,
And they've got it in the neck!"

Sweet, wasn't it? And so sentimental.

Next on the list to receive a card was Doug Alley. "Conceited" was its title. It goes:

"Not every woman wants you
As you seem to think
Few gals even like the type
Who from their path does shrink.
So don't jerk and twitch and wiggle
And flee and blush and chafe
You ain't that desirable
The fact is your quite safe."

Appropriate?

"Night Owl" was the wise title of the one sent to Columnist Jeanne O'Riorden.

"Just like the stars and grandma's teeth
You're always out at night.
But when dawn comes you mope around
A sleepy red eyed sight.
You do your work with half shut eyes
And yawn with vacant stare
You may be quite a whiz at night
But by day-light you're half there!"

Good thing they started 12:30 permission this semester.

Managing Editor Betsy Blanton was honored with a treatise on stupidness, entitled appropriately "Stupid."

"You never read a single thing
Besides the funny page
At two you were as smart as you
Will be at any age!
Your brain is just as good as new
Because you never use it,
In fact, no one would know the diff.
If you should up and lose it!"

She ain't stupid, she knits argyles.

Last but not least, yours truly was the recipient of a card entitled, "Know It All."

"You just know all there is to know
About everything there is,
No matter what folks talk about
You think it is your biz.
You know what causes this and that
And how it can be cured . . .
Why gosh! You really ought to have
Your precious brain insured."

Can't argue with this one.

Have a good St Valentine's Day folks. We will.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

'WHERE TO STOP' IS QUESTION

By JERRY THOMAS

Now that the United Nation troops are again advancing at a noticeable rate, the question of "where to stop" becomes more pressing each day.

With U N patrol action pushing northward against crumbling Communist resistance, and the city of Seoul in near sight, the Pentagon politicians are now debating whether or not to stop at the 38th parallel.

Several months ago when U N troops crossed the famous Korean parallel, they received a big surprise. Red China entered the fight with huge armies that drove the U N troops almost into the sea.

The Pentagon openly admitted that they had not suspected that such large numbers of Chinese troops were gathering on the Manchurian border.

The situation was any thing but "well in hand." U N troops suffered many losses—greater losses than local newspaper would reveal.

Not until this month did the United Nations troops begin to win their first major victories against the Chinese Communist.

When the Allied forces were turned into a dispirited retreating army, the Pentagon was affronted with the possibility of a complete retreat and evacuation.

U N forces made a strategic withdrawal and held on as instructed by the Pentagon.

This month climaxed the retreat by strong Allied troops advancing into the old capital of Seoul.

A decision must be made . . . were the U N troops to stop this time? It appears rather obvious that if the Allied forces intend to by pass the 38th parallel, they will run into trouble.

No army can be readily defeated without destroying the industrial centers that supply those forces with the armor and other utilities so essential for successful warfare.

If the U N troops are not permitted to bomb beyond the Manchurian border, which in all probability they will not, another retreat seems quite possible.

Naturally the Pentagon hopes that some sensible agreement can be reached from within a United Nations assembly, but that too appears dismal.

Here at home the Armed Forces are preparing for almost any unexpected (or expected) clash with Communism, both abroad and stateside.

Eisenhower advocated drafting eighteen-year-olds in a recent address to a Senate group, and the Senate preparedness committee took immediate action by voting for limited authority to draft 18-year-olds, and to extend the draft service from 21 to 24 months.

The Politburo did not bargain on the United States taking such immediate action by arming in such force; so perhaps a third World War has been prolonged—but for how long?

FANCY THIS

SOME NICE THINGS ABOUT FSU

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

During the holidays when almost everyone went home, a few of us stayed up here to study, rest, or for some other reason. Since there wasn't much to do, we sat around talking most of the time. In the course of conversation, criticisms of my column arose. Some people said, "You're always griping about something; you're always saying bad things about the University."

After hearing these criticisms, I want to make it known that being nasty isn't my nature, therefore I'll devote this column to telling about nice things the administration, student government and students have done.

First of all, the fifty-year plan looks good.

Second, well—I had some more compliments on the tip of my tongue, but I can't seem to think of them. There must be something around here that's worth orchids, but for the life of me, I can't think what it is. I'll try again in some other column.

By the way, surprising as it may seem, I found out that you can make a lot of friends over the holidays if you stay up here.

One group of students on campus which does a tremendous amount of work, but which receives little publicity, is the stage crew working on sets for the 1951 Sandspur production, "Gypsy Holiday."

Headed by Bill Backus, this small group plus anyone willing to help, worked every day during the vacation out at West campus Gypsy Playhouse, painting trees and skies, building a mammoth drum, constructing a caravan wagon, columns, experimenting with black light and doing a professional job on it all.

The crew is the backbone of the production and can be highly complimented on its work.

Something new this semester is the broadcasting of Georgie Bee, his trumpet and his orchestra over WFSU. George, who plays in the Suwannee Room of the dining hall every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night, from 5:30 to 6:30, may now be heard over our campus radio station at those times.

All students who registered were handed a sheet of paper as they left the gym concerning new regulations on smoking. It seems to me that the cigarette industry is going to receive a blow when they try to sell to students here.

These new rules, passed by the Executive Council (faculty), must have some explanation. Maybe it's unladylike, maybe nice young gentlemen don't do it.

The rules I'm talking about are the ones prohibiting smoking in hallways, public offices, class rooms, lecture rooms and theater lobbies. Why, they even provide ash trays in all the theaters in Tallahassee. What's the deal?

Then there's the one about the dead old woman who lived near an army camp. As she heard a twenty-gun salute, she sat up, straightened her hair, and called, "Come in."

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

PLAY POKER AT REGISTRATION

Some young, ambitious senator should introduce a bill at the next University Senate meeting which will require the registrar to give each students three semester hours credit toward graduation for standing in line at registration. Honestly, it is more work in getting registered for a course than it is in attending class and preparing for a test. . . . If they keep adding IBM cards to the ordeal as they have this year, you'll be able to play a hand of poker while going through the line. . . . Surely those cards can be used for something.

Speaking of registration . . . I met one student who was having the time of his life signing up for classes. Bill Lamb, a transfer student from Emory, went wild at registration. . . . Bill just couldn't get over the wide range of courses that are offered here. The last time I saw the poor guy he was signing up—or trying to sign up for —Humming 405 in the School of Music. . . . He was having a little trouble it seems . . . one of the faculty members said something about Whistling 305 being a prerequisite.

He did manage to sign up for a course in voice . . . even though he can't even whistle a tune. I hope the guy got registered for Basket Weeving and Personal Adjustment 1011 Bill says Emory was never like this.

Remember Dan Parker, the sports columnist for the Daily Mirror that confused FSU with A and M? If you'll remember he was the guy who set off the fireworks just before the semester ended when he stated in his column, "The Broadway Bugle," that FSU, a Negro college, would meet Miami U in the Orange bowl next fall. He said that Florida University had turned down the "interracial tilt."

His mistake set off the fireworks when FSU students read his erroneous statements in the nationally circulated Daily Mirror. Editor Dobert and Business Manager Bob Griffin set the ole boy straight . . . the results . . . a humble apology in his next column and a prompt reply to their letters. Several of the barrage of letters were returned with a "p s" on the bottim asking the senders to read Dobert's reply.

As proof that he was really sorry, Parker gave the university the following plug in a later column: "Fast-growing Florida State University is climbing in the college football world under Coach Don Veller. Don took over at the end of the 1947 season when the Seminoles lost all five games. They won 7 and lost 1 in 1948, took 8 out of 9 in 1949 and went through their 1950 schedule unbeaten and untied in sight."

SNAP SHOTS . . . Earl Meeks mixing Floyd Fogle a HADACOL highball . . . using the real thing, the Senator's recipe, and a few "peculiar" ingredients. . . . R L Jenkins cussing the guy that suggested drinking a couple of bottles of beer for relaxation before taking the junior English exam. . . . Jenkins flunked all four parts. . . . A couple of party boys in a party with Harold Taylor at the Quincyanna hiding under a table from a man they had just swiped a glass of ginger ale from. . . . It seems the man was the head of the mental institution at Chattahoochee. . . . Margeret Marshall giving her date a couple of pointers on the art of ballet and then going into some silent chatter which her roommate, Katrine Austin, says is the Marshall Plan —Margaret style . . . what a gal . . . she's the greatest thing since My Friend Irma.

In the old days the man used to put powder in his bag and go out to hunt the deer. . . . Nowadays the dear puts powder on her face and goes out to hunt the man.

Poetically Yours

JUST A PLAIN GIRL

By Jim Slack

Dear boy if you love me, wage your campaign
With orchids and furs and lots of champagne
Dear boy the truth is, I'm kinda partial
To men of means, civilian or martial.
And Yachts
I like 'em lots
I say is that a bon mots

I like men who read the Wall Street Journal
Whose breeding is Yaleish, and wealth eternal
And so dear boy if you have a sad lack
Of trifles like the little ole Cadillac
Then I'm afraid there'll be no accord
You see—I'm just not at ease in a Ford

From the pit at the Opera—of-course-you
Can always find me in the Diamond Horseshoe
I'm just mad about Rigoletto—but raw'lly
Doesn't Romberg make your flesh crawlly
It was my breeding at the finishing school
Where I was part of the diminishing pool
Of girls coming from the family of station
That taught me proper musical delineation

When I'm bored Europe is da regeur
Paris does so renew Daddy's vee-gur
Of course, there are soirees such as
Afternoon tea with the Duke and Duchess;
So dear boy, please don't think me a snob at this reading—
I'm just a plain girl with exquisite breeding.

(Contributions to this column should not exceed 32 lines. Send poetry through campus mail in care of the Flambeau.)

Dear Editor . . .

Letters addressed to the editor must be sent through campus mail and should not exceed 250 words. Any over this amount will be cut at the discretion of the editor. Letters must be typed and double spaced. Due to lack of space we will not be able to print every letter received.

More Regulations

Dear Editor,

The Council of Deans, that noble and august body of hoary-headed sages, has put their collective IQs together and have delivered a sacred edict to the University. We can't smoke.

This must be FSU's greatest contribution to the war effort. I must say the faculty will undoubtedly take it hard. Many of the professors smoke in class—now they will be reported to their boss for the sin.

The undergraduates will be fined or otherwise disciplined. This will cause financial chaos in certain areas, and unprecedented revolutions in others.

As for me, I cannot fail to distrust the motives of people in high places who pass their foolish rules. I wonder if they have anything else to do—perhaps not. My pipe and cigars must feel the wrath or apathy of the council of the most high—too bad.

EMORY KING.

What's This At FSU

Dear Editor:

Probably by this time you . . . as well as most of FSU . . . are "fed up" with letters, comments and remarks concerning the current selection of Who's Who. Yet, I am asking you to print this letter of mine for reasons which will become evident.

I attended the second and last meeting of the Senate Investigating Committee and Mr Askew and Miss Yonge. At that time, as a graduating senior of February 3, 1951, I was surprised at what took place. Now, as a graduate student of FSU, I am indeed sorry for what happened.

In the first place it seemed as if Mr Askew and Miss Yonge got away with most anything. I am not complaining for not being selected to Who's Who—I wouldn't have it now if I could. I am complaining as a graduate whose application for consideration of selection to Who's Who was totally disregarded. Mr Askew stated in the previously mentioned meeting that the lowest number of points awarded was, I believe, "some number above 50." That is absolutely incorrect for Mr Askew told me himself that I received no points. Please consider this: I submitted my application for consideration of selection to Who's Who prior to the deadline that was set and I also adhered to all the rules and regulations of Mr Askew's "selection committee." Yet, I received zero points.

Mr Editor, this is my argument: The Flambeau clearly stated that "Seniors should submit a list of all extra-curricular activities participated in during their college career." Seniors were not told to submit a list of extra-curricular activities participated in only at FSU. However, Miss Yonge told me that no "transfer" activities were considered — that they did not know how to evaluate other colleges' activities and that they "took it for granted" that no one would submit activities from other colleges. I replied to Miss Yonge that they made two mistakes here —one was the failure to announce that extra-curricular activities from other colleges would not be considered, and second, a great injustice was directly committed against the entire student body at FSU when a "selection committee" took it upon themselves to take anything concerned with something this big—this important—"for granted," as Miss Yonge stated they did. I am a student at FSU, I respect FSU and I admire and enjoy it here. But when any selection committee thinks that they can award points or credit to minor activities here at FSU and fail to award consideration for honors received and positions held at colleges such as the United States Military Academy, I am in favor of either another selection committee or some explanation on the part of this committee. (Editor's note: So far we have gotten neither.) I most sincerely believe with most humble respect that any FSU student or alumni will consider the United States Military Academy up to the standards—both academically and extra-curricularly speaking — of FSU.

Another low and unfair blow dealt to the applicants for consideration of selection to Who's Who by the "selection committee" was the adding of points to some seniors' applications after the announced and published deadline date. Miss Yonge will admit this and she also will admit that others in the same category—eligible for extra points after the deadline date—were not awarded their points. I am in this category.

Recognize anybody . . .

BIG FRAT MAN . . . Strictly yours in the bond. Non Fratters are lumped with Wasserman positives. Wears his pin on his pajamas.

CAMPUS PHILOSOPHER . . . Always ready with some capsule philosophy when you need it. "That's life" and "that's the way it goes" are favorites.

HARD GUY . . . Profoundly affected by Alan Ladd pictures. . . . Not the same after following Bogart to Casablanca. Looks right through you.

BIG DRINKER . . . Has to tell you all the gory details of last night's brawl. Aspires to DT's and ulcers which will really give him something to talk about.

NOBLE NED . . . Never does a thing for himself. Always doing things for others but remembers to tell you about it.

BACKSLAPPER . . . Greets you like a subsistence check. After the first sentence he's looking for his next victim; a budding table hopper.

BMOC . . . Practices his charming smile on impressionable young clinging vines. Proud of his "common touch."

Seminole Cagers to Battle Mississippi Five Tomorrow

It's out! 'Tain't big, but not little either.

We're speaking of Florida State University's 1951 football schedule which includes Troy State, Miami, Delta State, Sul Ross, Stetson, Jacksonville Navy, Wofford, Tampa and Bradley.

Ever since FSU "disappointed" declared it was leaving the Dixie Conference and would offer an athletic scholarships, the majority of Seminole followers hoped that the announcement would result in a big step toward a "big time" football schedule.

From the appearance of the 1951 card, however, it looks as if that majority will have to continue its hoping ways.

We have a nine act drama on tap for next Fall with only one "big" act. We will sit in on the opening act—Troy State, here—and wait for the curtain to rise on the second and "big" act of our unbridled drama.

The University of Miami Hurricanes prance proudly into the Orange Bowl as the curtain rises. What takes place in this act will be revealed in late Fall.

The third act—"Terrible Tiger from Delta State"—takes place, period. Last year the act played to a Tampa eleven and drew only six points. The Tampans were awarded 24 by the referees.

In the fourth act the hero—"Tallyhooing" Bradley—marches armour with Bull Ross, a pretty fair warrior.

The climax of the drama is reached when comic John Stetson lends a hilarious touch to the Squaws' homecoming.

The sixth act moves over to Jacksonville and the action is due to pick up somewhat. This one is foreshadowed and no one knows anything of the outcome.

The script in lucky seven calls for the Gamecock's to serve an after sickening cigar to Wofford's Terrier. The last time, the little Terrier was charged $19 (he got $6 refunded) and he really did get sick, brother.

In the eighth act a big Spartan looms in our hero's path in the land of cotton.

But the hero is supposed to be healthy in the ninth and final act. Tallyhooeye Semi-squad meets one of his own kind—a Brave—at Litchfield. This little Brave, however, isn't dressed for the occasion. And look. he's even set a round ball in his hands. Let's hope the Brave puts on the proper armor when he comes down November 24 for the final act.

Our drama for 1951 is an improvement over last year's, but it's far from the "ma time."

Perhaps after the international situation is settled and Florida State begins to squeeze itself into acts with "name" schools, the Campbell's will be serving those circus to everyone.

Burt Shotton, Brooklyn's forgotten man, has been resting and hunting at his Burlow home waiting for something he "likes" in baseball to come along. Shotton, who piloted the Dodgers to second place in the National League race last year, recently said he had not contacted Branch Rickey for a position, nor has Rickey offered him one with Pittsburg.

When Shotton was "removed" from the Brooklyn organization Walter O'Malley, Dodger head, remarked that the club would dearly love to have Burt rehired.

"That's a joke," retorted Shotton. "They're flaying themselves up to look good in saying that. They haven't, lixins me up. They had a chance to deal with me, and I can't understand why they haven't. I'll be more sentimental manly in the way they did what they did. I never harmed anybody up there."

The former Bum manager believes the Giants are a pale club in the National loop with a chance to beat Brooklyn.

"The Giants had the best pitching for four weeks in the stretch last Fall but they needed to win was two to three runs any game.

"We did not have the best pitching we needed over the season. That's all that is missing between the Dodgers, and from the way we finished I believe they are good fi from the start.

"Another thing." Shotton adds "the war and the draft may give the Dodgers a spectacular year because they have so many men who served a long stretch the last time, who won't be called up soon the way things are now."

Jim Konstanty, the Phillies' brilliant relief hurler, recently revealed that he has perfected a "new pitch" with which he expects to baffle opposing batters the coming season.

"It's something like a slider, but it breaks faster and not quite as much," explained Konstanty. "Andy Skinner (Jim's undertaker friend, who is credited with helping Jim develop deliveries) and I have been concentrating on perfecting the pitch since last Fall.

"This 'new pitch' is just something else. If I have the right sleeve when I think the others are not working as they should in spring training, I may be a relief pitcher of the champion Phillie mound staff.

The pivot play in basketball has the support of Coach Ben Carnevale, leading coach, according to a recent poll conducted by the Sporting News.

The pivot play was called an "integral part of today's game and termed by many as contributing to some of the most exciting and spectacular plays ever witnessed by the fans.

However, a few coaches did indicate they wanted some changes made. Several suggested the foul line be widened.

One of those opposing the idea of changing the pivot play, Tom Scott of North Carolina stated: "I haven't heard of anyone who used the eliminated of the football quarterback in the T formation."

The first casualty among players of organized ball in the Korean war is believed to be Bob Kelly, Wayne, Pa.-reared outfielder who started the 1950 season with the Ventura (Calif.) nine.

Kelly suffered shrapnel wounds and frost bite while serving with the Marines. He is now recuperating at a hospital in Southern California.

Tribe Baseballers Plan Rough 1951 Schedule

Florida State University's 1951 baseball team is planning a rough schedule for the coming diamond season, according to Coach Charlie Armstrong.

Seminole Cagegram

	FG	FT	TP
Bob Hartman	100	55	255
Bob Whitmer	70	41	181
Bud Moore	34	25	133
Bob Scott	50	19	119
Tom McLaughlin	38	35	111
Bill Harman	34	27	95
Dick Trobaugh	29	27	85
Lee Pitcher	17	7	41
Bill Hall	7	5	19
Spencer Wynne	3	3	9
Ted Hartman	1	0	2
Ted Merriman	0	0	0
Jerry Weisbart	0	0	0
FSU	388	242	1006
OPPONENTS	377	250	1004

Pending approval of the athletic committee, Florida State can add Tennessee, Georgia and Miami to its slate, all new opponents. They can also continue relations with Florida Southern, Rollins, Mississippi College and Stetson.

The seven teams would give the Seminoles a 19-game schedule at present. However, Armstrong is negotiating with various schools in an effort to complete either a 21 or 23 game slate this year.

He must also secure one more Dixie Conference opponent—Florida Southern and Mississippi College being the only ones—before the Seminole baseball team will be eligible to cop the conference crown. Armstrong's rule state that no team may be eligible for the crown unless they play at least five games with three different opponents. Florida State has seven slots in the conference but with only two schools.

FLORIDA STATE, with 11 returning lettermen from the 1950 squad, will be seeking to improve its second place standing of last year. The letter winners, with 1950 batting averages in parenthesis, include Bill Harman (.326), Ronald Melton (.361), Lee Mallory (.344), Bob Trawbridge (.280), Augie Pompella (.250), Glenn Gresham (.233), Billy Teel (.165), Ken Mullen (.074), and Roasty Trulock (.179). Pitchers with experience from the 1950 club last year, and Ed Sessoms, who finished the 1950 season with a 5-1 record, are also returning lettermen.

Nestles and Gresham will be seeking their fourth letter with the Seminole nine. Melton and Trowbridge will be playing their twelfth, the conference champs at the end of the 1950 season. Mullen, who He was also voted the most valuable player on the squad.

The seven pitchers and 15 other prospects are working out in the local U. T. Jackson Memorial from four to six.

FIVE players, Lamar Brown, Jack Bell, T. J. Jackson, Lynn McKelvy and Godfrey Knight, are gone from the 1950 team.

Graduating nine pitchers Witt and Knight. During his three years with the Tribe baseballers Witt won 13 and lost 7 but Knight, a relief hurler, ended a two-year career with a 7-3 mark.

Brown signed a professional contract at the close of the 1950 season, and is now playing this year. The slugging outfielder closed his college career with a .400 batting mark for seven games in 1949 he led the team with a .361 and a .326 mark. He posted a .329 average at the plate.

Lanier, who had a 3-1 pitching record at 1951 was transferred to Florida to work on a special major.

McKelvy, who hit .237 last year, was a victim of the selective service draft.

Armstrong announced that all home games will begin at 3 p m on the West campus diamond.

But Mr. Editor, why should we face this from the viewpoint that Woody Wise is legal. It has been stated by the Senate Investigating Committee that the whole "business" is illegal and I think that if you, all seniors who submitted applications for consideration of selection as Who's Who, and the "selection committee" owe to the entire student body of FSU an apology for participating — on campus—in something illegal.

For my part, then, Mr. Editor, I apologize to the student body for participating on campus — in something illegal. With kindest and sincerest regards to you and to the student body of FSU, I remain

HENRY QUITTEAU HART.

Editor's note: We will be glad to print the apology of the selection committee in a prominent position in the paper.

FIGHT TOMOBROW NIGHT—Considered the best fighter in either the welterweight or middleweight division, Sugar Ray Robinson (left), the welter king, finally gets a shot at Jake LaMotta's middleweight crown in Chicago tomorrow night. The title bout is expected to result in a win for Robinson although Jake has one decisive win over Sugar.

Unbeaten FSU Swimmers Sink Georgia Tech 41-32

The undefeated Florida State University swimming team won its fourth straight meet Saturday in Atlanta by walloping Georgia Tech, 41-32. The win was the third of the season for the Seminoles over a Southwestern Conference foe. They had previously beaten the University of Georgia twice.

Dick Wells, classy Florida State freestyle swimmer, broke the Georgia Tech pool record in the 220-yard free style and 440-yard free style relay and 200-yard breast stroke.

SCOTT RAMSEY, Buddy Brewton and Mitchell Buttenfield got Florida State on the right track by taking the 300-yard medley relay with a time of 3:14.5.

The Ramblin' Wreck quickly went to work. Crouch taking the 220 free style. Jack Burnett and Pete Dunn-Rankin, of Florida State finished second and third respectively.

From here was FSU all the way.

Wells won the 50 free style, but Brett Thrasher and Harrison followed.

Paz Farrell, a prep school diver from Miami, gave for FSU for the first time and managed to take first place. All-America Roger Slater took a breather. Georgia Tech's Weigel ended second and the Indians' Jimmy James took third.

Wells super fine beat to 10 points after he won the 100 free style. Alston Thrasher and Harrison of Tech followed.

In the 220-yard back stroke, Florida State's John Boettner won the event with a 2:29. Tech's Edleson and Blanton ended second and third, respectively.

Har won Georgia Tech's second first place, taking the 200-yard breast stroke with a time of 2:43.8. The Seminoles' Ed Archer, a new boy from Bethany, finished second and Tech's Williams managed a third.

Walter Jardine, co-captain of Florida State's crack tank squad, coasted to a first in the 440-yard free style event with a 5:38.7. Burnett, who followed Wells in FSU's leading scorers with 6, finished behind Jardine, and Tech's Crouch ended third.

In the final event, the 440 free style relay FSU fell to Georgia Tech's Thrasher, Watson, Harrison and Crouch, who swam the relay in 3:52.6.

Seminole Six Loses To Top Alabama Teams

By JIM COUCH

Florida State University's State AAU volleyball champions journeyed to Birmingham and Montgomery to do battle with the Alabama Uber on January 26 and 27.

The Seminoles arrived in Birmingham Friday afternoon and entered into a round-robin affair with the "Y" and Stockham Valve Co teams. Each team played two games with each of the other teams.

The FSU squad, composed of six veterans and two newcomers, played hard against the more experienced Stockham club in the opening series, but bowed in both contests, losing 15-11 and 15-10.

The Seminoles faired better against the Birmingham "Y" six, eventual winner in the meet, as they lost the first game 13-8, but came back strong to whip the Alabama Uber 15-3.

Saturday night saw the Seminoles going against the Montgomery six in a best three-out-of-five series.

The Seminoles bowed in the first two contests by 10-10 and 15-12 scores, but came back and won the third 10-8 in an overtime. The Montgomery team took the meet as they won the next game 15-12.

Carrying the heavy load for the Seminoles were Capt. Danny Hobbs, Charlie Floyd, Sammie Kramer, Bob Green, Bill Clark, George Edmiston and Jim Clark. Also in on the action were Ronnie Pickett, James MacPatter, Tom Couch, and Charles Mac-Daniel.

The volleyball team journeys to Tallahassee for an exhibition game Thursday.

Seminole Netmen To Begin Workouts Monday Afternoon

Florida State University's tennis coach, Ralph Matherly, announced yesterday that FSU netters will begin organized workouts Monday afternoon at four on the East campus courts.

Matherly also requested all boys who are interested in tennis to report at the first drill.

The Seminole tennis squad is planning a 13-game schedule, but details of the slate were not announced.

Matherly has only six returning lettermen from last year's Dixie Conference champion team. They include Bob Lanman, Larry Dickson, Dick Bradley, Don Boda, Tom Babione and George Martin. George Newman, a letterman from the 1949 squad, has planned to enter competition for a berth, according to Matherly.

Jack Kean and Jim Berry, two Freshmen from Bradenton, are reported to be good netmen and Matherly is looking for plenty of support from the two.

The 1951 schedule will be released at a later date.

Bill Roetzheim, FSU Gymnasts Outclass Tech

Sparked by the sharpness of Bill Roetzheim, all-round AAU champion, Florida State University's gymnastics team outclassed Georgia Tech 70½-40½ in Atlanta Saturday.

Roetzheim chalked up first places in the side horse, high bar, flying rings and tumbling events, while the Seminoles were winning five of the seven firsts.

The victory gives Coach Hartley Price's FSU gymnasts a 3-2 record at present. The Seminoles also whipped Maryland and Delaware, but lost to Army and Navy on a recent eastern trip.

Carmine Regna took the other Florida State first, copping the parallel bar event. Regna finished third in the rope climb, second in the high bar and third on the rings.

Frank Regna, the second of the New York gym team brothers, won on the side horse, second on the parallel bars and second in the rings.

Bill Veitias came through with fourth on the bars, fourth and third on the parallel bars.

Eddie Fernald earned a fourth in tumbling and third on the trampoline.

Frank Leone, Dick Platt, and Welchel finished fourth on the side horse, second in tumbling and fourth in the trampoline, respectively.

The Seminoles are scheduled to be idle until March 24 when they will enter a gymnastics meet in Chapel Hill, N C.

Check Printed Honoring FSU

The 1950 Florida State University football team, first white colleae eleven in Florida to complete a full college varsity grid schedule, received special mention is being honored in one of the most unusual ways.

A Tallahassee bank (The Capital City National Bank) issued a newly printed check book to its clients. Printed on each check in every book of this new series is a Florida Seminole Indian head seal in commemoration of the 1950 team.

The bank has had 100,000 checks printed in the new design. The seal is printed in red, garnet and gold. Bank officials say that the new checks will be circulated in all 46 states, and in some foreign countries such as Japan, England, Germany and France, where the bank has accounts.

Each member of the 1950 football squad, and officials connected with it, will be presented a miniature gold replica of the check which will be enframed on the back as follows: "In tribute to members of Florida State's undefeated and untied white collar football team."

Marine Commission Now Available

ATLANTA, Ga—The 17 S Marines are now accepting applications from young men and women who desire Marine Corps commissions, Capt M E McNeil, Procurement Officer for the southeastern states, has announced.

College seniors and graduates may enroll in the Officer Candidate Course—the first class of which will begin on April 23, 1951. This is a ten week course.

Qualified undergraduates now attending college may enroll in the Platoon Leaders Class or the Officer Candidate Course, and attend two six-week classes during the summer and received their commission upon graduation from college.

FSU Holds 10-6 Mark; Seeks 2nd Rebel Win

Florida State University's basketball team, sporting ten victories in 16 starts, will be seeking its second victory over the University of Mississippi Rebels tomorrow night when they battle 'Ole Miss in Oxford.

Four weeks ago Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminole cagers topped Mississippi here 63-58, and have been working overtime in an effort to repeat tomorrow in Oxford.

Thursday night Florida State faces Mississippi College at Clinton in a Dixie Conference contest. It will be the first meeting of the two schools this year on the court.

Kennedy is expected to start Bob Whitmer and Bud Marsee at forwards, Tom McLaughlin at center, and Bob Harman and Bud Scott at guards in both contests.

HARTMAN, who has 271 points to his credit, is currently leading FSU in four games during the recent holidays with 70.

In the Seminoles most recent encounter they lost a hard fought ball game Friday night to Loyola (New Orleans) University of the South, 75-65.

At Miami Park Florida State edged a stubborn Rollins College five, 60-57, and lost two close contests to Stetson, 71-53, and Tampa, 76-66.

In the Loyola game, Coach Tom Haggerty's Wolf Pack took the court with one of the most accurate shooting outfits to journey to the West campus gym.

The visitors made a commanding 10-0 lead before FSU started to get going. The Seminoles then loose and trailed by only five points, 18-13, at the 10 minute mark. Art Sullivan led the Indians behind 33-31.

After intermission, the Wolf Pack came back stronger than before, but held a slim 58-55 margin with 2 minutes left to play in the game. Here Loyola began to pull away for the victory, which fouls dominating play in the final three minutes.

Sullivan led all 41 fouls 29 aenins FSU and 18 against Loyola, was called off the game. 10 cagers ing in the hectic final minutes of the game.

Bob Conrad dropped in the first Loyola bucket and Art Gell, Tom Ketchum and Monroe Dalati, tero connected to give the Wolf Pack the 10-0 lead early in the contest.

After Marsee missed a free throw, Hartman hit the hoop for a two-pointer. Bob Whitmer began to move. Hartman, Marsee, and Whitmer blazed away and the Seminoles were back in the game after 10 minutes had elapsed.

Gus Renoir and John Hultberg helped in the points even before the half, but it wasn't enough to cope with the accuracy of Hartman, McLaughlin, Whitmer and Marsee, who scored 16 points between them, pulling FSU within two points of the visitors at halftime.

Following intermission, Renoir continued to hit the hoop. Hartman, Whitmer, Marsee and Dick Trobaugh kept Florida State close behind at the end of the minutes of play.

Hartman fouled out early in the last 10 minutes of play, and Florida State was able to score but one while the boys from New Orleans blasted through 17.

As a result of eight FSU baskets in the final three minutes the Wolf Pack was able to coming ball and insure the victory by using the over-all out of bounds instead of attempting the usual foul shots.

AT THE free throw line the Seminoles hit only nine of twenty chances, FSU tallied but two fouls less than Loyola, 28 to 30 as the Wolf Pack.

The Seminoles tenth victory of the season at Rollins expense. Hartman was again the top performer with 20 points, but backup scoring honors went to Tars' Bonnie Williams who also tallied 20.

Whitmer and Marsee dropped in 17 and 12 points, respectively and Rollins' Pete Fay added 10.

After a scoreless first half, Tars left the court with a 6-0 margin at the 36 minute mark.

Rollins continued to keep the lead and held a 43-39 advantage with 10 minutes left in the clash.

In a final outburst, Florida State grabbed a 56-53 lead with four minutes to play and held on to take the victory.

Before the Seminoles took the lead for good, the score had bewhich Hartman hit the hoop for tied twice and the lead changed hands nine times during the final minute mark.

JUNIOR All-Conland Florida State couldn't cope with 22 points Stetson's Big John Yonge in the Tomahawks' romp and he led throughout the first half.

At the intermission point the Indians held a 32-20 margin, but Yonge's accurate pivot play paved the way for the Tomahawks' victory.

Hartman paced FSU with 20 points, followed by Whitmer, Tom Scott, 11, and Marsee, 9.

After dominating the first half the Seminoles fell victim to the Tampa cagers in the Cigar City.

Bill Mullen, who dropped in 16 for the Spartans, sparked the win in the last half drive to victory.

Florida State took an early lead and stretched it into a six point marath. They led at halftime 38-27.

Hartman and Marsee tallied 14 each for FSU. Whitmer and Scott added an additional 13 and 12 respectively.

Saturday the Mississippi road trip, Florida State returns home Saturday to tangle with Miami University at the West campus gym.

Investigators Recommend Who's Who Vote This Year

The Senate Investigating Committee, in presenting a lengthy report to the University Senate last Tuesday, said that students should decide in the future whether or not to allow "Who's Who" to remain on campus.

This declaration was similar to one passed by last year's Senate which outlawed "Who's Who" from the campus until such time as a referendum could be held to decide the question.

THE REPORT also said students should be offered three alternatives when the "Who's Who" referendum was held. They were to join nationally with "Who's Who," establish our own "Who's Who," or abolish "Who's Who" on this campus.

In addition, the committee offered another suggestion if the student referendum is favorable to "Who's Who." This recommendation said that if there were to be a "Who's Who" on campus a complete reworking of the points system should take place.

They said special consideration should be given to the following suggestions: that a definite scholastic average be required, that the point system be published before any applications are turned in, that everyone turn in his own application and that only activities handled by the person himself be considered.

THE COMMITTEE recommended that the President of the University Senate appoint a committee to study the "Who's Who" considerations. They stated that anyone wishing to see the Investigating Committee should not be allowed to belong to the committee.

The investigation of the "Who's Who" was held at the end of last semester before a packed house in the Senate chamber.

The following are questions and answers sent out by the Senatorial Committee: (Rube Asker and Cass Conley)

Dance Tickets Available Mon

Sandspur* Hop Scheduled Saturday; Price Is $2.50

Sandspur dance tickets will go on sale Monday in Lower Science. They have been announced by Jack LaMarr, dance chairman. Tickets will be sold from 12 until 1 pm. The sale price will be $2.50 per couple, tax included, the chairman stated.

There will be a limit of 1,000 tickets sold this year, Jack said, "to let some, first served."

SATURDAY night, February 24, the dance will be held in the Student Union from 9 p m to 1 a m. The dance will carry out the theme of the Sandspur production, Roy Holder, who will appear as a gypsy theme, the dance chairman noted. Late permission has been granted women students attending the dance.

Dwight "Cowboy" Eisenhower Elliott Lawrence and his orchestra will highlight the dance. The magazine has named the group as the "Band of the year." The band's theme songs, Intermission and Danny Riccardo, are known around the country, causing teams with a name band to play, LaMarr said.

The intermission before the dance, Lawrence will make a personal appearance in downtown Tallahassee, the chairman announced at Jenkins Music Store.

LAWRENCE recently won much fame in his Decca recordings for the case as the greatest college group in history of the country. He was chosen winner of the Billboard magazine poll in 1950 for the past three years and is recognized as the greatest college prom band in many years.

The three entrances to the dance will be opened at 8:30 p m. The East entrance to the Student Union Room will serve as the main entrance. The two side doors will be the remaining entrances. Three bars will take up tickets and coupons will be admitted as rapidly as possible, LaMarr said.

ALL WRAPS must be checked in the south side of the grounds, he explained. This is because of the confusion caused in the past by unchecked wraps. Corsages will be optional, he stated.

Decorations for the dance will begin on Friday, February 23, at 1 p m. Students of the organization of art under the supervision of Mrs Beatrice Williams, department head, are making life size Gypsy decorations for the dance. Decorations will be handled by Bill Bagwell, Jack Pascal, Pat Renicke and Mickey Pascal.

SPECIAL aides for the dance are Lois Goldberg, Mike Sellers, Betty Kimbrough, Nancy Hooper, Bill Osborne and John Harter.

Tai checkers are Mr and Mrs Don Hunt, students.

Miss Blanche Colvin, assistant dean of women, has served as financial advisor for the dance.

Office hours are 4-5 p m, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week. Applicants will be required to fill out an application blank, and to secure three recommendations from faculty. Permission for recommendation should be secured from the faculty member. Some names are listed.

Civil Service Jobs

Applications for stenographer and typist examinations for the U S Civil Service may now be made. Applications may be obtained from the commission's local secretary, Mr Wayne Searcy, in the post office or at the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 203 Westcott.

Donors Needed For Blood Bank

Doug Alley Reveals FSU Lagging in Donations

More donors are needed immediately for the Florida State University Blood Bank according to Doug Alley, president of Omicron Delta Kappa.

Since the Blood Bank was begun by ODK, leadership fraternity, only eleven pints of blood have been given. The FSU quota is three pints a week.

STUDENTS and faculty are both requested to sign the roster in the Dean of Men's office and make arrangements to give blood. This blood, when used in transfusions, is free of charge to students. Although faculty members must pay a ten dollar handling and processing charge.

The Blood Bank began after it became known that many students in the University Naval Reserve Unit Medical Memorial hospital needed transfusions and much time was lost in finding a donor with the correct type of blood.

Civilian blood takes only about 15 minutes and is painless, Alley emphasized. Donors receive a card stating their blood type and factor noted and also the date when blood was given.

The Blood Bank Answer Roll is as follows: Dean Otis McBride, Dean Alton Lawrence, Dr. Gilbert, Bob Lee Bannerman, Jim Tippin, ODK members; Walter Pepper, Phi Kappa Phi; Bob Barber, jr, Patricia Murray and John D Diamond.

Mission Chain Confab Opens This Afternoon

Registration Begins At Ruge Hall; Session Starts at 6:45 Tonight

The annual Youth Conference on World Affairs will open its 1951 program on the Florida State University campus this afternoon. The Conference is sponsored by the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies with advertising a religious group designed to stimulate interest in mission work both here and abroad.

Registration for the conference will be held this afternoon from three to six at Ruge Hall. All students are invited to register and participate in the activities of the Conference.

The evening session beains at 6:45 with an after-dinner coffee for students in the Longmire Lounge. This will be followed by an worship service, with introduction of the Chain's "ambassadors," and a brief message by Rev Edward A Powell who will have charge of the student conference.

THE SATURDAY session opens at 8:45 in the morning with worship, singing of the hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy" and a message by Rev James Matthews, missionary to India, who will speak on "India Lacks a Lead In World Affairs." At ten o'clock the Rev Charles Lee will speak on "How Communism Won China."

Men Students Stalk On Brewer's Home

By ALAN DOWNES

Chanting resolutely, "We don't want to move!" a band of more than one hundred West campus men marched to the home of President J Rhyne Brewer last Tuesday at midnight. They were protesting a consolidation of dormitories which will require about two hundred men to pull up stakes and move to new quarters. The demonstration proved ineffective.

At meetings of school authorities and student representatives on both sides of the issue, a march and Wednesday afternoon, it was decided that for months the economy the original plan of consolidation must go through. All rooms in buildings 700, 701, 850, 204, and 396 must be vacated before 4:30 p m Monday, Feb 19.

THE MISS protest began Tuesday evening when it was announced for the first time at floor meetings that the men would have to be out by Thursday afternoon. There was an immediate protest and some of the men set out to organize a parade of all the students involved.

Calls for torches were heard, but no flambeaux were in evidence as the march got under way. Shouting their opposition to the eviction order, the demonstrators trooped across campus to the home of Mr Brewer, and assembled about the building.

THE ACTION of a few boys who pounded on Mr Brewer's door and on a garbage can lid was the most disorderly conduct observed. This was quickly silenced by students.

As soon as police arrived on the scene Mr Brewer came out and invited the men to send representatives inside to talk to him. A few minutes later Mr Brewer again announced that there would be a meeting with Dean Otis McBride at 8:30 this afternoon, and the men went home.

AT THE Wednesday meeting Dean McBride announced that the university had lost over ten per cent in enrollment since the beginning of the year, the largest percentage being men, and that it was almost as much to run a dorm at only forty residents as with eighty.

"We have never made any money from these buildings, and the rent is as low as can be found anywhere." Dean McBride said. "This is purely a business proposition; we cannot afford empty buildings at a loss." He stated that the five buildings would be closed at 4:30 on Monday, February 19, and that he expected the men to cooperate as had others under similar circumstances.

The men affected may sign up for new locations at the office of Mr J Silvan Ii building 604. Freshmen will move to 390 and 397. Others will move either to 949 or to the five hundred area. All changes will be on the basis of "first come, first served," Dean McBride said.

2nd Semester Enrollment Set by Registrar at 5,462

Number of Men Drops by 483; Totals Include Demonstration School, 'Operation Bootstrap'

Early returns from the Registrar's office set enrollment figures at 5,462 students. Of this figure 347 students are enrolled in the Demonstration school and kindergarden, and 200 students are registered from Tyndall Field as part of Operation Bootstrap.

There are 2,386 men here, and at Tyndall Field, and 3,076 women enrolled. Actual University students number 4,815. Approximately 900 of these are veterans.

Last semester's figures show 2,869 men students and 3,342 women students. This is a drop of 483 men and 266 women. However, women still outnumber men by 690. Total enrollment dropped by 613, or ten per cent.

IN SPEAKING of the decline to a group of students Wednesday afternoon Dr Otis McBride, Dean of Men, said, "Let's not kid ourselves; this hurts. More students means better facilities for all. But there's a war on, and this is our part of it." He said that FSU might look forward to losing still more men.

It has been necessary to consolidate dormitory sizes on West Campus because of the fact that French men have been withdrawn since the beginning of last year; we've had about ten a week on the averages during the semester and more next summer, Buildings 700, 701, 850, 394, and 396 are each less than half full, and five are to be closed by Monday, Dr McBride said.

Saturday is the last day for adding a course, and the last day to drop a course without receiving a "W" is March 3. Receipt of "withdrew failing" mark, and also the last day to register with full credit. All applications for degrees at the end of the second semester must be filed in the registrar's office by Saturday, February 24 at noon.

The reason for the long lines at the gym on registration day was discussed by Mr Charles R Walker in the week. He said that there was to be a separate inspector for each IBM card of each student in order to avoid the mistakes and omissions which have always summed up the works in the past, but "there just weren't enough inspectors." Even doubling the personnel on the gym day was not enough. Mr Walker concluded, "Next time we'll have twice as many inspectors."

State Officials Open Museum

Formal Opening Begins With Party Wednesday

Florida's first lady, Mrs Fuller Warren, joined President and Mrs Doak S Campbell in receiving visitors including state, county and city officials at the formal opening of the University Museum and University Gallery of Arts Wednesday night.

Also in the receiving line were Mrs Beatrice Williams, head of the department of art; Hale G Smith, museum director and acting head of the department of archaeology and anthropology; Dr Charles S Davis, acting dean of the school of arts and sciences, and Prof Edmund Lewandowski, noted artist.

MANY VISITORS, including university students, expressed admiration for the new gallery which was attractively decorated. A collection of famous Contemporary American Paintings is being shown especially for the opening occasion through March 12. Some of the works of these noted American artists as Brook, Davis, Gutman, Hopper, Kuniyoshi, Lasker, Levine, Morris, Shporin, Spelcher and Zerbe are included in this collection.

In the University Museum the visitors saw a display of displayed from the prehistoric archaeological Antillean culture known as Taino, centuries old, from Caribbean settlins.

A Peruvian exhibit of South American Materials from the Carrier collection and a Florida exhibit of Indian culture, placed in the museum as part of the Circum-Caribbean area, also caught the attention of the visitors.

DR CAMPBELL, university president, who made the new university cultural center possible, said that it will be of much value to the student body in both historical and cultural development aspects.

The Museum and Gallery will

Sandspur Tickets Are Now on Sale In Lower Westcott

Tickets for the 1951 production of Sandspur, "Gypsy Holiday," are now on sale in lower Westcott. This tickets may be bought for $2.50 at the box office, Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, February 19, 21, 22 and 23. Sales will be limited to 5,000 tickets at 65 cents each.

Gypsy Holiday, the all-original production written by Doug Alley with music by George Boldt, had previously advertised as a night performance, beginning Tuesday, February 20, but 40 percent portion of the total proceeds being donated to the campus Community Chest Drive for the FSU campus.

However the University Council, headed by Rube Askew, asked a higher percentage or threatened to cancel the entire performance.

In a recent interview, Sandspur chairman Sandi Horton said that he was extremely sorry that Mr Askew did not realize the expenses incurred in putting on an all-original production.

"Although the Sandspur cast would very much like to put on an extra performance," she continued, "our budget is already below the line with the Council's demands. Therefore there will be only three performances this year."

Archaeology Lecture Slated In Longmire

A lecture on "An Archaeologist Views the Development of Culture in the Eastern United States" by Dr John M Griffin, noted archaeologist, will be opened to the public Thursday, February 22, at 8 o'clock in the Longmire auditorium.

Dr Griffin is director of the Museum of Anthropology and director also of the Ceramic Repository of the Eastern United States. He has just completed the first stage of the Florida state archaeological project in the Mississippi Valley to find origins and relationships of the "Middle Mississippi" archeological horizon.

Arnold Air Society Formed on Campus

The Arnold Air Society has recently been installed on the Florida State campus. The Society's motto is pursuit to create and foster interest in the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

This organization is composed of men of the highest calibre from the Reserve units of the major colleges and universities of the United States.

Joe Marcus, commander of the group, stated that it should grow into great proportions on campus due to the present war emergency and students are more conscious of the need for military leadership.

"Plans are being formulated to tap new members within the next week," stated Bob Lorse, rush chairman. These cadets will be selected from the Junior and Senior classes on their academic and leadership abilities.

Revenue Collector

The Internal Revenue department will have its Deputy Collector at Florida State University at the entrance to Westcott auditorium on Thursday, March 8, to help faculty, staff and students prepare income tax returns.

This announcement was made by Rod Shaw, business manager of the University.

Sandspur Tryouts Slated Her For Spring Operetta

Tryouts for chorus parts in the spring presentation of Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta, H.M.S. Pinnance, will be held Monday evening, at 7:30 in room 223 Music building, announced Dr Robert L Briggs, director of the production.

All interested students are invited to attend these auditions which will serve to provide a chorus for the presentation in mid-May.

Casting for the principal roles will take place on Wednesday, February 28, from 7 to 10 p m in the same room. Students trying for solo parts must be enrolled in some music class or organization on this campus. Further information may be secured by contacting Professor Briggs, Miss Betty Jane Grimm, assistant professor of voice. Scores for study will be available in the School of Music library.

The entire production will be presented by the Florida State Light Opera Guild, a combined organization of Sigma Alpha Iota and Phi Mu Alpha, professional fraternities for women and men respectively.

THE ARNOLD AIR SOCIETY poses for a formal picture at that group. The ROTC fraternity was recently formed on the FSU campus.

Tallahassee Trail Featured Feb 24

Historic Homes, Churches To Open for Annual Tour

Thirteen of Floridas most historic old homes and churches will be opened to students and townspeople Saturday and Sunday, February 24-25 for the annual Tallahassee Trail, sponsored by the Tallahassee Woman's Club.

Among the homes to be visited is that of Horseshoe Plantation owned by Mrs George F Baker. This year will be the first time it has been opened to the public. The main "Horseshoe" Plantation comes from the fact that the estate follows the shore-line of Lake Iamonia. Frequent guests of the plantation are the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

OTHER houses to be visited are: Goodwood, owned by Mrs Margaret Modres Hood, a 14 room Georgian-English home surrounded by seven guest cottages, and-den, a bridal path and huge oak trees. The Governor's Mansion, home of the Florida's famous Governor Call, Indian fighter and friend of Andrew Jackson, now occupied by Sen and Mrs LeRoy Collins; the W V Knott home owned by retired state treasurer and his wife, Mrs Knott; and the home of Dr and Mrs Doak S Campbell. These homes will be open on Sunday only.

The Tallahassee Trail will also include visits to the Southwood Plantation of Mrs Alfred I duPont; the Guy Winthrop home built in 1840, the home of Florida's former chief justice of the supreme court, Alto Adams, and the home of Dr and Mrs Fred O Conrad with its Pennsylvania Dutch and early American furnishings.

A SPECIAL feature will be a visit to the Governor's Mansion, where Mrs Fuller Warren will be the official hostess. Among other visitors will are a 1840 silver set from the old battleship, "Florida."

St John's Episcopal, Pisgah Methodist and the First Presbyterian church of the Tallahassee churches, will also be on the trail. The latter still has its original slave balcony.

CA Baby Sitters For Sandspur Play

The Student Christian Association in conjunction with the '51 Sandspur has set up a baby sitting service for those parents who wish to see "Gypsy Holiday."

"We will begin to take appointments next Friday," said Frankie Clark, head of the baby sitters.

The appointments can be made by calling the Y-W-CA office between 9 and 5 on any afternoon from Friday, February 16 to Friday, February 23.

A fee of $1.00 will be charged to all parents using the service, for the Sandspur production service.

"For SCA," Frankie added, "has plans to keep the sitting service on a permanent basis, at a rate of $.50 per hour. If these plans work out, there will be sitters available for any service."

University Senate Requests Dancing In Suwanee Room

University Senate Tuesday passed a recommendation by Senator Mary Ruth Summers that dancins be allowed in the Suwanee Room of the dining hall during the time when George Bee's Orchestra is playing. The recommendation passed unanimously and is to be taken to Mr Adams of the dining hall by Senator Jack Holmes.

Senator Ronald Koons' report of the Traffic Committee made it apparent that the business manager's office had failed to distribute automobile stickers during registration. The Senate sent a recommendation to the business office that the stickers be issued and stating that the stickers are to be placed on the storeroom.

Once again a Student Board of Publication committee was set up. The members are Senator Mary Ruth Summers, chairman, Cass Yonge, Virginia Stockman and Margaret Krasemann.

Also appointed was a standing rules committee composed of Senators Jimmie Evans, chairman, Jere Salyers, Jim Turnbull, Wanda Scott and Fred Williams. Senater Jimmie Evans reported that a member of the Future Hotel Men of America has volunteered to serve on the Senate Food Committee. He stated also that the president of the hotel organization felt he could not designate members of his organization as nominations to the Food Committee.

High Court Refuses To Decide on Case

The University Court last Tuesday night, threw out the Who's Who case submitted to it by Emory King.

Chief Justice Bo Baker said, "To allow any student to take an issue to court that he is not directly connected with would make the Court a political body."

King had sent a bill of complaint to the court against the University Council's revival of Who's Who on the FSU campus. He contended that the council had violated a law passed last year by the Senate banning the contest from the campus.

After the decision was handed down, King announced that he believed that it violated Article X, section 6 of the constitution, which says that any student may go to court about a constitutional issue, and that he would appeal the case again to the Court of Appeals.

NOTICE

There will be an important meeting of the Sophomore Class Thursday, February 22, at 7 p m in the auditorium of the school of business building. All sophomore are urged to attend.

Newspaper Confab Scheduled March 9

Problems facing the Florida legislature this session will be examined at the Southern Newspapermen's Short Course in Tallahassee on March 9 and 10, according to Dr Laurence R Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism.

"Looking at the Legislature" will be the subject of the panel discussion scheduled for Friday afternoon, he said. Newspaper executives and capital correspondents are invited to attend this as well as the general public.

Kenneth Ballinger, capital representative of the Florida Press Association, will be moderator of the panel. A former newspaperman, Mr Ballinger is secretary for the Florida Board of Parks and Historical Monuments, and is a lecturer in journalism at FSU.

Three other panel members will be Senator Leroy Collins of Tallahassee; Howard Jay Friedman of the Florida Department of Education and Malcolm Johnson, manager of the Associated Press board.

The second panel discussion will deal with the business and editorial problems newspapers face in wartime. John M Tapers, publisher of the Miami Herald, Emeral, will be the moderator of this session. A P Cooke, former president of the Florida Press association, will be on this panel.

Executive Meeting Slated For Committee

The Executive Council of the University Student Union will meet Tuesday afternoon at 6 p m in the IPC room in the Annnd building.

Every member is expected to attend as final plans for policy presentation to the University Senate will be completed. If any member of the student body has legislature that he wishes to be considered, he may present it to the Executive Council at this time.

Psych Prof Lectures

Dr Theron Alexander, assistant professor of psychology and faculty advisor to the Department of Psychology Seminar, spoke on "The Covert Origin of Behavior in Relation to the Study of Personality Development and Psychotherapeutic" at a psychology seminar Wednesday night.

WFSU Broadcast Schedule Resumes Monday Morning

WFSU will resume its regular broadcast schedule Monday morning with its daily "Early Bird Show" from 7 to 9 a.m. The night broadcast hours will continue from 9 to 11 p.m.

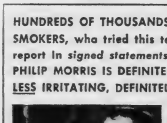
Den DeLacure, station manager, has announced that the "Voice of the Seminole" will attempt many "firsts" during this semester and urges anyone who is interested in radio to join the working staff to be in on the big future dotans.

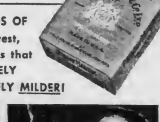
The necessary equipment has been set up and plans are now under way to broadcast from the dining hall during the hours when George Bee and his orchestra will be playing. On the afternoons when he isn't playing there is a possibility that records will be played from the studios of WFSU.

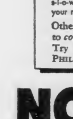
ADAPTATIONS of two of Shakespeare's plays will go into rehearsal soon and will be presented over Carnot Theater this semester. Tuesday night, Gold Theater presents "Butch Minds the Baby." Tune in at 8:30 for this delightful comedy.

The studios of WFSU are always open for visitors. They are located on the fourth floor of the Alum. The governing board and the staff members issue an invitation to all students interested to come see the "Voice of the Seminole."

Prof Burns Articles On Testing In Shop







Prof Clyde E Burns, head of the Industrial Arts Department, is author of an article entitled "Individual Testing in the General Shop" now appearing in the February issue of "Industrial Arts and Vocational Education."

The article deals with the testing of individual students in allowing for differences in interest rates of learning and rates of accomplishment.

So You Didn't Like Registration — Reporter Finds You Were Not Alone

Had trouble at registration, did you? Well you weren't the only one peeved at the new-born system employed last week. Our roving reporter, Paul Rubey, found some other students who didn't think registration went off as well as it should have.

What is your opinion of the way registration was handled?

Lucy Evans, Sophomore, 339 Gilchrist—Complete chaos! It was the worst mess I have ever seen.

Nancy Durrance, Senior, 338 Landis—Ridiculous — the interlines blocked all other traffic because they were too long. There was only one person handling our section and we weren't sufficiently informed about the necessary procedures both before and after registration.

Robert H Richard, Grad Student, Prince Murat Inn—I thought it was pretty crumby. Why didn't they make some special arrangements for seniors and graduate students?

Katherine Mason, Freshman, 339 Jennie Murphree—It's wonderful. You get to see everybody!

Tru Brown, Van Camp—I thought it was fine, until I got to the card-checking tables.

Marilyn Stephens, Freshman, 314 Bryan Hall—At Gainesville, it takes forty-five minutes. Here it took me three hours and forty-five minutes.

Jackie Jacobs, Senior, 221 Landis—Getting the signatures of the departments should have been made clearer, and there were too many tables needlessly checking cards.

Margaret Bo, Grad Student, 185 Van Brunt — The students should register before the semester ends, because we don't know what our grades are anyhow by the time we register now; so the old method saved a lot of confusion.

David Little, West Campus—The system is all right, but a little filling out our classes should be eliminated.

Betty Greenall, Sophomore, 1 Gilchrist — I got everything wanted, but it was a terrible mess —there was so much confusion.

Jeannie Hair, Junior, 518 Lake—It's too complicated and done efficiently serves the purpose for which it was intended.

Dorothy George, Freshman, 1 Jennie Murphree — It was very informative to be able to get what you wanted, after standing in line and figuring it out for a whole day.

Roy Ownby, Sophomore, West Campus—They should be able to work out some better system than eliminate all the unnecessary confusion.

Investigation

Tonge: by the Investigating committee.

Q—Who approved the point system used? A—A sub committee of the Women's Association committee drew up the point system and took it to their committee for approval. There was no approval from Executive Council who appointed the "Who's Who" selection committee.

Q—HERE STUDENTS graded as to points on their contributions to FSU and their activities or just what was turned in to the Dean of Student Welfare? A—Just on what was turned in to the office with the exception of three cases.

Q—Were activities added to Delta Zeta Activities were added to those lists concerning the recent tapping of Garnet Key members, two, and one other person's list after a personal interview with that person.

Q—Were activities added to some lists and not to others? A—Yes. Activities were added to those list mentioned before.

Q—Were more activities added to some lists than others? A—Yes.

Q—WHY WERE NT the grading points published beforehand? A—Lack of time—the point system wasn't completed by the time the applications had to be in. Also there wouldn't be enough room to publish all the points.

Q—Why did the President say in Executive Council that none of the points received by students would be made known? A—Because of personal feelings involved.

Q—Were points given for an average below a one point and why? A—It had not been published ahead of time that a one point average was necessary. For that reason the committee didn't feel that anyone should be excluded because of grade average. (The committee admitted this to be a weakness in their system.)

Q—WHY SHOULD paid workers be given points? A—It was difficult to draw a line here. If paid workers were excluded then senior staff members of the publications would be excluded as well as others.

Members of the Investigating Committee were Betsy Rich and Jim Turnbull, co-chairmen, Margaret Chesterman, Nancy Rettle, Jimmy Evans, Burton Welch and June Conyers.

Roy Flynn Serves As Critic at Meet

Roy Flynn, director of radio at Florida State, will be a member of the critics board for the radio section of the Southern Speech convention to be held in Gainesville the first week of April.

Flynn, one of the four critics, will comment on four speeches to be made on "Supervision of the High School Radio Workshop," "The Curriculum of the Undergraduate Degree Program in Radio", "Supervision and Production of the College Radio Guild and Radio Workshop," and "Television in the University Radio Curriculum."

Graves Discusses Civil Rights Laws

"The conflict in wanting liberty and security must be seriously thought out before we pass Federal and State legislation," declared Dr W Brooke Graves yesterday.

A visiting professor in the School of Public Administration, Dr Graves is head of the American government section of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress.

Informally discussing Civil Rights before a public administration class, Graves said that many points of the Civil Rights Program should be decided by state legislation.

"Such items as anti-lynch legislation, poll-tax legislation, and FEPC are state problems which the state should intelligently solve," Dr Graves added.

Pi Alpha Sigma, public administration professional fraternity honored Dr Graves with an honorary membership at a reception that followed the Civil Rights discussion.

Curtain Rises Wednesday on 'Gypsy Holiday'

The lights go down . . . the orchestra strikes up the Overture . . . the curtain rises on Gypsy Holiday. . . . Another Sandspur student musical production opens Wednesday night at 8:15 in Knowles auditorium.

From the opening scene to the finale, students will see the first original Sandspur, and one of the few such student productions in the country. Book and lyrics were written by Doug Alley with music by George Boldt. Choreography was formulated by Sandi Horton; sets and lights by Bill Bascus, with costumes designed by Mary Anne Seidner.

ORIGINALLY under the direction of Herb Reinhard, Gypsy Holiday went into final rehearsals with Horton and Carl Beeler taking over after Reinhard joined the navy.

Violins weave a spell of romance among the traditional gypsies as four people fight for love denied them by the customs and mores of the Romanies. Jackie Morris, beautiful brunette from Quincy, is starred as Sharon, with Jack Watkins cast opposite her as Paul Henderson, the outsider who finds a strange love among the gypsies but who is denied this love by the social barriers that separate the people.

Jackie sings "I'll Find My Love;" the "Soliloquy," an eight-movement number that gives her a chance to show her versatility in vocal music; and is featured with Jack Watkins in "I Can See a Picture," and "Gypsy Drums." Watkins' solo number is "Sleep."

THE TWO STARS are ably supported by a strong cast led by Carrie Cullison and Bob Dobrey. Playing the role of the passionate but pesty, lovable but tricky Marie, Carrie has a chance to gain a following of fans with her renditions of several novelty numbers including "I'm Getting Impatient to Be More Adjacent to You," and "I Do the Best I Can (to Get my Man)."

Dobrey is cast as the strong-willed, husky and handsome Guipoe, who accepts the plaza of the gypsies and is quite willing to marry Sharon. Highlights of his performance are his singing of "Nightwinds," and "I Pledge Myself to Thee."

AS COLORFUL as a kaleidoscope, the gypsies are suitably led by Seelo (Gerry Gray) although the real leader of the clan is Christine, his wife. (Frieda Allen). Gerry sings "Love Is a Thrill" and "You're Mine."

The role with the sex appeal is left to Isabelle Pugatsky as Janet Reynolds, fresh from New York, who has come west to latch on to Paul Henderson (Watkins). She does not sing but may well steal the show with the help of Nick Pappas as the surprising mute gypsy, Pedro.

Comedy plus is contributed by Jane Sheppard as the unconventional Mrs Henderson, who has a secret and a surprise that changes the lives of all concerned.

IN HER FIRST speaking role after several dancing performances, Bobbie Pettit is cast as the Chorine from Brooklyn. She is just one member of the chorus line which Mrs Henderson has brought from the east to "entertain" her high-brow guests.

If expectations come true, one of the highlights of the production will be the cocktail lounge scene in which "The Devil Meets the Angel." -Sandi Horton and Barbara Waldon) and Ernestine Hunt tells everyone that "A Man Is the Blues."

The 21-piece pit orchestra plays several instrumental numbers including "Seminole Syncopation," while the chorus sings and dances to "Gypsy Holiday," "Dreaming of Days Gone By," and "Time to Be on Our Way."

The Sandspurites have gone all-out this year to make "Gypsy Holiday" a musical holiday for all who see it. Months have been spent in preparation with nearly 150 students joining together in some phase of the production. These students deserve the thanks of all for giving their time and efforts toward an undertaking which offers nothing as reward except the applause for a job well done.

SANDSPUR HAS had to overcome many obstacles this year.

The loss of members of the cast and the director to the armed forces plus the inability to get materials has given many of the production staff headaches. However, things are shaping up now with a view to the future Sandspurs when the west campus Gypsy Playhouse will be filled with sets, lights, costumes and other materials from past productions.

Sandspur is proud of the number of "firsts" it has to its credit: First all-original production. . . . First pit orchestra formulated especially for Sandspur . . . First baby-sitting project whereby baby-sitters can be obtained from the Student Christian Association in order that parents can attend the performances. . . . First Sandspur to have its own Playhouse, a building in which all sets were constructed and dancing routines were rehearsed.

TICKETS ARE NOW on sale in lower Westcott. Price of admission is 65c including tax. Tickets for the Sandspur dance, featuring Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra, will go on sale next week. Only a limited number of dance tickets will be sold in order to alleviate the crowded conditions usually prevalent at dances in the dining hall.

FITTING EPITAPH: GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

"Gone but not forgotten" would be a fitting epitaph for the recent squabble concerning the selection of candidates for "Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities."

The Senate Investigating Committee, in releasing their report to the Student Senate, said, in effect, that the system used this past semester stank but they would not do anything about it. They did, however, offer suggestions for the revision of a "Who's Who" if it is allowed on campus next year.

The points are simple: "In the future let the students decide by an election, whether or not they want 'Who's Who' on this campus." This election would offer three alternatives: (1) to join "Who's Who" nationally; (2) establish our own "Who's Who," or (3) abolish "Who's' Who" on this campus.

The report issued by the committee completely overlooked the fact that "Who's Who" was already illegal, and by doing so proceeded contrary to the wishes of the student body. It is an established fact that last year's Senate group outlawed "Who's Who" from this campus until such time that a referendum of the student body could be taken to determine the question.

The Investigators virtually declared that this year's selection was rotten when they suggested that in the event the students decide to have "Who's Who," special consideration should be given to the following: (1) a definite scholastic average be required. (There was none this year). (2) that the point system published before any applications be turned in. (This wasn't done this year.) (3) that everyone turn in his own application. (This wasn't done this year.) (4) that only activities handled by the person himself be considered. (This was not done this year.)

We are vexed as to the reason for not ruling on the "Who's Who" situation as it came about this year. The committee rested their case after making suggestions for next year but did not mention what would be the outcome of this year's selections. It is quite logical that this year's selections were not in order and therefore should be declared null and void.

● GOT A WEED?

Some people smoke for enjoyment, some for relaxation, some from force of habit, some to waste time and some just because they see other people smoking and want to find out what it is all about. Other people do not smoke because it is a nasty vice, it will stunt your growth, leaves bad stains on your fingers and because they have more important things to do than waste time with a fag.

Most people, however, and this includes deans, faculty, administrators, staff, graduate students and undergraduates, smoke from one cigarettes to one pack of cigarettes daily. Others smoke cigars, pipes, rope, opium, cornsilk and grapevine leaves.

And now the Executive Cocunil has taken away our privileges to smoke in class, buildings, hallways, public offices, lecture rooms, seminar rooms and hundreds of other places. In other words, the Executive Council is starting to break our habits for us. We may rest assured that another edict will prohibit us from biting our fingernails, twirling, cussing and other wicked collegiate pursuits.

As means of enforcing these smoking rules the Council has stipulated that "undergraduate students will be fined or otherwise disciplined for violation . . . by the appropriate student court." Graduate students will be reported to the Dean of the Graduate School, and staff, both administrative and faculty, will be reported to the head of their department or administrative office.

In other words, undergraduates will be disciplined and other members of the University will only be reported. And undergraduates may be fined (except that the appropriate student court does not have the power to fine) and graduate students and staff will only be reported. This isn't equitable.

Don't get us wrong. We are in complete accordance with the rules prohibiting smoking in theaters, auditoriums, attics, storage areas, elevators, practice rooms, library buildings, museums, gymnasiums and dance floors. However, we cannot see the practical advantages of not being allowed to smoke in hallways or classrooms. In wooden buildings, such as the Social Work edifice, these rules are fine, but the other buildings are made of brick, cement and plaster; there is no danger of fire.

Smoking has been a major problem at Florida State University. It will, no doubt, continue to be.

We advise revision of the new rules to allow smoking in places where there is no danger of fire—that is, classrooms and hallways in brick buildings. It might even be a good idea to supply ash trays in classrooms so students will not crush cigarette butts on the floor. Non-combustible floors, that is.

● CULTURE CENTER

The modern University Museum and University Art Gallery which opened Wednesday should be an inspiration to the student body and serve as a culture center for the entire state.

The policy which Dr Campbell has announced with reference to the maintenance of the museum and gallery certainly seems to be commended. The Art Gallery will be maintained in such a manner as to eventually develop it into one of the finest centers of its kind for creative study.

Exhibitions of various forms of creative art will be changed regularly and the gallery will carry on a vigorous program of lectures, publications and information service for the students and visitors.

Particularly interesting is the University's Carter collection of 800 artifacts material from prehistoric Florida which will be permanently housed in the Museum. Seminole Indian displays will also be featured as well as various collections on loan from time to time.

It is hoped that the students of the University will take advantage of the fine opportunity for cultural convenience which has just been opened on this campus by frequent visits to the Museum and Gallery and participation in the lectures which will be sponsored there.

● I WANT TO BE ALAWN

Campus Grass Week opens tomorrow.

The Junior class has been instrumental in having more sidewalks and hedges placed conveniently on campus. We like to identify it. All of us appreciate their efforts, but many of us unthinkingly destroy the good work of the class.

Look out your window sometime and try to count the number of people who leap over the hedges. These people go out of their way to stomp on the grass, and they are probably the first ones to clamor for a more beautiful campus.

Florida State University can be proud of its campus, for it is one of the most beautiful in the South. Let's not destroy that beauty by thoughtless actions.

Cooperate with the Junior class project by walking on the sidewalks this week. Maybe you will form a permanent habit if you try.

● DREAM IS REALITY

During the last few weeks the students of Florida State University have witnessed a dream become a reality in the functioning of a university Book Exchange.

Sponsored by the Junior Class, this project has greatly aided the student body in the securing of books this semester. Not only students, but faculty members as well have been served through the establishing of the FSU Book Exchange.

Through the efforts of the Book Exchange committee, lead by Chairman Shirley Gregory, many hundreds of textbooks have been secured which greatly assisted the matter of buying books this semester. This non-profit organization also makes it more convenient for the students to locate used books.

To the chairman, to the student workers, and to the honorary fraternity Alpha Phi Omega aiding in the project..go the thanks of the students at Florida State University for giving to them a long-needed service. It seems evident that a good foundation has been laid for a worthwhile Junior Class project.

LAST CHERISHED ILLUSION DESTROYED

By BETSY BLANTON

University Court destroyed our last cherished illusion about the intelligence of the college student, or anybody else for that matter, when it refused to rule on the Who's Who issue.

Lower King filed a complaint questioning the legality of Who's Who, but his case was refused because he was not directly concerned with Who's Who. Court Chairman Bo Baker said to rule on the case would subject the court to the role of a "political body."

There are a couple of things wrong with the court's reasoning. First, article ten of the student constitution, section six, page 37, paragraph five (could we make it any clearer?) says "Should any student deem any University Statute to be contrary to . . . this constitution, said student shall appear before and present his case . . . to the University Court . . ."

Second, this writer feels that Emory, as a student at FSU, is directly concerned with Who's Who. Any student, whether he be freshman or senior, is affected by the inclusion or exclusion of Who's Who on this campus.

Third, there is the legality of a University Council ruling

AMONG OTHER THINGS

SOME DOPE ON SELECTIVE SERVICE

By JERRY THOMAS

With many Reserve Officer Training Schools now available to students, the Citizens Military Training Draft Rules do not affect a large number of students.

However, there are still many students, both high school graduates and college, who are concerned with present draft regulations.

Three days ago the Selective Service issued formal rules under which students will be examined above, will have the opportunity of enlisting in the service of their choice after their first summer's school session.

According to the recent action by the Selective Service, a thirty day postponement of induction has been provided for students.

By this enactment and under law, inductions of students called while class work is in session are postponed automatically until the end of the academic year.

WHAT DO MUSICIANS HAVE?

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

A few months ago, one of my favorites, Paul Ash and his gang, voted a whole column to "the boys in the band." He wondered, in his column, why it is that women seem to be attracted to every horn-blowing or piano playing guy in any orchestra.

He mentioned, in so many words, that if you go into a bar or night club, the most wide-eyed females gazing entranced at that fellow who waved an trumpet player in the second row.

That's true anywhere you go, even here at Florida State. A: sorority or fraternity shin-digs, you find it in the corner by the orchestra, trying to keep their mind on their dancing partner, but really giving the fourth sax man the eye. And they really go wild when the big name bands come to town.

"I'm certainly not against this practice. I've been guilty on occasion, but I've often wondered about it. Why do females of a few girls hither and yon. Why? What have those guys got that the he-man in the Merco-C hasn't?

MEN AND MARRIAGE

By Jim Slack

(A Man Looks into a Woman's Thoughts)

They say continental men are romantic
Smooth and subtle and not half so frantic
As the American guy with his salesman's eye
Be that as it may, what use is the notion
Of lovin' a man clear across the ocean

Now I'd like to be wined at Maxims I know
Chic and adored in a Schiaparelli chapeau
And they tell me that Monte Carlo yet
They gamble more on love than they do on roulette
But what's the use my dear
I'm not at Monte, I'm over here

Yes I can see myself adorin'
A lad handsome and foreign
He'd be a Latin smooth as satin
Or maybe my true-mania
Is a Magyar from Rue-mania
And then again perhaps my prescription
Is the love of a dashing Egyptian
Ah! I could care-o for a son of the Nile
And while I'm reeling in this fantasia
Why not a feeling for a Shiek from A-sia

But those are just dreams, idle schemes
For I'm to marry a local lad it seems
Born if fact he is below average
And he makes love like an untrained savage
I'll gradually lower my resistance
Love ain't always much good long distance
So adieu foreign liger, passionate Ben-gal
From where I sit your only a pen-pal
Alas I am destined, contented stuck
I'll marry the boy next door—worse luck

He Tried Representing

Dear Editor:

A few days ago, I represented the Senate committee on Who's Who in the Who's Who investigation and served as co-chairman of that committee. I was asked by the investigators asking for that investigation. Now I'm sorry—not because I believe it was wrong but because it was the weakest attempt on the part of any Senate committee to fulfill its job. Some committee members made an honest effort to arrive at a just conclusion, they must suffer for the neglect of the other committee members. I am not taking this stand because I disagree with some points of our report because I wanted a strong recommendation but because I believe any representative or legislator in a democracy must be governed by the will of the majority.

I feel the majority of students at FSU want it clear how each member of Who's Who was selected. Maybe they are right. There is only a minority, but still as students they have the right to know the facts.

This, the selection committee failed to tell us and we resented it. And this, the representatives of the students (the senate committee) failed to demand knowledge.

As long as any student or student group is not know about selections such as Who's Who, its their right to have presented to them the complete records in a satisfactory manner. Whether they are right or wrong the majority or minority, they are students at this university and have a right to know. Not just the word of the committee but the records, and if everything is as it should be the records will show it.

For my part, I apologize to the students for not answering these questions as their representative in the senate, but the only group that can shed light on the subject is the selection committee itself or the executive council because the selection committee is a committee of that body. I refer you to them, your representatives also.

JIM TURNBULL,
Who's Who Committee.

Afraid to Rule?

No longer can g student exercise his constitutional rights in the UGA court system. Those rights set forth in Article X, section 6 of the constitution, giving any student the right to doubt the constitutionality of the law, has been by-interpreted by the high court.

Now no student can take a case to court which is not directly connected with the issue at hand.

This procedure, says Bo Baker, chief justice of the University Court, follows the Supreme Court's restrictions.

You will recall, Earl, that I have for a long time pleaded for the abolition of the Federal System. For the most part, the members of the UGA have suffered from the same. This FSU, not Washington, D C—and we will do things in our own way.

For the University Court to suddenly hide behind the skirts of the Supreme Court is hypocritical, not hypocritical, Mr Editor. I believe the court is afraid to rule on Who's Who issue. They are or their Chief Justice is unwilling to accept the responsibility the students to administer justice without fear or favor to anyone.

EMORY KING.

What's Your Score?

Dear Editor:

It has come to the attention of the "Selection Committee" of "Who's That" at Florida State University, that the students at large would like to know the basis on which this year's candidates were chosen. FSU Cagers to Meet Mercer Bears Here Tomorrow

KEEPIN' SCORE

With Scott Marshall
Rambeau Sports Editor

This writer sent a mimeographed letter to daily newspaper sports editors in Florida early this week regarding athletic relations between Florida State University and the University of Florida.

Several writers in the state commented on the letter, but we have only the comments by Arnold Roderick, of the Florida Times-Union.

It seems that "Finney" is anxious for the two to meet, but says: "Athletic relations between the two schools could be resumed, probably even in football, if FSU would, as has been pointed out here before, adhere to Southeastern Conference eligibility rules, particularly the one requiring transfers to establish one year residence before being allowed to compete in varsity teams."

This is perhaps the biggest reason why Florida State can't get games lined up with SEC teams, but FSU isn't a member of the Southeastern.

Referring to Finnafrock's column, Dr. Howard G Danford, FSU athletic director, said the following: "We are a member of the Big Conference, and will continue to abide by rules of the conference until we leave the Dixie for those of that year.

"The Dixie Conference does not allow athletic scholarships, consequently member teams have nothing in which to entice players. Therefore, there is no transfer rule. Now we have decided to leave the Dixie Conference and begin awarding athletic scholarships to our athletes."

From Danford's remarks, one could draw the conclusion that Florida State would be working on a transfer rule. But, it certainly is "no" to please the University of Florida.

The Times-Union sports head seems to newspaper campaign doomed to force Florida into playing FSU undoubtedly will soften the resolve of athletic authorities at Gainesville against such. If FSU wants to get on Florida's schedule, the best way to accomplish this would be for Howard G Danford to get together personally with Bob Woodruff.

"Finney's" first sentence of the above paragraph is probably true. But, Dr Danford states that "no Florida State official has started a newspaper campaign to force Florida into athletic relations with FSU."

This writer isn't interested in seeing Florida into anything. It would just like to know why Florida doesn't take a little initiative in the thing.

Referring to Finnefrock's prepared personal get together between Danford and Woodruff, the athletic head had this to say: "We done everything possible, we bow down two or three times and plead to Woodruff, to together with Florida. We a number of friendly written telephonic conversations. Woodruff finally saying that he told put the proposed FSU-Florida athletic contests before Florida athletic committee. committee at Gainesville evidently doesn't meet as often as ours, because I've received no as yet."

The FSU athletic committee that Danford had gone enough. The next move was to Florida.",

Finnefrock closed his comment saying: "As far as we're concerned, we'd like to see this meeting take place today. It's inevitable that athletic teams of the two schools will meet and we say the sooner the better. Only more ill can result from delay."

Sports Editor:

the past year or more the athletic authorities at Florida have been trying to promote athletic relations with our school and the University of Florida. The State Board of Control has also been trying to bring about such a meeting. In other words, for the past two years we have been trying to meet and I have tried to discover the answer to the answer. I got Florida State University officials and the State Board of Control to meet with Florida officials and find out once the restrictions were lifted that have been trying to arrange a meeting between the two schools. As the matter stands now FSU Athletic Director Dr. Howard G Danford says he has a letter from Florida's athletic officials which in essence said, Danford's letter stating the matter will be put before the Florida Athletic Committee for action. Dr. Danford told me he received the letter in the forepart of 1950 and has been no further word from Florida officials.

I thought maybe the Florida coaches were holding things up because they didn't want to play us, but what I've heard from FSU coaches of the so called minor sports, this is probably not true.

I've heard it said that Florida won't play us because they would have everything to lose and nothing to gain. Certainly this is not so true as it is when they meet Stetson, Florida Southern, Tampa and other such teams.

I have also heard that we are not strong enough to meet Florida now but that reasoning doesn't clock with me because we defeated the University of Tampa in basketball, 80 to 69. The very next night Tampa topped Florida at Gainesville by two points. The following week in swimming we trounced the University of Georgia, 42 to 33 points, and the next week Georgia whipped Florida 36 to 33. In baseball last Spring our team did as well against common opponents as the Gators did. The same goes for our golf team.

It could be that the Fighting Gators are just SCARED. We don't seem to be able to get an answer out of Gainesville. I wonder if you could get one for us?

Signed,
SCOTT MARSHALL.

Eddie Sawyer, not too optimistic that his Phillies will win the National League pennant in 1951, says: "I think we have a good chance to finish in the first division."

Philadelphia's manager's failure to go all out for the Phils is not based on any fear as to the ability of his men to improve over their 1950 showing, but is supported upon what the "good Uncle" may do to his squad.

"No one can predict anything with any certainty," remarked the former Ithaca College professor. "I think mostz luhs will get along fairly well during the first three months, but after that—it's anyone's guess."

This is perhaps the principal reason why Sawyer is bringing a big part of his squad to Clearwater for the opening of spring training today. He hopes to get his men in shape for a good start, compile a comfortable lead by July 1 and then he can battle it out the rest of the way.

"I wouldn't mind having a ten game lead by the Fourth of July," said the Phillie head.

The Phils' prospects of winning the pennant in '51 are fairly good, with reserve strength expected to be stronger.

"We had no one to help out Oran Hamner who he got sick last year, so he kept playing when he should have been taking a rest. And that is what probably sent us into a slump at the finish. Not one of my regulars had an opportunity to rest during the year.

"This season, with Ed Pellagrini, Jimmy Bloodworth, Buddy Hicks, and Ralph Caballero available, we have a good man at every position." Sawyer remarked.

In the antfield, Stan Hollmig is slated for minor league seasoning; there's some question whether Bill Nicholson can play and it looks like a big scrap for the left field position between Dick Sisler, Richie Ashburn and Del Ennis are pictures and Willie Whitman is qualified as a good utility man last year.

The big problem, based on Andy Seminick's ankle, is the catching. If Seminick comes through, ankle an dall. Stan Lopeta may be sent to Baltimore where he'll get plenty of work. But if Andy's Angle doesn't shape up, it may be necessar yto keep Loyta, Seminick and Del Wilber on the Phillie roster. Ken Silvestri may be sent out to Baltimore to handle young pitchers there.

Sawyer has divided his men into two squads. Twenty-five players were scheduled to report today; the remained on February 28.

FSU Swimmers Meet Hurricanes in Miami

Florida State University's swimming team, victorious in four meets so far this year, tangles with the University of Miami Hurricanes in Pratt Memorial Pool, Miami, tonight.

The Seminoles, who have won 10 of 17 games to date (excluding last night's Mississippi College game), are expected to start Jack Merriman and Bob Whitmer at forwards, Tom McLaughlin at center, and Bob Hartman and either Bud Scott or Bud Marsee at guards.

Florida State lost a hard fought 78-75 battle to the University of Mississippi Rebels Wednesday night in Oxford. The results of the Chootaw contest were unknown at press time last night.

THE BEARS, who have only five letitermen returning from last year's team which won 19 and lost but seven, are expected to be led by Center Lamar Clements, a 6-3 pivot man with a good back shot.

In addition to Clements, the Mercer quintet will probably start Bob Reeder and Al Webb at forwards, and Glenn Cassell and Tom Colquitt at forwards.

The Seminoles will be seeking their second victory over the Bears, having won the same team early in the season.

In Wednesday night's Mississippi tilt a new fellow, Jack Merriman, paced the Florida State five with 20 points, but it was not enough to offset the effectiveness of the Rebels' Ken Robbins and Hal Reeves, who scored 19 and 17 points, respectively.

FSU's Bob Hartman followed with 13 points, boosting his year's total to 284 points. Bud Scott and Bob Whitmer scored 10 each, and the remainder of Florida State's scoring went this way: Lou Fischer, seven; Dick Trobaugh, six; Tom McLaughlin, five; and Bud Marsee, four.

Florida State, after trailing 41-30 at halftime, rallied in the second half to tie the score 44-44 with 15 minutes remaining.

From this point on, the score was tied four more times, and the lead changed hands nine times.

Mississippi pulled away in the closing minutes on the accurate shooting of Robbins and Reeves to win the non-conference tilt.

Spring Sports Squads Begin Work for 1951

Florida State University's spring sports squads, all defending champions, have been, or will be, practicing daily for the coming seasons. The baseball, track, tennis and golf teams each won the Dixie Conference championship in their respective sport last year and are expected to defend their titles this spring.

The Florida State baseball squad has 16 lettermen returning to form a nucleus for the 1951 team. This list of veterans includes two former team captains, Ronnie Nettles and Bob Trowbridge, the 1950 team's "most valuable player" and leading hitter, Ronald Melton, and one 1950 intercollegiate All-State player, Lee Bailey.

The other returning lettermen are infielders Augie Pompalis, Billy Teel, Les Mullen; outfielder Glenn Gresham, and pitchers Ed Lockard and Ed Bostonia.

Among the newcomers who have looked good in practice sessions to date are infielders Alvyne Revelin and Cooter Mills, outfielder Wayne Rasmussen, and pitcher Wallace Bullock. Bob Hartman and Bob Whitmer, now on the basketball team, are other newcomers reported to be fine hurlers.

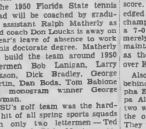
THE FLORIDA State track team will have nine lettermen returning from the squad which took the Dixie title last season. The lettermen are Captain Max Watson, Bill Duncan, Joe Pracsal, Pete Prasonelli, Eddie Rosenberg, Mather May, John Thombleson, Dick Mize and Frank Putnam.

Promising new members of the squad include sophomore students John Poston and Ed Seagram, and freshman Jim Arnold and Bob Bolin. The tracksmen plan to compete in nine dual meets in addition to various invitational relays, AAU and a conference track events.

The 1950 Florida State tennis squad will be coached by graduate assistant Ralph Matherly as head coach Don Loflin is away on a year's leave of absence to work on his doctorate degree. Matherly will build the team around 1950 lettermen Bob Lanhisan, Larry Dickson, Dick Bradley, George Martin, Dan Boda, Tom Sabbone and monogram winner Bob Newmark.

FSU's golf team was the hardest hit of all spring sports squads with only two lettermen—Ted Hewitt and Dick Bonnyman returning. Expected to take up the slack efficiently, however, are such well known linksmen as freshman Eddie Johnson, last year's Florida High School champion; Tom Cumbie; and Bud Marsee, who was runner-up in the University's championship team last year.

Gymnasts Plan Squad Meets Each Saturday



Florida State University's nationally known gymnastics squad will meet the first flight FSU freshman-transfer team every Saturday night for five weeks beginning tomorrow night at 8 in the East campus gym, according to Coach Hartley Price.

The varsity performers, who hold a 3-2 intercollegiate record may find the going rough against the star studded freshman transfer symnasts.

Price's regulars will go into action against the freshmen-transfers following a meet between a team made up of varsity co-eds and the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots.

Outstanding men on the freshman transfer squad include Jack Miles, Jack Sharp, Joe Gusic, Bill Wagner, Jim McCloskey, Scott Stanion, Dick Gutting and Pat Simarelli.

Miles was the Philadelphia all-round champion last year, Sharp the Big Ten flying rings champ, Gusic the Chicago all-round champion. Stanion lettered at Western Illinois University. Gutting was second in the trampoline at the National Collegiate in 1948, and Simarelli is considered a good Olympic prospect.

The Tarpon Club, one of FSU's most outstanding campus groups is again holding tryouts for new members. Tonight is the last night for a practice period and the preliminary tryouts will be held Monday and Tuesday nights.

Tarpon presented "Fall Frolics of 1950," a winter wonderland, last semester which was considered by all to be a great success. They will put on a new show in the latter part of this semester with a complete act by the new members.

This organization, famous throughout the United States, chooses girls for their grace and ability in synchronized swimming and in water ballet and acrobatics.

Practices are also being held for odd-event sports. If you can bowl, dance or play volley ball, then you are just the person the sports leaders are waiting to see.

Not only is there the thrill of taking part and the possibility of gaining fame both for yourself and your class, but also there is the advantage of meeting many other girls with similar interests and ideals—clean fun and good sportsmanship.

The Women's "F" Club tapped again this week. To be eligible to be asked to join this campus group a girl must have been on at least two odd-even teams and maintained a "C" average. Some of the Freshman "Goats" tapped were Polly Lassiter, Charlotte West, Bea Demcris, Jane Adicks, Patty Folsom, and Mertus Herndon. Congratulations!!!

CALLING ALL FISH—Anglers will find it a cinch to tune in on a tuna, if that's your dish, with a device being shown here by Raymond Rossetie, Jr., a junior sive edition of the electronic fish-finder which works on the echo-sounding principle but weighs only 15 pounds. It locates fish with unerring accuracy by bouncing electronic signals off the ocean or lake bottom—but you still have to hook 'em yourself.

Three Lead 'Mural Frat Football Race

Excitement is beginning to run high for the followers of the unstoppable and power laden Pi Kappa Alpha five and Chi Alpha's, and Theta Chi's as these still undefeated sevens head down the home stretch.

Each of the above mentioned teams handled one more opponent during the last week. Pi Kappa Alpha registered their fifth straight at the expense of Pi Kappa Tau as they won by a 13-7 score. Meanwhile, Lambda Chi edged past last year's defending champions, Phi Delta Theta, by a 7-6 score. Theta Chi had to merely show up at the field to maintain their position at the top as they were awarded a forfeit over Kappa Kappa.

Also maintaining their places behind the leaders are Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Nu, and Kappa Alpha. The SAE's racked up two wins to come into a tie with the other once defeated teams. They won over Sigma Phi Epsilon, 6-0, and Alpha Tau Omega 13-0. Sigma Nu also picked up two wins to tie for second as they nosed out Phi Delta Theta in a real thriller, winning on first downs 8-6. Kappa Alpha layered the boom on Delta Tau Delta, as they fell into the three-way second place tie, by a 6-0 score.

Sixth place Chi Sigma pulled up into a tie for third with Phi Kappa Tau. Neither one, however, are considered a threat as they have two wins, two loses, and a tie record. Chi Sigma won by forfeit over Delta Sigma Pi. In the only remaining contest of the week, Pi Kappa Phi won over Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Forfeits were the order of the week in the dormitory as no two teams showed at the same time. The list is as follows:

701 over 515.
Neman club over 850.
514 over 528.
849U over 511
Orders over 1901U.
NC over ROTC.

Food Industry Fourth Largest US Retail Industry, Says Hall

The food industry is now the fourth largest retail industry in the entire nation with some 25 per cent of the American people taking at least one meal a day outside of their homes, says Miss Gladys Hall, new member of the FSU department of restaurant and hotel management.

Having served for the last 10 years as executive secretary of the American Dietetics Association, an organization of some 8,700 members having the responsibility of feeding millions of persons daily, Miss Hall has traveled extensively over the country.

She says in her work as association executive secretary and educational director she has found that more and more attention is being given to institutional feeding of large groups with emphasis on balanced diets, food merchandising, sanitation and properly trained personnel.

She pointed out that with national defense mobilization developing more fully, even more American people, working in defense plants, in the armed forces and Florida other categories, will be taking their meals away from home.

Miss Hall says she welcomed the opportunity to join the FSU faculty after having visited here before.

"In my travels over the country while with the American Dietetics Association," she says, "I found Florida State University to be one of the more progressive higher education institutions of the nation. I became acquainted with Miss Anna M Tracy, FSU's head dietitian and a former president of the American Dietetics Association.

"Since my arrival here at the University I have been much impressed with the spirit of growth and progress which is being reflected in giving to the youth of Florida interested in hitner education more and greater opportunities for professional careers."

No Don Veller coached Florida State University football team has ever lost a game in the state of Florida.

Veterans Eligible For GI Car Loan

World War II veterans are eligible for GI business loans to buy automobiles only if the car is an essential part of the equipment necessary in his occupation or profession, states the Veterans Administration.

Veterans who would possibly be eligible for a VA approval include doctors who require a car to visit patients, salesmen who cover populiarly a wide territory, skilled workmen, such as plumbers and carpenters, who transport large tool kits from place to place, service-repairmen who make calls, and others engaged in occupations where a car is essential.

Whether or not an eligible veteran may make such a loan without any down payment depends on the lender, said Mr Dickensheets, regional officer. Though the law permits 100 per cent loans, in actual practice, many lenders require a cash payment from the veteran.

Coaching Classes In Chemistry Set

Coaching classes for Freshman and Sophomore chemistry courses, Organic and Quantitative Chemistry 247, will be conducted by Gamma Sigma Epsilon, chemistry honorary, and ACSSA.

The first coaching class will be held Monday, February 19 in classes will be in 201 Science building. On Monday and Tuesday at 7 pm the most useful mathematical operations will be taken up. This will include the use of the slide rule and the logarithm tables and the algebraic operations necessary for the solution of problems.

Both Freshman and Sophomore chemistry students are urged to attend both meetings. Later in the semester, Freshmen will meet on Mondays and Sophomores on Tuesdays, with emphasis given to the problems encountered in their particular fields.

CHARGES COMMERCIALISM

Should We Pay Athletes?

(Editor's note: The following article does not necessarily reflect the opinion of the Florida Flambeau. Any student wishing to write a rebuttal is cordially invited to do so. Address to Editor, Florida Flambeau, Campus Mail.)

To begin with, this argument does not challenge the right of any student or group of students to play games in a university. However, it does challenge the right of the university to have subsidized athletics.

Subsidized athletics is a system whereby a school offers a prospective student either a full scholarship, direct imbursement, or some form of economic assistance, solely in exchange for that student' hither shown physical skill in a particular sport.

IN SHORT, it does not particularly matter whether the student will make a contribution as lawyer, or doctor, or even a good student, but, either, can he pass a football, swing a bat, perform acrobatics?

Now probably it is a good thing to know how to pass a football, swing a baseball bat, and perform double stunts with ease, but must we pay money to have students do these things and must we pay the students themselves?

When most of us were younger, our acquaintance with sports was always for the sake of the game itself. Take football, for example Here was a game that was played not for laurels, letters, or money, but a hard, clean sport played for the game alone. Playgrounds, back alleys and sandlots were the place, and the time, or the skill of the players did not make much difference.

WHEN WE GREW up, football grew up with us. But it changed and, as it seemed, for the worse. Huge, powerful winning teams were the by-word now. It became the ward of zambiers, business playboys, the money behind big teams. The contest was heaped with gaudy glitter. It was commercialized and ballyhooed to such an extent that it became more of a highly lucrative business than a game.

Finally, the sports craze invaded our colleges and universities—one by one the schools of higher learning fell victim to this fever. Instead of learning and knowledge, now there were good times, money, and popularity to be had at the schools. Young high school boys were at first, encouraged, and then finally asked outright to "come on up and play. You name the price." Some schools went so far as to travel hundreds of miles to pick up a "herty lackle" or a "lushy wingback." The last vestige of scruples in sports fell January 12 of this year when the National Collegiate Athletic Association dropped their sanity code. The sky is the limit for ready cash deals now.

SCHOLARSHIPS are precious things nowadays. Ask little Henry, a senior in high school who was not in the honor roll of his class, but who wants to go to college all the same. Henry can hardly lift a football but he has a mind which needs developing. Ask the promising young seventeen-year-old who lives in a slum or ask the colored boy and girl who have two strikes to begin with. And finally, ask those thousands of young boys and girls who have educational benefits but who did not make those coveted "good grades" in high school (which do not necessarily indicate a man's intelligence or ability to learn).

"OK!" you reply, "there are other scholarships."

With a few scholarships that are offered, there often comes restrictions. Some are geographical, others are rigid and exacting that often even a qualified student is told not accept one. And the sparse number of aids that are offered, are of negligible proportion to the thousands of young men and women who will never see a university.

REGARDLESS OF whether this money comes from private university funds, wealthy alumni, or straight from the taxpayers pocket, as it usually does, can we say it is fair, not only to the boy or girl who missed out on the chance for an education, but to the university itself?

Certainly there are many more important things for those huge sums of money to be spent on other than games. We not only need to give aid to more students, but we need more teachers to teach those students.

There is much to be questioned about the practice of paying an individual whose principle claim to educational benefits is his particular excellence in the field of the game.

Four Thousand Miles Keeps Elin from Home

By ALAN DOWNES

Four thousand miles of ocean lies between Elin Haraldsdottir and her native home in Iceland, but this very attractive little redhead is still mighty glad to be here at FSU.

Elin is a senior majoring in political science, and she has a dirty ambition to make a career for herself in foreign service, preferably with the state department. At present, she worries considerably over her job as president of the foreign interests Club.

THE STORY of her coming to America would probably rival in daring Dick Tracy's exploits a thousand years before, for it was a wild combination of chance, coincidence, perseverance and admirable audaciousness. The record shows that on February 1949 she came to the United States three years ago to visit a girl-friend in Fort Myers.

However, she became a student at FSU and has remained here on student papers under the guardianship of Mr and Mrs Wayne Searcy of Tallahassee, who took an early interest in the hard-working Icelander. That's what the record shows, but the record does not mention the amount of skin Miss Haraldsdottir has lost from here teeth. The latest scrape will be to get her degree before her immigration papers run out.

"I couldn't speak a word of English although I had graduated from high school in Iceland and could speak two foreign languages," she recalls. Now she speaks English with only an interesting trace of an accent.

WHILE the climate of Iceland and that of Florida, with its usually balmy temperatures, are much different, Elin has become acclimated to the change.

"On a cold day here in Tallahassee," she says, "I feel the cold just as much as a native born resident. Most people think of Iceland as a cold, barren country, but the average winter temperature is about 18 above zero in Reykjavik, the capital, while in summer the temperature is usually about 68. But hot springs are used to heat homes and public buildings, so the lack of coal is not so important.

"Iceland is a country where most of the people believe strongly in socialism-and nearly all of the larger industries and businesses are operated by either the state or cooperatives." Elin stated, adding, "the communists have tried hard to gain power in Iceland but have only a small minority and are steadily losing ground."

Book List Increases To 1500 This Week

The Used Book Exchange has increased its book supply to at least 1500, Shirley Gregory, Exchange chairman, reported yesterday. This total is a double increase from the 700 texts on hand for the reopening last Monday.

Shirley said that the books come and go constantly. She asked that students check daily to see if their books have been sold. The chairman also asked that buying students continue to ask for the texts by author since the books are arranged alphabetically.

Eight hundred books have been sold since the Exchange has begun functioning, Shirley stated.

BOOKS in demand at the Exchange now are Biology 101, Oliver Otto's Principles of Elementary Education, Educational Psychology, Educational Sociology, Guide to Research Writing, Preface to Critical Reading, College Typewriting, Munn's Psychology, and The Teaching of Health in Elementary School. Also needed are Humanities 103 and Speech 101 texts. The Book Store text of The History of Civilization needed which are not in demand at the Exchange also, Shirley said.

The faculty book list is still incomplete Miss Exchange is asking any type of text.

THERE IS an overabundance of Freshman Mathematics books, Shirley reported. These texts will probably be sold easily the first semester of next year, but if more will be used more, she commented.

Students are responding well to the Exchange idea, the chairman stated, and come in in large stacks of texts. "Students are cleaning out their shelves, closets, and attics," she laughingly said. "One student even collected $20 already this week."

An information booth will soon be set up in the Seminole Social Hall Lobby, Shirley announced. The Exchange has decided that it will not be necessary.

APPROXIMATELY $150 has been spent by the Exchange for equipment and other expenses, she continued. Funds received below $150 will be used to repay the Junior Class treasury for the money borrowed to start the Exchange funds exceeding this amount will not go into the class treasury, but will be used to defray operations of the Exchange in the future, Shirley said.

At conclusion, the chairman stressed the need for more student operators to work at the Exchange and urged students in the Exchange for any new volunteers to sign for the remaining two weeks.

Student operators, Shirley Gregory, chairman; Will Pennell, junior class president; Mac Ozier, and Helen Howes, committee members, have been in charge of the Exchange accounts. The Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity also committee members have been assisting in the Exchange operation.

As all students know, "What's That" is famous and popular throughout all campuses in our great country. Each student should realize the honor and privilege it is to be selected to represent their University in the "What's That." This committee would like to give a brief explanation for the delay in presenting this point system; it was necessary to obtain the approval of the University Senate, judiciary, honor court, dean of men, dean of women, faculty reviewing committee, dean of student welfare, meteorology department, a faculty council, board of control, President Campbell, Mrs Dutchbrust, Happy Hot Rod association of FSU bus drivers and Fuller, before this point system could be discussed.

Sincerely submitted,
H L W and J N,
Co-Chairman
"What's That"

Dear Editor:

The law is the law—until it is proven illegal by the proper authorities. Here at FSU, as in Washington, those authorities are the members of the Supreme Court.

If this is true, and I daresay it is, then, the law passed by the University Senate, sitting in special session in November of 1948, barring Who's Who from the campus is still in effect.

The records of the various courts show no case having ever been brought to the court, and the Statute books still show the law thereon.

The law was passed because at that time the students believed that Who's Who was not a good thing for the campus. However, they were unwilling to banish the possibility of Who's Who coming back to rear its ugly head and to put the campus into two armed camps. They provided that Who's Who should go until the students desire it back. They further provided that in order to be valid the students really wanted it, the (the students) would have to be even questioned its reality. THIS IS A DIRECT VIOLATION OF THE LAW.

However, President Askew does not seem to mind that at all, and okoffs at least precedents and defends the lame.

The only place to get Who's Who is would seem, is in the high court. I have placed a bill of exceptions in the Chief's office and expect the case to come to trial in the near future.

EMORY KING.

Harry Is Energetic Has Nice Hazel Eyes

This year's editor of the Talaria is hard-working Harry Copeland, a senior who is majoring in journalism.

Harry, who is as energetic as a linocype machine 10 minutes before deadline, runs around like a "mad scientist" usually all the time, but especially a day or so before the Talaria's deadline.

Coming from Marianna, Florida, to FSU's campus, Harry plans to go into magazine work upon graduation. He likes magazine writing and editorial work, especially.

Hobbies: writing fiction, reading of any sort, but definitely dramas, and playing the piano.

Before taking his present duties he was article editor of the student magazine. His other activities include: Gold Key, vice-president of the Wesley Players, charter member of the journalism honorary, and a member of this year's Who's Who in Colleges and Universities.

Girls, in case you're interested, he is 21 years old, and has nice hazel eyes. Watch out for this middle-sized bundle of dynamite!

Zeta Phi Eta Holds Initiation For Nine

Initiation for nine students into Epsilon chapter of Zeta Phi Eta, national speech honorary, was held Wednesday, January 24.

New undergraduate members are Marilyn Falls, Evelyn Gray, Shirley Hurlbert, Mary Knifin, Daryl Greenberger Storm, and Catherine Terrance. Graduate initiates are Merrita Dominque, Marian of Hearts and Mary Guerite Richard.

Their membership is based on high standards of professional excellence as evidenced by their scholarship, professional attitude and professional skills in the speech arts field.

Zeta Phi Eta here on campus have this year helped usher at plays and debates, and interview students for play tryouts, besides giving a tea for the Speech department, speech majors and other students interested in the speech field. Their plans for this semester include the production of a children's play acapted by Dr George McCalmon of the Speech department.

At its peak strength during World War II, Germany, including Austria, had 10,000,000 men under arms.

Lutheran League Plans Activities

The new semester has begun with a flurry of activity and the promise of many doings for the FSU Lutheran League. First, of all a Valentine party in the form of a scavenger hunt will be held Sunday, February 18. All Lutheran students and their friends are invited to attend. The group will meet in front of the music building at 3:00 p m Sunday.

The FSU League has also been invited to be guests of the Lutheran League at the University of Florida, the week end of March 16. The Gamma Delta League in Gainesville has planned a banquet in honor of the FSU League.

Plans are also being made to construct a Lutheran Church in Tallahassee, near Lafayette Park. The property has been purchased and the land is now being cleared. The new church will have a student lounge for all FSU students.

Newman Club

The first Newman club meeting of the semester will be held Sunday at 7:30 p m at the Newman house. On the agenda for the meeting will be presentation of a Constitutional amendment, nominations for a freshmen representative, appointment of committee chairmen and planning of the comine semester's program.

"Since this first meeting will be a most important one, I urge all Newmanites to attend," said Marie Parker, president. "The length of the meeting will be kept at a minimum and this will be followed by a social hour," she continued.

Plans also announced that beginning tonight, the Newman house will be open for the convenience of the students every Friday and Saturday evening. The Newman library has been opened and students are invited to spend leisure hours enjoying its facilities. The president asks that students and faculty members having books which they no longer use to donate them to the library.

Every week day morning during Lent Mass is said at 7:15 at the Newman House and on Sundays at 10:30 a m. Recitation of the Rosary is held each evening at 6:45 p m.

Last Sunday the Newmanites observed Founder's Day with a Day of Recollection beginning at 8:30 Mass and closing at 4:30 with Benediction. Father Robert Brush, assistant pastor of Sacred Heart parish in Fort Worth, conducted the one-day retreat.

That evening a Founder's Day banquet was held at Garcia's restaurant. Mr John Mark, president of the Holy Name Society of Sacred Sacrament parish in Tallahassee was guest speaker.

Christian Science

A lecture on Christian Science entitled "Christian Science: The Revelation of Man's Dominion Over Evil" was given by Robert Stanley Ross, CSB, of New York City on January 28 at 8:15 p m in the Longmire auditorium.

FSU Vocational Guidance Forum Designed to Counsel Students

Students will find some of the answers toward helping them make a choice toward the right vocation at FSU's forum arranged by Mrs Margaret Blair, vocational guidance counselor, for Monday night. It will be held in the Lounge of Jennie Murphree Residence Hall.

The forum at 7 p m, February 19, is on the subject "Are You Finding the Right Vocation?" It will be featured by a skit, written by Mrs Blair. Those taking part are Dr Wesley Voorhees, Dr Melvena Hardee, Miss Ruth Pyche and Mrs Blair, all FSU faculty members and two students, Miss Susana Richardson and Curtis Norton. Glover E Tully, FSU director of vocational guidance and placement will preside.

The other forum at 7 p m, February 21, will be on "Interesting Jobs in Library Work" over which Dr Louis Shores, dean of the FSU School of Library Training and Service, will preside.

Robert Clapp, assistant dean of the library school, will discuss college libraries; Miss Sara Bell will speak on school libraries; Miss Ardath Danford, public libraries, and Miss Estelle Ardrey, special libraries, with special emphasis on maps. Miss Alma Warren, president of the FSU Alumni association, will speak on "Why I Chose Library Work."

In addition to the speakers and panel discussion two library vocational movies in color will be shown. This forum is open to all persons interested, particularly those still undecided about their vocation.

School of Journalism to Use Audio-Visual Aids in Classes

Audio-visual aids, particularly films, are being used by the School of Journalism to illustrate principles being taught in the classroom, says Dean Laurence R. Campbell.

FILM catalogues are being combed to discover effective and applicable films and pictures which can be used to the advantage of the students. Full co-operation from Dr Myles H Ritchie, head of the Visual Aid Department, has been given.

"The March of Time produced an exceptionally good film on modern radio broadcasting that will use in class," said Dr Sidney Kobre, associate professor in charge of the public relations class. "The film traces the development of the growing public relations profession, and by case histories illustrates the impact public relations has."

ANOTHER film, produced by the Encyclopedia Britannica Company, shows how public opinion is formed. The producers used animated cartoons as well as live scenes to present the ideas. In a class "Interpreting the News," Dr Kobre recently used a film called "The City" to illustrate social problems in the news.

One film about reporting was shown last year and others about newspaper work will be presented soon. The professor referred to one study made by a school of journalism. Two groups were selected and given oral instruction in reporting. One of the groups was then shown a certain film about the same subject. This second group tested higher, according to various scales of measurement which were used.

Jennie Murphree will hold its annual Valentine Ball Saturday night in the auditorium of the Alumni building. At this time a Queen of Hearts and four maids will be announced.

Circus Performs Again

Part of "Flyme High," FSU's circus, will perform at the Central Florida Exposition at Orlando February 20-23, according to Coach Jack Haskin, circus director.

Heskin said that four performances will be given in the afternoon at the baseball field. Max Bayard and James DeCosmo, assistants to Coach Haskin, will travel to Orlando with the circus equipment to have everything in readiness for the opening performance on February 20.

Frances Lehnerts

Lehnerts to Present 'Carmen Story' at Leon High School

Miss Frances Lehnerts, mezzo-soprano, will present costumed portrayal of "The Carmen Story" March 1, in the Leon High School auditorium. Under the auspices of the Woman's Auxiliary of Tallahassee Memorial Hospital, proceeds will be used for an endowed emergency fund for the local hospital.

Dr Dorothy Hoffman, of the romance langu e department, is taking an active interest in the concert and is a member of the Woman's Auxiliary committee sponsoring Miss Lehnerts' appearance. Florida State University students are being encouraged to attend this concert, Dr Hoffman said.

Student tickets are $1 including tax.

Dr Hoffman reports that Miss Lehnerts is a versatile young artist in opera, concert and oratorio. She has been heard on national and international radio hookups. This will be her first appearance in Tallahassee.

For the past few years she has appeared in Jacksonville on the Debbie and Miner Series for the Woman's club and the Friday Musicale.

Miss Lehnerts is scheduled to appear for two programs in a concert version of the Carmen opera at the University of Florida, Gainesville, late this month.

Bridge Tourney Finals

The final play of the Intercollegiate Duplicate Bridge tournament will be held Saturday, February 17, at 2 pm in the lower lounge of the Student Union of West Campus.

Youth Conference to Hear Seven Christian Speakers

Highlighting the Youth Conference on World Affairs opening today on campus will be seven "Ambassadors" of the Florida Chain of Missionary Assemblies.

THESE Christian Ambassadors, who represent the world mission of the church at home and abroad, have a broad background of experience in the mission field.

THE Rev Edward H Johnson, of New York, general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement, will have charge of the student conference. Mr Johnson is a former missionary to Manchuria, where he spent five years under the Canadian Presbyterian Church, prior to World War II. He served as Educational Secretary of the Canadian Presbyterian Board of Missions for six years, and was appointed as general secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement in 1947. He is a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, and has traveled in Russia and the Scandinavian countries.

REV JAMES K MATHEWS, an authority on India, has served India both as a missionary and as an army officer. Since World War II he has been associate secretary in charge of work in India and Burma for the Board of Missions and Church Extension of the Methodist Church. Pennsylvania-born, Mr Mathews is a graduate of Lincoln Memorial University, the Biblical Seminary of New York and Boston University School of Theology.

Dr Barney N Morgan, a good-will ambassador in the Caribbean for twenty years, has seen denominations working unitedly under his supervision, finding a common approach to their task. In the twenty years in the Dominican Republic he guided the work of several rural churches and schools, cared for the central church in Trujillo, the capital, and supervised the 100-bed International Hospital, with a training school of about 30 nurses, a staff of over 40, and a constant financial problem. He succeeded Dr Edward A Odell, retiring secretary for the West Indies.

DR VERNON B Richardson, pastor of the University Baptist Church in Baltimore, Maryland, has been a frequent speaker at schools and colleges, both North and South. A graduate of the University of Richmond and Crozer Theological Seminary in the 1930's, Dr Richardson received a traveling fellowship for study abroad, spent two years at Cambridge University in England and traveled in ten countries.

Anauta, the only Eskimo woman on the American Platform, was born and grew up somewhere on the northern tip of Baffin Island, about 400 miles from the North Pole. She was raised as a nomadic Eskimo—hunting trapping singing, laughin. chewing skins for boot making; living the life of a male Eskimo. For her name "Anauta" was the name of a young man, son of a dear friend of the family, who the same night of her birth had been swept to his death off an ice-pan. And thus was an Eskimo custom fulfilled; giving the first boy born the name of the departed spirit so it would not be "lost in space." After the tragic death of her husband, she was persuaded by the captain of a small trading vessel to bring her adopted baby, along with her own two little girls, to St. Johns, Newfound, where it could be raised by its grandmother.

THE REV CHARLES H Long, jr, an assistant secretary in the Overseas Department of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church, is one of the youngest of the speakers. Still in his twenties, Mr Long has already served as a missionary in China. A graduate of Virginia Theological Seminary and Yale University, Mr Long was ordained to the diconate in 1945. He was advanced to priesthood in 1947 by Bishop Arnold T Scott of North China.

Mrs Kiyo Yuasa, wife of Dr Hachiro Yuasa, president of the International Christian University, is the first woman to run for a seat in a Japanese Board of Education in the old university town of Kyoto. She was "drafted" by Christian women who wanted her voice heard when the education of children was at stake. She is an honor graduate of Simpson College in Indianola, Iowa.

Ball Elected Prexy Of Public Ad Frat

James Ball has been elected president of Pi Alpha Sigma, professional public administration fraternity, and James Norton was installed as an honorary member at the Pi Alpha Sigma banquet last semester.

Justice B K Roberts of the Florida Supreme court, was guest speaker at the banquet. Justice Roberts said, "There is no place where competency is needed more than in government.

"This is perhaps the sternest challenge of our times. Our government has become vast and cumbersome. It need not be so. Trained, competent, honest administrators could make government an efficient instruments for the public welfare."

"Gypsy Holiday" Begins Technical; Dress Rehearsals

Sandspur's "Gypsy Holiday" will open Wednesday night, with additional performances scheduled for the following two nights.

Since the beginning of second semester much work has been accomplished. Saturday night and Sunday rehearsals were held in Westcott auditorium. Monday there was a production staff meeting, and rehearsals for lead parts lumedialely afterwards.

TUESDAY evening found the cast, chorus, and orchesra in full rehearsal. The next evening was strictly musical for the entire cast, with as little dialogue as possible used. Last night Mr Heilman, acting assistant dean of men, was present to okay the entire show.

A technical rehearsal has been scheduled for tonight with all lighting and props and a few sets to be used.

Dress rehearsals begin Sunday and a sneak preview is scheduled for Tuesday night. All deans of the various schools will be issued invitations for this performance by Nancy Mueller, Sandspur secretary. Plans are now being made to receive the permission for girls participating in the show from Sunday through closing night.

SANDSPUR members have worked long and hard on this year's presentation, and have devoted a great deal of their time to its success. Chairman of "Gypsy Holiday" since Herb Reinhard's departure for the service has been Randi Horton.

The department heads are Bill Backus, stage crew; George Boldi, orchestra; Sandi Horton, dancing; and Mickey Johnson, publicity. All the costumes for the show have been destened and made by Joan Reitsma.

ODK Will Meet

All active members of ODK, who have not had their annual picture taken, must do so within the next week. Appointments must be made personally with the photographer at 701 West Pensacola street. Members should wear academic gowns for the individual pictures.

ODK will hold an important meeting Wednesday night at 7 in the Alumni building. Members who cannot be present may contact either Doug Alley, president, or Mr Joseph Flack, secretary.

Canfield Addresses Local Exchangites

Dr D Lincoln Canfield, head of the department of modern languages, will give a talk, "English as She-is Spoke," before the Exchange club today at 1 p m. The meeting is scheduled for the Florida hotel.

Dr Canfield has just been notified of his selection as associate editor of Hispania, the national journal of the American Association of Spanish and Portuguese teachers.

The appointment of Dr Canfield on the magazine's editorial board gives Florida State two representatives on the board, since Dr G S Deland is national secretary of the association.

Letters have been sent by Dr Canfield to chapter officers of the association announcing the organization of the Spanish National Honor Society among high school students.

All you amateur photographers at FSU are invited by Coach Jack Haskin Sunday from 1:30 p m to 4 p m to come out to the West Campus circus grounds and make your pictures of the "big show" in rehearsal. Coach Haskin said the show will go through its entire routine with all photographers, amateurs and otherwise, invited to come on out and "fire away."

Infirmary Stops Visiting Hours

Flu Outbreak Causes Temporary Suspension

Visiting hours have been temporarily suspended at the University Infirmary during the flu outbreak on campus, Dr Thomas J Brooks announced yesterday.

No students are being allowed in as visitors and only a few parents are allowed to visit. "These parents are asked to stay only a short time" Dr Brooks said.

The Infirmary physician denied the rumor that the Lodge would be opened to accommodate patients. "At this time there is no possibility that we will have to open another structure." Dr Brooks said. However, the Infirmary has added additional beds and called in extra nurses to take care of the increased number of patients.

There are now three full-time physicians and one part-time doctor at the Infirmary. There were approximately 65 flu cases yesterday and nine students were being admitted and discharged daily. More than 80 cases of colds and sore throats are being seen by the Nurses clinic through the afternoon yesterday, which was said to be the worst day of the outbreak.

Electioneers Meet

There will be an important meeting of the Elections Committee Wednesday night, 8 p m in the University Senate room on the second floor of the Union building, according to Paul Garrison.

The Elections Committee is composed of Garrison, chairman, Hardy Paul, vice chairman, Woodie Howard, Richard Jackson, John Sandford, Sally Kennedy, Charlotte Herndon, Harriet Quisley, and Tony Roman.

Cast for 'Fugitives' Disclosed by Floyd

Carlisle Floyd has announced the cast for his new three-act music drama, Fashions, scheduled for April 17, 18 and 19.

Barbara Manford will be cast as Mrs Dean, with her son Dan Dean portrayed by David Lowe and Herman Bakemeyer.

The part of a young woman, Claire Pickney, will be taken by Mary Helen Warner and Norma Jean Kearney. Virginia Peach will fill the role of the neighbor and Jean Forman will appear in the cast as Josie, a deaf mute. Courtland Morper will accompany the entire production at the piano.

University-wide tryouts for the production were held Thursday afternoon. The production will be staged by Nelle Bond Dickinson and Carl Schultz. A cast of operatic dramas as last year's Slow Dusk.

Dr Seabury, Foreign Mission Worker, Addresses Students

Africa (The Life of the Princess Mimi Sora of South Africa); Dinabandhu (introducing India to the young American); and Pilgrim's Destiny (life of Theodore Hume).

Starting yesterday a series of Mission Study Conferences for the purpose of getting students interested in the activities of this group. Charity Chest Drive Slated For April 14-21

Bill Hess to Be Chairman Of 1st Annual Campaign Dean Addresses Student

The first annual Campus Charity Chest drive has been set for April 14 through 21, according to Bill Hess, chairman of the executive committee for the drive. The one week drive will be to raise money for a campus chest. This will be used to distribute as funds to charity organizations which previously held individual fund campaigns on campus.

The World Student Service Fund will be allowed the major portion of the funds, with 60 per cents of the total amount donated going for this purpose. The remainder of the funds will be divided among the following charities: Polio 10 percent; Cancer, 10 percent; Red Cross, 10 percent; and Miscellaneous and Student Welfare 10 percent.

DR OTIS ARMIDE, dean of men, will speak to all presidents of campus organizations, men's dorm governors and women's floor chairmen, on "The Way of Giving," on Thursday at 4 p m in the Longmire club room at 5 p m.

"It is important that all attend in order to understand the purpose of the campus charity drive. All student leaders should assume the responsibility for making the drive a success." Chairman Hess said.

Hess stated the purpose of the Campus Charity Week to be (1) to take the student responsibility for being generous in contributing to the world today, and (2) to educate the student to their responsibility for being generous in contributing to the world today. The drive will also coordinate the agencies which seek funds into one concerted effort.

Serving on the executive committee with Hess are Ann Wallis, Milton Folds, Jo Nell Proctor, Dane McNeil, Bud Joly, Marianne Dillon, Jimmie Quinn, Jim Ford, Charlotte Lischka, Marjorie Meckstroth and Bill Cornelius.

Faculty advisers are Howard Culpepper, dean of student welfare, and Rod De Shaw, university business manager.

Piano Recital Set

Miss Courtlandt Morper, graduate student in the School of Music, will present a piano recital at 8:15 on Saturday, February 24, in Music Hall, with selections ranging from Bach to Prokofieff.

In addition to the Toccata in C Minor of Bach as opening number, the program will include Chopin's Sonata in B-flat Minor, three numbers by Debussy, Passacaglia by Aaron Copeland, who wrote the music for the ballets Billy the Kid and Rodeo, and Sonata Sonata: and Aubade, a piece written especially for Miss Morper by Carlisle Floyd of FSU. The public is invited to attend.

Original Sandspur Production Begins Three Day Run Tomorrow

5,000 Ticket Limit Set For Student Show, Draa Reports

The all-original Sandspur production Gypsy Holiday, will present its first performance tomorrow night in Westcott auditorium. The performances will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights at 8:15.

Originally under the direction of Herb Reinhard, Gypsy Holiday went into final rehearsals with Sandi Horton directing. Beeler takins over after Reinhard joined the navy.

THE CAST had its final dress rehearsal last night, the chairman said, and will present a sneak preview tonight. The preview will only be shown to students and faculty members by special invitation.

Dr George McCalmon, head of the department of speech, gave the cast a few pointers at one of the recent rehearsals. He said, Dr George H Heilman, assistant dean of men, was also present, she said.

JIN DRAA, Sandspur business manager, has reported that the tickets for Thursday and Friday nights are going fast. The sales are limited to 5,000 tickets this year at 85c each.

The all-original student production is one of the few such student productions in the country, the entire show having been written by Doug Ailey with music by George Boldt. The choreography was formulated by Sandi Horton, the sets and lights by Bill Backus. Girls' costumes designed by Mary Anne Seidner.

STARRING in the performance this year are Sandi Horton, as Sharon, and Jack Watkins cast opposite her as Lt Jim Henderson. Henderson is the outsider who finds a strange love among the gypsies but is denied this love by social barriers.

Jackie Shaw will I'll Find My Love, the Soliloquy, and is featured with Jack Watkins in I Can See a Picture and Gypsy Dreams. Watkins' solo number is Sleep.

The two stars are supported by Carlos Cullum and Cindy Dobrey. Carrie sings several novelty numbers including Fun Getting Impatient, and I Do the Best I Can.

HIGHLIGHTS of Dobrey's performance are Nightshade, and I Pledge Myself to Thee. Dobrey accepts the plans of the gypsies and is the wife within so many Sharons.

The gypsies are led by Gerry Wood as Sesta. Other gypsies plan Christine, his wife. Gerry sings Love Is a Thrill and You're Mine.

ARELLE Pollock, portrayed by Janet Reynolds who has come West to latch on to Paul Henderson. Nick Pappas plays the mute gypsy, Pedro. Jane Sheppard as Mrs Bradford rounds plan the comedy role.

Bobbie Pettit, in her first speaking role, is cast as Chorine from Brooklyn.

The 21-piece pit orchestra plays several numbers including Semiole Syncopation, while the chorus and dancers do Gypsy Holiday.

SANDI reports that months have been spent in preparation with nearly 150 students in some phase of the production.

This year's Sandspur is proud of the number of "firsts" it has to its credit. Sandi emphasized. It reports a first all-original production, a first pit orchestra formulated especially for Sandspur. It also reports the first baby sitting project and the first Sandspur to have its own playhouse. The building in which all sets were constructed and dancing routines rehearsed.

Sandi reported that the Student Christian Association set up the baby sitting service for parents who want to attend Sandspur. A fee of $1 will be charged for the evening she stated.

GARNET KEY is going to operate a refreshment stand for refreshments between acts, the Sandspur chairman also said.

In addition to the tickets for the Sandspur production, Jim Draa, has announced that tickets for the Sandspur dance on Saturday night are on sale in lower Westcott for $2.50 per couple. No stag tickets will be sold he said. The number of tickets is limited to 1,000 couples he stated.

Mission Group Ends Meeting

Annual Youth Confab Concludes Here Sunday

The Youth Conference on World Affairs, brought to this campus each year by the Florida Chain of Missionary Associations, concluded its 1951 program with a Sunday morning mass meeting in Westcott auditorium presided over by Dr Doak S Campbell. The Rev Vernon Richards, guest speaker, spoke on "This Nation Under God.'

A breakfast and Sunday school at Wesley Foundation preceded the morning service and was attended by students from the various denominations on campus.

SEVEN guest "ambassadors" were welcomed Friday evening at a faculty banquet attended by some 65 faculty members. After speaking briefly on the countries they represented the ambassadors were given corsages and were each introduced to the students at the opening of the conference. Mr E H Johnson spoke on "Living for the World You Want" at this session. After which the guests were entertained at the various student houses.

At the business session of the conference Saturday afternoon, Patty Mims, a junior from Daytona Beach, was elected chairman of the conference for next year and Ellen Black, a sophomore from Vero Beach, was elected secretary.

THE GEORGE voted in the Sunday morning offering to the Church World Service relief for Korea. Following the business meeting and the afternoon seminars the students and guests went out to Camp Indianola for a picnic.

The Conference theme, "This is our Father's World," was emphasized throughout the program. The "chain" theme was carried out with sessions scheduled at Lakeland, Clearwater, Tampa and Miami this week.

President Campbell Gives Museum Hour

New opening hours for the University Museum and Gallery of Art were announced yesterday by President Doak S Campbell.

The Museum and Gallery will be open Monday through Friday from 9 a m to 5 p m and from 2 p m to 10 p m on Thursday evening.

Saturdays they will be open from 11 a m to 5 p m. At present the Museum and Gallery is not open on Sundays. It was further announced, but arrangement are being made to have some Sunday hours. Groups can make special arrangements for visiting the Museum and Gallery by contacting Hale G Smith, museum director or Mrs Beatrice Williams, head of the department of art.

Women's Recruiter Arrives Here Thurs

Miss Theresa MacMillan, with the Special Services Division of the Department of the Army, will be in the office of vocational guidance and placement, 202 Westcott, on Thursday to recruit women for positions in Japan and Germany.

Seniors and graduate students who expect to receive a degree in 1951 are asked to come to the office of vocational guidance and placement or telephone extension 274 prior to the 22nd to make appointments to see Miss MacMillan.

The openings are as follows: program and assistant service club director, recreation director, librarian, assistant librarian, manual arts and crafts directors, crafts consultant and theatrical technicians.

Further information as to experience and age requirements may be obtained in 202 Westcott.

Men's Judiciary Meet

Men's Judiciary will meet in the Court Room of the Alumni Building tonight at seven to have their pictures taken for the Tally Ho. The picture taken last semester did not turn out so another must be made.

All members are expected to wear a coat and tie.

Gov Warren to Welcome Elliot Lawrence to Town

Plans are under way to have Governor Fuller Warren on hand to welcome Elliot Lawrance on campus when he arrives Friday, according to Jack RaMarr, dance chairman.

GOVERNOR Warren and Lawrence were recently listed among the Ten Most Attractive Men in America as chosen by the Barbizon Models.

Lawrence will play at the annual Sandspur Dance Saturday night, again showing his ever-increasing popularity among college students.

With more than 300 college proms dates behind them, the Elliot Lawrence orchestra is being hailed as the greatest campus orchestra of all time. They have already broken every existing record for college dances.

THE MOST recent campus poll gave Lawrence to be the number one new band among collegians, and the Doc Jockey Poll showed that the nation's radio men voted Lawrence their top choice for 1950.

Look Marasine named Lawrence as "The Band of the Year" in their Annual Music Maker Award. Lazze awards were presented to the band in Esquire, Time, Seventeen, and Saturday Evening Post.

The Paramount Ballroom Operators Association picked his band as among the 10 Best Dance Bands in America.

DURING the past few months the Lawrence band has been breaking box office records throughout the country.

Despite his youth (he's only 23) the bandleader has been fronting an orchestra for more than 12 years. He has been classified with the top names in music since 1946.

Elliot Lawrence's reason for naming his theme song "Heart to Heart" is his birthdate. The pianist-composer was born in Philadelphia on St Valentine's Day.

LAWRENCE being a native of Philadelphia, is an ardent booster of the Philadelphia Phillies, whose team members are in the same age group as his band. He wrote a special song entitled "The Fightin' Phils" which has been adopted by the team as its "official" club song.

On the whole, since Elliot Lawrence took his band out of the radio stations at WCAU Philadelphia, the young pianist has been credited with more honors than any other name bandleader in the United States.

Noted Musicians To Appear at FSU

State Symphony to Feature Two Widely-Known Fosters

Sidney Foster and Stephen Foster will be the two featured attractions of the State Symphony Orchestra's concert Wednesday 26, in Westcott auditorium, at 8:15 p m.

The widely-known pianist, Sidney Foster, will be guest soloist in the main number on the program, the Concerto for Piano and Orchestra in B-flat Minor by Brahms. Foster is playing of this concerto with many of the major symphony orchestras of the United States has won for the artist high praise with critics. No longer referred to as "a promising young American," Mr Foster is generally conceded to have taken his place with the more mature musicians as well, said Dr Ernst Kuerstiner, conductor of the orchestra. The late Walter Damrosch acclaimed Foster as ranking first among the young pianists who have come to this country.

The second Foster on the program will be the beloved American composer. Two of his songs will be featured in an unusual suite by Sandor Gould entitled Stephen Foster Gallery. Cast in a modern idiom, the suite carries through many effects on such familiar tunes as Camptown Races, Swanee River, Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair, and Old Black Joe, and includes a number of Foster melodies which have never been published.

The reserved seats of season ticket holders will be honored as at previous concerts, while individual tickets may be purchased at the School of Music office or at the box office at $2 plus tax. Special student price is $1 plus tax.

Ticket Distribution To Begin Monday

Dallas Symphony Orchestra To Present Concert in March

Ticket distribution to the Artist Series presentation of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra will begin Monday, according to Dr J P Stoakes, Series chairman.

The Symphony will present an evening performance on March 8 at 8:15 and a matinee and evening perform nce on March 10, at 2:15 and 8:15 respectively.

Students may receive their tickets to the orchestra concert upon presentation of their ID cards at the Artist Series office in the Music building between 8:30 a m and 1 p m and 2 p m and 4 p m beginning February 26 and continuing through March 3 when tickets will go on sale to the university faculty and staff.

The Dallas Symphony Orchestra is active in celebrating its golden jubilee of 50 years of musical achievement during the 1951 season. The orchestra is now being conducted by Walter Hendl.

Three Amendments Passed by Students

Traffic Court Ratified; Violators Liable to Aciton

Less than five percent of FSU's student body went to the polls last Thursday and made three new constitutional amendments to the constitution of the student body, said Paul Garrison, elections committee chairman. Approximately 220 students voted in the election.

The three amendments include one by Senator Turnbull, which gives final approval of all legislation to the University Senate rather than to the respective Senates, as has been the custom.

Also ratified was the amendment by Senator Ronnie Kent, which sets up a Traffic-Safety Court and makes all drivers in the student body liable to action of that body.

THE THIRD amendment approved by 2/3 of the voting students concerns the succession to offices of the UGA, which become vacant after duly held elections.

Turnbull's amendment passed by a 162-66 vote, Koons' by a 189-37 vote, and the third amendment was carried by a vote of 164-56 which was offered by Ex-Vice President of UGA Bill Waters who introduced February 3, by a 181-37 vote.

Costumes, Tambourines, Music Create a Gypsy Wonderland

A musical holiday is in store for all with the coming of Sandspur's "Gypsy Holiday" to this campus Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights.

Gypsy costumes, the sound of tambourines, and the haunting words and music of Doug Ailey's and George Boldi's songs promise to create the wonderland of a gypsy campsite in a forest glade for members of the audience.

The gypsy campsite is formed by three numbers by Sandspur director Jeanne Thompson, Ruth Spencer, Dawn Rollins, Jerry Shoffner, all dancers, and Sally Gyland, sophomore. The men appearing in the production are wearing their own dungarees, shirts, and scarfs.

The brown haired, brown eyed Miami lass says their chief problem is speed. The short time necessary last minute changes, but everything seems to be going on schedule now."

Joan's had quite a bit of previous experience in choreography for several high school productions. She started dancing when she was six years old, and specialized in ballet, tap, and acrobatics.

The stage crew, Bill Backus in charge, had a preliminary meeting to do, and accomplished it well. The sets will depict a forest with a gypsy covered wagon to one side of the stage

Sandi Horton, director; Carl Beeler, graduate advisor; George Boldi, director of the pit orchestra; and Mickey Johnson, public relations director are responsible for the success of Doug Ailey's prize-winning script.

Sandspur Dance Set For Saturday Night

Dancing to the music of Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra will highlight the Sandspur dance Saturday night, Jack RaMarr, dance chairman, announced today.

Lawrence will play at the annual Sandspur Dance Saturday night, again showing his ever-increasing popularity among college students.

With more than 300 college proms dates behind them, the Elliot Lawrence orchestra is being hailed as the greatest campus orchestra of all time. They have already broken every existing record for college dances.

THE MOST recent campus poll gave Lawrence to be the number one new band among collegians, and the Doc Jockey Poll showed that the nation's radio men voted Lawrence their top choice for 1950.

Look Marasine named Lawrence as "The Band of the Year" in their Annual Music Maker Award. Lazze awards were presented to the band in Esquire, Time, Seventeen, and Saturday Evening Post.

The Paramount Ballroom Operators Association picked his band as among the 10 Best Dance Bands in America.

DURING the past few months the Lawrence band has been breaking box office records throughout the country.

Despite his youth (he's only 23) the bandleader has been fronting an orchestra for more than 12 years. He has been classified with the top names in music since 1946.

Elliot Lawrence's reason for naming his theme song "Heart to Heart" is his birthdate. The pianist-composer was born in Philadelphia on St Valentine's Day.

LAWRENCE, being a native of Philadelphia, is an ardent booster of the Philadelphia Phillies, whose team members are in the same age group as his band. He wrote a special song entitled "The Fightin' Phils" which has been adopted by the team as its "official" club song.

On the whole, since Elliot Lawrence took his band out of the radio stations at WCAU Philadelphia, the young pianist has been credited with more honors than any other name bandleader in the United States.

DeGraff Announces AEC Exam Schedule

The American Council Education Psychological and Minnesota Personality Scale make-up exam is scheduled for Wednesday by Dr M H DeGraff, director of the Test Service Bureau.

The ACE Psychological test will be given on February 26, at 5 p m in room 608 Education building. All students of the University who do not have the results of these tests on their records must appear to take the tests at this time.

Psychology Seminar Set This Afternoon

Dr Howard Baker, associate professor of psychology, will be the speaker at a psychology department seminar lecture at 4 p m this afternoon in Longmire auditorium.

The lecture is open to all interested persons." Dr Theron Alexander, faculty advisor of the PSU psychology club announced. Dr Baker will have as his subject, "The Relationship between Rigid and Rarly Dark Adaption."

5,000 Ticket Limit Set For Student Show, Draa Reports

The all-original Sandspur production Gypsy Holiday, will present its first performance tomorrow night in Westcott auditorium. The performances will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights at 8:15.

Originally under the direction of Herb Reinhard, Gypsy Holiday went into final rehearsals with Sandi Horton directing. Beeler takins over after Reinhard joined the navy.

THE CAST had its final dress rehearsal last night, the chairman said, and will present a sneak preview tonight. The preview will only be shown to students and faculty members by special invitation.

Dr George McCalmon, head of the department of speech, gave the cast a few pointers at one of the recent rehearsals. He said, Dr George H Heilman, assistant dean of men, was also present, she said.

JIN DRAA, Sandspur business manager, has reported that the tickets for Thursday and Friday nights are going fast. The sales are limited to 5,000 tickets this year at 85c each.

The all-original student production is one of the few such student productions in the country, the entire show having been written by Doug Ailey with music by George Boldi. The choreography was formulated by Sandi Horton, the sets and lights by Bill Backus. Girls' costumes designed by Mary Anne Seidner.

STARRING in the performance this year are Sandi Horton, as Sharon, and Jack Watkins cast opposite her as Lt Jim Henderson. Henderson is the outsider who finds a strange love among the gypsies but is denied this love by social barriers.

Jackie Shaw will I'll Find My Love, the Soliloquy, and is featured with Jack Watkins in I Can See a Picture and Gypsy Dreams. Watkins' solo number is Sleep.

The two stars are supported by Carlos Cullum and Cindy Dobrey. Carrie sings several novelty numbers including Fun Getting Impatient, and I Do the Best I Can.

HIGHLIGHTS of Dobrey's performance are Nightshade, and I Pledge Myself to Thee. Dobrey accepts the plans of the gypsies and is the wife within so many Sharons.

The gypsies are led by Gerry Wood as Sesta. Other gypsies plan Christine, his wife. Gerry sings Love Is a Thrill and You're Mine.

ARELLE Pollock, portrayed by Janet Reynolds who has come West to latch on to Paul Henderson. Nick Pappas plays the mute gypsy, Pedro. Jane Sheppard as Mrs Bradford rounds plan the comedy role.

Bobbie Pettit, in her first speaking role, is cast as Chorine from Brooklyn.

The 21-piece pit orchestra plays several numbers including Semiole Syncopation, while the chorus and dancers do Gypsy Holiday.

SANDI reports that months have been spent in preparation with nearly 150 students in some phase of the production.

This year's Sandspur is proud of the number of "firsts" it has to its credit. Sandi emphasized. It reports a first all-original production, a first pit orchestra formulated especially for Sandspur. It also reports the first baby sitting project and the first Sandspur to have its own playhouse. The building in which all sets were constructed and dancing routines rehearsed.

Sandi reported that the Student Christian Association set up the baby sitting service for parents who want to attend Sandspur. A fee of $1 will be charged for the evening she stated.

GARNET KEY is going to operate a refreshment stand for refreshments between acts, the Sandspur chairman also said.

In addition to the tickets for the Sandspur production, Jim Draa, has announced that tickets for the Sandspur dance on Saturday night are on sale in lower Westcott for $2.50 per couple. No stag tickets will be sold he said. The number of tickets is limited to 1,000 couples he stated.

Student Union Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Student Union Organization will be held on Thursday, February 22, at 7:30 p m in the lounge of the West campus Building Union.

STUDENT CONSTITUTION NOW STRENGTHENED

The addition of three amendments to the student constitution has served to strengthen that document. Although the polls were not overflowing with anxious and eager voters, enough did turn out to insure the passage of the measures.

The most important student law of the three passed was that making provision for a student traffic court with power to levy and collect fines deemed necessary by the court. The amendment provides that members of this court shall be selected by the student body in the UGA elections.

The parking problem has become a headache on campus since 1947 when men first invaded the FSU campus. We can now have a law with teeth in it if proper care is taken by the Senate to pass adequate rules so the court may carry out the functions for which it is intended.

Ronald Koons has worked long and diligently in erecting the structure for this court. We can show our support by adhering to the traffic rules which will ultimately be passed in the Senate.

Amendment number two puts more power in the combined Senate if they wish to consider any measures passed by either the Men's or Women's branches of the legislature. The University Senate may, by majority vote, consider any act which it considers unfair by any club in the Men's or Women's Senate.

The third amendment clarifies the order of succession in the various UGA offices. This never was clearly defined in the constitution but Bill Waters' amendment now makes it possible for a distinct line to be drawn.

In the future there will be a number of other amendments placed before the students body for ratification. These amendments are an earnest attempt to strengthen the student governing body and the student constitution. They deserve the attention of more than a mere five per cent of the student body.

● THE HOUR IS---

After many months of waiting, students were pleased Friday to hear the Florida State University Marching Band under the direction of Westcott tolling the hour once again.

To freshmen the chiming of the Westcott bell is a new addition to the campus. But to the upperclassmen they have become a symbol of Florida state tradition.

For many months the chimes were silent because of a broken mechanism which was sent for repair in the fall. We hope that the chimes will continue to ring out for the remainder of the year, and for those which follow. When they next are in need of repair, we trust that it will be some simple thing that can be remedied quickly, to get the chimes into operation as soon as possible.

Sentimentalists that we are, we missed 'em.

● DELAY EXPLANATION

University Senate was long since approved the proposed student Traffic Court. Under the leadership of Senior class senator Ronald Koons, a committee has presented the amendment providing for the court to student vote. The amendment passed.

And now what? Ronald has reported that all arrangements were made several weeks ago.

He states that car stickers for all cars belonging to students have been printed and that these were going to be given out at registration.

We registered over a week ago, and not one car sticker was distributed.

Senator Koons relates that he has, on several occasions, tried to track down the cause for the delay. On each of these occasions he has been given the run around, either by the business office or by some other administrative office.

The administration has pledged its support to this project of the Senate, but have failed to carry out its part of the bargain.

PON MY WORD

EXPLANATION OF EXPLANATION

By BETSY BLANTON

Bo Baker feels that he was wronged last Friday when this column challenged the University Court's decision not to rule on the Who's Who complaints filed by Emory King.

There are two sides to almost every issue, and we do not want to wrong anyone, we suggested that Bo explain the court's action to the students.

At deadline time (Saturday noon) Bo had not turned with his half of the column. On Monday morning (approximately 48 hours after the limit set for our contribution for editorial copy), Bo delivered a document of 910 words. It was explained to him that it could not exceed 250 words, since columnists are only allotted 500 words.)

For this reason, Bo's "explanation" is being put over another heading on this page.

My first impression of Bo's "explanation" is that it is a composite of certain Supreme Court interpretations. He refers to the United States constitution and then he politely points out to us that the national constitution has been interpreted many times. He neglects to mention that its interpretation varies with the composition of the court.

The U S document is over 150 years old; the FSU constitution is not yet one year old. The variation in interpretation of the U S constitution is not found within the jurisdiction of one court, but of several courts. This university has had only one court to rule on the constitution.

Bo makes no explanation for the discrepancies in the rulings of that court.

He apparently doesn't realize that his reasoning concerning the effect the Republican and Democratic parties bear upon the national Supreme Court is of no concern to political parties on this campus. Unless they are within the court alone, we don't know whether such a political situation exists there.

Bo attempts to discredit fellow columnist Jeanne O'Riordan by saying that the Who's Who case is not the first to be referred to her. He points to the refusal to give an advisory opinion to the University Council of Florida as an example. But we should know that an advisory opinion is not a "case," or why would it be called an "opinion?"

Bo politely calls your columnist a liar when he maintains that no former Honor Court member admitted that Who's Who was a racket. Believe me, the quotation is true -- you have overlooked one possibility in your attempt to find out to whom I referred in last Friday's column. And though I am not a member of the court, I believe my word to be as good as yours.

Bo also gives his reason for not ruling on Emory King's case as being that "a court composed of ordinary students discovered a principle which is basic to a court system." And in so doing, violated a section of the constitution which is supposed to be the foundation for your decisions. If the constitution contradicts your starting discovery of principle, then you'll have to amend the constitution, or else revise your new-found principle.

Bo admitted in an interview with me that the court made a first draft of the ruling before they present his case. We all make mistakes, Bo, but usually an attempt to rectify them when we realize that we have erred. The law.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

ATTEMPT SCUTTLED IN TRAFFIC PROBLEM

By JERRY THOMAS

The administration is at it again.

For the past two years there has been a serious traffic problem on campus.

The University Senate took it in their stride to attempt to correct this problem.

The administration appeared pleased with the idea of student set and energetic interest.

Senator Ronald Koons was appointed chairman of a traffic committee to investigate the probability of a traffic court and possible solution of preventing over congestion by those students and faculty members who are guilty of traffic rules.

After many weeks of work the committee made an excellent report.

The Senate was satisfied and so was the administration.

One of the recommendations of this committee was to have each student car owner place a "sticker" on his car. Individuals in his car would be distinguished from others on campus.

Even though the Traffic Court has passed student vote. and though it is ready to go into operation, it cannot do so without final okay from the Senate.

We are chastised in classrooms in which we procrastinate. We are subject to a lower grade or to punishment in one form or another. And in cases such as the traffic court, those who administer the punishment for procrastination indulge in that occupation themselves.

We all recognize the need for such a court, and nothing is to be gained by delay. If there is an explanation for this delay, then let us all in on it.

● COMMON WORDS

For years it has been common knowledge that the most frequently used word in the English language was "the". There was divergence of opinion as to what was the followed immediately after, in order of popular use.

A dictionary publisher, having millions of spoken words compiled, has used that information in a new abridged volume. There aren't many surprises in the first ten words. In order, theyare: the, and, a, to, of, I, in, was, that and it. Those not privately or muttered under the breath are obviously not included.

Man is 70th, woman 207th, which isn't surprising when you stop to think how often the former word is used as a general term to cover people of both sexes.

Some other oddities have turned up in the word study. One is that there is a great difference in the use of meanings of words. For example, the word "set" has 544 meanings but only about 40 of them are common.

A new dictionary based on all this information about words and meanings is a fine thing but it would be so much finer if somebody found a way to hook it to a typewriter so the darn thing stopped.—Philadelphia Bulletin via the Florida Times-Union.

FANCY THIS

ONE FOR THE MONEY TWO FOR THE SHOW, WHAT'S THAT' TAPS AND HERE WE GO

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN and JOE SAWYER

Your columnists, authors of Fancy This and Campus Carousel, have combined forces this week to cover a gigantic movement on campus concerning "WHAT'S THAT' BETWEEN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES? The Seventeen Committee has unanimously adopted the rules and qualifications set forth in last Friday's Flambeau.

"It must be remembered that this is a popularity measure which has selected Florida State as one of 89 petitioning schools in the nation," said Chairman Alphonso Schickelgruber, selection committee chairman told reporters.

With the aid of the point system set up by H. L. W. and J. M. the committee has tapped 12 people, eight things and six unclassifiables. The point system used was used by the committee and no partiality was shown in making the nominations. Qualifications for the selecting committee were not eligible.)

"It must be remembered that WHAT'S THAT' covers a rival secretary, WHO'S WHO. WHAT'S THAT' has been selected to cover the university and everyone is eligible except WHO'S WHO-ERS ... Everything and non-classifiables are the three categories of WHAT'S THAT'," committee chairman Alfonso Judge said.

All of the people tapped are outstanding on campus in one way or another (mostly another), and we feel that they will go far in their future life, not on their qualifications, but simply because others were tapped for "WHAT'S THAT' We also believe that the selected for faculty members will receive the 'pink and red' will benefit from the prestige.

Entertainment Chairman Sally Rand, serving in a double capacity has selected a rival honorary, WHO'S WHO-ERS, to entertain the tapped people.

We also looked into the so-called illegality of the case and decided that this does not lie in the hands of the investigation

Even though the "WHAT'S THAT" tapped people are outstanding in one way or another, they are not all well known. Therefore, we have included a brief description of each.

Isabel Puratelly, Bessa Stevens, Mary Turner, Ollie Sellers (his biggest qualification has been listed), Mary Stuart Wilson, Ann Lanford, Jean Marshall (they had to be selected because Margaret Brehaw, Stan Gould, Jean Hall, Will Pennell, Jerry Thomas and Jane Burney, were left out because of his friendship with President Campbell).

Sing. The committee chose "things." These were selected on their use and contribution to a better University. They included the classics club, a sandspur, an ad in the Flambeau, Jerry in the Voice of the Seminoles, the torch and the Flambeau, "the thing," the Garnet Gimmick, and the big fish in the pool outside Westcott.

Finally the committee selected the "unclassifiables." This wasn't hard at all. The lucky er-a-creep? is made up of Nick Pappas, Lila Goldberg, Bob Tipping (when he was tapped he said, "I hope this isn't unconstitutional, because I don't want my name dragged through the mud after due consideration we've decided that he is a member), Bill Falcone, Paul Baker (we feel that even though he's not a member, he has been in FSU long enough to deserve WHAT'S WHAT?), and Peanut Pierce (because he's the "nuts" on campus).

Under the "people," "things," and "unclassifiables" are all a part of student life, the committee feels that WHAT'S THAT' is a fair selection of outstanding faculty members in the selection. Instead of inducting a new WHAT'S THAT? the committee formed a new honorary, WHO'S WHO-ERS, which is basic to a court system. The court is basic to it. We are getting the "lies cherished illusion which the intelligence of a colleus student" to a court system. Jury. (Editor's note: The University court is the jury.)

FRIDAY AFTERNOON I asked the writer of 'Pon My Word where the information concerning this case was received. I was told that it came from a note passed to Earl Dobert from Mr Rice. I spoken but a few sentences with the latter concerning the case on the steps in Lower Westcott. He has not received a written report. (Editor's note: Does it have to be written to be valid?) In the same column there are words suggesting that perhaps a former Honor Court and Committee member who was tapped for Who's Who. "Everybody knows that Who's Who is a racket and that the best.... The only hope for former Honor Court and Committee members tapped for Who's Who, Jennie Adams and Marie Archibold, have told me that they never expected such a prize.

IN THE COLUMN entitled Fancy This it was stated that "This is the first case registered in the court which has been refused hearing." It is the second. We refused to give an advisory opinion to the Executive Council earlier in the year.

Now -- it's ponder this situation and see if we can't discover our position in such cases. Now -- and, perhaps, take some position concerning what action we would be trie to say that the basis of our way of life is the act of trusting one another. Or, actually, that all individuals lose all their rights to each other, we will lose our way of life.

SINCE WE ARE comparatively new in this student government, we have very little set tradition. We are in a formative period. Many roads can be taken. We are bound to take a few wrong ones. The Executive Council has set a fine precedent in their refusal to act on the case. Why should they be asked to do this when they have failed to meet their part of a bargain?

The Seminole Room does not feel that the U S constitution has been interpreted in many different ways in proven in the reverse of the Supreme Court decisions. In our American way of life it is the duty of elected representatives to pass laws in accordance with the constitution on the terms of the desires and needs of the people. The duty of the court is to protect the individuals rights. This is a Judicial function. The court could nullify every action of the University Senate, and the University Council, why should the latter exist? The Court would be the judiciary branch. The Republicans passed a bill which the Democrats vetoed, and the United States Supreme Court was composed of a majority of Democrats, what would be the outcome? Something for embittered Democrats to do?

THEREFORE, one of the basic principals of our court system is that in order to keep the legislative or executive action the court must do it in a judicial manner. Cases must be tried by the individual presenting it is directly hurt or about to lose his rights In this particular case, the only people who are directly involved are those who have applied for Who's Who. (Read American Jurisprudence, Volume II, in the University Library on the downtown, Section III.)

THE COURT should refuse to hear the case because we were, to quote Mr King directly, "unwilling to submit to the responsibility to the students to administer justice without fear or favor to anyone." We, as the University we, a court composed of ordinary students discovered a principle which is basic to a court system. Mr. Rice, a lawyer, and a graduate of the School of Music says Mr Stunning who won by a walk Bidder Stunning, Editor of Journalism nosed out Dr Eide, Dave Mesmer, astronomy professor, Falk came in with high honors. Bob Punon in the Geography Department received a medal for his activities as a Tamuuian.

A few students unqualified made the "also ran" list included George Beloi (who didn't have enough votes to be noticed), Dick Bradley, Vince Lociecre, Dick Yeager, Nora Diddier, Ted Sieskowicz, and Lloyd Fish (the committee had already tapped a fish in their pool and they couldn't have two in one organization).

Honorable mention went to Bob Lee Bannerman, Earl "whats it want, leave me alone" Dobert, Betsy "big red" Blanton. They were WHAT'S THAT? material, but failed to make the grade.

Carl Becker and Doug Alley, both graduate students, were at first declared unclassifiable, but after a hasty consultation of the committee they were tapped because they excelled in table hopping. Jim Turnbull was given the privilege of tapping in order that he would not investigate the committee.

In the words of one of the judges, William Rosetta (short for Billy Rose), "this movement is destined to become the foremost influence in American colleges. The lucky people who were tapped have bright futures and besides WHAT'S THAT? will help keep them from getting a job."

Shady Lunch (this point put Bob Tipping in the runnin'), three points for attending a football game at Campbell stadium with four points for attending Campus Favorite Falcone won recognition in this area).

Five points for knowing only five people on campus (the committee feels that Bill Mattison over the honorary list for stacking up the points here) ... two and one-half points for attending the quarter pitching in front of the Sheraton. Mike Sellers, a quarter pitching pro, was honored by WHAT'S THAT' on this point and the fact that WHAT'S THAT placed him on their All-Campus team) ... Honorable mention goes to Bill Mattison who was nominated him ... 15 points for any student that can comprise a more complicated and unintelligible curtain system ... three points for each gift to the curtain by magazine and marshmallows eaten (Sandi Horton qualified here) ... Ten points eliminated because she took too many late registrations last semester) ...

Five points for entering a women's dorm or sorority house before 10 p.m. (Jeanne nominated) ... no one has yet met this standard).

As we stated before, we divided the members into three categories. Eight, five and three. We had a hard time finding acceptable candidates. We lowered our standards and finally selected the following:

Eight people, the "people," things," and "unclassifiables" are all a part of student life, the committee feels that WHAT'S THAT' is a fair selection of outstanding faculty members in the selection. Instead of inducting a new WHAT'S THAT? the committee formed a new honorary, WHO'S WHO-ERS, which is basic to a court system. The court is basic to it. Baker Tells Why Court Didn't Rule

First it was Thiaria, next it was Women's Judiciary, then the Senate, Who's Who—and now, the University Court. For over a semester your student government has appeared to reek with tyrannis whose primary aim in life is to climb the ladder of personal success. In the case about which he here presented, let's stop, look listen! Perhaps we will discover matter interest, section 2, article the basis for our turmoil—and in so doing learn something of the nature of democracy.

IT WAS IN Court Affairs Hour during the first week of this semester that Emory King presented to me a typewritten paper entitled Bill of Complaint. The bill was presented to the court on Tuesday, February 20. It (the court) refused to hear the case for the following reasons: The UGA constitution states that the University Court shall have original jurisdiction over questions of constitutionality, and that any "should any student deem any University action to be contrary to or not in accordance with this constitution, said student shall appear before and plead his case." In his bill, Mr King implied only that the action of the University council in Thiaria is violated a law passed by the University Senate. Not one part of the constitution was referred to. Therefore, the complaint would have been unconstitutional if it had heard the case to be presented from the bill of complaint.

A CONSTITUTION must be a flexible document, one which will provide for our changing society. That the U S constitution has been interpreted in many different ways is proven in the reversal of Supreme Court decisions. In our American way of life it is the duty of elected representatives to pass laws in accordance with the constitution on the terms of the desires and needs of the people. The duty of the court is to protect the individuals rights. This is a Judicial function. PART 2—FACULTY FAVORITES . . .

CLASSROOM CLOWNING . . . Stomps up and down classroom aisles handing out booklets and tours from the aggressive massive salesman. Hears every sound as he walks down the aisle. Sounds. To sign up for his course is to give up your entire life to be a wrestler wife and the seven year itch.

THE POLITICIAN . . . Everybody's friend, he gives you the same hand smile when an F comes out of the blue. Secretly sticks pins in student's effigies during study.

THE SMILER . . . Shows all his pearly blue Monday morning thinking of all the work ahead. To him, life is a glorious adventure. Probably does setting up exercises. Pity his poor wife.

OLD STONE FACE . . . To say hello to a student would obliterate him. Operates on the "divine right" theory that an MA makes you God's gift to mankind. Rates students with unmentionables.

THE DREAMER . . . Breaks off in the middle of sentences with that faraway look in his eye. He's supposed to be thinking of deathless prose. Like students', his dreams are probably Freudian.

CONDESCENDING CHARLIE . . . Has abiding faith in the basic adaptivity of students. Acts like he's teaching people fresh off the banana boat.

THE EXCEPTION . . . Knows his subject and how to put it over. Has a personality and doesn't set a kick out of watching fellow humans squirm. Above all, commands an spickled leche nuts. . . .

Dear Editor

'Name Flashing'

Dear Editor:

Who's Who? Who's Who! Who's Who? Who are we in an informal hoot?

It is the opinion of many students, with whom I have talked, that most of those who are trying to make Who's Who are a gang of "name-flashing," conceited publicity-happy individuals (individuals, to be sure, in every respect).

The family survives and is happy only through mutual understanding. So does the community, the college, the state, the nation, and above all MAN. It is certainly only through a genuine Brotherhood of Man that peace of mind or peace on the battlefield can ever be attained. That Brotherhood of Man has as its core, the integrated individual, you and I. I say integrated in the sense of considering oneself a part of mankind—not above it—; in another sense that the integrated individual recognize his fellow men. Numerous examples in literature and science, for instance, exist in which great men have lived an unknown existence; have died; and their great work finally uncovered. Did they cry because their name was not in Who's Who—or because it was? Their works will live as a memorable tribute to their silent efforts in behalf of the Brotherhood of Mankind.

Perhaps—a little hesitancy and a little thinking might help. Otherwise, we are breeding here now our own doom.

I have a suggestion, though. Mr Editor, if these individuals insist on publicity, I suggest that they submit their names, features, and efforts in behalf of mankind to Al Capp. Maybe he will even draw them. Certainly Li'l Abner has a thousands times more readers than Who's Who on College Campuses.

"Is that an FSU student or is that 'Old Man Mose'?" Well La-de-dah!

JACK B. HANKS.

Investigators Clarify?

Dear Editor:

We hate to bring up the subject of the Who's Who selection again, because we know that most everyone is tired of hearing about it. Nevertheless, we, as members of the Who's Who investigation committee, feel it necessary to clarify certain points which were brought up in our committee meetings.

You stated in your last editorial that "the Senate Investigation committee, in remaining silent, report to the Student Senate said, in effect, that the system used this semester stank" and that "the investigation virtually declared that this year's selection was rotten".

We on the committee never mentioned anything of this kind. We feel that it wasn't the committee's purpose to decide whether the selection was "rotten" or not; but rather get the facts about the selection and report those to the Senate. We realize that the investigation was not properly conducted, though some of us tried our best to keep it as impersonal and unbiased as possible.

We also looked into the so-called illegality of the case and decided that this does not lie in the hands of the investigation

General Education Critic Cites Opinions of Leaders in Field

What seems to be the failure of general education programs today? Why do students take such a casualty in studying things like Plato and Mosiers, Roman art and the Cosmos of Vienna, dates and names they have never heard of?

First, let us hear some of the popular criticisms and opinions of general education today as expressed by a few of the notable leaders in that field.

Robert M Hitchins, former president of Chicago University, declares that there is a growing trend toward the trivial in our general colleges today. As an example, he points to an excellent midwestern university which offers courses in bicycle riding.

THE ARDENT attacks in recent years upon this "free elective" system seem, to some extent, justified. So often we find such courses as practical poultry-raising, how to sell vacuum cleaners, how to play golf, how to "adjust" yourself to some sort of another of other nonsensical studies being offered in respected universities. The student is swamped with a maze of courses which have little or no bearing upon his basic educational program.

A well-known educator recently stated that at least 80 per cent of freshmen students not only do not know how to read and understand classical, ancient reading matter, but they do not want to read it. The figure "80 per cent" may vary, but substantially it is representative. (Some say as much as 95 per cent). So often the bewildered student cries "What have these courses got to do with life today?" and here he lays ground for an excellent argument. In fact this argument has been raging among professors and educators throughout the nation for quite some time.

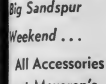
ALFRED WHITEHEAD of Harvard said that the development of learning, and the success of education, require selection; selection of a limited number of topics concerning the world today.

Alexander Meiklejohn said that too often the graduate schools pre-suppose that the average professional-to-be has been "well-educated" and fully capable of plunging into professional work.

At Louisiana State University, Peter Carmichael claims that a liberal education should be concerned, not with classical culture, but with problems of contemporary life.

Many others complain that there is an excess of pedantry—that is, a useless learning of trifling details; not enough grammar, rhetoric, and logic.

JOHN DEWEY, American educator and philosopher, asserted that its psychologically impossible to call forth any activity in a course without the student first having interest in that course. He says further that external mechanical attention to a task as a task is inevitably accompanied by random mind-wandering along the lines of the pleasurable. To Dewey, education was not a preparation for living but living itself. Social grace, physical welfare, and elastic culture are relatively unimportant.

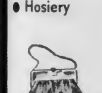


There is much diversity among many of these theories but from them we may draw certain common elements of agreement. First, there appears to be general belief that there are too many trivial and unnecessary courses are not final solutions.

Which ordinarily come under the title—electives. Secondly, they seem to agree that study of problems in the world today are of more importance than study of problems in sess past.

OF COURSE, all of these opinions are open to dispute. They

However, the mothers and fathers who pay out millions of dollars each year for education and their sons and daughters who give some of the best years of their lives to setting an education, should take a more active interest in their public schools and universities. The problem of education is an extremely important one. There is an urgent need for some type of reform in present general education set-ups.



In the next issue of the Flambeau, we will discuss further some significant criticisms of modern liberal education.

committee, but in the ones of the courts.

We too explained at the last senate meeting that there will be no changes made in the selection of Who's Who this year.

In answer to Mr Turnbull's letter we feel that if he had attended the last meeting of the committee, he could have expressed his ideas, which might have had some influence on our report to the senate. We are terribly sorry that Senator Turnbull feels that this investigation "was the weakest attempt on part of any senate committee to fulfill its duty." Maybe if all members had been there we could have done a better job, which would not have required an apology of our co-chairman which we think was unnecessary in the first place and which might have satisfied him too.

We hope that FSU will save itself from further criticism concerning Who's Who in the future and will cause less scandals, and quarrels.

JUNE CONYERS and MARGARET KRASEMANN.

How About This!

Dear Editor:

A few minutes ago I walked over to the field house behind the main campus Gym; presented my ID card and asked for a basketball. My intentions were to take the ball so to one of the four courts located on the North side of the gym, shoot some baskets and exercise in general. However, I was informed by the student attendant that he was allowed to issue athletic gear to women only.

I would like to know what the basis for such a stupid rule is. The balls were in the field house—the courts were empty; and yet I could use neither.

There are some 180 men students living in Sestos Hall. Why must we do for recreation—ride the bus to west campus?

Your very truly,
JACK B HANKS.

Public Ad Students Hear Angus Laird

Florida State University public administration students are getting first hand information on the operation of state government through the teaching of Angus Laird, state merit system supervisor.

Mr Laird is teaching a course on Florida Government in Action, numbered 445 in the public administration courses. The course is held on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from noon until 1 p m.

The state official received his A B and Master's degree from the University of Florida. He has been on the faculty of the University of Denver and was connected with the University of Florida at various times.

He became part time merit system supervisor for the State Board of Health and Crippled Children's Clinic from 1941 to 1946 and since then he has been full time state merit system supervisor.

WFSU Produces First Remote Broadcast in Its History

WFSU yesterday broadcast its first remote program in the entire history of the two-year-old student station!

MEMBERS of the station were at last successful in setting up a remote control board in the Suwannee Dining Hall and for 15 minutes these tuned in to 99 heard the music of Georgia Bee, his trumpet and his orchestra, as they played for dining hall listeners.

With this initial program, the "Voice of the Seminole" has again shown that it is capable of undertaking the unusual and presenting a different sort of program which will interest the members of the student body.

While the orchestra played in the background, Neil Jacoby, chief announcer of WFSU, announced to the numbers. A large crowd of WFSU and Georgia Bee followers were on hand to see the production. Len Melion, director of special events for the station was at the remote control board in the dining hall, and engineering the project from the studios of WFSU, located on the fourth floor of the Alum. was Bill Base, production manager.

court has made no attempt to rectify its admitted error.

Be asked why the court was not consulted when the article concerning the case was written. In case you don't already know, it is because we have found that on questioning three members of the court concerning one issue, we have gotten three different answers. And each stoutly maintains that his version is the correct one and is very defensible source.

We have not tried to attack the court system here. We attacked a single decision that court has handed down. We have a respect for the courts of any level of government — municipal, local, state and national, and we have praised our student High Court in editorials.

Bo nor no member of the court has acknowledged our bosom for its court, but when they receive criticism, they get her under the collar. Perhaps it is the first time anyone has questioned your actions.

Our criticism in any instance of any phase of student life has been with an eye to improving it. Apparently most of the people who have been criticized feel that their management is perfect, for they have neatly avoided suggestions from other interested students. They have shown that they are unable to take criticism.

And when we have asked for explanations such as this, we have instead received a blast for our attempt to right what we thought (and still think) was a wrong.

Newmanites Meet Tonight at House

The Newman club executive council will meet tonight at 7 p m at the Newman House, Mayo Parker, president, reminds all Newmanites that they are welcome to attend this meeting if they wish. All committee heads are required to attend, she said.

Plans will be formulated for a buffet supper and question box to be held next Sunday evening at the House. Students planning to attend the buffet supper are asked to sign up on the Newman bulletin board in Westcott or in the post office. Final arrangements for the supper will be announced in the Friday Flambeau.

The question box Sunday evening will be an informal question and answer period on problems of the Catholic faith. Father John J Keohane, club chaplain, will be moderator.

Education Professor Is Guest Speaker At NSCTE Meeting

Dr Marion J Hay, professor of education, is one of the principal speakers at the National Society of College Teachers of Education in Atlanic City. The two-day conference closes today.

In her talk to the group Dr Hay is making an appraisal of the problems and issues placed before the Social Foundations section of the meeting by Dr B Othanel Smith one of the keynote speakers She will also discuss the manner in which the Florida State University is handling the curriculum problems in Social Foundations in teacher education.

On Wednesday and Thursday in Philadelphia, Dr Hay will take part in round table discussions on "Foundations of Education," as the only woman selected for participation.

The other members of the discussion groups will include leading professors of education in universities and colleges in all parts of the United States.

Speech Play "Family Portrait" Outlines Life of Jesus' Family

A new feature in invitations has been established with the speech department's production of "Family Portrait." Letters have been mailed to all local churches and student religious groups on campus inviting them to the production.

"FAMILY Portrait," written by Lenore Coffee and William Cowan, is a reconstruction of the life of Jesus' family as outlined in St Mark 6:1-5 and other parts of the King James Bible.

Full tempo rehearsals start this week with the production scheduled for March 2, 3, 4, 5.

The play centers around Mary, the mother of Jesus played by Jan Vantura. The familar story of the last supper and the beiryal is dramatized by Mary Cleophas, played by Julie Storm, and Magdalen, played by Jayne Gardner.

OTHER members of the cast include Don Mowrer, as James, Bill Yarbrough, as Joseph, Charles Bogdahn as Simon, Blair Hennessey as Judas, George Carr as Mordical, George Sims as Eben, Jack Holmes as the dicipie, Judas, Thomas Granahan as Mathias, Fred Myers as Mendel, Robers Griffin as Nathan, George Outhuis as the 16-year-old Daniel, J W Manzin as Lebon, Donald Remington as Joshua, John Mader as Appia, Hadrian, George Cary as the Ribbi and Ben Hulsey as Jesse.

Other members of the cast include: Barbara Lewis as Reba, Betty Orr as Naomi, Lyia Goldberg as Selima, Shirley Hurlburt as Hepsibah, Leah LePrante as Anna, Mary Alice Newton as woman of Jerusalem, Maurita Sutton as Ester and Jean Flynn as Beulah.

ASSISTING Director will be Lyia Goldberg and Evelyn Gray. Jayne Gardner, Marcia Morris and Rose Biancarosa are in charge of stage management.

Robert Warner will be in charge of lighting, Madelyn Burgess in charge of costumers, Hilda Mullis in charge of makeup, George Cary Yarbrough, as Joseph, Charles Bogdahn as Simon, Blair Hennessey as Judas, George Carr as Mordical, George Sims as Eben, Jack Holmes as the dicipie, Judas, in charge of house management, and Shirmley Hurlbert in charge of publicity and promotion.

Florida State University's whirlwind basketball team is looking for top sportsmanship in the Dixie Conference tournament and a berth in the NAIB tourney for district 25.

The Seminoles, who have a 12-7 record to date and a 7-0 conference mark, will probably get the number one spot in the Dixie tourney at Macon, Feb 26-28.

However, Florida State is expected to run into trouble in respect to a berth in the district NAIB meet.

From here it looks as if the University of Miami and University of Tampa are sure bets to get berths in the tournament, slated in Tampa early next month. Both fives have recorded good records within the district, although over all marks don't match FSU's.

Stetson is being considered for a berth, and on the strength of two victories over Coach Bud Kennedy's quintet, may get the position.

"Some of these coaches don't give a darn, figuring that it's enough if their team wins. But the whole set-up is roofed in the Eastern practice of letting college players play pro ball on Sundays and odd nights."

"If a coach wants to clean it up he can do it. He'll either do it or he's dumb. If I were coaching, I'd find those fellows.

Seminole Five Tops Mercer 69-64; Seeks Berth in NAIB Tournament

Florida State University's basketball team advanced a step further towards a berth in the NAIB District 25 tournament by topping a scrappy Mercer University five, 69-64, here Saturday night.

There's too much catering to the big time guy because he's worth so much at the gate. But they should be fired aff the team if they can't keep their noses clean. I've done it. But let the boys on the squad vote first. You'll find the American boot will vote the right way.

"The coach can't detect the play, but he can detect the mish. Scrutinize the player. Watch him —hall him for 24 hours st stretch."

Allen indicated he considered it pure larceny for a coach to take the attitude that he can see what's going on by watching the team in action.

"Two men on a team, a forward and a guard, can throw any ball game without anyone being able to detect it.

"You can put the ball away so many different ways. In ball handling, you can make an illegal start in dribbling, or double dribble, or palm the ball, or run with it.

"A player can shoot for the basket and hit the crotch. He might barely clear the basket so you can't rebound the ball. He can give it away so many times you wouldn't believe.

"Working with the pro ball clubs, a college player makes $50 or $100 a week as a side business. I have no quarrel with professional sports, but in what we call independent ball, the gamblers get access to these kids. Gamblers watch the pros. It's no problem out here (Kansas) because our boys are so naive about betting and such. They'd be flabbergasted the way Untuh was last year."

Allen's reference was to Paul Unruh, Bradley star, who exploded an oratorical bombshell with the off-hand story of an experience while visiting New York. He told a gambler that an offer of "easy money" had been made to him by a gambler if he'd fix Bradley games in the National Invitation Tournament.

Pittsburgh's fans had something on which to chew a few weeks ago when Bulletin Editor Al Abrams of the Post-Gazette reported that the Pirates were tinkering with the idea of converting Ralph Kiner from an outfielder into a first baseman.

The idea behind the shift of Kiner from left field would evidently be to make room for Tom Saffell, Dino Restelli, Ted Beard, George Metkovich or Pete Reiser.

The proposal of putting Kiner at first was put before Manager Bill Meyer several years ago, but Meyer decided against the experiment. However, at the time he had plenty of first basemen: Johnny Hopp, Ed Stevens and Max Weit. At present, Jack Phillips is the lone man at first, although Dale Coogan, Al Grunwald and Dale Long also are first basemen. Coogan and Grunwald are close to military induction, and Long is a rookie who needs more experience.

Perhaps Abrams' report will be put into effect and the home run hitting Kiner will be on first.

Despite 28 points by Mercer's Chris Clements, 6-5 pivot man, Coach Bud Kennedy's cagers took the opening lead and were never headed.

Bob Whitmer paced the Seminoles with 21 points, followed by Bob Hartman with 17, Glenn Cassell, Mercer guard, dumped in 18 for the Bears.

The victory, which gives the Seminoles a season record of 12 wins in 19 games against all opponents, practically insured Florida State the number one berth in the Dixie Conference tournament Feburary 26-28 in Macon. The Seminoles have a 7-0 conference mark.

DICK REID, 5-10 Mercer forward, only tallied five points during the game, but held Hartman in check during the early and latter parts of the game. However, the Seminoles found the going tough in their efforts to stop Clements.

Big Tom McLaughlin was assigned the high scoring pivot man early in the game, but he fouled out. Larry Dickson was given the job of stopping Clements. Dickson fouled out, but Hartman finally checked the big Georgian in the fading minutes of the game.

The noisy crowd hushed to silence when Bud Marsee hit the floor with a heavy thud in the second half. Marsee's injury, however, is nothing more than a bruise, declared Trainer Eddie Kwest.

AFTER McLaughlin and Bud Scott dropped in field goals, Florida State held on to the lead throughout the game, although Clements tied the count at 34-34. Whitmer pushed in a field goal and the Seminoles never were headed or tied from there.

At the 10 minute mark the Seminoles were out in front 20-14, but Clements tallied 10 points in the next 10 minutes, pulling Mercer to a 37-36 deficit at the half.

Following intermission, Hartman, Whitmer, Marsee, Scott, Dickson and Trobaugh pounded the hoop to give the Seminoles a 50-40 margin at the close of 30 minutes of play.

In the final 10 minutes, the Seminoles added FSU to 16 points while they were scoring 15.

Florida State closes out the regular season here Friday night when they battle the Rollins Tars. Presentation of DI awards will admit students to the game.

Girls F Club Taps 21 'Goats'

The girls you have seen around campus wearing the upside down F's are prospective members for the women's F Club on Florida State University.

The girls in white, already members of the athletic club, were seen Sunday night in dormitory halls tapping 21 "goats," formal name for those tapped.

Fay Funchess, president of the F Club, announced yesterday the following girls: Rose Bascarone, Pat Comer, Beatrice Demeritt, Barbara Green, Pat Folsom, Catherine Hamby, Carolyn Henry, Frances Louserve, Polly Lassiter, Avery Lewbeck, Sally Maynard, Patti Mims, Del Peter, Peg Redding, Patsy Simmons, Viola Simpson, Mary Ann Stamp, Martha Staley, Ki Stanbird, Charlotte West, and Jo Anne Young.

The new "goats" and the members met for breakfast yesterday morning in the Seminole Room, after having met Sunday in the Longmire building.

A probation period for the prospective members (the goating period) will be concluded with F Club weekend at Panama City Tomorrow, where those successfully completing the period will be initiated.

Freshman Gym Team Defeated By Varsity

Florida State University's starfilled freshman gymnastics team fell to the powerful varsity performers 71-51 here Saturday night in an intra-squad meet.

The Freshmen were leading early in the meet, but they fell apart on the last five events due to the poise and experience of the varsity. Every one of the Freshmen stars fell off the apparatus after the pressure was on.

Coach Hartley Price hopes that by next Saturday they will have overcome their jitters and, with Bill Roetzheim out of the varsity lineup, is looking for a Freshman victory.

ROETZHEIM, who took three first places and tied in another, will be representing the United States in the Pan American Olympic Games in Argentina.

Next Saturday's meet, the second of five, is scheduled to start at eight o'clock in the East campus gym.

In a preliminary rymkans meet the high school girls defeated the co-eds on the side horse. Betty Wheeler's team (Gym) beat Mary Conners team (Kans) 11-9. Also Saturday the co-eds and high school girls will compete in balance and the Tallahassee Tumbling Team will be tumbling.

In the varsity-freshman meet Judge Joe Calvetti awarded five first places to the varsity and one to the freshmen. He declared two events ties.

The varsity performers took the tumbling, side horse, high bar, parallel bars and flying rings events. The Freshmen won the trampoline, and rope climb and free calisthenics ended tied.

FSU Tankmen Win Fifth Straight, Defeat Miami Hurricanes by 44-31

Florida State University's crack swimming team won its fifth straight meet of the season Saturday by defeating the University of Miami Hurricanes 44-31. FSU has previously whipped Georgia, twice, Pensacola Navy and Georgia Tech.

The Seminoles return home Friday night to battle Pensacola in a second meet in the East campus pool.

On Saturday's Miami meet the Seminoles took first place in five of the nine events. The Hurricanes took the 300-yard medley relay, 50-yard free style, 200-yard backstroke, and 20-yard breaststroke events.

After Miami took the opening medley relay race, FSU's Pete Dunn-Rankin copped the 220-yard free style with a time of 2 minutes, 28.1 seconds. Jack Burnett, Florida State, and Miami's Urpeda followed.

THE HURRICANE' Stohl bettered FSU's Jack White in the 50 yard free style and Booth of Miami finished third. Stohl swam the sprint in 24.4 seconds.

Dick Wells, who has already set two new records this year, took another Seminole first, winning the 100 free style in 55.5 seconds. Stohl finished second and Florida State's Captain Walter Jardine ended third.

Miami's Cooper kept the Hurricanes in the meet by taking the 200 backstroke in 2 minutes, 23.8 seconds. FSU's Bittner took second and Brenda of Miami, third.

Florida State's All-America Roger Walker copped first place in the divina event, piling up 91.9 points. Miami's Sears and Harris finished second and third, respectively.

The Hurricanes' Small followed with a victory in the 200 breaststroke in 2 minutes, 37.2 seconds. Florida State's Buddy Browning end Ed Archer followed in second and third, respectively.

JACK BURNETT and Willon Pardine, of FSU, tied for first in the 440-yard free style with a time of 5 minutes, 18.3 seconds. Miami's Casey took third. It was the first time that Willon Jardine, Walter's older brother, has swum a free style event this year for the Seminoles.

Coach Bum Stalte' tankmen insured their victory by taking the 400-yard free style relay in 3 minutes, 35.6 seconds. While Dunn-Rankin, Walter Jardine and Wells made up the Seminole relay team, Burnett was his other for the first time this year.

Florida State Adopts Two Semester Transfer Rule Effective September

Florida State University has made another change in its athletic policy to include a transfer rule effective with the opening of school next Fall. The new regulation was announced Sunday by Dr Howard G Danford. A thletic Director and chairman of the University Athletic Committee.

After the transfer goes into effect next September, Dr Danford explained, students transferring to Florida State from another college or university will not be eligible to compete in athletics until they have had two semesters' work at FSU. Freshmen will continue to be eligible for varsity teams, Danford said, "at least until after the present national emergency has straightened itself out."

ADOPTION of the new transfer rule follows closely upon another major change in policy at Florida State. Late in December, 1950, FSU officials announced plans to leave the Dixie Conference, and to award a limited number of athletic scholarships beginning with the 1951 football season. While a member of the Dixie Conference the Seminoles did not subsidize athletes and had no transfer rule.

The Florida State football team, which won three straight conference championships and finished an eight-game schedule last season undefeated and untied, moves into Florida conference on the 1951 grid slate.

INCLUDED on next year's football schedule, all nine games of which will be played in Florida, 28 and October 13, respectively, are such well known teams as University of Miami (there October 5), Bradley University of Peoria, Ill (here November 24), Bulldogs of Auburn (here October 20), Wofford College of Spartanburg, S C (here November 10), and Jacksonville Naval Air Station, usually a war time power (at Jacksonville November 3).

Other teams on the Seminoles' 1951 card include traditional rivals Stetson University (here October 27), University of Tampa (there November 17), Troy State and Delta State (here September 29 and October 13, respectively).

THE GYPSY CHORUS goes through one of its routines which is seen in the Sandspur production, "Gypsy Holiday." The production goes into its last performance tonight.

Final Sandspur Performance Staged Tonight in Westcott

Tickets for Last Performance Almost Sold Out
Reports Business Manager; Cost 65 Cents Each

The final performance of the Sandspur production, Gypsy Holiday, will be presented in Westcott auditorium tonight at 8:15. This will end the fifth production of the annual Sandspur show.

"All comments stated that this year's production is the best Sandspur yet," Jim Dras, business manager reported.

TICKETS for tonight's performance are almost sold out according to the business manager. "We are planning to sell out as fast as possible," he said, "and are not holding back any tickets for the gate tonight. Tickets are on sale today from 9 a m til 4 p m in lower Westcott at 65 cents each.

Originally under the direction of Herb Reinhard, the first all-original production went into final rehearsals with Sandi Horton, chairman and Carl Beeler, director.

The book and lyrics were written by Doug Alley with music by George Boldi. Sandi was in charge of the choreography with Bill Backus managing the sets and lights. Jorn Reitsma designed and made the costumes.

STARRING in this year's three night performances are Jackie Morris, as the gypsy girl, Sharon, Jack Watkins as cast opposite her as Paul Henderson, the outsider who finds love among the gypsies but is denied this love by social barriers.

Jackie sings I'll Find My Love and is featured with Jack Watkins in I Can See a Picture and Gypsy Drums. Watkins' solo is Sleep.

Carrie Cullison and Bob Dobrey support the two leading roles. As flippant Maria, Carrie portrays deep love for Gulippe. Bob Dobrey as Gulippe, highlights his performance with Nightwinds and I Hedge Myself to Time. Carrie solos with I'm Getting Impatient.

THE GYPSIES are led by Gerry Gray as the understanding Seelo who sings Love Is a Thrill and You're Mine. Frieda Allen plays the role of Christine, his wife.

Isabelle Pugsley portrays Janet Reynolds who comes West to captivate Paul Henderson. She tries to keep Paul from Sharon, whom she describes as the "stinking spyey girl." Jane Shepherd as Mrs. Henderson reveals a startling fact near the end of the play bearing on the situation. Jane plays the comedy role.

Senate Okehs Measure To Compile Rules

Sections Devoted To Faculty, Student Laws Aim of UGA Committee

University Senate Tuesday afternoon approved a measure submitted by Bill Hayes, vice president of Men's affairs, setting up a committee to compile all rules and regulations governing students.

His motion states that the compilation will have separate sections for rules made by the students and those made by the administration. Article 10 of the UGA constitution provides that all statutes shall be compiled as a whole and published at some time during the year.

Ronald Koons was elected president pro-tem of the Senate.

SENATOR Jimmie Evans proposed that the Senate send a request to the Judicial Court asking the court to suspend all sentences for the duration of the Sandspur weekend. This proposal passed the Senate by an overwhelming majority. The two disagreeing voters were Senators Wanda Evans and Gene Lu Armstrong.

Evans, appointed by Dick Bradley, conveyed the request to Frances Higinbotham Louvere, Women's Judicial Court Chairman who refused to honor the request. She can not be reached before press time for comment on her reason.

Jerry Thomas, Chairman of Men's Judicial Court, in speaking of the request, said, "I accept this recommendation because I feel the University Senate, as direct student representatives, reflects the will and desire of the majority of the students in this request. I will comply with their wishes."

UPON NANCY Rettle's motion. Rube Askew as UGA President, was invited to speak at the next meeting of the University Senate.

Jimmie Evans, as chairman of the Standing Rules Committee, said that group was making progress and would report at the meeting after next.

Ronald Koons, chairman of the Traffic Committee, said the business office is making plans to distribute car registration stickers at the house counselors. For those students living off campus or who do not have house counselors, stickers will be available at room 104, Westcott.

ANNE SCUDDER and Nancy Rettle's report on the recommendations made by Bill Waitera, former President of the Senate, was received by the Senate.

Sandi Horton was officially recognized as Sandspur chairman, and the committee, Bruce Rickey, Richard Coleman and Willa Terrell to University Court were approved.

Traffic Court Set To Operate Here; Stickers Given Out

Car stickers for all undergraduate and graduate students operating cars on campus are available through traffic department counselors until March 2. All faculty and administration will receive their stickers from Mr Farquaharson's office in 104½ Westcott. Day students may get their stickers from Mr Farquaharson also.

Students are warned that these stickers must be placed on the right-hand side of the windshield by the deadline date or they will not only be solved by the Court. Another purpose, he said, was to establish the precedent that any student may contest the validity of any statute on constitutional grounds.

The action of the Court was not available at press time.

Women's Convocation To Be Held Tuesday

There will be a compulsory convocation for women students Tuesday at 7 and 8 p m. according to Cay Yonge, vice president of women's affairs.

A senate, judicial and honor report will be presented to the women students on changes in regulations.

Sigma Xi Presents Lecture Wednesday

'Brain and Our Behavior' To Be Topic of Discussion

A free public Sigma Xi lecture on "The Brain and Our Behavior" will be presented by Dr R S Lashley director of the Yerkes Laboratories of Primate Biology next Wednesday. The lecture will be held in the auditorium of the new Science wing at 8 p m.

The Yerkes Laboratories of Wills Dr Lashley is director, are sponsored jointly by Yale University, Harvard University, and the Rockefeller Foundation.

DR LASHLEY, internationally known for his research in psychology, physiology and neurology, will also speak at an open meeting of the FSU Psychology Departmental Seminar. The meeting will be held at 4:30 next Wednesday afternoon in the Louvinire auditorium. The subject will be "The Frontal Lobes of the Brain."

The scientist has spent many years in research in the study of the way the brain works in conjunction with human behavior. He has come to be known as one of the world's leading authorities in this field.

Dr Lashley is a research professor of Neuropsychology of Harvard University and Florida's most distinguished psychologist.

THE SCIENTIST is a member of the National Academy of Science, The American Philosophical Society, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the National Research Council. He is a member of the editorial board of several scientific journals and monographs.

Lashley holds honorary degrees from the University of Pittsburgh, Chicago University, and Harvard.

Show Date Change

Family Portrait," a speech production outlining the life of Jesus' family, will be given March 14-17, and not March 3-8 as the February 20 issue of the Flambeau stated.

King Submits New Bill of Complaint

Questions Constitutionality Of Who's Who Action

At the regular session of University Court last night Emory King submitted a new Bill of Complaint questioning the constitutionality of the University Council's action in reinstating Who's Who this year. Last year's Senate passed a statute to abolish the organization until the students themselves might re-establish it.

In an accompanying letter to the Court, King admitted that his previous complaint had lacked reference to a direct conflict with the constitution. The case presented last night contained three portions of the constitution which King claimed were violated by action of the University Council. The Court was also asked to rule on the validity of laws passed by the 1949 Senate under the Constitution of 1947.

The plaintiff stated in his letter that he hoped this case would be heard on or close the extended bickering between the legislative and executive branches over a problem which can only be solved by the Court. Another purpose, he said, was to establish the precedent that any student may contest the validity of any statute on constitutional grounds.

The action of the Court was not available at press time.

Sandspur Dance Tickets Still on Sale in Westcott

Three-Fourths of Ducats Sold For Elliot Lawrence Dance

Almost three-fourths of the 1,000 tickets for the Sandspur dance tomorrow night have been sold, Jim Dras, Sandspur business manager has announced. Jim said that tickets are still on sale in lower Westcott between 9 a m and 4 p m at $2.50 per couple.

ELLIOT LAWRENCE (pictured above) will play for the annual Sandspur dance tomorrow night in the dining hall. Tickets for the dance are limited to 1,000. Up to yesterday three-fourths had been sold.

Candidates Qualify For UGA Elections

Twelve candidates had qualified by yesterday afternoon to run in the University Government association primary elections March 5 and 6. Paul Garrison, elections committee chairman, expressed the opinion that the elections would be restricted to one day instead of the two listed by the University Pow Wow.

"In keeping with the one-day election policy in effect this year I believe that University Council

Candidates for all UGA positions will again be allowed to run a statement in the Flambeau in the March 2 issue, announces Earl Dobert, editor. The statements must not exceed 250 words and must be typewritten on ordinary paper and doublespaced, said Dobert. "Any not meeting these requirements will be filed in the nearest wastebasket," he added.

In addition the Flambeau will allow candidates to buy advertising space in the Flambeau if they so desire. "This is the first time this service has been offered and we hope candidates will avail themselves of this opportunity," Dobert stated.

"Students should not spend their entire campaign budgets in newspaper advertising," warned Dobert.

will vote to limit the election to one day," Garrison said. Thus far University Council has not taken action on the matter.

CANDIDATES may qualify until 4:30 p m Wednesday, February 28. They must submit a signed statement of their intention to run for a specific office to the Dean of Student Welfare.

Garrison also announced campaign regulations adopted by the Elections Committee. No signs will be allowed inside of buildings except those placed on bulletin boards. This is because of complaints in the past that windows are marred the finish of walls by use of thumb tacks and scotch tape, Garrison explained.

Signs are also banned from trees.

Campaign expenditures are limited to $25 per candidate. No pictures are required of the candidates for use at the polls. Pictures of varying sizes tended to discriminate between those using $x10 photos and those of smaller size, Garrison explained.

GARRISON also announced that class senators will be elected at the coming elections. The class senators will be elected by members of their respective class senators will be elected at

Roetzheim, FSU Gym Champ, Represents US in Competition

By CHUCK CARTER

For the fourth tim ein his 22 years, Bill Roetzheim, senior and national gymnastics champion, will represent his country in international competition.

Roetzheim is now in Buenos Aires, Argentina, preparing to perform in the First Pan American Games which start Sunday.

IN 1947, he was a member of the American team which met the squad of Czechoslovakia; in 1948 a member of the U S Olympic team; and last year selected to represent the United States against Italy.

Participating in 18 sports will be athletes from 21 republics and territories of the Western Hemisphere. The 126 American and almost 1,000 other competitors will perform in Argentina's new Peron Stadium. President Juan Peron and his wife, Eva Peron, will formally open the Pan American Games Sunday before an anticipated crowd of 100,000.

ROETZHEIM is the only gymnast on the United States team and was selected by the Pan American Olympic committee on the basis of his performance in last year's National AAU championship meet at Los Angels.

At that meet, Roetzheim established himself as the nation's number one gymnast by sweeping the National AAU title for the second successive year, and adding the high-bar crown.

Under rules of the Games, teams are to be made up of athletes, 21 or 1 competitors. Among those considered for a three-man team will be Joe Giallombardo who limit a gymnast to three events.

If Roetzheim wins the all-around championship, he will be not only champion of the United States but of the Western Hemisphere. He already holds all-around championships from the Florida AAU, Southeastern AAU, Midwestern Intercollegiate and the two National AAU titles. In addition, he holds titles on the high bar, side horse, flying rings, parallel bars, and in tumbling.

There is no intention on the part of the Sandspur committee to order any additional tickets, according to Miss Elizabeth Lynn, assistant dean of women. Miss Lynn is the financial adviser of Sandspur. She said that when the 1,000 tickets are's sold, no further admissions may be had.

THE SANDSPUR committee has decided to give the students what they wish, "a good dance without the usual large crowded conditions," Jim commented.

The dance will be held in the Suwannee room from 9 p m until 1 a m and will carry out the theme of the Sandspur production," Gypsy Holiday." Late permission has been granted women students attending the dance.

"We are doing our best to obtain personnel's for the gates to see that no one without tickets will be admitted into the dance," the business manager said.

The east entrance will serve as the main entrance, Jack LaMarr, Sandspur dance chairman stated. The two side doors will be the remaining entrances.

ALL WRAPS must be checked at the south side of Reynolds, he emphasized, and added that corsages will be optional.

Highlighting the dance will be the noted college band leader. Elliot Lawrence and his orchestra, Winner of the Billboard magazine campus poll for the past three years, the Lawrence band is recognized as the "greatest college room band in many years."

Accompanying Lawrence are the band's vocalists, Rosemary Paiton and Danny Riccardo who are known among the most capable singing teams to have been heard today.

LAWRENCE will arrive at 4 p m tomorrow after traveling 300 miles from Sarasota. He will be welcomed by Secretary of State R A Gray at Jenkins Music Store on downtown Tallahassee. There he will autograph records and music sheets.

At 5:45 p m tomorrow, the bandleader will speak over WTNT.

Decorations for the dance began this morning at 8:15. Students of the department of art under the supervision of Mrs Beale

State Symphony Gives Concert

Third Program Presents Foster as Guest Soloist

The Florida State Symphony will present its third concert of the year next Monday, February 26, in Westcott auditorium, with Sidney Foster as guest soloist.

The program announced by Dr Karl Kuerstetter, conductor of the orchestra, consists of two major works, Tschaikowsky's Concerto in B-flat Minor and the "Stephen Foster Gallery," arranged by Morton Gould.

SIDNEY FOSTER, who is well-known in Tallahassee from previous visits, will take the piano solo in the Tschaikowsky work, which he has performed with many of the major orchestras of the country. For these and other performances this young American musician was hailed by the late Walter Damrosch as ranking with the foremost of the European pianists who have come to this country.

The orchestra itself will take the center of attention in the second part of the program, the Morton Gould medley of Stephen Foster songs. The playing of such old songs as Swanee River and Old Black Joe, recast in the modern Gould style, will close the program.

Individual tickets are still available at the School of Music office and may be purchased at the box office on the night of the performance. Regular price is $2 plus tax; student special is $1 plus tax.

FSU Freshman Dies Of Polio in Miami

Joyce Aylor, Florida State freshman coed, died today in the Variety Children's hospital in Miami. She was flown to Miami January 25, in a Coast Guard plane for treatment of bulbar polio.

Doctors at the hospital stricted the cause of death to a succhen "cardiac difficulty" caused by the strain of fighting an exhausting type of bulbar polio. Bulbar polio is the most serious form of the disease, affecting the brain, it was explained.

GARRISON also announced that class senators will be elected at the coming elections. The class senators will be elected by members of their respective class senators will be elected at

Joyce, 18, was a graduate of Miami Edison high school and an Alpha Xi Delta pledge at FSU.

Longer Hours Set For Dining Halls State Adams, Cox

Longer serving hours have been established in both East and West campus cafeterias, stated Bill Cox and Ben Adams, managers of the dining halls. The change was made due to popular demand.

Bill Cox, manager of the West campus cafeteria, stated that breakfast will be served there from 7 until 11 a m daily.

Ben Adams, manager of the East campus dining halls, who inaugurated extended meal service until 11 a m at the beginning of this school year, has announced that the meal service will be open all afternoon in the Coffee Shop.

"This new service started on Monday, February 12, and the service will continue as in volume in the two weeks that it has been available," he added.

Student Directories To Be Issued in March

Student directories will be issued in the latter part of March, according to an announcement by Mr Robert T Leigh, chairman of the Board of Publications.

He explained that the printing was held up in anticipation of the installing of a new telephone system. "Since the new service has been postponed indefinitely," Mr Leigh said, "we are printing the directories to make things as convenient as possible for the rest of the year."

Roving Reporter Discovers Varied Campus Questions

In an attempt to gauge student thinking on campus, Flambeau roving reporter, Paul Rubey, asked the following question this week:

"What question would you like to know the answer to?"

"What question would you like to know the answer to?" the students at FSU (and now you come to the question), why don't they establish a dating bureau? (PS: Any girls interested please contact me. To avoid the rush, please call early.)

Ruth Cohen, Sr, 340 Landis: Since the extension of women's hours, 12:30 permission dances are no longer privileges, particularly for seniors, why don't they extend these dances by one half hour to 1 a m permission.

Veterans May Not Change to Courses After Cut-Off Date

Veterans taking GI Bill correspondence courses will not be permitted to switch to classroom courses after the July 25, 1951, cut-off date for training, according to the Veterans Administration.

A veteran completing or discontinuing a course after the 1951 deadline may not start another, said H F Dickensheets, VA's Fase-a-Grille regional manager. He may go from a basic or preparatory to an advanced phase of the course, however.

Correspondence courses have been "universally accepted" as independent courses, although the veteran may take advanced work by correspondence, if the training is considered a "normal progression" toward his educational goal.

The 1951 deadline applied to veterans discharged from military service before July 25, 1947. Those discharged after that date have four years from their date of discharge in which to start GI Bill training.

Morrison Appointed

Hazel Morrison has been appointed to the position of assistant news editor for the Tuesday edition of the Flambeau according to announcement by Earl Dobert, editor.

Hazel will replace Bill Dunn in the position.

Brassor Continues Public Ad Lectures Through March 2

Francis P Brassor of the Civil Service Commission is now a guest speaker of public administration classes studying the federal government. Chief of the Administrative Services of the Civil Commission, Brassor will continue his lectures through March 2.

Brassor's lectures include subjects of over-all organization, structure and procedure of the executive branch of the federal government, according to Dean Wilson E Tate of the School of Public Administration.

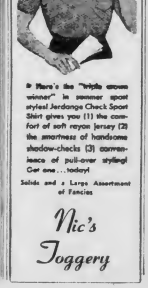
IN A SERIES of three lectures this week, the speaker centered his talks on a discussion of a case study. In this study the student was given text materials and lectures on a practical management and control system now in operation in a Federal agency.

Mr Brassor will discuss "General Services Administration" in the concluding series of three lectures Monday, February 26 through March 2. The talks will include consideration of recent developments in the administration of the business management functions.

Arbogast, Lacayo Attend Tournament

Florida State will be represented in the All Southern Debate Tournament at Agnes Scott College in Decatur, Georgia this week-end. Representing FSU will be Janice Arbogast and Beverly Lacayo on the negative and James Lohmerer and Wallace Haynes on the affirmative.

The meet, which is being attended by debaters from ten southern states, will feature seven rounds of debate. Awards will be presented to those teams which are declared champions in the tournament.



Last year, Florida State walked off with honors at this same tourney. Paul Curtis and Dal Grafton and the negative debate of the question were declared best team of the tournament, while Arlene Amend and Katherine Skogstad were named best affirmative team.

The debaters left Tallahassee Thursday morning, and expect to return Sunday evening. They were accompanied by Dr Greg Pfeifer, Associate Professor of Speech in charge of debate.

Public Administration Forum Slated Tuesday

Career opportunities in public administration will be discussed at a Vocational Guidance Forum in Jennie Murphree lounge next Wednesday, February 28, at 7 p.m.

With Dr Wilson E Tate, director of the School of Public Administration, as chairman, a panel will look over possibilities in federal and state civil service, law and politics, public relations, and teaching. Freshman and sophomores who are undecided about a vocation are especially invited to attend.

FSU Faculty Tells What They Desire In Paper; Answer Three Questions

By BOB TIPPINGS

The Flambeau, in an earnest endeavor to discover what the public (Flambeau readers) desires in its newspaper, is conducting a 10-part symposium, one giving the faculty opinions, the other those of the students.

The first series of interviews were conducted among various faculty members of departments chosen at random. The question asked was, "What do you think the college newspaper should do for its readers?" This question was royally received, prompting one department head to remark, "A rare opportunity which I wouldn't miss for anything."

RESPONSE WAS so spirited that we were prompted to add two more questions. They are, "What do you think of sensationalism in the college newspaper?" and "Do you believe the paper should have faculty control?"

The responses are as follows:

Mr Mabee, School of Journalism: "If I may follow up on a remark of Professor Holcomb's of the Fine Arts department, the newspaper should deal with the idea back of the event as well as with the words themselves.

"It is true that we want the immediate publication of the happenings, but also true that it is the idea, rather than words that have always motivated us. Journalism, hence the newspapers, has its duty in present-day society of interpreting as courageously as it reports."

AS FOR FLAMBEAU sensationalism: ". . . (it) might be better used upon such an idea as world peace than upon such things as rape and murder.

"Sensationalism in the hands of a Hearst is one thing, and in the hands of a Pulitzer, quite another."

Dr Wilson K Doyle, dean of Public Administration: "The newspaper should provide factual and impartial reports of campus events. The editor should confine himself only to subjects with which he is familiar. Do not use sentences out of context, thus distorting the full meaning.

"As for sensationalism, the newspaper must think of the harmful consequences to the student body as a whole, and must protect them at all costs. It must avoid the possibility of 'generalization' from outside readers.

"EVERY EDITOR should recognize the fact that he has a very favorable position that may be denied the people he is criticizing. This idea must, therefore, govern editorial policy to make sure of complete impartiality."

About faculty control: "It is desirable for the faculty members to have a place with students in the control of the college paper because of both their experience and judgment and their continuity."

Mr John Newton Baker, public relations director: "The paper's primary purpose is to present a complete and accurate news coverage of campus activities for all students, not special groups.

Secondly, it should strive at all times, through its editorials and columns, to reflect the responsibility which goes along with the freedom of the press.

"THE PAPER SHOULD be a mirror of student life on campus and (I) see no value in primarily reflecting only the sensational and more unfortunate incidents of college life. Such occurrences should be handled strictly as news.

"There should be a happy medium of faculty control. A middle ground which is not censorship, yet which reminds the paper that it has responsibilities as well as freedom."

Mr Charles Walker, Registrar: "Authentic information. Straight facts rather than one person's idea without sufficient facts to back it up.

"A visitor should be able to get the tone of the campus from the campus paper, of people, events, faculty, and at the same time not feel that it (the paper) is devoted to issues concerning only the students. Groups, rather than the newspaper, is the place for those issues."

FACULTY CONTROL: "Various schools on campus offer a wealth of professional talent which could be used to advantages to make an even better paper.

"Above all, the college paper should have clear editorial policies and give the full story of every side of a subject."

Robert Fuson, geography department: "The truth. Quite considering the American people as youngsters who can't face the truth. Write for adults and let them decide issues for themselves. Cease the present policy of allowing the editor and his staff to interpret the news for the readers, except in editorials."

MR FRANCIS P Brassor, chief of administrative services, U S Civil Service commission, visiting lecturer: "The editors should make policy decisions which are about subjects in which he is well versed only and should not give the various views of the entire student body.

On faculty control: "There should be one person or group with sufficient ability to sway governors the staff as to what is good and bad, right and wrong for the university as a whole. The student body may overlook interests of the university and the university officials may overlook needs of the student body. There should, however, be no pressure or controls."

Local 'Honorary' Taps 13 Students

An anonymous letter, signed by HLW and JN, which poked satire at the YWCA's annual investiture set off a spark which resulted in the tapping of campus "characters."

Humor columnist Joel P Smith and Jane Atchley put their wits together and formed an "honorary" which takes up where "Who's Who" left off. With the aid of Jeanne O'Riordan, Flambeau columnist, the three named the organization "What's That Between American Colleges and Universities."

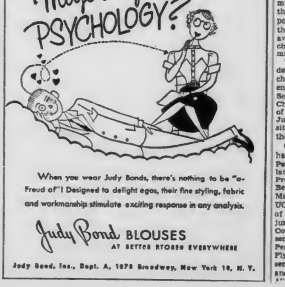
Using a "strict point system," the trio nominated various campus characters and selected 13 students for the tapping.

Wednesday and Thursday the tapping committee, Katrine Austin, Margaret Marshall, Kyron Long and Janet Pierce tapped the elected members. The taps were identification cards around their necks as recognition.

Those tapped were: Isabel Pulaski, Beaty Sievers, Bob Turner, Mike Sellers, Mary Stuart Wilson, Allan Reed, Mary Jane Marshall, Margaret Brown, Ann Gould, Lee Bailey, Will Pennell, Jerry Thomas, Gene Burnett, Bob Tippins, Peanut Pierce, Lila Goldberg. Nick Peppas and various faculty members and objets around the campus.

Soft German Accent Is Margaret's Charm

With a soft German accent you could listen to for hours, pretty deep-set brown eyes, and a typical old-world charm, Margaret Krasemann makes the perfect foreign exchange student on our campus.



Margaret is a near-twenty sophomore senator who calls Tallahassee and Hamburg, Germany, home. Her previous experience in UGA work includes Freshman Senator.

Her major is Modern Languages (German and French) with minors in Spanish and English. Her hobbies include secretary of the Foreign Students club, assistant choir director at the Presbyterian church, and a member of Sophomore Council.

After graduation, she plans to do some sort of diplomatic work, but at this time she isn't exactly sure.

Sets Are Important Part of Sandspur

In musical comedy, sets and lighting are two of the most important elements. Such is the case with Sandspur's Gypsy Holiday.

Under the leadership of Hil Backus, the stage crew has done a remarkable job and not a few compliments have been thrown their way by all who saw the 1951 edition of Sandspur. The art work as well as the construction of brand new sets was done by the small stage crew, working day and night and even cutting out the between-semester vacation.

Marilyn Hall is assistant-stage manager with Frances Rumbley assistant art writer. Chaos in the stage crew are Pat Hampton, Jane Williams, Kathleen Sullivan, Adie Wu, Gene McClannahan, Helen Hicks, Marlene Lenz, Wanda Adams, Bob White, Minor Claiedge, and Cosmo Cardone.

Wearing dungarees smeared with tempera paint, the stage crew works tirelessly throughout each performance changing sets, working the lights and any other odd job that goes to help the production become a greater success. And the success of any musical show depends on the beauty of the sets.

Gypsy Holiday, featuring sets of splendor, is the most colorful Sandspur ever presented. The stage crew has helped it become the success it is.

Exec Council Names Yonge Leadership Training Chairman

Cass Yonge was appointed leadership training chairman for the University Council Wednesday evening. She plans a Mortar Board sponsored program of training all elected student officers for their positions before they take office.

Meeting time for the council for this semester was set at 5 p m on Mondays.

Council voted to allow the proceeds of the annual Powder Puff Bowl football game to be contributed to the Campus Chest.

It was explained at the meeting that the proposed parking lot north of Jennie Murphree was not probable because of the possibility of an academic building being erected on that site at some time in the future.

Allen Head, appointed some time ago to study the advisability of National Fraternity Association activities on campus, reported that he would like at least 25 copies of a booklet explaining NSA so the Student Government officers could study the organization so a fuller extent. Council approved a $7.50 expenditure for the purpose.

Dick Bradley, former Junior class Senator, was seated in the University Council as the new capacity of vice president in charge of legislative affairs for UGA.

Former Time, Life Editor Lectures To FSU Journalists

Former editor on the staffs of Time and Life magazines, Robert Hazy, is now holding lectures in regular journalism classes for a two-week period. This announcement was made by Dean Lawrence Campbell of the School of Journalism.

The free lance writer will be featured in courses on newspaper reporting and writing and magazine editing. Dr Campbell said. He will also be available for student consultation at a time to be announced later, the Dean stated.

A graduate of Bowdoin College, Hazy worked for newspapers in Maine and Pittsburgh, Pa. This was before he became the chief of Time and Life news bureau in Chicago. Hazy helped popularize the One Hundred Books course of Robert Hutchins and Dr Luther Adler. Hutchins is the former President of the University of Chicago. Hazy became a moderator of one of the classes of the Hundred Books courses.

DURING WORLD War II, Hazy served in the New York office of Time and Life as assistant chief of all correspondents. The versatile writer later became assistant editor of the Sunday New York Times and editor of the drama section of the Times.

Gene Lu Is Hepped On Student Gov't

An enthusiastic 18-year-old Freshman named Gene Lu Armstrong finds UGA one of her most interesting activities on the FSU campus.

With no previous experience in the field before coming to college, she gains more knowledge with every meeting, and finds more interesting things to talk and argue about.

Gene Lu calls Orlando home. Her favorite hobbies are radio, horses, and swimming. She plans to major in speech, and her other activities are radio announcing for WFSU, dramatics, and circus.

She has crept about pledging for Tri Delt, and plans to do it all year!

Her future plans are undecided as yet, but a successful future is in store for Senator Armstrong.

Lawrence to Autograph Records Tomorrow for FSU Students

By ANNE MARIE GREGORY

Secretary of State R A Gray will officially welcome Elliot Lawrence to Tallahassee tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 at Jenkins Music Store.

LAWRENCE and his orchestra, who will play for the annual Sandspur Dance tomorrow night, will arrive in town at 4 p m and go directly to the Music Store to autograph records and photographs for University students.

Jack LaMarr, Sandspur dance chairman, reported that Governor Fuller Warren would be unable to welcome the 25-year old bandleader because he had been called out of town.

Following Lawrence's appearance at Jenkins Music Store he will appear on the Record Preview program at 5:45 p m on station WTNT for a personal interview.

BETWEEN the broadcast and the dance appearance Lawrence and his beautiful wife sonastress Rosalind Patton, will be shown around Tallahassee by LaMarr, Erma Vause and Mack Watkins.

The number one college band is playing a tight schedule this week in Florida cities including Daytona Beach, Jacksonville and Sarasota.

The Sandspur dance chairman said that a huge banner reading: "Florida State University Welcomes Elliot Lawrence" will be on the front of the Floridan Hotel where the band will stay. Bellhops will wear little white hearts reading "Welcome Elliot Lawrence" in keeping with his theme song, "Heart to Heart."

SOME of the tunes which the orchestra will feature tomorrow night will be those included in his popular record album, College Prom. They are Star Dust, Once In a While, East of the Sun, Laura, I'm in the Mood for Love, Give Get a Crush on You, Deep Purple, and I Can't Get Started.

Danny Riccardo and Rosalind Patton will do the vocal honors for the orchestra tomorrow night. Riccardo was featured with Ina Ray Hutton's band from 1945-1949 before joining up with the Lawrence aggregation. Miss Patton, Lawrence's wife in private life, has been with Elliot almost since the day he organized his first band.

Lawrence has made a big dent on the musical scene since he appeared on it little more than five years ago. The most recent Campus Poll conducted by Billboard Magazine has shown Elliot Lawrence to be the number one new band among collegians. This was voted by more than 300 colleges that the Lawrence orchestra has played. The Disc Jockey Poll, also conducted by Billboard, showed that the nation's radio men also voted Lawrence their top choice for new honors.

LOOK Magazine named Lawrence's as "The Band of the Year" and Orchestra World made a similar award. Esquire, Time, Seventeen and the Saturday Evening Post all devoted large spreads to the band.

During the past few months the orchestra has been breaking box office marks throughout the country.

More recently, the National Ballroom Operators Association of America picked the Lawrence band among the Ten Best Dance Bands in the nation.

Tiny June Conyers Has Friendly Smile

Tiny, pert, and sweet as sugar is June Conyers, a new initiator from Gainesville residing in Reynolds Hall.

A nineteen-year-old bundle of enthusiastic friendliness, June is only one of the most interesting and worthwhile activities on campus.

June's major is music. Her hobbies include piano, and her coin collection. She is a member of Villase Vamps, and may be seen practically any time of the day any day of the week, rushing madly fro melass to class always flashing a bright smile to those she knows on campus.

Her future plans are undecided as yet, but anything she undertakes will be in her typical friendly manner.

Counselor To Serve As ACPA Chairman

Mrs. Margaret Blair, University vocational guidance counselor, will serve as chairman and coordinator for a sectional meeting of the American College Personnel Association in Chicago March 28-29.

The ACPA meeting will be held jointly with the meetings of the National Vocational Guidance Association, National Association of Deans of Women, National Association of Deans of Guidance and the Alliance for Guidance of Rural Youth.

Dance Honoraries Will Give Lessons

The Cotillion and Cavalier dance honoraries will begin sponsoring dancing lessons next Tuesday night from 7 till 9, David Pinson, Cavalier secretary announced.

The lessons will be given at the O club each Tuesday and Thursday nights, Pinson said.

"Instruction in all forms of dancing will be offered," the Cavalier stated. The members of the two organizations will act as both partners and instructors for those who wish to learn basic and individual dancing techniques.

"This instruction will be for both beginners and people desiring to improve upon basic steps previously learned," David emphasized. "There will be no charge for the lessons."

● A NEW YEAR AND NEW OFFICERS

March 5 and 6 mark the dates of the first primary in the University Government Association elections. One week later the finals will be held for the run-offs in these elections.

We shall go to the polls on these days to elect new officers who will run the University student body for one year, commencing in September of 1951. We must exercise care in selecting our officers; they must at all times be willing to serve the students in their best capacity. If they are not willing to do this, they have no place in student government. They must forget personal prejudices and biases and work for the majority and yet preserve the rights of the minority. They must not align themselves with any pressure groups and after elections be on the lookout for the sole interests of that group.

At Florida State University we have the semblance of a democratic government. Although we are handicapped by a sometimes unmanageable student constitution, we, the electorate, must elect officers who can work under this handicap and yet make an earnest effort to improve the conditions under which they work.

This means a great deal of time must be expended in the various offices. We warn you now, if you won't have the time do not consider an office. A major task lies before the new officers. Leaders are needed who will strive to do their job adequately.

If that is not you, don't run.

Too often in past elections we have witnessed personality contests and publicity stunts. We can ill afford to continue along these lines. We caution voters to know the person for whom you are voting. Weigh their merits against those of other candidates. Keep up with their platforms and then make up your mind conscientiously and vote for the most qualified person.

And then we must not forget the voter, or should we say the non-voter. There has always been a majority staying away from the polls. Perhaps this laxity has been largely due to the candidates themselves. Or perhaps the students do not want a student government. Perhaps they do not have faith in the student government.

Let's hope the above reasons are not the case. Let us suppose the non-voting student just doesn't have the time to vote; he doesn't go near one of the polling places.

It is important that enough polls be designated so that students will have easy access to one. Although that is only one reason for non-voting it is one that can be remedied easiest.

It would behoove every undergraduate on campus to take time and reach the polls. This year's elections may well be the most important ones we have or will face in a number of years. This year's elections may tell the story as to whether or not our student government continues in the manner it has in the past.

● ON WITH THE SHOW

One of the biggest things to hit the campus this year is "Gypsy Holiday," the 1951 Sandspur musical production. This annual presentation was written, produced and directed by students, and they've really shown what a good job they can do.

This year's Sandspur crew had many difficulties to overcome. Herb Reichard, former director, left for the navy and the production was put under the direction of Sandi Horton and Carl Beeler. Together they turned out a professional show.

Disagreements over the script, the acting, the music, and many other things arose, but they were all ironed out satisfactorily. A couple of weeks before the cast were hit by the flu epidemic, but were able to "go on with the show" in time.

When a group of students with lots of energy, but little time, can turn out such a sparkling musical production, these people are to be congratulated. They've really set a high standard in entertainment, and all following Sandspur productions will really have to be good to beat "Gypsy Holiday."

● IS HE TO BLAME?

John Baker, editor-in-chief of the Florida Alligator has been suspended from his office by the Board of Student Publications at the University of Florida. The Board is made up of faculty members as well as students.

An Associated Press story says, "the board . . . voted the action after hearing numerous complaints of inaccurate and irresponsible reporting against the weekly newspaper."

We do not know the facts of the case but we can venture some comments from our own experience. We, too, have been accused of inaccurate reporting. We admit that errors are made in some of our stories. Some of these errors are our own fault. The majority of mistakes, however, stem from the fact that people do not know how to talk to newspapermen.

Our sources will, in an interview, say one thing and when we quote them in the paper they deny they have said that. What can we do to remedy this? Should we carry about portable recording machines to take down their utterances. That is unpracticable. Students are not to blame altogether; faculty and administration are the same way.

It is for these reasons we look with some skepticism on the action of the Board of Student Publications at the University of Florida.

The Alligator is plagued with the same trouble we are.

The only difference between being in a rut and the grave is the depth.

● PLAN UNDERWAY

Evidence that the Master Campus plan of the Florida State University is definitely underway can be seen by the great amount of construction work now going on at the university.

These are definite signs of progress at the university. A portion of the fifty-year plan is fast taking shape with the beginning of construction of the student union building, the skyscraper dorm for men, eight two-story dormitories for men, to be used later as fraternity houses, and a women's dormitory.

All of these buildings totaling $4,500,000 will soon be in use at the university. It is a worthy to note that the present construction as well as future development of the university is being done in an orderly and constructive manner by the master plan of physical growth to cover the next fifty years.

It seems safe to predict that this university will be ready in building facilities for the anticipated student body of 10,000 women and men. Construction on the Men's dormitories cannot be finished too soon, however. If the Old Mill Hall does not furnish comfortable living quarters for all FSU men. The best step forward will be the moving of all students to West Campus to sew and modern dorms on East Campus.

● YOU AND FLU

The campus has been besieged in the last few weeks by a new type of problem. The latest trouble is caused by an illness called influenza.

The infirmary has been full to the brim with people who have come down with the sickness.

While there is no cause for alarm now, unless necessary precautions are taken this could result in an epidemic. This would mean quarantine for everyone plus much inconvenience.

To avoid this the infirmary has asked that anyone who has the common symptoms of the flu or a cold come by for a checkup.

This idea is not generally received very favorably, but don't think only of yourself. The disease is highly contagious, and if you refuse to go to the infirmary you may give it to someone else.

We are on the threshold of learning and don't know much, which is really the first thing we should learn.

A poet is a mature child dreaming.

A Miracle: An event described by those to whom it was told by men who did not see it. (Hubbard).

ELECTIONS BRING DREAD PERSONALITYITIS

By BETSY BLANTON

With campus elections hanging over our heads and only two weeks away, we can expect that dread epidemic of "personalityitis," to raise its ugly head.

Those of you who have never been through campaign week have a real experience facing you. Some of your best friends who are usually immune to everything will become, also, people who haven't spoken to you in months will suddenly claim to be your closest acquaintances.

There are no innocent bystanders during campaign week. The uninformed voted works almost as hard as the candidates for office in trying to dodge easer office seekers. An uninterested individual may be cornered in the bath to class by a hairy hand which is attached to a total stranger. And then follows the old "how are your mother, father and all the little Joneses" line.

Election day cannot be adequately described in words of printable length. The candidates are in a state of utter celiacy. Voters are completely confused. And out of all this bedlam somehow emerges your student government officers for the next year.

We suggested to the University Government Association some time ago that a test on the student constitution be devised for all candidates seeking student office. We have been by comment from our second floor neighbors, but we still think it's a pretty good idea.

Tuesday's Senate meeting ended with a bang. The rule calling for the printing and distribution of a student handbook containing the many rules and regulations imposed on women students. That's a pretty good recommendation was a little hazy, we feel that his basic idea is a good one.

At the present time, there are many instances where a student unknowingly violates a rule simply because she is not aware of its existence.

The Pow Wow does not list all the dormitory regulations, and the dorm rule is divulged on copy, of all social rules has not been fulfilled.

It was also suggested that a definite sentence be established for each violation of a regulation. There was much dissension on this matter, and many even said that it would be impossible.

We fail to understand why such a thing is impossible. Members of the judicial system say that it is because each case is so individual one and the sentence depends upon the personality and attitude of the violator.

I think these considerations could be made. But why could there not be a range of restrictions for a particular violation? For instance, why could not entering the dormitory late be subject to say from two days to one week of light flash restrictions? Such a regulation would still give leeway for the individual in administering punishment.

It would also eliminate the discrepancies in the rulings of the various house councils. Girls who live in Jennie Murphree hall may violate the same rule as someone who lives in Gilchrist dormitory, and yet receive an altogether different sentence. Is this fair to the individual?

AMONG OTHER THINGS

WAITING FOR RIP VAN WINKLE

By BOB TIPPINS

Senator Byrnes stated that the administration was "sore" over the information released in his column Tuesday concerning the administering of automobile stickers.

Regardless of their reaction, they have shown some signs of life by distributing the "stickers" this week.

The administration was of the opinion that this is only one reason for non-voting it is one that can be remedied easiest.

Such an opinion is a farce. When the University states that the students shall acknowledge certain regulations, and that the students should fill out certain blanks—the students get on the list of . . . .

When the Senate asks the administration to do whether or not operation, its like waiting for Rip Van Winkle to make a reappearance.

While we are on the topic of the administration, let us look at West Campus and the Maintenance Department.

This week many of the men students were forced to move to the Hospital Area because of the decline in male enrollments.

Each year this illness every dormitory room in that area is made ready.

Every nut rod appears to break all speed limits when cruising the Mall, and each results in every rom becoming a dust trap.

The Maintenance Department could tar this alley in one day, yet they ignore the deplorable situation which causes much unsatisfaction among the male residents.

The Post Office on West Campus is another dust bowl.

The floor could also be repaired in a short time.

* * *

Once again the students are confronted with U.G.A elections.

This year many students expressed the fact that they were not satisfied with everything from the Talaria to Who's Who.

The topic of most criticism was the Talaria.

Many of the students going the complaining did not avail themselves of the book last year.

Others have been expressed both pro and con as to what type of magazine we should have at FSU.

Next month will give the students a chance to vote on deciding the issue once and for all.

Determine the type of magazine they want, and study the platforms of those candidates running for editor.

If you find a good candidate, vote for and back him all the way.

If you do not vote, you cannot honestly criticize next year's publication.

Yours for a better Talaria and a FSU by voting next month.

FANCY THIS

DON'T WANT TO BE QUARANTINED, DO YOU?

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

The thing closest to and effecting the student body on the FSU campus today is the flu epidemic. The student hospital is crowded with students suffering from it, tents for this illness, the old World War I variety of Army tents kept up through army camps and knocked down service men in great numbers.

With the advance of science, this epidemic is not considered as dangerous as the one in the early 1900's, but it's just as highly contagious.

According to officials all students who have not had vaccinations should stay in the infirmary as much as possible and avoid giving the germ to other students.

According to Dean Katherine Warren, any student who does not promptly starts out of the infirmary should be subject to disciplinary action. She may seem rather harsh and some people might cry out about "freedom of the individual," but in times of public emergency when public health or safety is involved, doing what the people in charge say is the best way to check the emergency.

If the school is quarantined, there will be no time left to look and many campus activities will be postponed.

And for the sake of your health and everyone else's, go to the infirmary if you have the symptoms of the flu.

Warm, sunny days will soon be here. Students will flock to town to find many ways to devote any place where they can soak in the sun.

And on lazy Sunday afternoons, when there isn't much to do, they will be found at the homewark. I think of the days when people used in to in the Tally Ho and the big brass bands play their favorite marches and waltzes.

Since there is a fine School of Music here with an outdoor amphitheatre, this would be a perfect place to hold Sunday afternoon concerts of any type. The students could dress informally and bring picnic lunches on the concrete steps enjoying the sun and the music at the same time.

If interested, perhaps could attempt something like this, I'm sure the idea would go over well with the student body.

Who knows, maybe they could even become a tradition over WFSU to the students who remain on the campus in their rooms.

It's just an idea. How about it?

I hear Mickey Johnson is going to contest the WHAT'S THAT selection. He came to the Flambeau office the other day and told about the whole thing here as he wasn't even allowed to enter. He could have qualified. But he was disqualified because he doesn't have a roommate.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

COEDS LIKE HARTZ, NOT TRUMAN

By JOEL P SMITH

The honorary of honoraries, "Who's What That Appears American Colleges and Universities" is coming up where "Who's Who" left off. Who's What is the qualification that recognizes the UNIQUE college student . . . the student who stands out in class, the student senator who's always got a question to ask, and the student who is simply a campus character. Who's Whoers are not eligible for an honor conferred by two honoraries—Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities and What's That Between American Colleges and Universities—because of the qualifications for membership.

Wednesday night the "stop" committee tapped the new members in informal ceremonies. Those tapped were the Mecca, and in the various pool halls in downtown Tallahassee. The taps will wear the scroll of What's That around their necks as signs of their qualification and recognition.

Members of the tap committee honored Dr Arnold Falk, instructor in juvenile delinquency, in one of his classes by tying the scroll of What's That around his neck and explaining that he made the honorary because of his outstanding contribution to juvenile delinquency. Will Pennell, a student in the same class, was also tapped during the ceremony by Kitten Austin and Margaret Marshall. Dr Falk was so astonished and "honored"—that he adjourned class for the day.

Here's hoping that Margaret Krasman and Nancy Rettie don't create Jeanne O'Riordan and your columnist for covering the activities of What's That in our absence.

You say you've got two left feet and have designs of stepping on your making the numerous dances. Well, there is still hope for you. Although Arthur Murray doesn't maintain a dance studio at FSU, Grab your fair planters and leather soled shoes and let the Cotillion and Cavaliers take care of the rest.

Beginning February 27 the two campus dance fraternities will begin a series of free lessons to students who want to learn how to dance any of the modern dances.

The lessons will be given in the "O" Club from 7 until 9 . . . . I might point out, this is a golden opportunity to meet some of the chicks who are smooth on the dance floor as well as other places.

Your Flambeau political columnist, Jerry Thomas, Betsy Blanton, and Jeanne O'Riordan, often come up for criticism by members of the student body. Sometimes this is justifiable . . . sometimes it isn't, but at any rate they contribute to the university government just as your elected senators do.

This week I would like to "pin a rose" on Jerry. Jerry, as you know is author of "Among Other Things," and although the "pillorizin' on making it possible for the radical columnists like Jeanne's column. Upon several occasions, has made the University Senate the question of a "Dear Abby" or "Drew Pearson" for the student body. Jerry has his hands in almost all the pies on campus, and tell the students what's going on.

Past UGA senator, social standards committee member, chancellor of Men's Government for West campus, chairman of Men's Judiciary, and member of Student's Rights Committee are several of the positions by which Jerry keeps tab on campus political affairs . . . . Next week, twice as another political columnist.

A WOMAN STARTED IT ALL

By Doug Alley

God certainly had it in for man.
Ever since the world began
Women have been the source of sadness.
Created for the purpose of gladness,
Instead they've brought woe unto man
Since Eve bit the apple and the world began.

Trace every happening through the years,
Every source of sweat and tears.
And evry man who has laughed and cried,
Or fought, or bled, or lived and died,
And ev'ry time man felt remorse
A woman had to be the source.

Just look around you: do you see
A woman's smile, a bended knee.
Some other jerk has bit the hook
And now forever he will look
Like someone, hanpecked and forlorn,
Like a band without a horn.

See the spicy little gal. My, you think her nice
See the clinging dress type. It makes you want to scream
See the lilting voice of spring;
Remember winter comes again.
The song of birds, the flowers fair
Since God made women just to be
Just right until it's sung off key,

Now men are fools, they never see
That God made women just to be
Temptation for the men of might;
Women always win the fight
Because the man is weak within—
Cannot control his silly whim.
And never failures his power fail
Since God made women to start it all.

If you don't believe me, take a look
At the story on the book.
A story of Chicago town
A cow that kicked the lantern down.
Now a cow ain't human, but I'm no fool,
A cow is a woman to a bull.
The problem's solved, believe me briefs,
You'll know a woman started it all.

Implies Flambeau Uses 'Negative Truth'

Dear Editor:

Now that the smoke has cleared away somewhat, I would like permission to criticize my actions in Friday's paper. First, I would like to apologize for the inconvenience I caused by not limiting my article to the usual 250 words and also for not having it in on Saturday.

My line in writing it were as follows: to give the students a deserved explanation of the University Court's ruling (this is what I was asked to do), to try and show that there were grounds in this case which might lead to some of the problems in our student government, and most important, to do something about it.

My method of approach was not a negative one. In using it I undoubtedly may have erred in . . . I did so on purpose. I felt that if you were put in the position that some of our campus leaders have been put in this year by a negative use of the truth that person's actions, and the many ideas of which I spoke in Friday's article we must trust that each other or else turn ourselves in to a group of bickering children. By using the "negative truth" as it appeared not to have trusted your actions. Let's trust one another.

I would like to say that I realize that the Flambeau has complimented the court a great deal this year and done much for its benefit. I thank you for that.

And now . . . for that final purpose of that article, Will you base the question of student trade-ins which I suggested? I feel that this is one of the few ways in which we can restore a fine, . . . datum to our student government.

Sincerely,
BO BAKER.

(Editor's note: What may appear to be "negative truth" in some people cannot be construed by other people as "negative truth." This is unable of judging the negative and positive aspects of this thing called truth? As Aristotle said in the Second Book of his Metaphysics, "Study of truth is partly hard, partly easy. A proof of this is the fact that no one man is able to grasp it adequately. Yet de not all entirely fail . . . For so the eyes of bats are to the bright beams of daylight, so is the reason in our soul to the things that by nature are the clearest of all . . . In addition, Aristotle advanced this gem: "For many men believe opinions contrary to those of others and call deluded whoever does not think just as they do . . . .

(We will be wholeheartedly behind a meeting of the campus leaders.)

Disagrees

Dear Editor:

We, as students of FSU, in accordance with a long standing custom of disagreeing with committees on campus would like to express our opinion of the selections of the "What's That" selection committee.

We suggest that an investigating committee look into the procedure of selection.

First of all, on what grounds are Lee Bailey, Gene Burnett, and Jeanne O'Riordan "people" classed as such. We think their qualifications should be made public. Also all, it is a great honor to represent our campus as "What's That" so would like to be sure they are properly qualified.

Next, we believe the list of "shines," which were selected on the basis of their use and contribution to the university is . . .

RIOT AND REVOLUTION . . .

Bring back the good old days when students were wild and woolly. When swallowing live flounders and setting fire to your grandmother was in vogue. When college boys were expected to be radical and co-eds were classed by the number of panties worn in every catalog. When one got a liberal education taking courses like Survey of Upper Somaliland. When thousands were maimed in amusement parks and by attempts on so-called donuts.

The man of the Kinsey Age seems to lack red blood cells. He is content to marry some clown after carefully testing her loyalty on wet benches, turtle doves and rainy little manipulandels. Deeply conscious, he latches on to a Civil Service deal that keeps him in such luxuries as sandals, rice, loin cloths, etc. No longer are young men fired with the ambition to "sell a million" and join the Country Club. The movies have convinced him that happiness is only to be found at $$$ per in small apartments (which somehow seem to be invisibly furnished . . . ah, bargain basement!)

The two-fisted college drunkards of the 30s have been replaced by liver conscious fuzz-cheeks who subsist on a rather mild mixture of Henna Rinse (Blonde) and Johnson's Glo-Coat.—Time marches on. . . .

The board was set up for the use of any religious group on campus. It was presented to the Religious Workers Council, Will stated, but does not exclude any organization not in the council. Any religious group may ask the council for space.

The Board will be portable so that it can be transported to the Student Center when it is completed, Will reported.

H D Mendenhall of the Florida State University maintenance department designed the Religious Board. "It is really one of the finest boards that we've had on campus," the Junior class president said.

PAT CARO, Junior class secretary, was chairman of the committee in charge of having the Religious Board designed and made.

The Religious Board is one of the major projects of the Junior class this year. Will said that five new benches have been ordered for the campus and are now in the process of being made. Recently the Junior class has been active in a "Keep Off the Grass" project.

It has also been successful in setting up a Student Book Exchange this semester which is the major project of the class.

Publications Board Suspends UF Editor

The University of Florida Board of Student Publications by unanimous vote Monday night suspended John Baker, editor of the Florida Alligator, student paper.

Baker was suspended "without salary" pending an investigation of charges that the Alligator had been acting "in the best interests of the university and the student body."

The board voted the action after hearing numerous complaints of inaccurate and irresponsible reporting against the paper. Faculty and students compose the publications board.

League Tours FSU Art Exhibit

McDonough, Karl Lead Group Through Gallery

The Tallahassee Art League toured the Contemporary American Painting exhibition of the new University Gallery last Monday night. The Gallery is on the second floor of the West dining hall.

Dr James W McDonough and Mr Adolph Karl of the FSU department of art addressed the group on the tour. The art historians spoke on selected examples from the exhibition. They both agreed that the exhibit gives an overall picture of American painting today.

DR McDONOUGH emphasized the intellectual artist in America. He explained the intellectual artist as one who tries to find order, plan and reason in his environment. Mr Karl spoke about several of the more experimentistic paintings. He stressed the emotional and subjective aspect of modern art.

The Tallahassee Art League is composed of practicing artists and interested laymen from Tallahassee area. The League was formed in May, 1950. It is a member of the Florida Federation of Art which will meet in Tallahassee this year.

OFFICERS of the Tallahassee League are: Mr Ian Ferguson, president; Mrs Nancy Reid Gunn, vice-president, and Mr William Watson, secretary-treasurer.

University personnel members are, Mrs B H Williams, head of the department of art; Miss Mary Moody, head of the department of art education; Prof Edward Lewandowski, internationally known painter, and Prof Hale Smith, acting head of the department of anthropology. Mr Smith is also director of the University Museum.

World War to Give Chance for Women

Opportunities will grow for women journalists if there is a third world war, according to the first Penny Postcard Poll. This poll was conducted by the Florida State University chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism.

Fifty-four of 86 Florida publishers said they believed a third world war may make it necessary to replace men with women.

Both Florida and Alabama newspaper publishers were consulted in the poll. Of the 76 Alabama publishers, 54 said that women would replace both journalists in a third world war. Twenty-one Florida publishers and 15 from Alabama answered in the negative. Eleven publishers from Florida and seven from Alabama were undecided.

"Women who go into journalism," said Dean Laurence R Campbell of the School of Journalism, "should have both a thorough general education and

FSU Student Group To Present Bills

The Executive Council of the Committee for Student Rights met Tuesday evening in the Alumni Building and drew up six resolutions to be presented to the University Senate for immediate legislative action.

The Council, consisting of Jerry Thomas, Jack Nooney, and Bill Hayes, turned over the following recommendations to the Florida Flambeau for immediate release.

1—Resolved that Social Rules should be made more modern in that they should be distinguished from the present rules by greater privileges.

2—RESOLVED that all rules and regulations which affect the student body should be established by the University Senate with minimum and maximum restrictions. Such jurisdiction shall be vested in the student courts.

3—Resolved that the student body should have the opportunity of voting for the Honor Code.

4—Resolved that any Infractions by a fraternity or sorority as a whole, shall be under the jurisdiction of the Inter Fraternity Council and Panhellenic Tribunal respectively.

5—Resolved that the Faculty Revising Board shall act as an Appellate Board except in those cases involving recommended expulsion from the University.

6—RESOLVED that the University Government Association be issued a Charter from the administration, specifically stipulating the power of that Government.

Jerry Thomas explained that the University Senate would have to appoint a research committee to outline the rules and regulations. "It would not be wise to make this action retroactive as that would cause the legal adoption of rules and regulations previously passed by the administration." Thomas said.

THOMAS further stated that the law should be overlooked. "This year, for example every ours has declared that any defendant may have an open court if he so wishes. However, this is not an established law and future courts do not have to abide by such democratic procedure unless there is a stipulated law," said Thomas.

"The resolution providing for a Charter from the administration would solve many of the problems, in that the University Government Association would have legal proof of its extended authority. This type of a Charter would clarify the 'thin line of discretion' that is so often unfavorably manipulated by both student and administrative officials," he concluded.

complete. As an example, certainly nothing could have been used more or contributed as much as the benches on campus.

Finally, we disagree with the selection of one of the 'unclassifiables." We do not challenge the status of Peanut Pierce as an unclassifiable but we understand that she is the roommate of a member of the selection committee and therefore should be considered ineligible.

We feel that it is a great honor for Florida State to be chosen as one of the petitioning schools in the nation for affiliation with this unique honorary but if it is to be adopted here, it should be done right.

We humbly hope that these suggestions will aid in future selections and help in overcoming the past selection.

Postcard Poll Asks Editors Draft Item

The question of whether or not 18-year-olds should be drafted will be the main item of the February Penny Postcard Poll sponsored by the School of Journalism.

Oregon and Florida newspaper publishers will be asked whether they believe 18-year-olds should be drafted and whether or not they agree with Senator Taft's proposals concerning military aid to western Europe.

A third question, on who of the two great men born in February, Washington or Lincoln, performed a greater service to the United States, will also be asked. Dean Laurence R Campbell of the School of Journalism said that the results will be announced later in February.

Seminole Five Faces Rollins Here Tonight

KEEPIN' SCORE

With Scott Marshall
Flambeau Sports Editor

The kid from South Bend is out to break Florida State University's one year scoring record tonight when the Seminoles play Rollins College.

The kid, of course, is Blonde Bob Hartman, the 6 foot guard who has scored 324 points for Coach Bud Kennedy's charges.

Hart needs only four points to better Tom McLaughlin's 1950 mark of 327, and it's a sure bet he'll pour in enough to more than best Big Tom's standard.

The 170 pound, 22 year old Senior transferred from Purdue where he played both varsity and freshman ball with the Boilermakers. At South Bend's Riley High School, Hartman earned eight letters and captained the football, basketball, and baseball squads.

At Florida State, he's averaged 17.1 points per game. And, Bob has already broken this mark, previously held by McLaughlin's 13.1 last year.

Ronnie Nettles, Larry Dickson, Dick Trobaugh, McLaughlin and Hartman will be playing their last FSU game before a Florida State audience tonight. Only five are starters and expect to graduate in June.

These capable performers, however, haven't finished their college careers. FSU will enter the Dixie Conference when Coach Marcel Mercier may possibly get an invitation to compete in the District 25 NAIB tourney next month in Jacksonville.

The larger colleges have finally admitted the insanity of their Sanity Code and heaved it overboard. Better late enough, sanity may return now that the so-called Sanity Code is no longer a "last" for colleges to follow.

The larger universities found the Sanity Code a convenient attempt to revalue scholarships and aid to athletes. Many of the schools that voted for the code back in 1948 made no pretense of subscribing to the resolutions and respect for the code by the larger schools was a fiction with most of the others.

It was supposed to be some kind of a Utopia in which all the schools would treat their athletes alike — giving them scholarships on the same basis that free tuition was provided for regular students of the arts and sciences — but it never worked out for the larger schools. Somebody, a good sized swing to the right or a smart formation quarterback always seemed to command more attention when it came time to pass out the scholarships.

Most of the big schools that abided by the Code, or pretended to, still had bond issues on big stadiums and quickly discovered that revenues from the gate did not pull the mortgage or even pay the interest with the same speed of a winning football team.

Norton G Pritchett, director of athletics at the University of Virginia, helped to write the sanity code that was adopted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) in January of 1948. A strong feeling that Virginia would tame the high pressure tactics of college football. By eliminating the factor of competitive bidding and under the table handouts he believed all schools could be placed on an even level.

Approximately eight months later, Pritchett turned in the towel and announced that Virginia could not honorably go alone. The Cavaliers had learned the conditions were impossible to fulfill. The Virginia athletic head emphasized the point that athletes could not attend classes, attend football practice, do their studying, and still have enough hours in the day in which to do work enough to justify their small stages.

Pritchett put Virginia's position on the basis of one of honor, completely. His school was labeled one of the cleanest sinners — Villanova, Boston College, VPI, The Citadel and Maryland were the others — but the chance in to Virginia's case was owl brought until months after Virginia voluntarily announced it was not going to with the regulations of the code.

Virginia s stand was loudly defended last year by the larger schools at the NCAA session at which they barely failed to get the two-thirds majority to expel the seven sinners. One of those who voted against the ousting of the sinners was Gen Bob Neyland of Tennessee who confessed. "I couldn't vote to throw them out for the same actions of which Tennessee is equally guilty, though not charged."

Today the Sanity Code is no more. Who knows; sanity may return.

The battle of the "long green," baseball wise is continuing at a rapid pace, and newspapers' lino type operators have been getting a few extra ciphers ready.

The day of the shoddy pay envelope for the ball players in the majors is past, for today you're a nobody if you don't command a five figure and up.

Where once Babe Ruth ruled the roost with his $80,000 a year salary, today we have at least two athletes in the $100,000 a year class (so it's reported) and several others pressing the $50,000 and up notch.

On with the battle of the greenbacks, boys.

'Mural Grid Finals Begin Monday

Garnet Nine Leads Gold In Squad Tilts

Florida State University's baseball team is the process of a series of intra-squad games, and the Garnet nine is leading the Gold 2-0.

Yesterday afternoon at the West campus diamond the Garnet's whipped the Gold's 7-3 for the second time. Tuesday they edged the Gold's 3-1 in a closely contested tilt.

Pitcher Ed Lockard of the Garnets, who hooked on his curve ball during his three frame performance, was yesterday's standout. The Jacksonville moundsman walked none and fanned one, and held the Gold's at bay.

In the meantime the big Garnet bats were breaking loose on the Gold's Woody Southerland for four hits and three runs.

LEFTY Dick Wallace bucked the following three innings for the Garnet nine and gave up four hits and two runs. Bullock passed one and struck out one.

Leron Rice, a newcomer to Coach Charlie Armstrong's pitching staff, tossed the next three frames for the Gold's and gave up but one run and two hits. He walked two and failed to fan anyone.

Ed Sestonis and Leadbetter finished out the game for the Garnet's and Gold's respectively. Sestonis giving up two hits and one run and Leadbetter being reached for three runs and two base blows.

Leading the Garnet's was Wayne (Wes) Benner led the Garnet hitting attack with a home run. Cambridge blasted a single and double while Benner was collecting two singles.

HARRY Bullock, a newcomer to the Seminole baseballers, clouted the losers with two singles.

Other Garnet hitters safely were Aaron Pompella, a double; Lockard, and Lyles Mullen, all singles.

For the Gold squad Rice and Billy Hall collected doubles, and Leonard Milford and Klyne Nowlin, singles.

In Tuesday's intra-squad tilt, the Garnet's Glenn Gresham and Wallace Bullock pitched a no-run contest, giving the Garnet nine the margin of victory. Gresham's blow was the third with Lee Baller on base.

Varsity-Frosh Gym Teams to Battle

Florida State University's varsity gymnastic team will be putting its second intro-squad victory over the freshmen gymnasts tomorrow night in the second of five meets.

The varsity performers, paced by Bill Roetzheim, topped the freshmen 71-51 last week, but they will be without the services of Roetzheim in tomorrow's meet, scheduled to begin in the East campus gym at 8 p.m.

Roetzheim will represent the United States in his specialty at the Pan-American Olympic games in Buenos Aires starting this week.

Bill, who rates as the United States' outstanding gymnast, will be making his fourth appearance in the Pan-American Olympics. The blonde Chicagoan will carry the load alone as he will be the only gymnast on the United States team for this year's games.

Deaf Since Birth, Negro Is New York's Ring Hero

By Central Press

NEW YORK — A 31-year-old deaf mute has taken the boxing world by storm.

And the new-found recognition is a personal triumph for Eugene "Sonny" Hairston and his manager, Mike Miele.

The young Negro lad has overcome his handicap and today is one of the most promising middleweight prospects. Gene has been deaf since birth and before he took up fighting was inclined to move about pretty much by himself. His father says he used to avoid mixing with the fellows and shy away from party invitations and the like.

However, now he has gained in stature and experience thanks to his ring career. He is a willing mixer and very much interested in things about him. Mike says his boxer has become a real clothes horse and is one of the flashiest dressers in the ring today.

His manager, Miele, is the only manager he's ever had. He tells the story of how Gene used to wait outside the Tremont Athletic club in the Bronx, holding up a sheet of paper with words telling Mike that he would like to box.

Mike says he was inclined to brush off the willing youngster but Gene's persistance paid off. He took him into the club, put boxing gloves on him and found out he was a natural in the ring.

Between them the manager and boxer worked out a system of signals. Mike says he uses a combination of animation, facial expressions and drawn-out word sounds to help his protege. In addition Gene has gone to school to learn how to read lips. Mike has also taught him how to utter a few words.

In the amateurs, Hairston won 60 out of 61 bouts. He was the AAU and Golden Gloves lightweight champion.

Since turning pro he has won 39 fights, 20 by knockouts. He has lost only five times and fought two draws. Among his victories were wins over Gil Cavilieri and Lester Felton. He is a sharp puncher and packs a lot of wallop.

Gene has only been KO'd once and that came about in August, 1948, when Teddy Fitchett knocked him out in the first round. He was knocked to the floor early in the round and because he saw the referee's arm pump up and down he became panicky. He couldn't tell what the count was and got up too soon. Quick to press his advantage Pritchard struck him again and the referee stood behind Hairston and counted him out. It was over before Gene realized what was going on.

Later in his dressing room, Gene cried because of his handicap. He felt that if he could have heard the referee count it would have been a different story. Mike patiently explained to his charge that there was no way to help him. He told the lad that he would get the referee to indicate the count on future knockdowns by his fingers. Gene's faith in his manager paid off. Pritchett and he were rematched a year later and Hairston knocked his rival out.

Mike and trainer Joe always work in Gene's corner. They lift him off his stool and shove him into action as the bell sounds. When the round is over the referee's arm is raised by one of the trainers and raises his arms. He is an intense fighter and keeps throwing punches all of the time. Between the rounds he watches as Mike demonstrates the attack for the ensuing round.

Mike says that Gene's lack of hearing has not been a handicap in all ways. For instance, he says, Gene keeps on plugging in the ring. He doesn't hear comments or advice or taunts from the crowd and is all work.

Gene himself is proud of his success. While he can't hear the cheers and applause of the fans, he does know they're for him. He says he can tell it by the smiles on their faces and the pats on the back he gets on the way into and out of the squared circle.

He's come a long way since his first exhibition for Mike and he's determined that he will keep on rolling along till the day when they put a crown on his head.

TO CAPTAIN TRACKMEN

TALLAHASSEE—Max Watson, a letterman burdler from last year's Dixie Conference champion Florida State University track team, will captain the 1951 trackmen.

SCORING HIS 13th straight victory when the referee stops the fight in the second round at Madison Square Garden, New York, deaf-mute Eugene Hairston stands over Teddy Young, Greenwich Village, during one of five times Young was knocked down.

FSU-Emory Swim Here Tomorrow

Florida State University's swimming team, undefeated in five starts this year, takes on Emory University here tomorrow night at eight o'clock in the East campus pool.

FSU Trackmen Look OK-Miller

FSU's track team "should be about as good as last year's team," according to track coach Ken Miller. Last year's team won the Dixie Conference and five of six dual meets.

The athletic department has been sickening with the Union variety of Miami for a meet but the two schools were unable to agree on dates so will not compete this year.

The lettermen include: Max Watson, captain, hurdles; Pete Fraschetti, middle distance; Johnny Thombleson, broad jump; Bill Rodger, javelin, Monte May, shot put and high jump; Al Kucers, distance, and Joe Fracasal, pole vault.

Mike Fraschetti, Fracasal, are the 1950 conference champions in their respective events. Rodgers, who placed second in last year's Dixie Conference competition, was the 1949 champion and holds the conference javelin record.

Mize and Pearson were also members of the championship relay team.

The schedule this year, although not officially approved, will be the most complete schedule to date. The slate last year included only five meets, while this year's tentative schedule includes seven dual meets, plus the Southern Relays and the Dixie Conference meet, while Ivill be held this year in Birmingham, Alabama.

Says Coach Miller—"We have more depth this year, but we lost Tom Bowman and it will be tough to fill his shoes. We're weakest in the sprints, the hurdles, and the high jump. But we're stronger in the other events because of added depth."

Frats, Dorms Meet in Double Elimination

Finals of the intramural touch football leagues—both fraternity and dormitory — will begin Monday afternoon at 4:45, according to Ed Williaman, Florida State Intramural director.

Both the frat and dorm titles will be played off between the four top teams in each league in a double elimination.

Lambda Chi Alpha and Pi Kappa Alpha lead their respective groups in the fraternity league, with Sigma Nu and Theta Chi following. These four teams will battle it out Monday through Thursday for the frat title.

In the dormitory league, Newman club and the Criers copped the sub-title in their respective groups and 701 Lower and 840 Upper followed.

MONDAY afternoon LCA meets TC and PKA meets Phi Mu in the opening games. The winners and losers battle Tuesday, one team being eliminated from the tournament. Wednesday two losers meet for the right to join the lone undefeated team in the tourney, the title match being played Thursday.

In the dorm league, Newman club meets Criers at 4:45 and Owls lock horns with 701 Lower. The remainder of the tourney will take place just at the frat league play offs.

Williaman also announced that finals of the fraternity bowling loop will take place Tuesday between Kappa Alpha and Kappa Tau. Alpha Tau Omega, and Sigma Nu.

FRATERNITY volleyball is scheduled to begin Monday, March 5, and dormitory teams—singles and doubles—begins the same day. Entries must be in Williaman's office by Wednesday, February 28.

Hartman-Barker Clash Looms in FSU Finale

Florida State University's basketball team completed its regular season schedule tonight when the Seminoles tangle with the Rollins College Tars. Game time has been set at eight o'clock in the West campus gym. Admission will be based on a first come first seeved basis.

A clash between two of the state's individual high scorers looms when the two fives battle tonight.

Center Frank Barker of Rollins, who was ill and missed the FSU-Tar game at Winter Park which Florida State won 46-37, will be starting for the visitors and working to hold on to his state scoring lead.

FLORIDA STATE Guard Bob Hartman, who at the latest count was trailing Barker and Tampa's George Monts in the scoring race will be shooting for a new FSU one-year mark. The scrappy Seminole guard needs four points to break the present standard of 327 points set last year by Center Tom McLaughlin.

The Seminoles will play tonight without the services of star Forward Bud Marsee. The sharpshooting Marsee injured his arm and shoulder in a ball game last Saturday for their 12th win in 19 games.

Coach Jack McDowall's Rollins Tars, who have won 11 and lost 8 contests to date, will also be closing their regular season schedule in tonight's battle.

The Tars have announced no plans for tournament play after the season, but Florida State will compete in the Dixie Conference tourney in Miami and the NAIB through Wednesday, and possibly Thursday of next month. Tournament at Jacksonville early next month.

COACH BUD KENNEDY is waiting today's final decision concerning teams to be invited to Conference.

Kennedy's cagers will probably open with Bob Whitmer and Bud Scott at forwards, McLaughlin at the pivot post, and Hartman and Bob Schaub at guards.

The Rollins quintet is expected to start Pete Fry and Everett Williams at forwards, Barker at center, and Dick Seyler and Francis Natolis at guards.

Herman is racking up field goal attempts at an amazing .383 average per try and is expected to break McLaughlin's record in tonight's Intra-state contest.

The South Bend, Indiana, hooper has averaged 17.1 points per contest for the Seminoles so far this season.

F CLUB TO MEET

Members of Florida State University's men's F club are urged to attend a special meeting next Wednesday at 7:3E in the lounge of the East campus gym.

Book Exchange Gives Space Facilities for Unsold Texts

Shirley Gregory Reports Approximately 1024 Books Sold During This Semester

Students will be able to leave their books in storage under the care of the Book Exchange to await sale in the fall. The Exchange has been granted access to a storage closet in the basement of the Longmire building, according to Shirley Gregory, exchange chairman.

Students need only to come into the entrance and make a request for book storage, she said. Books will be taken off of the shelves and be prepared for storage. "ALL BOOKS left in the exchange after March 3 with no requisition for storing will be forfeited," the chairman stated.

The Exchange has reached a total of approximately 1,500 books in its three weeks reopening of the semester with 1024 books sold in the entire Exchange function.

SHIRLEY asks that students continue to check daily to see if their books have been sold.

The Exchange still has an overabundance of Freshman Essentials, these are the texts which will be sold the first semester of next year, the chairman said. Freshmen who desire to save their books in storage, may report to the Exchange as soon as possible.

THE EXCHANGE is located on the ground floor of the Alumni building and is open from 9 until 4:30 on Mondays through Friday. It will close at noon on Saturday.

"I want to urge all students to cease see about their books as they don't sell unless they show. The exchange chairman concluded.

Assisting Miss Gregory committee are Shirley Gregory, chairman; Margaret Earnest, secretary; Jean Cummins, Bill Cummins, Carlos Taylor and Bobby Hess. Publicity members are Mary Ann Slemp, with Jean Flynn and Hazel Morrison. Planning publicity committee members of the service fraternities, Alpha Phi Omega, have been the operators of the Exchange.

Campus Chest Head Urges Student Aid For Annual Drive

"All campus leaders should pledge themselves to making the Campus Chest drive a success," Bill Hess, chairman of the executive committee of the Campus Chest, told this to sorority and fraternity presidents and Chest chairmen at a meeting, held in the Longmire lounge Thursday at 5 p.m.

Hess also urged students to remember that the Campus Chest is co-ordinating the Red Cross, Cancer, Polio, and World Student Service Fund drives into one week's activity. He asked the students to increase their donations proportionally.

"If a student would normally put 10 cents into each of the separate drives, he should put 40 cents into the Campus Chest, as it all these drives co-ordinated into one." Hess explained.

Dr. Olin Sibley, dean of men, also spoke at the meeting on "The Way of Giving." McBride stressed that helping the handicapped is a basic part of the American way of life.

Meetings of the Campus Chest organization will be held every Thursday at 5 p.m. in the Longmire lounge. All interested students are cordially invited to attend.

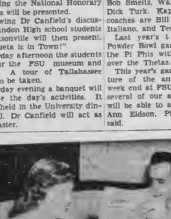
Spanish Weekend To Be Sponsored At FSU March 2-4

Spanish Weekend — flambeaU...

High school students throughout the state will gather at Florida State University March 2-3 to take part in a "Spanish Weekend." The FSU language department is sponsoring the weekend program.

Spanish Weekend has been planned by the language department with Miss Carmen Rivera as chairman of the enterprise.

The students, selected by their local high schools, will register in the Longmire building Friday from 2:30-5:30 p.m.



Film slides of Spain, Mexico and South America will be shown the visitors Friday evening. Dr. Margaret Campbell, Dr G C Deland and Dr Lincoln Canfield of the modern language department will preside. At 9 p.m. a formal student program will follow the movies.

President Doak S Campbell will welcome the group to FSU.Saturday morning in the Little Theatre at 9. Dr Thomas Navarro, new language professor, will address the group on the president's welcome. Dr Lincoln Canfield, department head, will discuss the question, "Shall We Make the National Honorary?" Possibilities of organizing the National Spanish chapters will be presented.

Following Dr Canfield's discussion, Leon High school students of Jacksonville will then present, "Zarzuela is in Town".

Saturday afternoon the students will tour the FSU museum and gallery. A tour of Tallahassee will also be taken.

Saturday evening a banquet will is consolue the day's activities. It will be held in the University dining hall. Dr Canfield will act as toastmaster.

FLAMBOYANTS—The latest report on the Flambeau romantical record now stands at two, with the announcement of the engagement of Miss Betsy Blanton, managing editor, to Earl Dobert, editor-in-chief of the Florida Flambeau.

ROTC Unit Will Be Set Up

Commitment Terms Presented to Campbell

A new Ordinance MOTC unit will be set up at Florida State University no later than the 1951 fall semester, according to Army commitment terms presented President Doak S Campbell.

FSU already has an Air ROTC unit.

"I am extremely gratified to be able to present these papers for an Army Ordinance ROTC unit to Florida State University," Colonel H W Tarkington said. Colonel Tarkington is the commanding officer of the Florida Military District in Jacksonville, Fla. The district includes and universities of America that we must look for our leadership in these critical days," the Colonel stated.

Colonel Tarkington said that senior officers from the Reserve and ROTC branches of the Army Department in Washington would visit FSU on March 8. The officials will meet with President Campbell and other University officials to clarify and establish administration policies to the new unit.

President Campbell has expressed a desire for a long and successful association between the Army ROTC and FSU. He reported that President Truman will offer special military training in both air and ground operations now.

THE FSU president said, "Those who maintain a good record in the ROTC are deferred for work in the line college program." Dr Campbell also advised young men with good records who are about to graduates from high schools to take as early as possible admission to an ROTC unit.

Captain P W Hayo, public information officer of the Florida Military District, said that FSU's ROTC unit was the second established in Florida in 1951. A military police unit to Florida Southern in Lakeland was the first.

"This fills the present quota for the State of Florida," Captain Hayo concluded.

Pi Phis and Thetas Play Ball Saturday

The Pi Phi Indians and the Theta Wild Cats will meet at 2:00 p m Saturday in the fourth annual Powder Puff game at Florida State University being sponsored this year by Garnet Key.

Cheerleaders for the game will be played on Landis green, is free.

Free-will contributions will be taken during the game for the benefit of FSU's Campus Chest.

Members of the two sororities, Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Alpha Theta, have been practicing since Christmas in preparation for the game.

This year's Pi Phi coaches are Jean Daniels, Walter Jones, and Dick Turk. Kappa Alpha Theta coaches are Bill Kinsey, Nelson Hamm, and Ted Hewitt.

Last year's trophy for the Powder Bowl game was taken by the Pi Phis with a 12-0 victory over the Thetas.

This year's game will be a feature of the annual Panhellenic week end at FSU. "We hope that several of our alumnae members will be able to attend the game," said Jan Eidson, Pi Phi president, said.

Sandspur Hop Watched Over By Gypsy Idea

Joy Ann De Rolph Wins Mayeron's Seat Quiz Contest; Lawrence Plays

Couples at the annual Sandspur dance last Saturday night were well watched-over by Gypsies. Everywhere stood cardboard Gypsies. Even the floor committee was clothed in the colorful costumes.

This year's dance was less crowded than the previous affairs. The dance committee, headed by Jack LeMarr, made a determined and successful effort to hold down the number of tickets sold, admitting only a thousand couples.

THE WINNERS of the Mayeron Sandspur contest were announced by Bob Griffin during the evening. A $10 gift certificate went to Joy Ann De Rolph, who came nearest of all contestants to guessing the number of words used in "Gypsy Holiday." Miss Elizabeth Lynn, financial advisor of the show, estimated the number at $2200.

Highlighting the dance was Elliot Lawrence, his piano and his orchestra. From here Lawrence will go on to a series of concerts and dances in Tampa, Lakeland and Sarasota. Lawrence was featured in a reporter that his group had played for over 300 colleges in the past two years and had traveled all over the country.

Students May Get Artist Series Seats For Dallas Symphony

This week, Monday through Friday, is the time for students to obtain tickets for the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, which will appear here March 9 and 10 on the Artist Series, according to an announcement by Dr D P Stokes, series chairman.

The Symphony will present evening performances Friday, March 9, and Saturday, March 10, at 8:15 in Westcott auditorium. There will also be a matinee performance on Saturday afternoon at 2:15.

The year 1951 is the golden jubilee—the 50-year mark of the Dallas Symphony. It is now under the direction of Walter Hendl.

Students may receive their tickets to the concerts upon presentation of their ID cards at the Artist Series office in the Union building between 8:30 a m and 1 p m and between 2 and 4 p m through Friday. On Saturday, March 2, tickets will go on sale to faculty and staff.

Light Opera Guild Holds Tryouts Wed.

Tryouts for the principal roles in the forthcoming production of "The Pirates of Penzance" will take place in the choral room of the Music building, tomorrow, at 7 p m. In making this announcement Prof Robert L Briggs, director of this second Gilbert and Sullivan production, said, "Everything night as May 17.

Students interested in obtaining a chorus part may also try out at that time. Miss Betty Grimm, director of the chorus, pointed out that there is a particular need for men's voices, but that there are still opportunities for women also.

Presentation of the light opera will mark the second production of the year for the FSU Light Opera Guild.

The same group produced The Mikado last semester, receiving state-wide recognition.

Drive Continued For SCA Members

Booths have been set up in the dining halls and in the lobby of the University for the Student Christian association membership drive that is being carried on by seeking distributed and new members recruited.

There will be a meeting of the SCA Thursday at 7 p m in 111 Social Work building. Communications will be set up and each member will choose a commission he would like to belong to. The commissions are: Christian heritage, personal and campus affairs, social responsibility and world relationships.

The commissions will be further discussed during a retreat at Camp Flastacowo the weekend of March 17.

UGA Election Qualifying Ends Tomorrow; Posters Up

Executive Council Changes Election Dates To March 7 for Primaries; March 14 for Finals

Tomorrow will be the last day for candidates to qualify for the University Government Association elections, according to Paul Garrison, elections committee chairman.

The candidates may qualify until 4:30 p m tomorrow. They must submit a signed statement of their intention to run for a specific office to the Dean of Student Welfare, Campaign posters were put up yesterday. Garrison announced the campaign regulations adopted by the Elections Committee, which are: no signs will be allowed fixside of building exce t those placed on bulletin boards. This is because of complaints in the past when students marred the finish of walls by use of thumb tacks and scotch tape. Garrison explained. Signs are also banned from trees.

THE PRIMARY UGA elections have been set for Wednesday, March 7, the chairman reported. The decision for the one day election instead of the former two-day election as listed in the Pow Wow was made by the UGA council at a meeting Friday, Garrison said.

The run-offs will be held one week from that from the primary elections which will be March 14.

The Council also voted to have the senatorial elections with the regular class elections in the fall instead of now. Garrison stated.

CANDIDATES for major offices in the primary elections will have a 1.3 averase and those for a minor office a 1.0 average. Candidates are on their honor in respect to these averages, the chairman said.

Candidates qualifying to date have been: UGA president, Bill Pennell, Jerry Thomas, and Ismelio Sved; Vice-President of legislative affairs, Jimmy Sasso and Dick Bradley; Vice-President of women's affairs, Betty Ann Mitchell and Mary Helen Speed and Jo Nell Proctor; Treasurer of UGA, Bill Cornelius and Jack Stocum; Chairman of Judicial Court, James Ball; Chairman of Women's Judiciary, Eleanor Graves; Chief Justice of University Court, Alex Jackson and Vice-Presidents of Men's Affairs, Ted Steinmeyer, JUNIOR candidate to Women's Judiciary is Betty Anthony and John Buckley and Elizabeth "Lis" Hill are junior representatives to Judiciary. Senior representatives to University Court are June Tate, Nancy Cox and Hemingway and Doris "Dee" Stevens; junior representative to Honor Court, Bonnie Lou Smith and Bill Hall.

Flambeau candidates are Scott Marshall, Jean Atchley, Janet Bowman and Bob Griffin. Joel P Smith is the only candidate for Director of Smoke Signals, Society the Talisman.

CAMPAIGN expenditures are limited to $25 per candidate. No pictures are required of the candidates for use in the polls. Pictures of varying sizes tended to discriminate between those using a 10 photograph and a smaller size, the chairman explained.

Flambeau Sponsors Cigarette Contest For Winning Letter

A carton of Chesterfield cigarettes will be given each Tuesday and Friday for the best letter appearing in the "Dear Editor" section of the Flambeau. It was announced by C O Tedder, Chesterfield campus representative.

In addition, two other contests giving away free cigarettes will be sponsored by the Flambeau.

THE BEST LETTER, in the opinion of the editor, which appears Tuesday and Friday morning in the Flambeau will be awarded one carton of Chesterfield cigarettes.

The second will consist of letterpads to be given Tuesday and Friday nights concerning something which was published in that morning's Flambeau. Five students will be contacted by telephone and asked the question of the week. If the first person answers correctly a second person will be contacted and if he answers will win four packs of Chesterfields.

Each time the question is missed two packs of cigarettes will be added.

THE THIRD CONTEST, to open in a few weeks, will feature a cigarette guessing contest. A number of cigarettes will be placed in a large bowl on campus and students will be given the opportunity to guess how many are in the bowl.

Students are urged to write letters to the editor on any subject so that they may be in the running for a carton of cigarettes. A person may not win unless his letter is printed.

Mortar Board Holds FSU Tutoring Board During Semester

The Tutoring Agency, sponsored by Mortar Board, will be continued during this semester, President Doris Harding announced.

Doris explained that anyone desiring a tutor should contact any member of Mortar Board. "After the student has expressed a need for a tutor, the Mortar Board member will secure a reliable person for the job," she said.

Plans are now underway for the sponsorship of a Leadership Conference by Mortar Board this spring following UGA elections. In a report on the project at the last meeting of Mortar Board, Chairman Cass Yonge emphasized that all newly-elected UGA officers should attend the conference.

MEMBERS of Mortar Board, who can be contacted for future, are: Laurie Harding, Faye Patterson, Marion Dore, Montrell Sessions, Cass Yonge, Leland White, Frances Higginbotham Louwerse, Marilyn Archbold, Anne Jones, Jean Smith, Jean Bayer and Cynthia Leibach.

The regular meeting of Mortar Board will be held tomorrow night at 8 in Landis parlor.

Faculty Trio Gives Public Concert Here Next Friday Night

The Faculty Trio will present their first concert of the season in the Music Hall Friday evening, March 2, at 8:15 p m. The Trio consists of Mary Esther Winslow, pianist, Robert Sellers, violinist, and Owen Sellers, cellist. They will be assisted by Eugene Crabb, violinist. The program will be open to the public.

The program will include the second trio of Felix Mendelssohn in C minor, Three Nocturnes by Ernest Bloch, and the Quartet in G minor for violin, viola, cello and piano by Johannes Brahms. The Faculty Trio, composed of three faculty members, is well-known from their many appearances in the Tallahassee area. Although this is their first performance on the campus this year, they have made several off-campus appearances, including a part in the dedication of the Bellamy Music memorial at White Springs last fall.

Intern Applications Due for Fall Term

Those who wish to intern during the fall semester of next year must complete their applications and turn them in to the Dean's office 204 Education building by March 1, Mr Robert Moon, Director of Student Teaching announced today.

According to Mr Moon, the Statement of Intent is not sufficient and it takes several days of part-time work to complete the required application. He advises that since there will be a large number of persons interning, all who are ready should attempt to complete their first semester.

These applications must be made ahead of time since it is a tremendous task to contact supervipendents, supervisors principals for placement of interns which has to be done during the second semester of this year," he said.

Mr Moon stated also that interns will come nearer to getting suitable places during the first semester than during second semester. It is necessary for an intern to have a C average before the application will be processed."

Flam (beau) Staff Romances Become Tradition at FSU

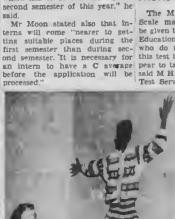
Next year's editor of the Flambeau had better be careful in choosing his managing editor—before he becomes one or vice versa.

This is fast becoming a tradition at the University. Since FSU became co-educational, just four years ago, two editor-managing editor romances and one marriage have resulted.

On March 20, 1949, Flambeau editor Annabel Cowart married managing editor Margaret Graydon.

This year's Flambeau editor Earl Dobert and Miss Betsy Blanton, managing editor, have announced their engagement. Both are from Tampa and seniors in the College of Business.

After receiving their BA degrees in journalism in June, Earl and Betsy and Miss Blanton plan a September wedding.



Their engagement occurred in the most appropriate place—the Flambeau office. Managing editor Betsy Blanton found the sole newspaper mats on Flambeau publication day engagement announced their engagement. Both are from Tampa and seniors in the College of Business.

Evans Explains Car Sticker Situation

Jimmie Evans, Sophomore Senator, today clarified the UGA car sticker situation by saying, "The stickers cost no money. They are being furnished to every student and employee of FSU to identify their cars."

Evans said he felt this explanation was desirable because many students had thought they would have to pay for the stickers. He said, and the business office agreed, that the sticker's main purpose is to provide a campus registry of all automobiles. This will eliminate many problems so that the Traffic-Safety Court can begin operations, according to Evans.

The stickers are being distributed through house counselors and the business office at 108½ Westcott until March 2. Every person must know the make, year, and license number of his car in order to receive his sticker and a business office spokesman.

A STUDENT looks at some "FSU Seminoles" in the Florida State Museum located in the upper drawing halls. A presentation of many interesting Circumcaribbean oddities are now in display.

Make-Up Exam Given

The Minnesota Personality Scale make-up examination will be given tomorrow at 5 p m in 403 Education building. All students who do not have the results of this test in their records must appear to take the test at this time, said M H DeGraff, director of the Test Service Bureau.

Soltas Club Hears Address on Europe

Soltas club, undergraduate Library Science Organization, will meet tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Library Science school lounge.

A short business meeting will be followed by a talk by Miss Dorothy Adams of the English department on her trip to Europe. She will especially stress the European libraries she visited.

This is the first meeting of the club this semester and I urge all students to attend," said Carl Jackson, newly elected president.

Other officers serving with Jackson are Betty Anthony, vice president; Dot Mathews, secretary; John Marron, treasurer, and Nell Pogsley and Helen Black social chairmen.

Women's Convo To Be Tonight, Veep Says

There will be a compulsory women's convocation tonight in Westcott auditorium, according to Cass Yonge, vice president in charge of women's affairs.

There will be two meetings At 7 p m residents of Cawthon, Jennie Murphree, Reynolds, Bryan and off-campus houses will attend. The 8 p m meeting will be for residents of Magnolia, Landis, Gilchrist and Broward halls.

Veterans Asked To Renew Applications

All veterans who are getting their degree under the GI bill in June and who plan to attend graduate school in the fall should make their applications to the Veteran's Administration before the end of the present semester, the registrar's office has announced.

By following this procedure, veterans will not be affected by the July 25, 1951, cut-off date for veteran's allowances.

Further information may be obtained at 101-C Westcott.

BSU Study Course Conducted This Week

BSU activities for this week will be centered around a study course program to be conducted at the First Baptist Church. Dr Harold O Sanders will teach the class for University students and young people, using the book, Every Christian's Job. The study course begins at 7:15 from Monday through Thursday.

The monthly Training Union officers' supper meeting will begin at 6:00 p m on Wednesday. There will be no Vesper service Tuesday.

Anthropology Meet Was Held Saturday

Smith, FAS President, Conducts Museum Tour

The third annual meeting of the Florida Anthropological Society was held at Florida State University Saturday. Anthropologists and archaeologists from all over Florida were in attendance.

The welcoming address was given by President Doak S Campbell at 10 a m after the 9 a m registration in the Longmire building. Hale G Smith, FSU museum director and FAS president presided over a business meeting and conducted a tour of the new University Museum and University Gallery.

The last of the three sessions held began with Frederick G Sleight of Rollins College in charge. This session was devoted to papers of anthropological and archaeological significance. Reading papers were Dr John M Goggin, department of anthropology University of Florida; John M Griffin, Florida State Archaeologist and Ripley P Bullen, assistant state archaeologist. Also reading were FSU anthropology students Raymond S Price and Robert MacDonald. William Watson, FSU department of art education; and FSU Museum Director Hale G Smith.

Following an evening dinner in the LaFayette room of the West dining hall, moving pictures were shown. The pictures were entitled "The Loon's Necklace" and "The Maya."

Social Work Club Postpones Meeting

Due to the Women's Convocation tonight the Social Work Club meeting scheduled for this evening has been postponed until Thursday at 7 p m in room 111 of the Social Work building.

The program will be presented by the second year graduate students. Everyone is invited to attend.

NIT GAME INVOLVED IN 'FIX'

ONE OF THE SEVEN cage games reported to have been "fixed" by four Long Island University players (three of them on this year's squad) was this National Invitational tournament game between Long Island and Syracuse in New York last March 11. In this action shot, LIU's Sherman White (right) and a Syracuse player struggle for the ball. White was one of the LIU stars arrested and charged with bribery in the scandal. In this game, LIU was a four-point favorite and Syracuse won by a score of 80 to 82. (International)

Refused Bribe

GUARD on the New York U. cage team, Jim Brsaco (above), was approached to accept a possible bribe to throw a game but Brsaco refused to co-operate. One of the players arrested in the "fix" charges, Harvey Schaff of New York U., reportedly said he had approached Brsaco but Brsaco turned him down. (International)

RIDICULOUS, UNFAIR, PREJUDICED

The charges made against John Baker, ...eeded editor of the Florida Alligator, are ridiculous, unfair, prejudiced, ...agement of the right of fair comment ...criticism and a threat to collegiate ...dom of the press.

The accusations made by the Board of ...ent Publications that Baker was instru...al in having the University lose $3,000.- ...worth of new buildings is absurd. It ...ld be that Baker did not present a true ...re of the manner in which the Univer... of Florida was to have financed the ...ding even though correct information ...s supplied him. Baker's reply to the ...ed charge was that he was unable to ...the information from official sources ...had to rely on reports from student ...rnment officers. These reports were ...e and corrections of the story were run ...subsequent issue.

Is it Baker's fault he could not rely on ...ses supplied to be "in the know?" Is ...hen, to blame for the University losing ...00,000 in building? If this campus can ...ued as a criterion, we can understand ...e Editor's not getting the runaround. We ...e official sources on this campus that ...in the same manner as the official ...ces of the U of F. We cannot get ade... answers to our questions either. A ...spaper depends on the answers it gets ...on questions it asks. When the questions ...e answered untruthfully, what are we sup...ed to do?

Presentation of the charges against Baker ...re supposed to have been presented by ...Dan Dugan, president of the student ...ly at Gainesville. Charges levied against ...hn Baker said the paper reflected a cynical ...attitude toward student government, ...hings the fact that the student body ...sident presented the charges left room ...prejudice to creep in. Baker's reply to ...charge was that the Alligator had always ...supported student government and ...he considered it an essential part of ...ege life. This is quite true. The Flam... has been accused of criticizing student ...rnment and we do so rightfully, but ...t with an eye to improving it, not to ...ing it down. In the course of presenting ...ical opinion on student government the ...nator stepped on toes; that cannot ...helped. Many times we do not agree with ...student body president or other officials ...the student government but that cannot ...t sign us guilty toward student ...rnment. The same situation exists in ...ersville. Perhaps they are afraid of ...sm.

Baker was accused of causing bad feeling ...ween the University of Florida and Flor... State University. This is an false as ...e erroneous proceedings. Baker said it ...more than a friendly rivalry. Can any ...ber of the Board of Student Publica... at Gainesville show us where Baker ...ressed that he not maintain a rivalry ...me sort? If they were referring to ...ies printed in the Alligator and Flam... Baker was right in saying it was a ...dly rivalry.

Another instance Baker was criticised for ...a story printed in the Tampa Tribune ...e salary set for members of the ...ty in Gainesville. These facts were ...en from the University's proposed budget.

He was chastised for not exercising sufficient control over columnists writing for the Alligator. That proves there is more than one person who has found out the truth. In the committee criticised every ...ber of the student body (and suspended ...m member of the student body) for grip... about something, the committee at the ...versity of Florida would go down more ...n the reported 1,703.

Baker printed a story that the Univer... of Florida enrollment had dropped to ...5 students. That was 1,703 less than the ...t semester. A member of the Student ...rd said President J Hillis Miller was dis...ed by that account. It seems that late ...rials were still signing up to go to school ...the time the story was printed.

The Committee stated the Alumni were ...getting the paper regularly. We hope ...committee doesn't check the Flam... records on subscribing alumni. We ...not circulate to more than 10 alumni ...ughout the entire state. We don't have ...worry about that, however. Every once ...while we hear from deans that they have ...received numerous letters from alumni ...them.

PON MY WORD

'THANK YOU, BENEDICT ARNOLD'

By BETSY BLANTON

University Council went into closed session Friday to discuss the measures which Rube Askew will present to the University Senate come Tuesday's meeting.

We hear via the grapevine, keyhole and through our agents that the session will be a mighty interesting one. Senate meetings are open to the public . . . and if that doesn't suggest anything to you, here's an outright invitation to be there. The meeting is called to order at 3:15 p.m.

We also have it on good authority that some of the proposals which the UGA president has in mind are already being taken care of by the representative body.

The behavior of the audience at Friday night's Sandspur production sent our teeth-gnashing, Monday spectators arrived as much as 45 minutes early only to find that earlier arrivals had started saving seats for people who had not yet arrived.

Our comment: "Thank you, Benedict Arnold."

A NOTE TO OFFICE SEEKERS: Only one person can win the office you're running for, but it will take an active part in student government even though you lose the election.

An excellent example of this is John Newland, a candidate for the UGA presidency last year. John was defeated in the disputed run-off. Had there only been the customary two run-offs. John would be senior student president now.

Instead of being bitter, John has served behind the scenes as chairman of an important student committee.

Many office seekers campaign, run, lose, and let it go at that. We feel that this is proof that they are merely seeking the office, with no real desire to serve the school. And no one can have a good administration with that attitude.

Student directories won't be out until March. This was the cruel blow dealt the student body in last Friday's Flambeau.

The explanation is that they have been waiting for the installation of the dial telephone system so they could include the new telephone numbers in the directory.

Now we learn that we are going to have to wait indefinitely for the new telephone system . . . the result: no dial system, nor no student directories.

We suppose that the reason for the postponement of the installing the new telephone system is the war effort. At least that's a good excuse to give for the time being.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

CAKE TAKEN BY 'AMONG OTHER THINGS'

By JERRY THOMAS

Last week found the cake for Among Other Things.

I have had words left out and sentences misconstrued, in this column, but this is the first time that the Democrat has given me the pen name of Among Other Things.

If any other columnist's name had been used, such as Jean O'Riordan, this would not be understandable, but Bob Tippins . . . he's just the Hills man who was there.

Speaking of Tippins, for those of you who don't know, he is the M C for Georgie Bee's band (orchestra) who plays that dinner music in the Suwannee Room.

Pi Alpha Sigma is making plans for its annual presidential round table discussion.

Each year Pi Alpha Sigma, Public Administration honorary, has a round table discussion between all candidates who qualify for the position of President of U G A.

This year, the program will be open to the entire faculty, and will also be broadcast over your campus radio station WFSU.

Allan Head, U G A Forums Chairman has been selected to be in charge of the program.

Head will act as moderator in several popular forums, is working on them now, and the program will be pleasant, and interesting to the radio audience.

COKE, is the theme selected for its annual program of permitting all U G A candidates to make a campaign speech for the whole student body.

Last year only a small group turned out for this program.

As last year, there is much discussion as to whether or not Sandspur should go on the road.

This year's production was better than last years and would be much easier to put on the road.

If the administration did allow the Copper Kettle on the road, a schedule would have to be planned as to what schools in Florida would be visited.

Last year, if the show had received travelling permission, many high schools and at least two other college towns would have been visited.

If the production is given permission this year, a similar plan would be followed.

The publicity of such a trip would be valuable to the University in attracting students from all of the high schools in Florida.

The biz headache would be expense and the problem of carrying all of the stage equipments.

However, Sandspur now has a reserve fund, plus what money there may be from the show.

An original production like Gypsy Holiday would certainly draw the crowds, and the type of student initiative at FSU.

Poetically Yours

KELLER

By Hugh M Key

I stand here dumb amid the frenzied mob
Clamoring to spill a wretched killer's blood.
Your mute imploring eyes seek mine. I turn away
O hapless pawn of circumstance.
What can I do who am myself undone?
I live a lie to keep the half loaf that I have.
It's hopeless now to turn my paths had met
In some more happy time.
We both had love to give, and seeking love . . .
Received a cross.
A heaven and a world against a man!
It is no use . . .
Beneath me lies the virgin Christ with hands incarnadine.
Mercy now would be a sin.
Lay on with stones and sticks and fiery brands!
It is too late to reach you where you are.
And you must pay the world in the world's coin.
You watch me turn to go, back up the empty street
Unaware that you live . . .
In my heart's most secret room.
Wait for me among the cool and quiet tombs
And I will come, when I am one with Jesus and with God.
Then I can say, "Come unto me, ye that are weary
And heavy laden, and I will give you rest."
Then I shall seek you out, among the forgotten tombs
. . . Because I understand. . . .

Athletic Supporter Only

Dear Students:

In the past week word has gone around that I am supporting various candidates. I am supporting no one. I will vote what the ROTC give me. From now on my support will be confined to athletics.

If you really want to vote for somebody, why not vote for my wife? She is running for editor of the Tally-Ho which is a paying job, and good money it is, too. She needs the money. I wish she would stay home and cook, one politico in the family is not many, but since she instals on running, I'm glad the job pays.

If anybody wants any predictions or advice on the elections from me, I'll be glad to supply them if you follow this procedure: Write (don't print) your name and nearby on a piece of paper between the new ten-dollar bills and wrap it in Tuesday's Flambeau (Flambeaus ought to be good for something) and mail it to me in care of Rube Askew. One ten will be donated to What's Back Door's running for editorship.

I want to wish all candidates the best of luck, but it is inevitable that some of you will be elected.

Your pal,
•Del Albritton.

FANCY THIS

COLUMNIST WAS HIGH DURING SANDSPUR

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

All of you who saw Sandspur's "Gypsy Holiday" Friday saw a good show in a normal manner. But not me—I saw it from "above"; you know, up in the air.

I was eating dinner at the Grill Friday evening when in walked Bill Sandy and the whole stage crew. He casually mentioned that two of the boys on the crew and he needed some help badly. So I said, very humbly, "my understudy will help you." What do I have to do?"

"Oh, just pull some trees up on a string," he answered, "It's easy. No job at all."

I ran home, put on my dungarees and headed for Westcott. When I got there I met the members of the stage crew that Bill had sent me with and everybody laughed. "O'Riorden's going to work up there," they chorted heartlessly, pointing to the ceiling.

I looked up and when I saw where I was going to be during the performance I just about quit. Way up, high above the stage in Westcott, is a lattice work "floor" to which all the trees and some of the background scenery is attached. To me it looked like it was 100 feet high.

So I started climbing. Up one ladder, across a platform. Up another ladder, swing onto still another platform and higher and I was there. How relieved I was to put my feet on the last rung and step safely on the solid floor.

But I was relieved too soon. What looked like lattice work from the stage was really thin strips of board. One-crossed it even intervals with just enough room between each one to wind by a foot through. I couldn't walk around. I had to kind of crawl on my hands and knees. I moved.

It wasn't bad after I got used to it, but all the time I was up there I could hear the band in the grand finale with all the actors and dancers singing and jumping around and me hurtling to the stage to take my bow.

When it was all over, I realized what a big job every member of the stage crew had. To me, they seemed to be the hardest working people connected with the show and really did a good job of the whole thing.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

THE STORY OF A CAT NAMED ZETA

By JOEL P SMITH

"Gypsy Holiday" now loved out before a capacity audience Friday night. The question which pertains to or not Sandspur will go on the road. Sandspurring is not a small social productions—has its critics. . . . Some people can't do anything but be fullest, but in general the audiences were much more responsive than in the past.

Sandi Horton, Carl Besler and Herb Johnson did a commendable job in staging the production. The numbers were very well executed . . . thanks now to Dean Allen and Mrs. Ruth Bell. The two principals who stole the show—from where I sat—were Bob Bell, who has portrayed Janet, and Nick Pappas, who should have won an Oscar for his portrayal of Pedro, a mute.

Mrs Olive Cross, English literature instructor, often uses vivid comparisons and descriptions when she is talking to her classes. After returning from a convention in Atlanta, Mrs Cross described the buildings at Georgia Tech as being "large penitentiary and early baroque" in style to one of her classes. I wonder what period she would describe Bryan Hall as being in.

This is the story of a cat named Zeta. No, Zeta isn't a sorority. Yes, it isn't her fault. She's been trying to pledge a sorority for weeks now but she is still just another alley cat.

Zeta's "rush week" began one night when a couple of fraternity men were rushing to their frat house and as they were leaving the crew couldn't take the animal to the meeting so they turned over Zeta to Leslie Earl Meeks, clad in a pair of red longhandles, drop Zeta off at the Zeta Tau Alpha house. RESULTS: The Zetas practically stole Zeta from their house and had a rush party for the cat.

A few days later Tania Parsons was given membership in the rushee over to the Alpha Chi house. Sunday night Pushed still hadn't issued a decision on Zeta's preferential card. Richard Parsons put in those kind words for Zeta at the Alpha Gam house . . . but still she's just another alley cat as far as sorority row is concerned.

Just before press time the dawn began to break . . . there is some argument as to whether Zeta is sorority material or frat material. This sad story ends with the heroine about to say here's another cat coming the alley, here's another cat coming the alley . . .

WFSU to Broadcast 'So It Goes' at 8:30

"So It Goes" will be presented tonight at 8:30 over Garnet Theater; 660 on your radio dial.

STARRING in the WFSU production are: Gene La Armstrong, as Julie; Rosalyn Moss, as Chris; Jim Turnbull, as Nick; Mary Agnes Rainio, as Julie's mother; and Neil Jacoby, as narrator.

The play, which was written by Ruth Sherman Eachus, is billed as a "very human play with some superhuman characters." It has an interesting story which promises to hold every reader's attention until each of the fifteen minutes later.

THE PLAY will be complete with sound effects. If anyone is making a study of sound effects, methods they should journey to fourth floor of the Alum and attempt to interpret the methods as used by WFSU.

US Marine Captain Here March 5, 6

Captain M E McNeil of the United States Marine Corps will be in the Alumni building on March 5 and 6, room 445, from 9 a.m to 4 p.m. to enlist students in an Officer Candidate Class. This officer program is being extended to three classes of students.

Undergraduate students, preferably those who have applied for enlists in the Platoon Leaders class. This program offers undergraduates the opportunity of qualifying for appointment to commissioned rank upon completion of two six weeks summer periods of training and graduation from college. This program also includes deferment of remaining in college until graduation, McNeil said.

GRADUATE STUDENTS AND SECOND SEMESTER SENIORS can enlist in a special program which RECRUITER said is also a opportunity to qualify for appointment to commissioned rank upon completion of the required period of training. Classes commence April 23, 1951, and July 23, 1951, for selected students.

THE PLAN of Officer Candidate program offers the opportunity to qualify for appointment to commissioned rank upon completion of a training course, to selected graduates and undergraduates at PSU and to enlisted and formerly enlisted women of the regular Marine Corps or Marine Corps Reserve.

FOR MOST interested students, officer training will be given at the Marine Corps Schools; Quantico, Virginia, on the Potomac river, 40 miles south of Washington, D. C.

Anyone wishing further information before the arrival of Captain McNeil, should see Jerry Thomas at the Flambeau office.

SECOND IN A SERIES

Students Don't Want Humanities Because it is Deemed Unapplicable

Last Tuesday we discussed some of the major criticisms of general education today as shared by some of the leaders in that field; first, there was the criticism of study in the classics; second, there were attacks upon the "free elective" system.

In our criticism of the classics we quote one educator as saying that more than 80 per cent of all freshman students not only can not read and understand the classics (humanities), but they do not want to read them. Among those we find in mass agreement with this statement are the students themselves.

Now the defenders of this type of education claim that the student receives "cultural" values and a broad understanding of the world about him. Just what do they mean by "cultural" values? And of what good are cultural values if they are not used or exchanged by students in everyday life? There does not seem to be much evidence of a Renaissance budding forth in our Universities today.

AS FOR THIS broad understanding of the world today, we find a rather fuzzy statement. If we understood the world today then it would follow that we could remedy the problems in that world, and there does not seem to be much evidence of that. There is a vast difference between just gathering together unrelated bits of knowledge about life and the universe and actually applying that knowledge. All knowledge must be applied before it realizes any meaning; and it must be applied in the classroom. You cannot wait until the four years are up and then go out into the world and radiate "education" and "culture". It is soon forgotten unless you mate that knowledge with action as soon as you are exposed to it. Moreover, the student only sees the world about him, he does not understand it. He is given facts, dates, names and is sold on all the things there are to know about a particular subject. Then he stops; he goes no further. This is all he needs to know to get a "grade".

HE KNOWS THAT wars have been occurring for many years now but he does not know why. He studies Hannibal's expedition to Rome or the French Revolution. Instead of the grim reality in Korea.

In social studies he is only shown things as they are, not as they might be. He studies the problems of race and poverty from a book, not going out to actually see it in his own community.

His teachers extall the ideas of Aristotle, Voltaire, and Jefferson, but would not dream of having him practice such ideas.

He is brought up on the daily newspaper, Life magazine, and Action Comics, then is suddenly told to read the masterpieces of the ages: Dante, Shakespeare, Goethe, and the Greeks.

UGA OFFICERS

From 'Metropolis' Sig Ep Member Dick

Richard M Yeager, alias Dick, is a junior senator from the metropolis of Jacksonville, as he gladly puts it.

Dick's major is history and his future plans include a Master's degree and eventually a doctor's degree providing Uncle Sam doesn't intervene.

His activities on this campus includes the Canterbury club, and Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. Studies are an activity of his also. This young man's hobbies are students, sports and people, especially female.

Gilda! He's 22, with big brown eyes, and a sweet personality.

Delta Sigma Pi To Hold Meeting

Delta Sigma Pi will hold a professional meeting tomorrow at 8 p m at the "O" Club. All members are asked to invite prospective pledges. Mr J Kenneth Ballinger, prominent Tallahassee Attorney will be the guest speaker. A social will follow the meeting so that members may become acquainted with the rushees.

Plans for the rush party to be held Friday night will also be discussed at this meeting. Dick Iacuzzo and Howard Abel have recently been elected Historian and Scribe respectively.

Garnet Nine Seeks Win in Squad Tilt

Florida State University Garnet nine will be seeking its third straight victory over the Gold's in an intra-squad baseball game at the West campus diamond this afternoon at four.

The Garnet's, paced by Sophomore Pitcher Ed Lockard, have taken 3-1 and 7-3 victories from the Gold baseballers.

Alum Room Houses Exchange 'Where Books Are Bought, Sold'

Down in the Recreation room of the Student Alumni Building approximately 1500 books have changed hands in a short week and a half.

THE STUDENT book exchange, sponsored by the Junior Class, is doing a booming business. There is a constant flow of students bringing in stacks of books to be sold and asking for books to buy. The supply of books has doubled since the exchange opened last Monday, and as Shirley Greecy, committee chairman, says, "They come and go constantly." She laughingly said "I'll probably have to go over to the Book Store to buy my books, we're doing such a fast turnover."

STUDENTS have been cleaning out their book shelves and the innermost shelves of their closets to find books, which they hope can be sold. Jean Sweet, junior, staggered in with a huge cardboard box full of them. "I hope you can sell them," she said hopefully. Someone else, who was evidently just searching for a friend in the "rec" room, was waylaid by one of the staff and he dazedly presented a book hat, which was promptly checked by Evelyn Gustaferro who got all the books he needed.

Student operators have been taxed to keep pace with the constant line of buyers. Will Pennell, junior class president, found himself on a one-man shift once. He held the exhibox and let the students search the shelves for their own books. As they came out, he blocked the way and checked the texts going out. "I was really going in circles for awhile there!" he laughed.

AMID bouncing ping-pong balls, Strauss waltzes from the nearby piano and noisy bridge games, the campus' newest up-and-coming project will continue to operate for another week, ending this session on March 3. Anyone who has books in the Exchange is urged to come and claim either the books or the money if they have been sold by that time. Otherwise the books will be forfeited, for there is no closet space to store them at the present time.

Much of the credit for the success of the exchange goes to Shirley Greecory, who began her plans for this project way back in September. She organized a small committee, which expanded into nearly a dozen members, by the time plans were completed. This committee checked and rechecked every possible obstacle and problem facing the idea.

AFTER many conferences with Dean Culpepper and other officials, the final decisions were made. Every student on campus owes his thanks to this pretty blonde junior girl who made it possible for Florida State University to have its first successful book exchange.

Seminoles to Defend Volleyball Title

Entries for the annual Florida AAU volleyball tournament, to be held March 3 in Tampa, will not be accepted after tomorrow, according to an announcement made by Dr Howard G Danford.

Dr Danford, Florida State University Athletic Director and chairman of the state volleyball committee, also announced that a $10.00 fee must accompany the entries.

Florida State University's volleyball team will defend the title it won last year in the Tampa YMCA, site of this year's tourney. Other teams expected to enter the meet include YMCA teams from West Palm Beach, Palm Beach, St Petersburg, Miami and Tampa, Miami Fire Department, Jacksonville Naval Air Station, Florida Southern College, University of Tampa, Stetson University and several military base squads.

The tournament, a double elimination affair, will be governed by United States Volleyball Association rules. Individual awards will be presented to players on teams finishing first or second in the tourney.

FSU Cagers Top-Seeded in Dixie Tourney

Given Berth to NAIB Meet in Jacksonville

Bob Hartman Breaks Scoring Mark In 62-45 Rollins Victory

Florida State University's sharp basketball team has been seeded in the Dixie Conference tournament, received an invitation to play in the NAIB tourney, has a new one-man scoring champion, and has chalked up its 13th victory in 20 games.

With Scott Marshall
Flambeau Sports Editor

Florida State University has a new one-man basketball scoring champion—one Robert Les Hartman.

Tiny Hartman found the mermaid going rough in the first half of Friday night's 62-45 victory over Rollins College but he finally came out of it minus 12 points in a ring the first of five two-pointers.

Tiny McLaughlin's 1936 mark of 277 is broken by Hartt's 238, and the South Bend cager will probably push 300 before the Dixie Conference and NAIB tournaments, which Florida State will enter next week.

Friday night, this scrappy six foot Indianan missed 13 in a row on the floor before he connected again. However, in the final 13 minutes of play Hartman hit five of 10 and the new standard was established.

The record breaking field goal put Florida State out in front 28-13 and gave a new spark to the Seminoles for they were never headed from that point.

Many of the resignations of college football coaches—approximately two dozen so far this year were voluntary and others by suggestion or blunt request. The majority of the vacancies have already been filled. Several retired from the coaching profession to go into a more stable business, and more will probably follow suit after the 1951 season gets underway.

The pressure put on a coach is great, even if he's successful, and the pressure is applied mainly by the wrong kind of people. It has gotten so that a coach must not alone prove satisfactory to the college heads, the student body and the alumni, but to the gamblers as well. If his team does not run up enough points to clear the odds makers, he is in for it.

Three coaches are expected to drop imposing schedules, arranging games with the leading teams in the nation.

There was a time when this was possible to a certain extent, but no longer.

The cost of fielding a major college team is between $250,000 and $275,000 in these times. To attract large crowds, leading teams must play opponents of their own class. Florida State University is trying to accomplish this by setting rid of the "weak sisters" on its schedule.

"It's no longer possible to play two or three "big" games a season and fill the other dates with "breathers." One of the few teams that can do it today is Army, but the Cadets are subsidized by the Federal Government and do not have to worry about gate receipts.

Knut Rockne once said:

"I want to play the best teams in the country. The reason is simple: If you lose to a top team you can say that you lost to one of the best, but when you get your ears pinned back by some fair college team, the reaction is terrific.

"There is another reason: It is hard to get a team like Notre Dame, Michigan, Minnesota, California or one of a dozen others rounded up against a minor college. There is a letdown that you don't overcome and the result is often disastrous. My motto is:

"The best and if you lose you're not disgraced."

It has been reported that one coach lost his job because two of his squad failed to schedule games with big-time teams.

The faculty, student body and alumni of this particular college took exception to that big-game policy and refused to finish their schedules with big-time teams, especially those with their stadiums.

The stadium over which this coach ruled seats fewer than 10,000. If a big-name team played there, especially one that came from a distance, its share of the gate receipts would not cover expenses, even if the stadium happened to be packed on that day.

College football is a big business and the upper bracket is very careful in making schedules. They are made with both eyes on the ticket office and let no one tell you otherwise. If the schedules were not made to attract the maximum number of fans, football would be conducted at a loss and that could not last long.

Swimmers in Sixth Win, Down Emory

Florida State University's swimming team won its sixth straight dual meet here Saturday night, downing Emory University 44-31 before a capacity crowd.

Coach Slim Smith's tankmen took six first places in the nine event meet and were never headed. The majority of the varsity performers saw only exhibition duty, if any.

Swimming exhibition, but with regular meet conditions, Florida State's Dick Wells, Jack White, Pete Dunn-Rankin, and Walter Jardine teamed to break the 400-yard free style relay mark with a time of three minutes, 42 seconds. The new standard bettered both the school and pool records by over five seconds.

THE SEMINOLE swimmers are now getting in shape for the Southeastern AAU meet in Atlanta Friday.

The individual results:

300-yard medley relay: FSU (Ramsey, Archer, Dunn-Rankin). Time: 3:26.06.

200-yard free style: Blevins (Emory), Sutherland (FSU), Butler (FSU). Time: 2:13.

50-yard free style: Mills (FSU), Boone (FSU), Munroe (Emory). Time: 27.

Diving: Conway (FSU), Farrell (FSU), Jones (Emory). Winning points: 90.8.

100-yard free style: Burnett (FSU), Blevins (Emory), Butler (Emory). Time: 59.2.

200-yard back stroke: Holmes (FSU), Cunningham (Emory), Asbury (Emory). Time: 2:27.05.

200-yard breast stroke: McDonaugh (Emory), Archer (FSU). Time: 2:35.08.

400-yard free style: Wilton Jardine (FSU), Blevins (Emory), Kayser (Emory). Time: 5:18.01.

400-yard free style relay: Emory (McDonaugh, Munroe, Hughston, Cunningham). Time: 4:13.04.

Lambda Chi, Sigma Nu Top First Round Football Tilts

Theta Chi, Pikes Defeated in Frat Tourney; Oilers, 514 Cop Opening Dorm Victories

Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Nu won first round football games in Florida State University's annual intramural grid tournament in the fraternity league yesterday afternoon. In the dormitory league, the Oilers and 514 took opening round victories.

Quarter-finals of both tourneys begin today at 4:45 on the West campus fields when Lambda Chi and Sigma Nu clash, and Theta Chi and Pi Kappa Alpha battle in the frat league. The Oilers face 514 and 849 Upper meets the Newman Club in the dorm league.

Semi-finals begin tomorrow. In the frat league, the loser of the LCA-SN tilt tangles with the PKA winner. In the dorm league the loser of the Oiler-514 contest meets 849 Upper-Newman Club winner.

Winners of the LCA-SN and Oiler-514 contests reel until Thursday's finals. A team must lose twice before being eliminated from the tourney.

Although battling to a 0-0 deadlock, Lambda Chi topped Theta Chi first downs 13 to 7 in yesterday's tightest game. LOA was within TC's five yard line three times and TC accomplished the same thing twice, but neither team was able to cross the double stripe.

Warren Cobb's extra point pass to Les Mullen gave the Lambda Nu's a 7-6 victory over Pi Kappa Alpha. SN scored its margin of victory on the openink kick-off of the second half.

Lambda Chi Alpha defeated 849 Upper by a 19-0 score and 514 topped the Newman Club gridsters 9-0.

FSU Men's F Club To Meet Tomorrow

Florida State University's men's F Club will meet tomorrow night in the lounge of the East campus gym at 7:30.

Members of the club are urged to attend the special meeting. Men who have won varsity stock F's are eligible for membership into the club.

Strong Golfers Prep for 1951

By WARREN COBB

The 1951 FSU golf team, rated by some as one of the strongest in the South, is hard at work in preparation for the coming season in which they will participate in numerous tournaments, both local and intercollegiate. They will compete against the top teams in this part of the country, including Georgia, one year's E.C. champs. The Seminoles posted wins over the Georgia squad in 1950 matches.

Returning lettermen are Dick Montney and Ted Hewitt. Eddie Johnson, former state high school champion, should strengthen the team considerably. Bud Marsee, transfer from Purdue's championship squad, and Tom Cusack, who at 17 is the youngest over last year, are also expected to be of great value to the team. Tommy Brown, Tallahassee's gift to FSU athletics, has been hampered by an old football injury, but seems to be rounding into shape and should be another valuable addition to the golf team.

ALL OF THESE players except Marsee, who is currently with the basketball team, are participating in the Georgia Washington Birthday tournament, held annually in Tallahassee.

Most of the players have been below par though the season has just gotten under way. Montney recorded shot a 68 in practice rounds for the Georgs Washington tournament.

The Seminole golfers will participate in the St Petersburg Open March 1-4. After that comes the Jacksonville Open March 17-19, and the Florida Intercollegiate Tournament in DeLand, March 22-24.

The Seminoles may possibly participate in the Florida Amateur Tournament in Tampa and the Southern Intercollegiate in Athens, Georgia, sometime in April.

Mrs Charlie Bradham Gives Birth to Girl

Mrs Charlie Bradham, wife of the former Seminole swimming manager, gave birth to a five pound, 11 ounce baby girl Sunday morning at 7:33 in Tallahassee Memorial Hospital.

The child, the fourth generation on both family trees, has been named Ruth Alberta Bradham.

SON, IT'S 4:45 — Ed Williamson, Florida State University's intramural director, reminds tournament teams in the fraternity and dormitory leagues that game time is 4:45.

The Pitter . . . V . booted the ball into the end zone and Cobb recovered the loose pigskin. Officials ruled a Sigma Nu sixpointer, the ball now going out of the end zone.

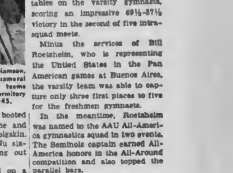
Pi Kappa Alpha tallied on a pass from John Kimsey to Willie Noorred.

In the dorm league, the Oilers defeated 514 on a safety.

Freshman Gymnasts Overturn Varsity

Florida State University's freshman gymnastics team turned the tables on the varsity gymnasts, scoring an impressive 46½-41½ victory in the second of five intra-squad meets.

Minus the services of Bill Rotshstein, who is representing the United States in the Pan American games at Buenos Aires, the varsity team was able to capture only three first places to five for the freshmen gymnasts.



In the meantime, Rotshstein was named to the AAU All-American gymnastics squad in two events. The Seminole captain earned All-America honors in the All-Around competition and also topped the parallel bars.

Rotshstein was the only man on the team to be picked for two events.

Right From Horse's Mouth, Citation Gives Press Magic Victory Formula

By BOB J BURANDT
Central Press Correspondent

ARCADIA, Cal.—It was tough, getting this first and exclusive interview with Citation, the world's richest horse.

You can imagine what it would be like—even for the most famous reporter alive—to get the first interview with the world's richest man. Whole armies of secretaries, assistants and "yes-men" would allow you to pass into his sacred chambers only over their dead bodies.

So trying to talk to Citation, the almost-a-millionaire horse who keeps all of his winnings in his stall, was like trying to crash the gates to Fort Knox. At first, that is.

To cast off suspicion, we first visited our favorite $2 mutual show window. As usual, the horse we picked to finish "show" was by no longitude.

Pocketing our winnings of 40 cents, we blew it on a bottle of beer and then strolled lazily toward the track's press-gate.

Then we were watching the tote-board.

Everything was going fine until we got within about a half-mile of His Royal Highness Citation's stall. A firing column of exercise boys and private detectives born down out of nowhere and gently eased us back to the grandstand.

Picking ourselves up and brushing the dust and corn mutual tickets off our clothes, we decided that subterfuge would do no good. So we tried to make an appointment by phone?

NOBODY will ever believe this, but when "Eddie O'" answered the phone, he invited us over to his stall right away. That's one of the learnins that we had once interceded with a French horse-meat packer and saved his great, great grandfather from a fate worse than a glue factory.

"A few of the boys and I are just putting on the feedbox with some long cocktails and a blue stass table d'hote dinner," snickered the Midas Express. "Anybody who was a friend of my great, great grandfather is a friend of mine—so come right in."

"Cy, old bangtail," we inquired, "how come you get all this feeding green in your stall? It ain't hay, you know."

"It isn't that I don't trust banks," replied the equine monarch from Kentucky. "But I like to make a small bet now and then, and it's handy to have the dough right here. And it gives me such a warm, cozy feeling."

Citation declined to say whether he would try to become a millionaire at Santa Anita or at Hollywood Park this summer.

"MY TRAINER Jimmy Jones and I will figure that one out later on," Citation said, with a twinkle in his eye. "I'm my own boss, but I like to let Jimmy think he has a finger in the pie. It's good for his morale."

Finally, we asked Cy the one question that all railbirds would give their eyesteeth to find out—whether there is a sure system for picking horses. He said that there was.

And Citation told us—straight from the horse's mouth—the magic formula for a foolproof, never-miss, always-win system.

And that's how come we are writing this on our own solid gold typewriter with diamond-studded keys. And that's why we aren't going to tell anybody else.

PLAYING THE 10-PIN CORRECTLY—In this, our final lesson, I want to discuss the correct manner of shooting the 10-pin. Missed oftener than any other pin because of its position on the line, this pin has been a nightmare to the average bowler.

For the purpose of getting over my point better, I have had the photographer station the 10-pin at the left hand side up near the foul line, with the 7-pin just opposite. Our idea is to give the ball "all the alley possible." So we move over as far as possible to the left hand side of the approach and move forward in a direct line toward the 10-pin, thus creating a slightly diagonal line of approach. As you release the ball, bring your right hand up in front of your eyes in a direct line with the 10-pin. For the 7-pin, do the same from the opposite side of the approach.

A common error in playing the 10-pin, is getting over as far to the right side of the approach as possible and trying to roll the ball along the edge of the gutter all the way. As a result, one is attempting to contact half of the pin with only half of the ball, a feat even for an expert. And you won't see any expert trying that kind of shot.

In conclusion, let me offer a bit of important advice: No one will ever be a champion unless he puts in plenty of time in practice, and no one can improve very much unless he bowls frequently. Don't think that bowling once a week will cure your lagging ills. So, if you want to raise that average, be sure you make regular visits to your favorite lanes. It will pay off—with interest.

Football Officials Seek TV Showdown

By JOHN F SEMBOWER
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO—The showdown is due between sports and television, and figuratively the football being scrimmaged over is Mr Average TV set-owner who wonders if he will continue to see athletic contests from a front row seat in his living room.

TV's effect on gate receipts is the issue, and it is an ironical note that the fathers of large scale amateur sports, not the professionals, are forcing an early verdict. They are the heads of the collegiate conference and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

So strong is the movement against TV in the Big Ten that the offices here of K L "Tug" Wilson, conference commissioner, no longer try to maintain piously that the Western Conference does not fear for itself, but worries lest smaller schools in its area would suffer by fans staying home to see the Big Ten tussles on video.

They credit their anti-TV policy with the fact that 1950 Big Ten grid attendance dropped only 1 per cent, as against 8 per cent for the east, where several major elevens were televised, and 11 percent for the far west.

And they cite as even more eloquent, the 21 per cent increase in attendance in the southwest, where TV still is relatively rare.

THE NCAA polled 390 of its members, and found an overwhelming opposition to TV as a competitor for the box office. Notre Dame, which was televised all season and played before capacity crowds nevertheless, is virtually alone in favoring its continuance.

The current objective of the collegiate King Canutes, who want to sweep back the tides of TV, is to ban all televising of college football. Notre Dame, unlike P K Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs who stood out against a similar move years ago by baseball magnates who were alarmed over radio when it was an innovation, has indicated that it will abide by a rule against televising.

But the issue is not going by default. For one thing, the fans are writing in and complaining to the Big Ten athletic offices and "Tug" Wilson. Many are among the purchasers of nearly seven million TV sets in the last 12 months, and others are alumni who complain bitterly against being cut out of their favorite attractions.

There also are rumblings of threatened legal action. The point is being raised whether the colleges, particularly those which are state institutions, have a right to discriminate against any single medium of public information dissemination. It is a neat problem which has sent some of the experts to the law libraries.

SEVERAL alternatives are receiving attention. "Tug" Wilson suggests wider use of the closed-circuit theater TV which the Big Ten tried last fall in several large Chicago movie houses.

It was successful enough that one Hollywood film distributor has proposed that the movie industry buy up the exclusive telecasting rights for all major sports features and allow them in their theaters.

Since it is the pocket nerve that is reacting, ways of setting up TV "box offices" are being explored. Phonevision, the pet project of TV manufacturer E F McDonald, Jr, is being watched closely on a trial run here. Three hundred selected set owners may tune in current movies by dialing their telephone operators, who then throw a switch on the phone circuit and clear up a blurred picture. The "admission" price appears on the month-end telephone bill.

Legal eagles also are studying a British proposal that all sports be copyrighted, so that license fees may be collected from hotels, taverns and other places which tune in sports events for groups.

Nor is the proposition that TV hurts sports attendance unanimously accepted. Robert C Kinner, ABC president, stoutly argues that it doesn't, and offers figures to the Big Ten committee to prove his point. On the Pacific coast the telecasters have guaranteed some of the crowds.

TELECASTS of minor boxing shows, wrestling, roller derbies, harness racing and similar events are credited with upping their attendance. Wrigley of the Cubs is in the van of a few major league baseball owners who contend that it is not hunting them, although the minors beef.

Ned Irish of Madison Square Garden in New York says that it does no damage, and few complaints are heard about basketball being adversely affected, even in the Big Ten.

There is an undercurrent among the die-hard collegiate athletic directors that sports should not be put in the position of fighting a losing battle against a technological advance that is sure to continue.

UF Student Blasts FSU Dining Hall

Complaints against dining hall cooking seem to be prevalent upon every campus. Last week the roving reporter's column of the Florida Alligator, University of Florida paper, asked the question "What do you think of the food service on the U of F campus?"

Along with the other replies came this classic from Phil Harrill a business administration major from Homestead: "If you think the food here is bad, you should eat at FSU sometime."

Oil Painting Is Shown In Indiana Gallery

A second showing of an oil painting by Florida State University graduate, Guy D Johnson, will be given at the Art Exhibition in Gary, Indiana, April 1-8. This will be the second showing this year of the painting, "Wind in the Alley."

"Wind in the Alley" was first shown at the annual Hoosier Salon Exhibition in Indianapolis, Indiana, January 29-February 10.

'52 Medical Candidates Offered Test May 12

Medical school candidates for the fall of 1952 are asked to take the Medical College Admission Test given Saturday, May 12, according to FSU pre-medical advisors, Dr J Paul Reynolds and Dr Earl Frieden who offered this advice.

Application forms for the test may be obtained from the pre-medical advisers. Applications may also be secured from the Educational Testing Service, Box 592, Princeton. Completed forms must reach the ETS office by April 28 for the May test.

The FSU advisors say that only juniors, seniors, and graduate students should take the test.

Candidates taking the May test will be able to furnish scores to institutions in early fall. Many leading medical colleges require these tests which are given twice a year. The second test for 1951 will be given Nov 5.

FSU Skating Party Slated for Tomorrow

73 Candidates Vie In UGA Elections Wednesday; ODK Annual Rally Slated

Seventy-three candidates elected at this time, as was previously announced, because only one candidate qualified to serve on the court. The representatives to off-campus court and the traffic court will be elected during the class officer elections in April, 8 in the Outdoor Theater.

Paul Garrison, elections committee chairman announced.

OMICRON Delta Kappa, national leadership-scholastic society, will sponsor the annual ODK Political Rally Tuesday night at 8 in the Outdoor Theater.

Candidates for major University Government offices will speak, presenting their platforms to the students. Each candidate will be limited to five minutes.

Those candidates desiring to speak should contact either Doug Alley, president of ODK, or Dennis Delacure, master of ceremonies for the Political Rally.

IN COLLABORATION with the Political Rally, Radio Station WFSU has offered time on the campus station for those candidates interested in using the radio to further their campaigns.

The Florida Flambeau will again carry campaign letters in the Tuesday issue of the paper. Letters must be type-written, double-spaced and limited to 250 words in length.

Five precincts will be used in the voting Wednesday. They are Lower Westcott, Seminole dining hall lobby, Longmire building, West campus post office and the West campus Student Union.

GARRISON reiterated rules governing the use of campaign posters. Signs may be posted only Platforms of all candidates for UGA offices will be printed in the Tuesday issue of the Flambeau, according to Earl Dobert, editor-in-chief. The date was moved up since the elections will not be held until Wednesday instead of Monday and Tuesday as originally planned, said Dobert.

The final deadline for these platforms will be tomorrow at noon.

Platforms will not be accepted after this hour, stated Dobert.

He added that all persons who submitted platforms for Senator may reclaim them if they want to or they will be held. This is due to the fact that Senatorial races will not be held until class elections.

"No letters to the editor supporting candidates will be printed this year," said Dobert. "That is, unless students want to pay as classified rates for this advertising," he added.

on bulletin boards inside of buildings and may not be posted on trees. Students violating these rules will have their posters confiscated, Garrison stressed.

Campaign expenditures are limited to $25. Advertising space may be purchased in the Flambeau, however, Earl Dobert, editor, warns students against using all of their campaign funds for this one medium of advertising.

THOSE QUALIFYING to run in the Wednesday primaries are: President of UGA: Jerry Thomas, Will Pennell, Ignacio (Panchо) Ayred, Herbert L. Marsh, Mimi (Mike) Sellers.

Askew Addresses University Senate

President Rube Askew asked the University Senate Tuesday for a Student Board of Publications—with teeth—to control the actions of all publications.

He asked the Senate to consider a measure that would provide for a maximum thirty day suspension of editors if advised by the proposed Student Board.

ASKEW requested that the Board be appointed by the UGA President with the approval of the University Council and two-thirds vote of the Student Senate. The board would be responsible to the University Council and would make recommendations to that body involving suspension of editors and referendums concerning suspended editors. Askew stressed the University Council could initiate suspension procedures, but that it could only act on recommendation of the Board.

President Askew said that under his plan, the board "would serve to help editors as well as show them something could be done when a publication strays away from what most of the students think is right." Askew stressed that the recommendations "received the approval of the University Council."

A MEASURE already pending in the Senate concerning the Board of Publications provides that the Board be composed of four students from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes to be chosen by students vote, along

Editor Announces Two Resignations

Harry Copeland, editor of the newly christened Smoke Signals, has announced the resignation of Stan Healy, associate editor, and Mary Jane Marshall, business manager. Both gave the pressure of studies and other work as reasons for their resignations.

Joel Smith, the sole candidate for editor of next year's Smoke Signals, has been named associate editor for the duration of this year. Virginia Smith replaces Mary Ann.

March 21 is the date set by Copeland as deadline for the last issue of the magazine which will appear near the end of the semester. The next issue is now being published and will be distributed April 5. Copeland again stated that more students take advantage of the opportunity to write for publication.

"The success of the magazine depends on campus contributions of student writers," he said.

SGT SAM R NEEL, JR, has been called back into active service as an Army chaplain. Dr Neel, associate professor in the department of philosophy and religion, will report to the eighth infantry division at Fort Jackson, S C, March 28.

Flyers ROTC Has Frosh Class

Campbell Reports Course To Be Given in Summer

The Florida State University Air ROTC will conduct a First Year Basic course in the forthcoming summer session for freshmen.

President Doak S Campbell has announced that this program will be open to new freshmen entering FSU for the first time. It will also be open for the students who enrolled in the Air Force ROTC for the first time at mid-semester registration in 1951.

PARTICIPATION in the AF ROTC Summer session may permit deferment from the draft under the selective service act of 1948. Final selection for deferment will be made after completion of summer school.

Upon successful completion of the Reserve Officers Training Corps program, students receive a commission in the United States Air Force Reserve as second lieutenants.

The Air Force ROTC curriculum has been carefully selected to augment academic subjects which will prepare the student for future service as an Air Force officer if called to active duty.

"PROSPECTIVE students with the following qualifications should contact the West Campus ROTC office for further information," Col Bernice S Barr, FSU officer of Air Science and Tactics said.

The prospects must be male citizens not having reached their 23rd birthday. They must be physically qualified under existing regulations and must be accepted by the university as a regularly

ROVING REPORTER RUBEY

What's Who and That's That

Paul Rubey, our roving reporter, asked: "What do you think of Who's Who and What's That?"

Mickey Johnson, Jr, West Campus: "What's That is completely unprecedented in the annals of college history and I, as an honorable student at FSU, feel that I should have been tapped, because I have cut more classes and have been in more dorms before 2 p m and after 2 p m." And besides, I don't know enough people on campus. That should give me enough points.

Dick Mooney, Jr, 537 West Campus: Who cares? The whole mess is just ridiculous nonsense. I bet I could walk around and find out that nine out of 10 students on campus neither know nor care what its all about.

JACKIE HOWARD, Jr, 303 Reynolds: I think its cute and very, very interesting.

Roy Horton, sr, 849 West Campus: To be honest I don't know.

Tom Conklin, Jr, West Campus: I think its for the birds.

Adam Zarvada, sr, 301 Br hall: There are a few individuals in this school who feel hurt because they weren't mentioned in Who's Who and therefore are questioning the constitutionality of Who's Who on campus. If they are going to do something constructive, and if there is a controversy exist, it instead of running it into the ground.

W A Logan, 849 West Campus: Why don't they shut up and forget the whole thing? All they do is yaka-ti-yak back and forth.

Yvone Lumpkin, Sr, 326 Landis: I think they can raise the biggest fuss over the littlest things here, more than any other place I've been.

BILL PATTERSON, Graduate Student, 216 S Macomb: I think its pretty darn silly.

Frank Leone, Sr, 849 West Campus: I think the guys trying to get in Who's Who are a bunch of extreme nuts. If they want to speak anything on the ball, why should they worry about Who's Who? Let

Florida High School Students Invited to 'Spanish Weekend'

A "Spanish Weekend," to which delegations of high school students from all sections of the state are invited, will be held on Florida State's campus this weekend, March 2-3.

Dr Doak S Campbell, FSU's president, will welcome the group at an assembly period at 9 a m Saturday in the Little Theater, West campus. Registration of the students will be held Friday afternoon in South Cawthon with an evening program also scheduled for Friday. Dr Lincoln D Canfield, head of the Department of Modern Languages, and Dr Margaret Campbell and Dr O F Deland, faculty members, will give illustrated talks on Spain, Mexico and South America.

Dr Tomas Navarro, one of the nation's top Spanish professors, a member of the University of Chicago faculty and now a visiting professor at FSU, will speak to the group during the Saturday morning session. He is the author of much widely used Spanish textbooks.

The possibilities of organizing national honorary chapters among high school students studying Spanish will be discussed Saturday morning by Dr Canfield. This will be followed by a Spanish play, "Zarzuela Is In Town," given by the Jacksonville Landon High school students.

The visiting high school students will be taken for a tour Saturday afternoon to include the new modern FSU Museum, University Gallery and other points of special interest.

Sandspur Tour Gets Go Ahead; Plans Formed

Thomasville, Marianna Negotiations Continue; Florida Trip Possibility

Plans for the Sandspur production, "Gypsy Holiday," to go on tour are now being formulated. Faculty approval of such a tour has been had, it was learned.

Negotiations with Thomasville, Georgia and Marianna, Florida, are now developing. If plans materialize, the Kiwanis club in Thomasville will sponsor the production. The Marinna Alumni association has shown they were interested in Sandspur appearing in the west Florida town.

Letters have been sent to Chambers of Commerce throughout Florida. When answers are received and if any interest is shown for the production, plans for a short tour to Jacksonville and Florida will be made.

THE TOUR of "Gypsy Holiday" will take place sometime between March 10 and April 30. Exact dates will be set until word is received from the cities who desire the production. Once these letters are received, a tentative itinerary will be set up.

"Gypsy Holiday" becomes the first Sandspur production to be approved for a tour. Conferences have been held with Dr Doak S Campbell and arrangements have been worked out whereby Sandspur received the "go-ahead" signal to line up cities interested in the Sandspur production.

The idea for a Sandspur tour originated last year with Herb Reinhard, former director and Earl Dobert.

The plan was not passed by the faculty last year for the production, "Make Up Your Heart."

Book Exchange Info

Students are asked to either pick up their books, money, or request that their book be stored by tomorrow noon, Shirley Gregory, Book Exchange Chairman has announced. Books left at the Exchange without request will be forfeited to the Exchange.

GRASS GREENER ON OTHER SIDE

The picture above illustrates to perfection the apparent disregard many students have for the signs placed to encourage students not to walk on the grass.

Since the Junior Class has put up these signs most students regard them as just something in the way. They continue to walk past the signs and around the signs not attempting to help the grass grow.

Florida State University has one of the most beautiful college campuses in the south. We want to keep it that way.

Why don't you do your part and stay off the grass and give it a chance to "be a lawn?" Your help is needed to carry out this project. Think twice before you go sprinting across the lawn in a short cut to class, or on the way to the Alumni building for a cup of coffee.

If you have to be in a hurry, start two or three minutes earlier.

Smoking Permitted In Women's Dorms

Women students will be permitted to smoke in dormitory rooms beginning Monday, March 5. Dean of Women Katherine Warren announced the lifting of this regulation against smoking in Women students rooms at Dean's Convocation in Westcott auditorium last Tuesday night.

Dean Warren stated that the administration wanted to extend the privilege of smoking in women's rooms for a long time, but the delay was in the interest of safety.

"WE HAVE had to wait until the older dormitories were installed with the necessary equipment before smoking could be permitted," Dean Warren said. She added that it wouldn't have been fair to let the women in the newer dorms smoke while withholding the privilege to the residents of the older buildings. "We waited until smoking could be permitted in all dormitories."

The regulations concerning the "smokers" will remain in effect. They will continue to close at 12 o'clock. This ruling is to prevent

Pi Phis and Thetas Clash Tomorrow in Powder Bowl

The Rose Bowl has never seen anything like it. The Cotton Bowl officials would be amazed. Over what? What else but the annual Pi Beta Phi-Kappa Alpha Theta Powder Bowl game to be held on soccer field, Saturday at 1:30 p m. A free will offering will be collected by Garnet Key, for the campus chest.

This annual presentation for the past four years may not be a football game in the well known sense of the word, but who may dispute the versatility, and playing power of the FSU girls? Just ask Nelson Italiano, Seminole star from Tampa, and coach of the Theta team. Although the rules of regular touch football are employed, the further the practice games progress, the more energetic the girls get.

DURING a practice session, the energetic Thetas unexpectedly trampled Coach Italiano while trying to perfect one of their plays. Unlike most football practices, which sometimes involve serious injury to the players, damage has been slight to both the Pi Phi Indians and the Theta Wildcats. The worst that has happened so far has been several broken fingers and a few sprained football player that's bad enough!

THIS YEAR'S Theta team outweighs the Pi Phis by five pounds. The average weight of the Wildcats is 120 pounds. The Indians average 115.

Only in a Powder Bowl game may a person find football players that possess beauty as well as playing prowess. Lining up for the

Seminoles Enter NAIB; Mercer Cops Dixie Title

By SCOTT MARSHALL

After having lost to Mercer in the finals of the Dixie Conference basketball tournament, Florida State University's Seminoles will enter the District 25 NAIB cage tourney, which begins tonight at the Duval Armory in Jacksonville.

Students will be admitted to the armory upon presentation of his ID card and payment for a student ticket.

The University of Tampa Spartans have been seeded first in the district tourney, with Georgia Teachers College, Stetson, and Florida State following in that order.

Drawings for the four-team tournament, whose winner will attend in the National NAIB in Kansas City, were made yesterday afternoon. Coach Bud Kennedy and his Seminoles left here yesterday at noon for Jacksonville and the cage meet.

IN THE DIXIE tournament, Lamar Clements poured in 34 points to down the Mercer five in a 69-65 victory over Florida State, and Mercer went on to defeat Georgia 64-54 in the semi-finals, but couldn't cope with the sharpshooting Clements and the fired-up Mercer outfit.

During the finals, Mercer was playing to win this one for Coach Jim Cowan." who will enter the navy this summer. Sam Glassman got into the spirit of things, received his draft call, and billed the game as one "between the boys from Indiana, who comprise most of Kennedy's Seminoles, and boys from below the Mason-Dixon line on the Mercer squad.

Add to the above an overflowing crowd of 1,500, the only FSU rooter being Kennedy's wife.

last day for students to obtain tickets free of charge by presenting their ID cards.

At thirty-three Hendl is the youngest American conductor to occupy a major symphony podium in this country. He does not claim to have been a child prodigy, but says that he had no idea of making a career in music until after he was sixteen. At that time the young man began attending New York concerts and decided to study piano with Clarence Adler, Hendl's phenomenal success story was interrupted only by World War II, when he joined the air force.

IN 1945, after conducting a field peloton with the Boston "Pops" Orchestra, he became Koussevitzky's conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society under whose tutelage and in spite of its short experience in conducting, Hendl made such progress that by the end of the season when Rodzinski was taken ill and Hendl had to take over on short notice.

With growing fame the young musician took over the leadership of the Dallas Symphony in its 49th year. With this union of the old and new the orchestra doubled its number of concerts the next year. The group is now

US Marine Officer Here March 5, 6

Captain M E McNeil of the United State Marine Corps will be in the Alumni building on March 5 and 6, room 403, from 9 a m to 4 p m, to enist students in an Officers Candidate's program.

Undergraduate students, preferably sophomores and juniors, can enlist in the platoon leaders class.

Graduate students and second semester seniors can enlist in a special program which offers these students the opportunity to qualify for appointment to commissionary rank upon completion of the required period of training.

All students, including women students, who are interested in a commission in the Marines are urged to meet with Captain McNeil.

Kiwanis Production Will Feature Gym Acts at High School

Two Gymkana acts will be included in the Kiwanis Variety Show, for the oenefit of underprivileged children, at Leon High school, Thursday, March 8, at 8 p m.

The acts to be presented are the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots with Barbara Stroide in charge, and the Trampolette Trampolette performers are Dick Gutting, Scoty Stranton, Jack Miller, Dick Plott, Betty Wheeler and Mary Cummond.

A FULL ROAD show is being prepared to appear in Monticello on Friday, March 16, said Dr Hartley Price, Gymkana director.

Applications are now being accepted for the Gymkana Extravanganza. "Playland USA". Prospective dancers, singers, acrobats, managers, and committee members are asked to fill out an application blank at the East campus gymnasium during the regular Varsity Gym team practice from 4 to 6 p m daily. Applicants are asked to report to Barbara Strode, Dirk Gutting, Jim Berg, Bob Welch, Mickie Kendall, Ed Field or Gladys Tinkler.

Practice for the dance line will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4-5 p m under the direction of Gladys Tinkler.

Bible's 'Family Portrait' Speech Dep't Offering

Have you ever wondered what Jesus' family was like, or how his mother and brothers and neighbors felt about the spreading fame of the "other carpenter"? Though the facts are all too few, the playwrights Coffee and Cowan have used imagination to draw for us a very moving portrait of those obscure people. The play is based on the well-known Bible passage, "A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house."

With hardly more than a week of practice remaining in the opening night March 14, rehearsals are in full swing. It will run March 14 - 17. in ha Conrad Little Theater. Many supporting parts are still open and this week chief emphasis is no longer necessary for the actors to talk to "invisible" brothers and sisters. However, much of the practice is still being done in the auditorium, in fact, two more performers were taken out by the flu just two days ago.

AN IMPORTANT innovation has been made in the selling of tickets for the show, announces Lyla Goldberg, assistant director. Any organization or group of over 20 people, including classes, may purchase a block of reserved seats at $.50 each instead of the regular price of $.75. The offer has been extended especially to churches and other religious groups with the suggestion that whole congregations take advantage of the discount.

The central personality of the play, Jesus' mother Mary, is portrayed by Jan Vanhees, whose gentle stage presence is well-suited to the part. Although Jesus himself does not appear on stage, his four brothers do. They are James, played by Gene Mercer; Joseph, portrayed by Bill Yarbrough Simon, characterized by Alan Downes; and Judah, with Don Remington in the part.

Rich-year-old Ned Harper will appear as Daniell, Julie Sterm as Mary Cleophas, Jayne Gardner as Mary Magdalen, George Cary as the Rabbi and as Mordecai, Earl Harford as a Diaclple, and Fred Myers as Mendial the marriage-broker.

Evelyn Gray will be Reba, Karolyn Bardin will be Naomi, Lyla Goldberg Elisha, Martha Sutton Esther; and Shirley Hurlburt will play Hepsiba, Leah LaPlante will play Ann, Mary Alice Newton will be a Woman of Jerusalem, and Jean Flynn will portray Salome.

The part of Mathias is acted by Bill Tebo, Appius Radtran is taken by John Mahler, Bob Griffin portrays Nathan, Avery Crosby will be Amos, J W Rumble takes the part of Leban, Pete Williams is Eben and Lewis Aiken, jr, has the part of Joshua.

Jayne Gardner is stage manager, with Rose Buancarosa as assistant. Assistant directors are Lyla Goldberg and Evelyn Gray, and Barbara Miller is co-ordinator. The play is under the direction of Roger Busfield.

STARRING on the Pi Beta Phi team are Jeri Munroe, Homecoming Queen for 1950; Carmen Hahn, Tau Delta Delta Queen of 1950; and Judy Ellis, Delta Tau Delta Queen of 1951.

The Wildcats and Indians will play in style when they wear their own jerseys for their respective teams. The Cherokees will wear the jerseys with black letters, and the Pi Phi's will be wearing wine jerseys with white letters. Each jersey will feature the Greek letters of the respective sorority on the front.

Askew Addresses

with the three editors, and three faculty members acting in an advisory capacity. It would have the power of recommending editorial policy and "seeing that publications follow their own policy."

One of Askew's other suggestions concerned compiling of a book for students "which would list every office for which a student could be tried." University Senate in previous action had approved a committee for this purpose with no limiting clause to whom the committee members should be. Askew proposed that the committee be composed of Judicial System officers—to compile the rules and submit them to the Senate for confirmation.

THE SENATE action which set up the Rules and Regulations Committee also included that administration and student rules should be differentiated by use in the book of rules. Askew's request made no provision for separation of rules.

Other requests of President Askew to the Senate were to provide for a Pow-Wow Editor at the student official. Pass a statute amendment to provide for University Recreation Association "because they vote for (very) student money." Clarify statute and power of the Senate "Investigation powers for statute or whatever means is proper. Take a secret vote away from Vice-Presidents in Charge of Men's and Women's Affairs to eliminate the double vote these officials now have. Provide some way other than a referendum to remove student officers. Clarify Section 8 of Article 10 of the UGA constitution.

A report given the Senate on dancing in the Seminole room was that the manager of the cafeteria "liked the idea, but he wanted it signed statement from the senate so that he could put the request through channels." It was decided to send him the written request.

Senator Jimmy Evans reported on the request for Sandspur-owned cleanser for students on full restriction which ha had given to Frances Higginbotham Louwerse, Women's Judicial Court chairman. He said Mrs Louwerse had told him she would do as she saw fit. No clemency was granted.

Jack Holmes, Burton Welch and June Conyers were absent. Cass Yonge was also absent, but excused.

Justice Sebring Says Students Welcome A

Florida State students are always welcome to attend Florida Supreme Court sessions, Chief Justice Harold L Sebring, has written Dr Doak S Campbell, university president.

The chief justice informed Dr Campbell that during some of the Supreme Court sessions a considerable number of PSU students were in attendance as spectators.

"We are gratified at this display of interest." Chief Justice Sebring has written, "and shall be glad for you to let it be known that the students of the University are always welcome to attend the sessions of the Court."

Aside from the well established rule that people who attend the sessions are expected to observe the proper decorum and that men are expected to wear coats, there is no other "restrictions," the letter continued.

State Symphony Features Foster In Third Concert

Florida State University faculty member and pianist, Sidney Foster, was featured in a soloist musical program last Monday in the Florida State Symphony performance.

The "All Foster" program, which was presented in Woodward auditorium, was the third concert of the State Symphony this year. Conductor of the orchestra is Dr Karl Kuersuiner, dean of the School of Music.

In his appearance on the program, Foster appeared in the dual role of both a soloist and composer. In addition to playing the Tchaikowsky Concerto in B-flat minor as the orchestra soloist, Foster also wrote a Concert Overture. The Overture was a special feature of the night's program.

The music of famous American composer, Stephen Foster, was placed in a special arrangement of songs, the Stephen Foster Gallery, by Morton Gould. Gould has taken some of the most popular compositions of the famous composer and woven them into modern style.

The playing of such old songs as Swanee River and Old Black Joe were among the numbers recast in the Gould style.

large gatherings of students who will cause an undue amount of noise. However, smoking is permitted in individual rooms all night. "Of course, it is understood that the extension of smoking privileges entails no change in student's rooms. Students will be expected not to smoke in corridors, on the stairs, in the gutters, and at other places in which smoking has been prohibited," Dean Warren stated.

DEAN WARREN urges that all residents be careful in the interest of safety. She has issued the following list of precautions to be followed by all residents:

1—Provide yourself with sufficient ashtrays to meet your needs.

2—Never smoke in bed, chair, or any inflammable container as an ashtray.

3—Be sure that all cigaret stubs have been extinguished before leaving your room or going to bed.

4—Never smoke in bed.

5—Never throw a burning cigaret stub into your trash basket or into the trash shoot.

6—Use consideration at all times of your roommate in your smoking habits.

IN OBSTACLE IN PATH

One of the Important Criticisms of General Education is 'Electives'

of the longest waged, and only one of the most important criticisms of general education programs today is this thing called the "free elective" system. Well-known educator recently said that this system is one of the main obstacles in the path of young students trying to get an education. On entering the college the freshman is faced with a maze of unimportant, often ridiculous, courses which usually have no bearing upon his general line of study. The critics contend that the student has only a little time in his course of study to concentrate upon fewer and more important topics. They further that these electives only confuse the student but, in most cases, actually stir him from his particular line of study.

THE POINT is well taken when we consider how often students change their majors during the first two years of college. Some authorities have shown an alarming trend towards this system of the trivial and the far-fetched.

Here is just a sample of what you find offered in many well-established schools: Ceramics (pottery), Secretarial "science," wardrobe planning, cookery, selection of house furnishings, living with children, military air science, bowling, square dancing, how to counsel people, circus training, badminton, tap dancing, tumbling, how to get married, story telling, essentials of acting, taxonomy and ecology of marine birds, and hundreds more.

THERE SEEMS to be a cancerous nature about this system; it is difficult to check once it finally embeds itself in the college program. Critics not only charge that the students are confused and misguided by this system, but that it wastes millions of the taxpayer's dollars. They hold that this money and time might be concentrated on a more limited field of study, thus affording the student a more integrated and specific picture of his educational plan for the first two years. It is a case of weeding out the trivial and nonessential and replacing it with more important study.

For example, a concentrated study in the field of government would be more important than learning about life among the Eskimoes, or Indian basket-weaving. A similar course in contemporary moral problems and current events would be more important than swimming 101, or the "how to adjust oneself to life" series. A study of the mating habits of Nigerian Dung Beetles will be replaced with a study of the voting habits of American people.

YET THERE ARE those who argue for this type of system. They believe that more student demands can be satisfied. Students want more freedom of selection and a wider field to choose from so why not have it in them? The students are reluctant to pay out money unless they can choose from a wide range of studies. This argument is a popular one and is held by quite a few educators.

However, an important point has been overlooked in such a supposition. The majority of freshman students do not really know what they want. As a rule, they arrive here in complete ignorance. They only know that here is something called an education and they want to get it. They are more confused and bewildered, than they are satisfied, when they glance over the hundreds of different courses offered, some of which they must take, some which they don't know whether to take, and some of which no sane person would take.

YOU CANNOT satisfy everyone the critics contend. To try to do so is impossible. Better it would be if there was more centralization of the general education program; a plan whereby the students would begin their four years of college together, instead of being thrown into a muddle of scattered, unrelated, and unimportant fields.

In the minds of some educators, perhaps these electives are just as important as any other courses. Maybe everything is just relative, as they say. But today even some of the freshmen are beginning to realize that there are some things much more important than others, and that this free elective system is a growing obstacle in their search for an education.

Fish Fry at Bradford

Delta Sigma Pi will hold a fish fry tonight at Lake Bradford. Members are again reminded that this is a rush party and to invite all prospective pledges.

Everyone will meet in front of the Sweet Shop at 6:30 pm for transportation to the lake.

Charles Hofmann Will Present Illustrated Lectures March 6-7

The Seminoles of Florida State will have the opportunity to listen to the music and rhythms of other Indians March 6-7 when Charles Hofmann, musician, author and librarian, will give illustrated lectures here on "Music in Primitive Society."

Hofmann's lectures will be accompanied by slides, films and examples from his own collection of primitive instruments and recordings of folk music. Some of these recordings are in the Library of Congress' Archive of Folklore, and others have been made into a record album for the use of schools and the general public. He has also written a book on the topic, War Hoops and Medicine Songs, which is now being published.

HOFMANN will give his first lecture especially for music students Tuesday at 3 p m in the Music hall. This lecture, consisting of recordings of music and dances of African tribes, Australian aborigines and the natives of the Pacific islands, will, however, be opened to other interested persons.

Music of the American Indians will be the subject of his second talk to be held at 5 p m on Wednesday. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Hofmann is recognized as an authority on this subject, having spent much of the last 15 years gathering materials on field trips. He has recorded the songs of the Winnebago, Zuni Chippewa, Sioux and other tribes.

THE NOTED expert on Indians will also speak before two classes, Anthropology and Art at 11 a m, March 7, in room 311, Westcott; and Anthropology at 1 p m that same day in room 209, History building.

Hofmann, whose interest in the music of the Indian started while teaching music history and appreciation, first gave a series of lectures at the American Museum of Naturay History in New York, over a period of 20 nationality groups. He is now doing promotinal and radio work for the Tampa Public Library and conducting weekly broadcasts on books and music.

British Universities Open To USA Students

Three British Universities have announced that they will have summer school courses open to American students.

The universities, Birmingham, Edinburgh and London, has been approved by the Veteran's Administration. The courses will include literature, history, social science and the liberal arts.

For further information, students should contact the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement.

Harvard Professor Lectures at FSU

Harvard University research professor of neuro-psychology, Dr K S Lashley, was guest speaker at two public lectures Wednesday.

At 8 p m a public Sigma Xi lecture was presented on "The Brain and Our Behavior" by the director of the Yerkes Laboratories of Primate Biology. The Yerkes Laboratories are sponsored jointly by Yale University, Harvard University, and the Rockefeller Foundation.

Internationally known for his work was psychology, physiology and neurology, Dr Lashley also spoke on "The Frontal Lobes of the Brain." This second lecture was held at 4:30 p m in the Longmire auditorium before the Psychology Seminar.

AAUP Sponsors Group Discussion Here Mon

The American Association of University Professors on the Florida State Campus will sponsor a round table discussion on the topic "What Abilities and Preparations Contribute to Effective Undergraduate College Teaching?"

The round table will be held at 8 p m at the new Science hall auditorium, room 194-B, on Monday. "This timely topic should be of timely interest to all the faculty of FSU," said Michael P Baldwin, School of Public Administration, in making the announcement.

All faculty are cordially invited to attend and participate.

Faculty Trio Gives Program Tonight

The Faculty Trio will present a program of chamber music in Music hall this evening at 8:15. The concert is open to the public. The trio, consisting of Mary Esther Winslow, pianist; Robert Sedore, violinist, and Owen Sellers, cellist, will be assisted by the Florida State University violinist. Stuart Crab, for the program.

The performers have all played numerous times before university audiences, both as soloists and in ensemble work. The trio recently took part in the dedication of the Stephen Foster Memorial at White Springs.

The program will include three nocturnes for strings and piane by the famous composer, Ernest Bloch, and the second trio, in C minor, by Felix Mendelssohn. Wish Professor Crabb adding his viola to the violin, cello, and piano ensemble, the group will play the famous Quartet in G minor, Opus 25, of Brahms.

Violinist to Give Graduate Recital

Miss Virginia Rouse, violinist will present a graduate recital in the Music hall on Monday evening, March 5, at 8:15. The program will be open to the public.

Miss Rouse is a graduate assistant in the School of Music and plays in the State Symphony of Florida and the University Symphony. She is concert-mistress for the latter organization.

The program will include the Sonata, Opus 12 by Gabriel Faure; the Second Concerto of Wieniawski, and selected works by Heifetz, Kreisler, Lladow and Kabalevsky. Miss Jeanne Byrd will accompany the violinist on the piano.

Serve as Interns

Colleen Martin, James Smith and Homer Wakefield, graduate students, have been selected to serve as interns in guidance in the Office of Co-ordinator of Counseling, for spring semester. These students are enrolled for advanced work in the Guidance Training Unit under the direction of Dr Harold Cottingham and Professor Stewart Hurry.

Secondary Schools Served by Bureau

A School Press Bureau is being established by the School of Journalism, according to Dean Laurence E Campbell. The Press Bureau will serve publications in Florida's secondary schools, he said.

The primary purpose of the School Press Bureau, Dr Campbell stated, will be to cooperate with the Florida Scholastic Press Association.

Bulletins on school press activities will be issued periodically. Educational helps for student publications and journalism courses will also be provided.

Dr Campbell reported that the School of Journalism is completing a census of student publications in Florida and will issue a school press directory this spring. Additional services will develop in cooperation with school press advisors.

● ON BEING A SUCCESSFUL EDITOR

The untimely suspension of John Baker, editor of the Florida Alligator, brings up this discourse on how to be a college newspaper editor and still have friends.

Below we present several points that every college newspaper editor must learn before he takes the job.

1—Never write stories, features, columns or editorials that will irritate the faculty, administration or student government officers. The editor must learn that these individuals are always right in anything they may undertake.

2—Always remember that faculty, administrators and student government officers are George Washingtons.

3—Never write stories that may irritate alumni. It is not good for the school and they may write letters to you saying you do not love the "dear old alma mater."

4—Never point out to the faculty, administration, or student government officers ills besetting the school. You will be a subversive character if you do.

5—Never, never, never question any rules handed down by faculty, administration or student government officers. This is sure death and may get you suspended or a lucrative position that pays 35 cents an hour.

6—Always treat your publication as a public relations organ for the school. Write glowing tributes to the faculty, administration and student government officers. This is sure fire public relations and will get you in good with those you write about.

7—Any story you may be dubious about running should be checked by the council of deans before it is printed. Of course, they may be undecided about the matter and have to submit it to the board of control.

8—Those editors in the odd number years, such as 1951, should not write things that the legislature may misconstrue as this endangers the budget of the university.

9—Always print the news just as the faculty, administration and student government officers want it printed. Never think for yourself. This is a dangerous habit as it shows that more than one person is capable of thinking.

10—And as a corollary to number nine, never print both sides of the story unless they say the same thing.

These are but a few points an editor must understand before he is allowed to take office. After all, good journalistic practices must be forgotten if you want to edit a college newspaper. Why take unnecessary risks and stick your neck out by questioning the acts of the faculty, administration and student government officers? "They are right," is the motto you must adopt if your paper is to be successful.

Take the case of John Baker as an example. Why, he reported the news as he saw it happen, a capital crime in the collegiate Fourth Estate. Look at what the modern day "Star Chamber" did to him.

He had the unmitigated gall to write all those nasty things about the school, the faculty, the administration and the student government officers. Bad taste for a college editor.

Truth?

That must be sacrificed if you are to "win friends and influence people." It's a funny world, isn't it? Someone once said "Truth always hurts." When it gets to the point it hurts so bad, a college editor gets suspended.

John Baker is a journalism major at the university and has taken the required courses in his field and has learned well the principles upon which the Fourth Estate has been founded. But the practices these principles he is excoriated by the people who taught him the principles.

To end this discussion let's quote from Richard Brinsley Sheridan, in a debate in the English House of Commons in 1810:

"Give me but the liberty of the press, and I will give to the minister a venal House of Peers—I will give him a corrupt and servile House of Commons—I will give him the full sway of the patronage of office—I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence—I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him to purchase up submission and overawe resistance—and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed, and will attack the mighty fabric he has reared with that mightier engine—I will shake down from its height corruption, and bury it amidst the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."

Liberty of the press on the college campus is threatened by those in position who cannot stand the truth—it hurts.

● GOOD NEWS TONIGHT

The suspension of the "No Smoking" rules for women in their dormitories has been hailed as a good news by thousands of co-eds. No longer will they be addicted to "nicotine fits" that have been prevalent in the past and which were conducive to rule breaking and possible judiciary action.

However, the women must be careful in their cigarette habits as was pointed out by Dean of Women Katherine Warren.

Rules of safety which Dean Warren says should be observed should not be taken lightly by the women students. You should:

1—Provide yourself with a sufficient number of ashtrays to meet your needs.

2—Never use the trash basket or any inflammable container for extinguishing cigarettes.

3—Be sure all cigaret stubs have been put out before leaving the room or retiring.

4—Never smoke in bed.

5—Show consideration for your roommate at all times in your smoking habits.

Little considerations like these may save your life as well as save the privilege of smoking in the dormitories.

● INJUNS VS WILDCATS

Tomorrow afternoon the first event to donate its proceeds to the Campus Chest gets underway. The annual Pi Phi versus Kappa Alpha Theta Powder Bowl tilt is being managed by Garnet Key who will take up contributions for the Campus Chest fund.

Rather than charge admission, both teams and Garnet Key agreed that donations should be on a volunteer basis. They are confident that the gate receipts will meet their highest expectations, and they are eager to start the fund with a large contribution.

For the spectator, the game is something new in the way of entertainment. Anything can happen, and usually does.

Competition will be keen this year. The Theta Wildcats will be out for revenge for that 12-0 defeat they suffered last year, and the Pi Phi Indians will be determined to make it two in a row.

Game time is 1:30 p.m. The place is the soccer field.

We have screamed for a Campus Chest, and now we must give it our support. This is your first opportunity to do so, and your reaction will determine whether it will be your last.

See you at game time.

● SUPPORT ODK RALLY

The second Omicron Delta Kappa Society political rally for University Government Association will be held next Thursday evening in the Music building amphitheatre.

This event has become an annual affair for all candidates to make a speech telling why they desire the office they are running for. It is an opportunity for all students to "see what they are getting" in the way of student government officers for the next year.

In order to make this program a success it is imperative that many students turn out. The present student government has been criticized a great deal in the past. You, the students have done the criticising, and yet it is you, the student, who has the say so over these candidates.

You cannot tell about these candidates until you have heard them speak their piece. They will tell you what they stand for and what they expect to do for you, the student.

To make sure this political rally is a success, why don't you take out to some hear the speakers. This is the only fair way you can make up your mind as to who will do the job best.

Don't use all your bricks in one dream-castle.

Quiet is a picture, a memory, a tear . . . it says nothing but means so much.

'PON MY WORD

REFUSES TO ACCEPT INFERIORITY COMPLEX

By BETSY BLANTON

Not too many students took my suggestion to attend last Tuesday's Senate session, although I got an inferiority complex upon discovering that I had new fans and but 1 refuse to accept that.

The meeting did prove interesting. There was a pep talk by Dean McGehee in addition to the talk by the UGA presidents.

Rube presented many good suggestions for legislation in his 25 minute talk. Some of them are already being acted on by the Senate which only goes to show you that the Senate and University Council are in accord on some issues anyway.

Rube first brought up the Student Board of Publications. The Senate has been attempting to set up statutes governing the powers of such for some time. The legislative committee, headed by Mary Ruth Samuels, has met with the editors of the publications and the heads of journalism in the board in order to get their ideas on the subject.

Rube's suggestion would provide for a board of five members appointed by the University Council. The membership would have to be of junior or senior standing.

The Senate committee reached the conclusion that there should be four student members to be elected during UGA elections and they could be of sophomore, junior or senior standing.

Both the Council and Senate agree that the duties of the three publications should serve as ex-officio members along with the faculty advisors of the publications.

Another important proposal made by the UGA presidents was that to combine the duties of the vice presidents in charge of men's and women's affairs. He would then become head of the University Senate and have a president pro tempore elected by both men's and women's Senate. These officers would have the power to initiate all legislation from their respective bodies to the University Senate.

We are in full agreement with this suggestion since we have long felt that no officer should serve in both the legislative and executive branches of student government. This would provide for a board of five members appointed by the University Council. The membership would have to be of junior or senior standing.

As for the suggestion to set up a committee to compile rules and regulations governing student-

dents, that was suggested at a previous Senate meeting. Rube also proposed that each of these rules have a maximum and minimum penalty for violators. We had also made that suggestion in a previous column, but some members of the judicial system say that is impossible.

"Pen My Word disagrees with the idea that all members of the committee should be Judiciary members also. We feel that the opinions of columnists not connected with the judicial system would be valuable here.

The judiciary should be represented on the committee but should not dominate the entire group. One of its main maladjustments of students has been the judicial branch of student government, and the committee would be an excellent opportunity to measure student sentiment on the issue.

Rube's other proposals mostly concerned clearing up sections of the student constitution and providing for offices which are in existence and yet have not statute to govern those "vestigial" offices.

I must admit that we slipped out at the meeting and let Rube stay for the Senate business session.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

EXPLAINS ELECTION PROCEDURE

By JERRY THOMAS

As in last year's UGA elections, there will be certain offices for which only one candidate will qualify.

In accordance with the law, although there is only one candidate, 50 per cent of the votes cast must be cast for approval.

In past elections the student body was not conscious of this law and did not know that a candidate for office where only one candidate had qualified.

This ignorance was easy to understand, because it seemed foolish to vote for an office where only one student had qualified.

In such cases where 50 per cent of the votes were not cast in favor of that person, another person was appointed to the office.

At Tuesday's women's convocation, it was announced that girls would be allowed to smoke in their rooms.

FANCY THIS

PIZZA--WONDERFUL WITH BEER

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

One of the most interesting things about Americans is their ability to take foreign customs and improve on it. An example of this is the Italian dish, pizza pie.

This unusual-looking dish has many variations, any of them will make you drool. It is basically a pie crust filled generously with oil and filled with spices, which are baked with a mixture of cheese and tomatoes, anchovies, mushrooms, or anything else you desire.

To eat pizza, you cut it into regular pie wedges and fold it through the middle. It's warm and tasty and is wonderful with a cold beer.

The new smoking ruling seems to be taking effect immediately with the decision made a couple of years ago. This ruling concerns smoking in the privacy of women's dormitories.

Two years ago, this proposal came up in women's senate. It passed after much study. Then it went to the faculty review board which also passed on it. Sprinkler systems were installed throughout the campus. Everything was ready for the big mo-

He said that since FSU was a state institution governed by state laws and subject to fire insurance, girls could not be permitted to smoke in their rooms because of the fire hazard. So the subject was dropped and forgotten by FSU.

When Dean Katherine Warren announced the recent revocation that smoking would be allowed, everyone was amazed. It may all be incidental, but it sure is nice.

On the lighter side: During convo, Dean Warren commended the girls on their example to raise the moral standards at FSU. Meanwhile the men were doing a fine job. One wit remarked that the morals are higher because there are less men on campus.

That Sunday afternoon concert deal seems to be shaping up nicely. Dick Eastman, a music student who thought of the idea, reported that he has already lined up to perform on Sundays in the amphitheatre, and I hear

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

'SMILE AND WORLD SMILES WITH YOU'

By JOEL P SMITH

Just in case you don't know, this is NATIONAL SMILE WEEK . . .

No doubt you've heard of advertisers for the Ipana Toothpaste Company, Colgate, the Universal Razor, etc. But this is a different type of smile. It's a smile that's been around a long time. It's National Smile Week . . . Last year the elections did last that long.

Remember the slogan, "Smile and the world smiles with you?" Well, smile around campus and they think you are in politics! But seriously though, it is a good habit to get into . . . when you pass by a car window it might result in a date. Learn to brush your teeth after breakfast.

This week being national smile week, your columnist deems it fitting to give you the poop on a campus character that is always full bet smiles . . . regardless of the week. Ed Stripling is the type person who can drive through the suspenders break or when his car gives out of gas between campuses.

Strip never misses the opportunity to give out with a healthy laugh no matter how serious the situation.

Such the time when a prankster substituted some publicity copy about a shoe lace company for a prayer and passed it over to Jake Bassett during a serious initiation ceremony in his capacity of chaplain, read the copy as it came to him and he came across a sentence which read, "during the war plastic shoe laces" . . . he got the point. He was an initiate at the time and was supposed to be inspired by the ceremony, but Jake's mistake struck him funny and the initiation was delayed a bit.

Then there was the time when "Strip" was pledging with a sophisticated English major. In the course of trying to be serious and intelligent—and at the same time cut a steak—Strip's hand slipped, and the steak, well seasoned with catsup, fell neatly into his lap. He didn't get mad or embarrassed . . . Strip and his date both "let their hair down" and had a hilarious evening.

Have you ever wondered just how a curvaceous coed would look in a football uniform . . . with all the padding and equipment? Saturday afternoon at 1:30 you can get that chance at the stadium when the Kappa Alpha Theta Wildcats clash with the Pi Phi Indians in the annual powder puff grid clash.

Fletcher Gray, Pi Phi cheerleader, estimates the line average at 110 pounds and adds that, "We have got a couple of big girls." When questioned about the casualties, Gray remarked that to date they were lighter than in the three previous years.

The Thetas will leave their "kites" at home Saturday and apply some of the rugged tactics that they have learned from

'Job Well Done'

Dear Editor:

In most all large events such as the Sadspur Ball there is a group that whose work often goes unnoticed and unrewarded. Jr. milk—12c and margarine—3c. milk—12c —10c. That adds up to 45c. I think that's just ridiculous!

I'm sick of fiddle-faddle investigations and I will not be coerced by the administration to give the students the run around.

I propose that an organization be formed for boycotting and picketing the dining halls and something is done about the quality and prices of the food we are served.

Phony intellectual and student politicos are quaking in their bucks at the announcement of Mike Sellers as a candidate for UGA President. Mike is the spokesman for numerous rumors that rude young man wants to actually represent the students. He can't blame them for being knocked off their feet by such a revolutionary idea. Student Government at most schools winds up in the hands of office-crazy egomaniacs who don't they know what's best for the students whether they like it or not. They call themselves generalities confident so that they can make acquiesence of them.

Events in the senior men's class include the 300-yard medley relay 220-yard free style, 150-yard individual medley, three meter diving, 100-yard free style, 200-yard free style, 200-yard backstroke, 220-yard breast stroke, 440-yard free style, and 400-yard free style relay.

The Seminoles are expected to finish strong in the free style, diving, and 400-yard relay events. Outstanding FSU free stylers include Dick Wells, Walter Jardine, Dick White, and Pete Dunn-Rankin.

All-America Roger Slater and Tom Cowden who finished only two in last year's AAU diving event, are top contenders for the title again. However, the rules for the AAU high board will hamper the FSU divers to some extent as they have been diving from a low board throughout the season.

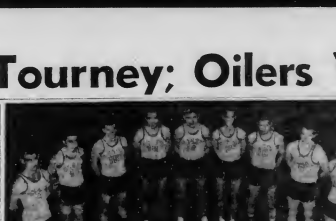
Garnet Nine Holds 4-0 Edge In Squad Tilts

Florida State University's Garnet baseballers hold a 4-0 edge over the Gold nine in intra-squad games to date.

Tuesday the Garnet team topped the Gold's 6-0, after Ed Leonard and Ed Sessions hurled shutout ball. Lockard tossed no hit, no run during his five innings on the mound. The Sophomore moundsman fanned one and gave up four free passes.

Three singles by second baseman Lee Bailey topped the Garnet nine at the plate.



Wallace Bullock turned in the top performance on the hill for the bold squad. The left handed hurler gave up only two runs, four hits, stuck out two and passed two during his five inning mound stint.

In Wednesday's intra-squad tilt, 24 hits were yielded by a duo of pitchers. After coming from behind, the Garnet's ended on the big side of the 14-11 affair.

BAILEY and Augie Pompella topped the Garnet offense with three hits each. Bailey blasted a home run and two singles, while Pompella walloped two triples and two singles.

Billy Teel and Nowlin paced the Gold baseballers with three hits each, also. Teel, a holdover from last year's Duke Crabtree championship Seminoles, collected a double and two singles, while Nowlin hit a triple and two singles.

Coach Charlie Armstrong has planned a number of intra-squad tilts for next week. Students are invited to attend the games.

Seminoles Enter

Laura, and one gets an idea what Florida State fared in the bid for the crown against Mercer.

BETWEEN halves of the title game, the annual Dixie conference team was chosen. Bob Hartman and Bob Whitmer were named to the squad from FSU. Others were Fred Lapper, Bill Valentine, Florida Southern Colleges; Clements, Richard Reid, Glenn Cassell, Mercer; Phil Wallace, Robert Pruitt, Millsaps College.

In a consolation final game, Millsaps topped Oglethorp 72-68.

Beaten twice by the Seminoles during the regular season, the Mercer quintet broke a 62-62 tie with 3:16 of play remaining, and held on to the ball to win the title.

Clements finally broke the Bears ahead to stay when he sank a charity toss that gave Mercer a 63-62 edge. Ronnie Neidlinger had deadlocked the score with a foul shot.

Two additional free throws by the hot Clements and a pair of field goals by Glenn Cassell kept Mercer moving and offset a trio of free throws dropped through by Bob Hartman and Bob Whitmer.

HARTMAN paced the Seminoles with 21 points. Whitmer ended with 12. Dick Trobaugh, 11; Tom McLaughlin, 10; Bud Scott, 8; Jack Merriman, 3; and Netzles, 1.

Fifty-one personal fouls were called during the contest by the officials, seven players fouling out. Hartman, McLaughlin, Trobaugh, and Scott fouled out on the Seminoles side while Clements, Cassell, and Wilson left Bears' pet personals.

CLEMENTS got the Bears out in front with a field goal, and Mercer kept the lead until McLaughlin knotted the score at 2-2 with four minutes remaining in the first half.

From there the lead see-sawed back and forth until the FSU cagers went trudging to the sidelines via the personal foul route, and Clements hooped his free throw.

In the Howard tilt, Hartman dumped in 29 points, leading the Seminoles to their semi - finals triumph over the stubborn Bulldog five.

The smooth working Tribe trailed at halftime 32-30, but found the range in the last 10 minutes of play. A switch to a pressing defense pulled Howard off balance, and in the final five minutes Florida State tallied 16 points while the Bulldogs were able to get but two.

BOB WHITMER and Bud Scott followed Hartman in the scoring column with 14 points each. McLaughlin and Trobaugh finished the FSU scoring with five and two points, respectively.

Marvin Gann paced Howard with 17 while Harold Parks hooped 15.

In the NAIB tournament, two tilts will be played tonight with the finals slated tomorrow night. A consolation game to determine the third place team, will precede tomorrow's final contest.

The state champion Spartans, with high-scoring George Monts, were given the number one rating following their march over state cage foes.

Florida State, however, topped the Tampa crew here earlier in the season. Stetson holds two victories over the Seminoles and FSU has not faced Georgia Teachers this year.

Sigma Nu Is 'Sinner' According to Dispute

Protests by Theta Chi and Pi Kappa Alpha have halted the fraternity finals in the annual intramural touch football tournament. Over in the dormitory league, a sharp Oiler outfit topped 846 Upper 2-0 for the dorm title yesterday afternoon.

According to the frat dispute Sigma Nu is the "sinner." Both the Theta Chi's and Pikes claim the Sigma Nu's used an ineligible player in their respective games.

SIGMA NU had beaten the Pikes T-6 and Theta Chi 6 first downs to 2, and lost to Lambda Chi Alpha 7-3. However the Lambda Chi's have leaned no protest to date.

If Ed Williamson, Florida State University Intramural Director, denies the protests, the finals between Lambda Chi and Sigma Nu will be played Monday afternoon at 4:45.

If, however, Williamson grants the protests the entire lower bracket will have to be replayed. This would mean the Pikes would battle Sigma Nu from the point of protest, the loser playing Theta Chi. The winner of the former would play the winner of the latter for the right to meet Lambda Chi in the finals.

By the time all these games have taken place, the week will probably be gone.

THANKS to the effective line play of Ray Senn, the Oilers were able to top 846 Upper by a touch back in the dorm finals.

Senn caught Wilson Revell behind the 846 goal, giving the Oilers two points, and the margin of victory with seven minutes left to play in the game.

The Oiler crew entered the finals by downing 814 by a 6-0 score in Tuesday's quarter-finals. After 846 topped the Newman Club 13-0, they went on the crush 814 by a 20-0 margin in the semi-finals.

Neither team made much headway in the first half of yesterday's Oiler-846 finals. The Oilers held a 3-2 margin in first down.

Early in the second half the Oiler's Jim Avery intercepted a Revell pass deep in 846 territory, but a 15-yard penalty balled the Oiler scoring threat.

THE 846 footballers took over and the stage was set for Senn's stopping Revell behind the 846 goal.

Seeking to increase their lead, the Oilers, with Gil Harris and Avery doing the passing, knocked a number of times at the 846 double stripe, but were unable to score.

FSU Volleyballers Defend AAU Title

Defending champion Florida State University meets the Tampa YMCA in the first round of the annual double elimination Florida AAU volleyball tournament, which begins tomorrow morning at the Tampa YMCA.

Six teams—Florida State, Florida Southern College, Jacksonville Naval Air Station, and YMCA teams from Tampa, St. Petersburg, and West Palm Beach—vie for the tourney title, sanctioned by the AAU.

St Petersburg YMCA and Florida Southern drew first round byes in the tournament.

The Seminoles take the court following the opening West Palm Beach-Jacksonville contest. The latter tilt is scheduled to begin at nine o'clock.

ST PETERSBURG plays the West Palm Beach-Jacksonville

cagers were beaten in the finals of the Dixie Conference tournament by a fired-up Mercer quintet, we're looking for a good showing from the sharp Tribe cagers.

Ned West, FSU Sports Publicity Director, said, following the Mercer contest, if the Seminoles play the type of ball in the NAIB they did in the Dixie tourney, they'll win it.

Evidently, the Bears, with a big pivot man named Clements leading the way, were fired-up higher than the astronomers' most distant star.

* * *

The Florida State spring sports—baseball, tennis, golf, and track—are preparing for one of the most ambitious quartet of schedules in FSU's history.

The cards will probably be released within a few days. Don't be surprised if such schools as Georgia, Georgia Tech, and Miami are included on the slates.

Last, but by all means not least, is the fourth annual Powder Bowl football (?) game between Pi Beta Phi and Kappa Alpha Theta. Security girls will be at it again!

It won't be the sort of grid contest that fans are accustomed to, however, when the two well trained teams clash, but at least it'll be different when the Pi Phi Indians and Theta Wildcats meet tomorrow afternoon at 1:30.

Coaches Bob Schmelz, Walter Jerkins, and Dick Turk of the Indians look for a close tilt, while mentors Bill Braniff, Newton Blanton, and Ted Hewitt predict a wide open affair with plenty of "passes."

Seminole Gymnasts To Hold All-Round Meet Tomorrow

Florida State University's gymnastic team will hold an All-Round meet here tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock in the East campus gym.

Nine Seminole gymnasts will compete for the All-Round title. Included in the group are Carmine Regna, Joe Regna, Jack Miles, Jack Sharp, Pat Signorelli, Scotty Stanton, Joe Guzie, Jim McCauley and Bill Wagner.

The above will compete in calisthenics, side horse, high bar, parallel bars, flying rings and long horse.

Next Saturday afternoon the Seminole gymnasts will hold another All-Round meet, with the final intra-squad meet between the varsity and freshmen performers scheduled for the following Saturday.

Coach Hartley Price is awaiting the return of Bill Roetcher, who is representing the United States in the annual Pan-American games, to give the varsity its full strength for the rubber meet.

The varsity won the opening meet, but fell to the strong freshmen in the second.

These weekly meets will precede Florida State's entry into the Southern Gymnastics League Intercollegiate Championship at the University of North Carolina, the National Collegiates at the University of Michigan, and the National AAU at Detroit.

Tomorrow's All-Round meet will be strictly an individual affair. Each man will enter all events, the man totaling the most points being declared FSU's All-Round champion.

In a prelim meet, the Talbahassee Tumbling Tots will meet the Co-eds on the low parallel bars and tumbling.

On Your Mark

By JEAN WETHERELL

It seems that on this campus there is never a dull moment. Something is happening every day of every week; something which is bound to interest most women students, either as a participant or as a spectator.

"Take me out to the ball game, take me out to the park." Those familiar words are a sure sign that spring has sprung, and all the sororities are off to a quick start on second semester intramurals. Practices are under way for softball that All-American women's sport.

Also getting busy this week are all the "Bauer" girls and the "Babe Zaharias's" on campus. Almost any day of this week you can find a group of co-eds on the driving range or golf links. Both golf and softball teams will be chosen by the sororities on Saturday, and the games and matches will begin next week.

"Come on in, the water's fine." Tarpon Club recently tapped new members for this semester. Final tryouts were held on Monday and Tuesday nights. Then Wednesday afternoon shouts of joy could be heard up and down the halls as the invitations for membership were given out. Congratulations, Minnow! And good luck on your spring production which, I understand, is rapidly taking shape.

"We want a touchdown, we want a touchdown!" That does sound a little out of place at this time, yet that's a shout we'll be hearing this week end. For the time has finally come for the annual "Powder Puff Bowl" game, to be played Saturday afternoon on FSU's hockey field. The Kappa Alpha Theta's and the Pi Beta Phi's have been practicing for weeks preparatory for this big event. The proceeds from the game will go to the "Campus Chest" drive, so come on out and see your favorite "sophisticated" co-eds get mauled.

Florida AAU Entry

Entries for the annual Florida AAU indoor swimming and diving championships, to be held at Florida State University March 10, must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 6, according to an announcement made today by Dr Howard G Danford, FSU Athletic Director.

Christian Students Plan Annual Services

Members of the Disciple Student Fellowship will take charge of the 11 a m worship service on Sunday at the Capital Christian church. This year the annual undertaking is being directed by Jean Keller. Jean announces that Grace Henderson will read the scripture, while Lou Riley will lead the call to worship and responsive reading. Ann Keller will give the Invocation. A special feature of the service will be a vocal solo by Don Cooper. Don's selection, "He Will Give You Rest," was composed by his father, Dr Irvin Cooper.

Lou Riley, DSF president, asks all members to be present at the 6:30 meeting Sunday night at the church. The annual retreat week-end will be discussed as well as plans for several projects to be undertaken this semester. Plans for two socials will also be revealed at the Sunday night meeting. Lou says it is important that all members be present to take part in the voting and to make suggestions concerning the projects.

Boda, Gunn Music Featured at U of A

The compositions of John Boda and James M Gunn, music faculty members, were featured at the annual convention of the Alabama Composers League at the University of Alabama last week end.

During the convention two works by Mr Boda were presented. They were a concert overture for orchestra and a quartet in three movements for four brass instruments. Mr Gunn was represented by a symphony, entitled "Microphony."

Prof Boda also participated in a panel discussion of the philosophy of contemporary composition. Both composers were present at the concerts when their works were performed. The convention attracted composers and musicians from the entire Southeast.

Among other notable figures taking part were Ottomar Cadek, composer in residence of the U of A, and William Bergsma, noted young American composer who is presently teaching at the Juilliard School of Music in New York City.

"Stardust" Theme

"Stardust" will be the theme of the annual Pan-Hellenic Dance to be held tomorrow night at the Q club.

The dance will be from 8 until 12 p m, and music will be furnished by the orchestra of Georgie Bire.

Dr Pomeroy Speaks At Physics Seminars

Progress in Bio-Physics Topic of Visitor's Talk

Current developments of biophysics were presented by Dr David Pomeroy, guest speaker from the University of Florida at the Physics Seminar yesterday afternoon. Pomeroy gave his talk in the new Science building.

Co-director of the Bio-Physics Laboratory at the University of Florida, Dr Pomeroy lectured and gave an account of the problems and techniques in bio-physics.

DR K L YUDOWITCH, Florida State University Physics professor was in charge of the arrangements for the lecture. The Physics Department is also host to the visiting speaker and his wife at a dinner given in downtown Tallahassee during their stay.

Dr Pomeroy is currently engaged in bio-electric potential and magnetic physical measurements of biological systems in the Cancer Research Group at Gainesville.

THE SPEAKER received his doctorate degree from the University of New Mexico. There he was engaged in research work in cosmic rays. At yesterday's lecture, the speaker and his wife at a dinner given in downtown Tallahassee during their stay.

Dormitories Plan Spring Activities

"The year's at the spring;" and Magnolia Hall's formal dance on Friday, March 2nd, at 8:30 p m will display the delightfulness of the season. The Spring motif of the season will be carried out in a "Chapeau de Printemps" fashion.

This annual affair will be original with Barbara Lee Henry, social chairman, and her committees working on the entire project. This formal dance is the outstanding event of Magnolia Hall's social affairs of the year.

Broward Hall will hold its annual formal dance tonight in the parlor. The theme will be spring hats and gay decorations are being made to carry out the theme.

The girls in Landis Hall are making plans for their annual formal dance to be held next Saturday night.

South Cawthon held a pajama party Tuesday night at 10:45. Barbara Wells was chairman and refreshments were served after the program.

The mothers of the girls in Bryan Hall that live in Tallahassee were entertained Wednesday afternoon at the tea in the parlor.

Gilchrist Hall is planning its formal reception to be held next week. The receiving line will include Miss Warren, Miss Lynn, and President and Mrs Doak Campbell. Pat Ledbetter is the social chairman in charge. Miss Dorman will pour, assisted by Mrs Turner and Margaret Campbell.

Reynolds Hall was presented with a talk by Miss Sabie Selleck from Turkey last Wednesday evening. She spoke on the school and home life of her native country. Their social committee had a dinner party Tuesday night and plans were made for a square dance and fashion show to be held later this month.

TEA DANCE

Georgie Bee's orchestra will furnish the music for a tea dance to be held Tuesday evening from 7:00 until 9:00 at the Student Union.

Two-Handed Jump Shot Defeats Georgians in District Finals

They'd been beaten by Mercer in the Dixie Conference finals.

But a two-handed jump shot spelled defeat for a team that had averaged well over 80 points per game.

A little fellow — not even size — from Bellesburg, Indiana, who had been sitting on the bench during most of the season, stole the ball from a dumbfounded Georgian and blazed down the court in the last minute of play to sink a two-pointer.

Now, Florida State University will prepare to match buckets with some of the top quintets in the nation. In a place called Kansas City, Missouri, a galaxy of Seminoles will attempt what the University of Tampa couldn't do — win the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball (NAIB) championship.

SWEATING, PUFFING

During the few days remaining in the week there'll be plenty of sweating and puffing at the West campus gym. J. K. "Bud" Kennedy will open his mind and pour out all the knowledge he's collected during his successful basketball coaching career. A strong portion of running, passing, and shooting will probably be served by the Seminoles' star mentor.

The 32-team tournament is scheduled to begin March 12 and end the 17th. The happy Florida State basketballers will probably leave Tallahassee Friday in order for a huge banquet slated Sunday, March 11, in Kansas City.

RARED TO HADES

The Seminoles raced up and down the Jacksonville floor and kicked the dope bucket to hades. They'd been seeded fourth in the four team District 25 NAIB tourney.

The rocky Georgia Teachers College five was the victim in the finals and Stetson's Hatters, a team FSU had lost to twice during the season, the victim in the first round.

After having lost to Mercer University in the finals of the Dixie Conference cage tournament in Macon, Georgia, the Florida State quintet rebounded perfectly in the NAIB district.

Stetson found the going rough in the final six minutes of the game.

High School Comedy Will Be Presented Tonight Over WFSU

WFSU's Seminole Theatre Guild of the Air will present another comedy tonight entitled, "Miss Brooks a Rube."

The broadcast time over 660 will be from 8:30 to 9 p.m.

WITH MJ. Gilbert as director, the cast includes Jane Scott as Katie Fenton, Bob Bass as Hal Jervis; Lolete Falk as Helen Bates; Dorothy Downes as John Maddox; Lewis Thomas as Tommy West; and Neil Jacoby as the announcer.

The setting of the play is in a hall school with no-class young lover dreamed of before. Everything happens to everybody with no exception. Walter loses his locker key and because Katie is generous, he puts his books in her locker, and keeps her key. The tall monitor, Hal, comes along and finds Walter unlocking Katie's locker and then the fun begins. Tune in to see what happens.

This play is one of 14 such productions found in the "Radio Players' Scriptbook," edited by Herbert Prescott. Gene Fromson is the author. He served as a radio time buyer for 10 years, returning in 1946 to spend his full time at a former avocation — free lance writing.

SINCE that time, his scripts have been heard on the following network programs: "The White Cross," "Grand Central Station," "Time's Up," "First Nighter," "Harvest of Stars." He has also sold scripts to "The Echo," Chicago mystery program heard over WBBM.

Most of the first 50 episodes of "This Is The Story," a series of 15-minute recorded programs, were also written by him. A four-thousand-word piece of humorous fiction by him was run in "Humor Magazine." Married, he lives in Chicago.

Briggs Announces Cast for 'Pirates' Now In Rehearsal

The cast of The Pirates of Penzance, to be performed next May, has been announced by the director, Dr. Robert L. Briggs. This will be the second Gilbert and Sullivan satire produced by the Light Opera Guild this year.

The comic part of the Major-General will be played by Tommy McMullen, and Bill Upshaw will be the roaring Pirate King. The love interest will be carried out by Bill Dalrymple and Adrianne Norton in the roles of Frederick and Mabel. Samuel's part will be sung by Sam Frank, while Bruce Kirksey will portray the unhappy Police Sergeant. Various other daughters of the major-general, named Edith, Kate, and Isabel, are to be played by Anna Pittman, Pat Gosnell, Mary Ann Simmons and Elouise Truett will be Ruth.

A chorus of fifty, with the seconds quite evenly balanced, will support the cast. Choral rehearsals began last night and will continue on Monday nights, at 9:15.

Faculty Rehearsals Began Yesterday

The faculty play entitled The Madwoman of Chaillot, went into rehearsal last night in preparation for its run here early in April, according to Mr. Lester Moore, the director.

The Madwoman of Chaillot (pronounced "shy-roh") was written very recently by the French-man Jean Giraudoux and adapted in English by Maurice Valency. The play won the New York Critics' Circle Award of 1949. Mr. Moore described it as "a strange comedy with strange characters."

Cast in the role of the Madwoman is Jeanne Scott of the faculty. Other parts are taken by Lincoln Canfield, Faye Tyler Norman, Gerrit Girardoux and adapted in English by Maurice Valency. The play won the New York Critics' Circle Award of 1949. Mr. Moore described it as "a strange comedy with strange characters."

Tex Symphony Presents Three Concerts Here

Orchestra Has Toured 44 Cities This Season

The Dallas Symphony Orchestra will present three different concerts next Friday and Saturday in Westcott auditorium. The Saturday matinee will begin at 3:15 rather than the time erroneously announced earlier. The two evening performances will open at 8:15.

The Orchestra was born long before its present conductor. Whereas the group is now celebrating its golden jubilee, Walter Hendl is only thirty-three years old. He stands, according to his press statement, as "a representative of the younger generation." Under his youthful leadership the Dallas Symphony has surpassed the record for its previous 50 years by touring 44 cities this season and playing 100 concerts.

THE PROGRAM will include works of Brahms, Wagner, Ravel, and Tschaikowsky on Friday night; the same on Saturday will bring Strauss, Gillis, Wagner, Mendelssohn, and Lukas; and on Saturday night Beethoven, Stravinsky, and Sibelius will be heard.

Tickets are now on sale at the Artist Series office in the Music building. For the evening performances prices are $1.65 and $2.45 including tax. Matinee prices are $.60 for students and $1.10 for adults. Reserved seats may still be had by students on presentation of ID cards.

Playmakers Elect Atwood Producer

'Madwoman of Chaillot' Begins Run in Early April

The Tallahassee Playmakers, a dramatic organization of faculty and staff members, have elected Miss Eva Mae Atwood, of the modern languages department, as producer for the 1951 season.

Lester Moore, English department, was elected play director for the 1951 play, The Madwoman of Chaillot, by members comprising those the play for this season were Lester Moore, Mrs. Bernice Smith, Otis McBride, Tania Leachinsky and Dabney Adams.

Second Annual ODK Rally Set Tonight in Music Amphitheater

JUNIOR JOURNALISTS

Dem School Students Edit Monthly Junior Flambeau

By EMORY KING

Probably the most unusual "newspaper office" in these parts can be found at the Demonstration School.

There, a staff of eight junior high school students create and publish once a month their own Junior Flambeau. In many ways the publication rivals FSU's Florida Flambeau.

In their office, classroom 105, a peace and tranquility reigns that other newspapers can never hope to have. There, no telephone screams for attention, no irate editors are shouting for copy bops, the floors are clean, and no pail of tobacco smoke hangs over the air. The only real noise to be heard is the quiet working of the solitary typewriter.

ANOTHER UNUSUAL feature of the paper is that all eight students are either editors or columnists. Each member of the staff has a particular part of the paper to be responsible for.

The paper runs around 10-12 pages in length and is diitoed by the secretary of the Demonstration School. The paper is sold to the students for a nickel. The editors are the circulation department and the newsboys combined. The only thing the paper doesn't have is advertising.

There are eight sections to the paper. They include general news, homeroom news, prose and poetry, sports news, girls' news, jokes, and letters to the editor.

The general news consists of all news pertaining to the school as a whole such as elections, assemblies, announcements of club meetings.

THE HOMEROOM news has been criticised recently by some of the students because they think the page should be more general rather than strictly room for room reporting. The editors are working on a new system for that page.

To add the literary touch, John Harrell has initiated the prose and poetry column. The column carries poems written by the students, advice from famous people, stories and articles by students and novelties. John says he wishes that more students would write poems for the paper.

Sports are handled by Donald Pace. The basketball teams of the schools are fully covered and all other sports events are reported. One of the recent games was between the faculty and the Dem Demons. The faculty Hasbeens won 30-14.

KRAZY KAPERS is a cartoon-like column. This is drawn by Pat Middleton, who doubles as art editor. Her cartoons have promise and her sense of humor is fresh and different.

Advice to the girls is given by Tinka Matthews, and advice to the boys by Dean Copps. Any problems the students have are discussed here and no names are mentioned.

The editorial page is sprinkled with cartoons and witty remarks. On their last editorial page they explained their set-up and gave their gracious thanks to Mrs Ida McDowell, their teacher, who has helped them with the paper.

Martha Jo Thomas is the editor and with Pat Middleton she shares the job of coordinating the entire project.

FINALLY, THE paper runs a letters to the editor page. Here, all letters concerning the paper or the school are printed.

EDITORIAL CONFERENCE — Editor Pat Middleton confers with Faculty Adviser Mrs Ida McDowell. The Junior Flambeau is prepared by the students of the Demonstration School.

The Florida Flambeau did not know until recently that it was in competition with the Junior Flambeau, but Editor Earl Dobert said, "We hope the students at the Demonstration school will continue in their interest of journalism. Someday they may be running the Flambeau."

Julio de Diego Lectures Tonight in Science Hall

Spanish artist, Julio de Diego, will lecture and demonstrate the technique of Gouche painting in the Science Hall tonight at 8 o'clock. Following the lecture will be a reception where the audience will have an opportunity to meet the artist.

Some of de Diego's paintings of World War II have been considered by art critics as the finest produced.

THE SPANISH artist has been thought a leader in art's trend away from factual scene painting and says that he hates war. He once fought in the Spanish Civil Riff wars however, with the Spanish armies.

A prolific worker, de Diego during one three month period, produced 45 paintings on war. He then followed them with 40 cynical pictures of peace.

De Diego began his painting career at 15 doing scenes for theaters of Madrid, Spain. He has designed magazine covers in Chicago and done fashion illustrations since. In addition, the artist has decorated two chapels in St. Gregory's Church. He has even designed a laundry bag which is raised by one-third the outgoing wash from a hotel.

LIFE MAGAZINE says of the Spanish artist, "De Diego's scenes suggest those of some weird, macabre ballet in which machine-like humans and human-looking machines fight relentlessly in front of fantastic architectural props and backdrops. His soldiers and statesmen are as impersonal as purposeful insects, their human faces obliterated in a hopeless atmosphere of regimentation and mechanization."

The artist has been awarded prizes on two occasions by the Art Institute of Chicago. Institutions which own examples of his work include the San Francisco Museum of Art, Metropolitan Museum, Phillips Gallery, Walker Art Center, Encyclopedia Britannica, International Business Machines, and the Santa Barbara Museum of Art.

UGA Elections Held Tomorrow

Given 100 Performances Four Precincts Open;

All students will be able to vote for a candidate for a campus office in tomorrow's University Government association elections.

Paul Garrison, elections committee chairman, stressed that students may vote for both male and female candidates as representatives to University Court and the Judiciary Court.

ONLY FOUR precincts will be used in the voting tomorrow, instead of the five originally announced. The precincts which will be used will be the Seminole Dining hall lobby, the downstairs of the Longmire building, Lower Westcott and the West campus Post office. The Student Union precinct had to be abandoned since Alpha Chi Omega, a social fraternity, which operates the West campus precincts could not get enough workers for two precincts, Garrison reported.

Students must present their ID cards in order to vote, Garrion said. As soon as returns are tabulated for the various precincts they will be announced on station WFSU and then posted on the UGA bulletin board on the second floor of the Longmire building.

FINAL elections will be held on Wednesday, March 14. Candidates receiving a majority vote tomorrow will be declared elected in the primary.

Platforms for tomorrow's candidates will be found elsewhere in today's Flambeau. Station WFSU has announced that candidates will receive radio time for campaign speeches tonight from 5-7.

Candidates qualifying for tomorrow's primary are:

President of UGA: Jerry Thomas, Will Pennell, Emerson (Pancho) Sived, Herbert L. Marsh, Mian (Mike) Sellers.

Vice president in charge of legislative affairs: Dick Bradley, Jimmy Evans, Jim Kirk.

Vice president in charge of men's affairs: Ted Steinmeyer.

Vice president in charge of women's affairs: Anne Frances Monroe, Eunice Thompson, Betty Rich, Nancy Miller.

SECRETARY OF UGA: Mary Helen Speed, Jo Nell Proctor, Arlene Amend.

Treasurer of UGA: Bill Cornelius, Sue Saxon, Pat Weigand, George Arrants.

Forums chairman: Doris Jean Smith.

Chief Justice of University Court: Alice Jackson, Bill Boyd.

Chairman of Judicial Court: James Ball and Eleanor Cowper.

CHAIRMAN OF SANDSPUR: William (Bill) Backus, Malcolm (Mickey) Johnson.

Editor-in-chief of the Florida Flambeau: Jane Atchley, Robert Griffin, Scott Marshall, Janet (Peanut) Pierce.

Editor-in-chief of the Smoke Signals (Talaria): Joel P Smith.

Editor-in-chief of the Tally Ho: Gail Kelley.

Business Manager of the Florida Flambeau: Virginia Rose Smith.

Candidates for UGA Positions Will Make Campaign Speeches

The second annual Omicron Delta Kappa political rally will get underway as scheduled tonight in the amphitheater of the music building, according to Doug Alley, circle president. The time is 8 p.m.

All candidates for University Government Association offices as well as candidates for the editors of the publications will be eligible to make a speech of not more than five minutes in length. Candidates wishing to speak, who as yet have not filed with Doug Alley, should do so as soon as possible before the rally starts.

DENNIS DeLACURE, manager of radio station WFSU, will be master of ceremonies for the one night affair. The national leadership-scholastic society members will serve as hosts for the occasion.

In addition to the ODK rally, campus station WFSU is granting time for all candidates to make speeches over the radio.

Presidential candidates will be alloted a maximum of five minutes and all other candidates will be allowed two minutes each. Stan Gould, program director, asks that all candidates make reservations for air time in advance. Stan warns that no one will be allowed to speak unless his name appears on the program schedule.

All political speeches on the radio must be made between 8 and 9 p m today.

GOULD ADDS that a copy of the speech to be made by the candidate must be supplied to the station for their files. Any candidate deviating from the written speech will be cut off the air. Lastly, Stan asks that all candidates appear at the station at least five minutes early before their speech.

ODK President Doug Alley is looking for a huge turnout as the second annual ODK political rally. He says, "We had a disappointing crowd last year and we are looking for a full outdoor theater tonight. We know that all students are vitally interested in their student government and can show they are interested by turning out to hear the candidates. It is only logical that students should want to hear what each candidate is for before he votes."

4 UGA Candidates Discuss Their Views On Student Issues

Four of the five candidates for president of the University Government Association spoke at the Kappa Alpha dining room round table discussion Friday night.

The discussion, which was held in the old museum room of the alumni building, was recorded and will be broadcast over campus station radio WFSU at a later date.

Forums chairman Allan Head was moderator for the program, and James Ball, president of the public administration fraternity, was in charge of arrangements.

Questions which were discussed included the candidates' views on the budget, student representation in Artist Series selections, the student constitution and the Florida Flambeau.

Presidential aspirants who attended were Ignacio (Pancho) Sived, Will Pennell, Herb Marsh and Jerry Thomas. Mike Sellers did not attend.

Outstanding Students To Address UGA

Al Lowenstein, of the United States National Student Association and Stuart MacIlvaine, president of the student body at the University of Miami will address the student government officers and the student body tomorrow afternoon at 5 p m in the Longmire auditorium.

The two will discuss the National Student Association.

This is a called meeting for all UGA officers but the student body is cordially welcomed.

Garnet Key Meets

Garnet Key will meet tonight at 7:30 in 403 Longmire building. All members are urged to be present and bring their dues.

USCG Commissions Now Being Requested

Applications for Coast Guard Reserve commissions from persons without prior Coast Guard Service are being requested by the Seventh Coast Guard District.

Application blanks and other necessary data may be obtained from Coast Guard Recruiting offices from the Director of Reserve, Seventh Coast Guard District, 2610 Tiger Tail Avenue, Miami 33, Florida.

Marine Recruiting

Captain M E McNell of the United States Marine Corps will be in 403 Longmire building again today from 8 a m to 4 p m to enlist students in an Officer Candidate's program.

Work Selected Head Of Organization

Gene Work was elected president of the newly organized Industrial Arts club at a meeting Thursday night. The club is composed of majors and minors in Industrial Arts and was organized to promote interest and scholarship in the field of Industrial Arts Educations on campus.

Elected to serve with Work were Don Bussard, vice-president; David Hainlin, secretary; Charles Thompson, treasurer. Faculty advisors are Mr Clyde Burns and Mr Stanley Sweet.

WFSU Takes Listening Survey "Late Date" Most Popular Show

WFSU's most popular program among the women students is "Late Date".

AT THE last women's convocation, all women students present were asked by WFSU to answer a few questions.

The purpose of this survey was to determine what type of programs were the most popular among students, what kind of music they liked best, and what hour during the day was the best broadcast time.

Well, all these answers are now in the hands of the "Voice of the Seminole."

STUDENTS cooperated by answering the questions on the little white sheet. The final tabulations are in and the governing board is now busy at work beginning improvement on their present schedule.

Here are some of the results of this student poll:

Approximately six out of ten women students are occasional listeners and nearly three out of ten are regular listeners.

Popular music received top billing for favorite listening with classical music and news running second and third in choice.

FIVE out of ten students approved of the present broadcast schedule. The biggest number of disapprovals stated that WFSU did not play enough classical music.

The second best show was the Early Bird Show heard from 7 to 9 in the morning. Four out of ten students are listeners of this show.

More than six out of ten women students stated 10:00 through 11:00 p m as the most convenient listening time. Quite a few reasons came in for the student station to broadcast until midnight.

ONE hundred and three girls submitted their names in application for work a t the station. Two hundred others were interested but failed to leave their names and box numbers on the surveys. A meeting is scheduled in the near future for prospective new members. If you are not contacted please submit your name and address again for you may have failed to do so on the survey.

This survey was intended as a service to the student body. It is just another way that WFSU has of saying, "We are your station, and we want to know what you want to hear in the way of music, dramatic shows, and newscasts. It is up to you to let us know."

Courts Meet Jointly

Men's and Women's Judiciary will have a joint meeting tonight at 5:30 in the Courtroom of the Alumni building.

The membership is urged to be prompt.

Hofmann to Talk On Primitive Music

★ Will Use Slides and Films From Privats Collection

Several illustrated lectures on "Music in Primitive Society" will be presented today and tomorrow in the Music Hall. Mr Charles Hofmann, noted authority on Indian Folklore will be the lecturer.

Mr Hofmann will use slides, films and examples from his own collection of primitive instruments and records of folk music.

THE FIRST lecture will be given at 3 p m today for the music students. It will also be open to any interested persons. This lecture will present the music and dances of African tribes, Australian natives, and primitive people of the Pacific Islands.

The second talk will be on the American Indians at 8 p m tomorrow, also in the Music Hall. Mr Hoffmann will also speak before two classes, At 11 a m he will speak to the Anthropology class in the old History building.

PROFESSOR Hale Smith, acting director of the department of anthropology and archaeology and members of the department of general education, have arranged these lectures.

At present, Hofmann is doing professional and radio work for the Tampa Public Library and conducting weekly broadcasts on books and music.

The lecturer has written a book, War Hoops and Medicine Songs, which is now being published. He has also had some of his records placed in the Library of Congress' Archives of Folklore. Others have been made into a record album for the use of schools and the general public.

CAP Film Shown Tonight to Flyers

A picture filmed in Panama and showing the part played by the Civil Air Patrol during the little-known invasion of the canal in the early part of World War II, will be shown at the Seminole Flyers meeting tonight.

All students and faculty with any interest in flying are invited to attend the meeting at 7:30 p m in 106 Military building.

This sound movie was produced by Mr Kenneth Wagner of the Botany department.

The agenda for tonight also includes discussion of plans for a picnic at Dog Island in the near future. A fish fry, spot landings and bombing contests are scheduled. Bob Delanry, president, has announced that the picnic and tonight's movie are part of a series of programs to acquaint club members with the various phases of flying and related subjects.

Scullions Form Club, Elect Gillis President

A new student organization called the "Scullions" has been organized in the Department of Restaurant and Hotel Management and have elected Neil Gillis as their president. Ralph Gregg is vice-president and Fred Brigman, secretary.

The first major project of the club will be a "Hotel for a Day" program to be held at Wakulla Springs Lodge in May.

Committees have already been appointed and work begun on the project. The theme will be "Tropicana" with the entertainment and menu in a Latin American motif.

Two More Winners Take Chesterfields

Two more winners in the Flambeau sponsored Chesterfield contest have been announced by Tom Tedder, Chesterfield representative. They are Jean Pierre Mathew, for his letter to the editor, "Boycott and Picket" and Miss Lucy Miller for answering a question regarding the front page in last Friday's Flambeau.

Mashew won a carton of Chesterfields and Miss Miller received four packs of cigarets. The winners may pick up their prizes sometime at noon in the Flambeau office.

Miss Miller won her Chesterfields for answering the question, "According to the front page of the Flambeau, what doctor on the faculty has been called back into active service with the army as a chaplain?" The correct answer was Dr Sam Neel, Jr.

Another question, still unanswered will be asked tonight. It is: "Who is the conductor of the Dallas Symphony orchestra that will appear on the FSU Artist Series program March 9 and 10?" The first person asked has a chance to win six packs of Chesterfields for giving the correct answer. Two packs will be added each time the question is missed.

A one-cent piece, bearing the likns representing the 13 original states, minted in 1787, was the first American coin.

Instructions for Using Penguin Dryer

1. For fast even drying, keep your head near center of helmet.
2. If air from the Penguin is too cool, just flip the comfort switch located at front left underside of helmet and the temperature of the air will immediately become warmer. When the air attains a "just right" temperature, turn off the comfort switch.
3. To operate the meter follow these simple instructions:
   (a) Turn pointer of meter to "B."
   (b) Insert quarter into quarter slot.
   (c) Turn pointer clockwise as far as it will go. When pressure is relaxed quarter will drop.
   (e) Machine will now operate when control pointer on top of dryer is turned to "DRY" position.
4. To turn machine off, simply turn pointer of coin meter to "B." Always turn machine off when not in use.

Some Pertinent Facts About Herb Marsh

Herb Marsh is qualified. He has twice been a member of University Senate. He has served on the Honor Committee, Social Standards and Social Calendar of Events Committee, Two Homecoming Committees, and the Freshman Orientation Committee. He has been an official FSU delegate to three Florida Student Government Association Conventions. He was Business Manager of Sandspur, 1950. He has worked on the Flambeau, and is now Advertising Manager of the Tally-Ho. In 1948-50, he was vice president in charge of Men's Affairs and is now a member of University Senate. He is a Political Science Major and naturally has a keen interest in the betterment of student government. Records of the Flambeau prove that he has never been a yes man.

While chairman of the Men's Senate, Men's Government was responsible for getting several things of benefit to the student body. Radio in the infirmary, busses to camp, free movies—to mention a few.

Herb Marsh's platform is rather a policy which has the interests of the students at heart (See letters to the editor).

This is the only time his qualifications will be stated, so read them again and judge for yourself.

ELECT 'GRIFFIN' FLAMBEAU EDITOR

...If I'm Elected, I Promise To...

...GA President

...r Editor:
...would like to clarify one point, ...am not seeking the office of ...e president on qualifications ... I have certain definite ...ideas as to what a student ...ernment should be.
...o achieve unity and purpose, student government is necessary. ...Daily we hear arguments against "the wheel" on campus. Petty arguments ... politics . . . Petty grievances . . . Petty bickering about what purpose does student government exist? Remember the "Be Nice Who" argument, that the purpose of student government is to "get along" with the administration? To eliminate ...e differences and achieve ...ity and purpose in student government is, therefore, a cardinal ...

...o coordinate and fix responsibilities of student government ...ust be also important. What, ...imagine is the duty of responsi...ty of a class president? Who ...o be blamed when a certain ...ass activities "flops" or does ...ot come to be? Who is responsible for office in this election. ...e know what the job is that ...e are running for? Of material ...portance to the good administration is a knowledge of responsi...ties."

...e third conviction is that ...me should be spent giving ...mum benefits to the student body and not spent on ...procedural technicalities. ...many of the students, I venture to assert, have little interest in senate meeting where most ...e time is spent in discussion over a proposed measure is a statute, and if so, just ...w it is. I am not sure whether ...e Chairman of Men's Hall is a member of the senate ...r even cares to be. I give ...at he wants to know just ...ow! Why is student government" going to do ...? And for that matter, so do "Very many of the students" is therefore, one of my concerns.

...ere is no doubt in my mind ...t I am running for President of ...E. Let there be no doubt in ...nd when you cast your ...r. Weigh the issues, then ...heir merits . . . and then ...e for "yours truly."

...ank you, you know ...now and you'll know me when.

Ernacio (Pancho) Byrd.

...ear Editor:
...Since I am not I am elected, ...e are certain things I will be ...le to do for Student Govern...as I have done in the past...as recently providing Absen...Voting for students sick and in ...firmary or interning, and ...providing of a Senate Investi...Committee to investigate ...problems as presented by the ...ities and infirmary.
...First: Registration should be ...ished for the second semes...before the holiday. By regis...tering before you leave, you would come back on Monday rather than on Saturday. Two days saved.
...Second: The penalty for cutting classes should be modified so that credits are not lost for missing a class.
...Third: While the administration is taking the student activity fee and distributing it, two dollars and additional of this fund for each student should be laid aside for the purchasing of two new buses. One bus for the men and one for dormitory or organization whenever they have to go any place off campus. The other bus would be a new bus for the Athletic teams.
...Although the two new thousand dollars would not be enough, I feel sure that the Florida Legislature (or Board of Control) which convenes next month, would meet our appropriation with equal zeal.
...Fourth: During the past few years, many colleges have become nationally recognized because of their great football teams and other varsity sports. FSU has received some recognition but not near enough.
...Each year during football season, and every month thereafter, we printed pamphlets from FSU concerning the athletes should be mailed to every university in the United States. Public Relations station should be so strong and evident, that such cities as Jacksonville will do all in their power to seek out of state football teams. Although we have a strong and united ball club in our own State of Florida.
...With all the close of each semester, the students should grade their instructors and the counselors. Instructors would welcome this because they honestly want to know if they are doing a good job.
JERRY THOMAS.

Dear Editor and Fellow Students:
...Since it is a practice, I'm submitting a statement of my intentions regarding my campaign for President of the University Government Association. I believe the following plans are needed to improve ourselves.
...First, FSU needs tradition and student spirit. We haven't either of these. If the students can be brought together, we can have both.
...Second, student government needs straightening out and more publicity. Two weeks before the government are available, and there are enough qualified officers to make use of them. These officers can and should work together.
...Third, the student government is spending money. Where? They should know. It's yours.
...Fourth, we now have a traffic problem and no place to park. They might be gotten if the right plan is developed.
...Next I want to serve because I have been indoctrinated with the principle that the student body is an equal amount of responsibility. Although this office carries a lot of work, the responsibilities of presiding over the Senate and serving as University Council are greater by far.
...It appears as though my extra-curricular activities will hinder, however, it is hardly the case. I am now the treasurer of the Men's Hall, secretary of the Men's F Club for the second year, a debating team and in Gold Key. I even manage to scrape up a few hours of study at the West Campus Student Union. Student government doesn't pay off in money but in higher wages of experience and service. I can depend on proposed legislation but only on making student government a living thing. The Senate is getting things done. Why shouldn't it next year?
DICK BRADLEY

...lambeauEditor

Dear Editor:
...I, Scott Marshall, hereby announce my candidacy for Editor of the Florida Flambeau.
...If elected, I plan to change the size of the present paper to five columns by 15 inches, and double the number of pages. You will find a change in the type of reading space and the paper can be handled twice as easily.
...Since the publisher of a newspaper dictates editorial policy, and the students of FSU publish the Flambeau, all questions regarding editorial policy will be presented to the students for consideration.
...I feel I have more than enough experience to fill the post. I have worked three years in the newspaper field, excluding two years with the Flambeau. During the three years, I served one summer with the Tampa Tribune, and the remainder with the Clearwater Sun.
...If elected, the Senior Staff and I will consider all ideas of any constructive criticism from students.
...For a more compact newspaper, with ears wide open to students, I recommend you vote for
SCOTT MARSHALL.

Dear Editor:
...As a candidate for editor of the Flambeau, I wish to outline briefly my qualifications.
...If experience is one proper criterion for judging ability my past work on the Flambeau includes:
* Reporter
* Assistant Feature Editor
* Columnist
* Business Manager.
...As editor candidate of Senior Staff, I believe in a stated editorial policy . . . yet one that is flexible and can change as conditions and time temper certain points. This policy will be constructive.
...I believe in a campus newspaper, printing student news and reporting student activities.
...As a newspaper advocates causes, it will prove unpopular at times but counsel in printing the truthful news will be my guide.
...I believe the Flambeau should be free from pressure groups—both administration and individual.
...High places aren't infallible . . . I'm not a politician. During my FU work my hardest at the job I seek.
BOB GRIFFIN.

Dear Editor:
...Since I am running for the position of Flambeau editor next year, I feel I should like to present my qualifications to you and the student body.
...As you know I have worked on the paper since my freshman year in this capacity. During that time I climbed from cub reporter through the ranks of feature writer to my present position as assistant managing editor. In addition, I have been activity column during one summer session and a humor column all last year. I am a member of Sigma Delta Chi and the treasurer of the local colony of Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary.
...I know you and the rest of the party of the people on this campus feel that a person running for Flambeau editor should have a platform to present to the students and from this decide who is the best man for the job whether it be male or female.
...I would like to see this space and state my four-point plan. First, a consistent editorial policy under a free press. Next, to present a variety of columns to have a cross-section of student opinion expressed. Third, thorough news coverage and fourth honest news reporting. The last two policies which every newspaper—student or professional—should have.
...I submit my qualifications and platform before you and the student body to ask you to help me judge their merit.
Janet Pierce.

...GA Treasurer

Dear Students:
...There are several reasons why I feel qualified for the office of treasurer of UGA. I have always been elected treasurer of my various high school clubs, served as assistant, had bookkeeping experience in high school, and presently am a member of Sophomore Council and served on various student government committees.
...All these things help me to have a better understanding of the problems and responsibilities of the Treasurer of UGA.
...I will run my campaign on the following points: (1) to keep all students on university council, and (2) fulfill the office of treasurer to the best of my ability.
...I urge each of you to exercise your right in student government by voting for the best qualified candidate during this election.
Pat Weiland.

Fellow Students:
...I would like to take this opportunity to express my interest and qualifications for the office of Treasurer of UGA. It is my sincere desire to serve in this capacity because I feel that with my past experience as Treasurer of the Dormitory, Treasurer of the Campus Charity Chest, accountant for one of the campus sororities, accounting major, Chairman of the UGA Ball, and other duties and practical experiences in accounting for funds, encumbrances, and budgets that I am well versed in this type of office. I am fully capable of handling any financial problems that may arise in the University Governments Association.
...I also promise that, if I'm elected, to take an active interest in all matters concerning the students' welfare by exercising my vote on the University Council.
WM. J. CORNELIUS

Fellow Students:
...You, as members of the student body have a voice in student government through your vote. Let me urge you to make an effort to investigate the qualifications of each candidate and then choose the one who you think would best fulfill the duties of the respective office. Don't vote blindly!
...The position of treasurer is one of the most important offices of any organization. I feel that I can perform the duties of treasurer of the UGA efficiently and effectively. I assure you that I will certainly do my best.
...I sincerely appreciate your vote and support.
...Yours for more efficient student government.
Sue Saxon.

...GA Secretary

Dear Students,
...I am candidate for Secretary of University Government Association. I should like, first of all, to explain to you my sincere desire to serve you in this capacity; and secondly, to point out that I am well aware of the responsibilities which the job carries and feel that I am competent to handle them for the student body.
...Every consideration and support will be much appreciated.
JO NELL PROCTOR.

Dear Students:
...With this letter I would like to announce my candidacy for Secretary of University Government Association. Now that election time is here, you can be sure of a campaign packed full of fun with the candidates listing "What I will do" and "Offices I have held." While this strategy is all very well and good, I prefer to say "Vote for me because I will serve you, the student body." But, to avoid misunderstanding, I have no intentions of writing a 10,000 word thesis entitled "Political Theory of Vote Getting." Verily, For, I realize that the Secretary of University Government Association can best serve the student body by attending University Government meetings and recording the proceedings for various student government officers.
...These then are my intentions. Nothing elaborate, flowery or Utopian. Just SERVICE that, with your cooperation, will help make our university better than ever.
...Thanking you, I remain,
Arlene Amend,
candidate for Secretary of Government Association.
Arlene Amend.

...omen's VP

Dear Students:
...This is to announce that I am a candidate for Vice-President in charge of Women's Affairs.
...My interest and experience qualifies me for the office and will greatly appreciate the opportunity to work with the students and faculty in the best interests of women of FSU.
...I ask for your considerations and support in the coming election.
Nancy Miller.

Fellow Students:
...In declaring my candidacy for UGA Vice President of Women's Affairs, I do not promise the impossible. I promise one I know I can keep and that is cooperation. I will promise to work to the best of my ability for your benefits. The major duty of the Vice President over women's senate meetings and to act as an active co-worker on your desires toward concrete laws enabling us to hold the position for which we are campaigning.
...For example, I personally want to see the women's hall and county laws of Judiciary council revised to give more privilege to do. I am not running for the prestige of the office but which you may feel I can assist in work; and if feel I am capable of helping you to better FSU. I ask you to vote for us, the students, regardless of your choice of candidate, but hoping you will remember Anne Monroe for your Vice President of Women's Affairs.
ANNE F MONROE

Fellow Students,
...I am offering you my services as Vice-President in Charge of Women's Affairs for next year.
...I have served as a dormitory officer for two years, in Sophomore Council as a Junior Counselor, a Junior Senator, as chairman of the Social Committee and President Pro-Tem of Women's Senate. I am qualified and capable of carrying out the duties and responsibilities this office requires.
...For you who are not familiar with the last mentioned office of Pro-Tem, it provides for someone to fill the vacancy of Vice-President in Charge of Women's Affairs in the event of death. The remainder of the year I will be fulfilling the duties of the office for which I am candidate. These duties include:
...f. Presiding over Women's Senate as chairman.
...2. Serving as a member of University Senate.
...3. Conducting all woman's convocations.
...4. Serving as a member of University Council.
...All I can ask is that you give careful consideration to my qualifications and pass experience in relation to your duties when you cast your vote for the office of Vice-President in Charge of Women's Affairs.
...Your vote is a contribution to better student government.
BETTY RICH

...moke Signals

Fellow Indians:
...The Smoke Signals over Bryan are bringing you a special message. They say vote for Joel P Smith, Sq, for the office of editor of the Smoke Signals (Talaria). Yes I'm running, and it's not for the city line and I'm not kidding this time.
...I'm running unopposed but I need your support just the same. Please don't neglect my name when you vote next Tuesday or Wednesday.
...In today's issue of the Flambeau you'll see where I have been named to the position of associate editor of the Smoke Signals. During the past year I have been working as feature editor and business editor.
...Now I'll turn politico, to wit: If you elect me I'll publish a monthly Smoke Signal to line your waste-paper baskets with. More room in each issue . . . and a Smoke Signal which will give stiff competition to the Saturday Evening Post (or Miami magazine) which won All-American during its first year of publication.
...Smoke Signals will be a departmentalized magazine with special sections devoted to humor features, literature, fiction, current events and editorials. We will use only the best student-written material submitted for consideration in the magazine and will not use poor material just for the sake of filling up space.
...Every issue we will be made of pictures and humorous cartoons in the section of the Smoke Signals. Don't forget me and I won't forget you.
JOEL SMITH.

Dear Students:
...Though off to a late start, I am now in the running for the position of Editor of the campus magazine, Smoke Signals, formerly Talaria.
...I will run on a write-in ballot so if you choose to vote for me you must write my name in on the ballot under the name of the candidate already listed.
...My platform offers no promises, only hopes; hopes that I can serve you capably with the majority of you may read, understand, and enjoy; hopes that you will not be highbrow, yet not so far away as to draw to the lowest level; hopes that the student magazine, whether its name be Talaria, or Smoke Signals, or Sunsets, be exposed to any unfavorable publicity and derision as has so often occurred with former publishings.
...Remember, if you win to vote for me you must write in my name under the name of the candidate already listed.
...I will thank you much for your vote.
GENE BURNETT.

...ourt System

Dear Editor:
...Fellow students, having always been an advocate of the Honor System, I am writing to you now before like a charm, my hat is in the ring now as a candidate for Senior Representative to Honor Court.
...I am elected, I promise to fulfill to the best of my ability all the duties devolving upon me as a member of Honor Court. Furthermore, if will show no partiality to any case coming before me, but assess in the best interest of the individual, not to prove the authority of the court.
...If you choose me to serve you as your Junior representative to Judiciary, I shall do all within my power to insure a fair and open-minded court.
ELIZABETH "LIZ" HILL.

...I have been a student and interested voter at this university for three years, and would like you like this opportunity to become an even more active participant as your representative to University Court. Even though I have not served on this court, I feel I am as qualified as any other to judge the cases in an impartial and unprejudiced manner. I do know and understand the rules under which our university is set up having lived under them for these years, and I hope that you will make it possible for me to help see that the students are given a fair chance in the court of law.
...If at anytime any fallacies are brought to my attention or I feel that any injustices have been done I will not hesitate to try to have them corrected.
BARBARA CARUTHERS.

Dear Freshmen,
...I am running for Sophomore representative to Men's Judiciary. I feel that I am well qualified to hold the position. I have had an abundance of experience in high school similar to that which I will need to carry out the duties of this office.
...I want to give my class the kind of representation of which they can be proud. I believe that I can do this. In addition, I have an honest desire to serve you. I want the job.
BUDDY LEYNES.

Dear Editor:
...I am running for sophomore representative to Judiciary. I am extremely interested in this office because I think many people have been penalized unjustly and I would like the opportunity to justify these unnecessary restrictions that are so generously put upon the students. If I am elected I will work for you.
ARDIS BOURLAND.

Dear Editor:
...I wish to announce my candidacy for the office of Sophomore Representative to Judiciary.
...If I am elected I will endeavor to live up to the ideals I see in a good representative of the student body. I will try to hear and understand the complete facts of an issue before passing judgment. I consider each issue individually, and finally in view of the facts consider, render a fair and just decision.
YVONNE McCARTHY.

Fellow Students:
...As a freshman I am very interested in our student government. I realize the duties and responsibilities of a judicial representative, if I am elected to the position of Sophomore Representative to Women's Judiciary. I will accept and fulfill those duties to the best of my ability. In my desire to represent you, the students, and to uphold the high ideals of our student government is left up to the interest of each individual student. It is YOUR right to help elects your student officers. Carefully consider each and vote for those students who are qualified and capable.
POLLY ANNE LASSITER.

Dear Editor:
...I would like a chance to say something for a change. This past year, as Clerk of Senior Council, I've just sat there—listening and writing like mad. Now I'd like a chance to do something more interest in student government and use experience I have gathered and "get to work" as Senior Representative to University Court. How about it?
Charline Weitmon.

Dear Editor:
...As candidate for Chairman of Judiciary, I feel that students who have a problem and have been penalized by Honor Court should be treated as fellow students and with an attitude of cooperation in the solving of the problem. The attitude that student-court confers upon Court should be considered as criminals and should be punished for their "crime" is another of the attitudes which I am trying to further is that of treating the individual as a fellow student. With discussion of the case to the best interests of the student and the student's body.
...As a member of Men's Judiciary this year, I have been able to help the present chairman of that group forward progressive measures such as an open court at this option of the student, which has already been accepted by the Women's Judiciary.
...I would welcome the opportunity to further serve the student body in making the Judiciary more effective and respected "student's court."
JIM BALL.

...lly-Ho B Mgr

Fellow Students:
...After having worked on the Tally Ho this year, I feel become my sincere desire to serve as Business Manager for publication. As I am majoring in the field of business, and have had practical experience in this field of journalism, I feel fully qualified to fill this office. I can also assure you of the complete cooperation with the editor, which is so vital.
...Although I am unopposed for this office, I sincerely appreciate your vote, since a single candidate is required to have over 50 percent of the entire vote to obtain an office. See you at the polls!
Bill Skipper.

● OTHER DEPARTMENTS COULD FOLLOW LEAD

A unique system—akin to grading instructions—has been introduced by the economics department at Florida State University.

A questionnaire asking six questions was distributed to the members of all classes enrolled in principles of economics. They were asked to answer all questions freely and to give their frank reactions to the course. The questionnaire had absolutely no bearing on the final grade of the student. All questionnaires remained anonymous.

The first question asked if the student benefited from film strips used in the course. This referred to the "Bugs Bunny" type of animated movies which were used to clarify more difficult theoretical issues.

Ninety-one per cent of the answers agreed that film strips did aid in understanding the course work.

The second question asked how the student felt principles of economics compared with other social science courses. Sixty per cent answered better, 36 per cent thought it was about the same and the remainder did not think the course was as good.

Eighty per cent of the students thought that principles of economics fills a need in the average students college program.

That could be construed to say that economics serves a role in general education as well as doing its part in equipping the specialist.

And 70 per cent of the students polled said they preferred the course exactly as it was taught. Two per cent were in favor of more lecturing and 28 per cent were of the opinion there should be more class discussion and less lecturing.

Students even asked for homework problems. According to the question, "Do you feel that your understanding of the course material would have benefited from the assignment of problems as homework?" 60 per cent answered yes.

Sixty-five per cent of the enrollees asked for quizzes because they thought they could have made a better grade if weekly or biweekly tests had been given.

Other departments on campus could take a lesson from the economics department and follow their lead by asking students how they feel about courses. Most departments depend too much on theory.

The law of supply and demand would work in all departments. Supply the students with what they want and they will demand your courses.

● HEAR THE CANDIDATES

Attendance at the Omicron Delta Kappa political rally tonight is a must for all students interested in the University Government Association elections tomorrow.

Students will be given a chance to hear candidate for the several UGA offices. From these speeches and the platforms stated in this issue of the Flambeau, students can form the basis of how they should vote in the elections.

An annual affair, the ODK rally serves as a medium for candidates to meet students. They will tell you what they stand for and how they will attempt to put their platforms in effect if they are elected.

It is your duty, as a citizen of Florida State University, to participate in school politics.

Won't you be there tonight in the Music Building Amphitheater? The candidates need your support and it is your function to give them that support.

Balloting will only be held one day this year. Don't delay on election day. Vote for any candidate but PLEASE VOTE.

● WHAT'S GOIN' ON?

Two college newspapers complained recently that nobody was giving them the news. The Pitt News declared, "Whether University underlings are mistakenly afraid to make statements without running to the Chancellor or whether the Chancellor himself wants it that way, we don't know. But we'd sure like to find out."

And the Park Stylus, Park college. Mo, was wondering just what was expected of it. "Do the students and faculty want a newspaper or do they want a weekly and monthly organ whose solo purpose is the publication of literary works and free publicity for various activities on the campus?"

● BUZ-Z-Z-Z-Z

The following may sound as if it belongs under a classified heading but somehow it found its way into the editorial office:

"Needed: One buzzer type signal in Men's Senior Hall to summon men to the telephone. This system would be, could be and should be similar to the one used in all the women's dormitories. Can be purchased and installed at a nominal fee and would save, in the long run, a great loss in time and temper in trying to reach residents in Men's Senior Hall. Any member of the administration finding such a buzzer system should immediately send to Senior Hall for installation."

Yes, the communication system described in the above "classified" is a definite must for Men's Senior Hall. Much confusion and delay would be avoided in completing telephone call sot and from this dormitory.

In addition, when female members of the university want to contact a male at Senior Hall an errand boy would not have to make the necessary trip up and down the stairs to complete this important task.

Advocates Freedom

Dear Editor:

The suspension of John Baker was alarming. I believe protest loud enough it will stop a his suspension is a challenge to all of us. Freedom of the press is being threatened. The students formation of a committee as soon as it would be feasible. The committee would not only become the voice of students only. It would be called the Freedom Committe or any name suitable.

'PON MY WORD

TERRIFIC TURNOUT-NINE-AT FORUM

By BETSY BLANTON

A grand total of nine audients attended the Pi Alpha Sigma round table discussion for UGA presidential candidates Friday night. Despite the dismal turnout, the candidates managed to control their nervousness and threw around some perfectly good conversation.

Question asked by moderator Allan Head imeloded, What do you think of the Artist Series. What are your views on the student constitution. What do you think about the method of handling the budget and What are your views on the Flambeau?

Most of the candidates were in agreement that students should care more voice in choosing the Artist Series program. Will Pendell said that he thought students have representation on the Artist Series committee, but according to Jerry Thomas he is inadequately represented. All agreed that the opinion of the entire student body should be expressed on these matters.

As for their views on the student constitution, there was some disagreement. Jerry Thomas expressed the opinion that in a school which is still changing from a women's college to a coeducational university, many changes in the constitution are inevitable. Will Pendell disagreed in that he felt too many amendments would make for weak student government. He said that less emphasis should be placed on who should do what job and more emphasis on seeing that it acts done.

"Pancho" Syed also disagreed with Jerry, saying that changes in by-laws and statutes were inevitable, and he pointed out that the present constitution was approved by a coeducational student body.

Herb Marsh threw a bombshell into the discussion at this point by stating that the constitution found in the Pow Wow is not the original but a revised copy of the document signed in student election last year.

The question of whether the vice presidency in charge of men's and women's affairs should attend university senate meetings was also brought up. Herb said that according to the original constitution he should not, but that Dean Culpepper's office these officials are not entitled to a seat in University Senate.

All candidates agreed that students should know what happens to the student activity fee, how it is distributed, and what amount each area is allotted. Pancho and Jerry thought there should be a student committee which would handle money matters, while Will stated that there simply needs to be better publication of how student money is spent. Herb Marsh did not comment on this question.

The Flambeau topic was next on the agenda. Jerry stressed the importance of the college newspaper as the sole media of information for the student body. While Will said that the paper should be made more responsible to student news through the Student Board of Publications.

Pancho said that he was pretty much satisfied with the Flambeau as it is. He also emphasized that students should never become administrative central of the newspaper. Herb Marsh said he would go along with freedom of the press.

The platforms of these and all candidates appear on another page in this paper, and the students will have another chance to hear them speak at tonight's political rally.

Why not "pack" more than nine seats?

Poetically Yours

AUTUMN REFLECTIONS
By Fred Hornyak

The green trees watch, not moving a bough;
The flowers in the field are dancing now.
They dance to death and smile, not knowing
That winter's winds come with frosty blowing.
They're are so beautiful; sadly they rise
To clouds and heaven with mornful sighs,
Their spirits will return, you can be sure,
As little snowflakes, white as pure.

THE WELL-READ MAN
By Jim Slack

In the magazines I read ev'ry ad
Never again will my breath be bad,
Never again will I sneez in base
A cigarette not to my doctor's taste.

In the bathroom I never grope
For a socially unacceptable soap;
I listen when the radio dins in ma
How terrible that sin kin be.

Now at last we have television,
I have even less trouble making a decision
As to the relative merits
Of everything from music to carrots.

SEMESTER HOLDS NEW PROMISE FOR MALES

By JERRY THOMAS

During the next semester many of the male students were very personally affected by other agencies.

Many men were drafted out of school, while other quit and joined the enlisted ranks.

This semester appears to hold a new promise for the male populace at the F.S.U.

The Marine Corps, the Air Force, the Navy and the Army are all offering reserve officer training to qualified college men.

A large number of FSU's men have joined on reserve group or other, which relieves them of the security of remaining in college until graduation.

These reserve guarantees relieved the college administration of much pressure.

Every day during last semester, a group of men were presented themselves in the Dean of Student Welfare's office and asked, "I received my draft notice, what should i do?"

What could he advise the men? He could only go on release information that he had received from Washington—that was uncertain.

Some of the men felt that the only solution was to enlist early so as to choose the branch they could be cured.

Others held out and continued to attend college.

As the days continued, the "draft fever" began to smooth at a rapid pace.

Some students received inside information from their draft board that their name would be called soon. They also "joined up."

A number of men who had received no information or notices from their draft board, began to complain. But, that they too pulled up stake; and followed suit.

The administration is apparently satisfied with the enrollments in the University will be quite satisfactory.

This is evident by the construction of the new men's dormitory and Fraternity row.

Some of the fraternities are doubtful about moving into Fraternity Row because their membership has dropped to such a low ebb that they could not afford an expense of a new building.

If the University is constructing these buildings with the knowledge that male enrollments will decline during the next few years —they are violating every principle of good economic business.

One pleasant rumor for the men that has been started is that the women will also "joined up."

MIKE SELLERS - - - WHY IS HE RUNNING?

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

Just why is Mike Sellers running for UGA presidency? That is the question many students asked when they heard he had submitted his candidacy for this highest office in student government.

The first reaction was, why he is running. Is he afraid he is missing in campus politics for . . . football players don't know anything but football.

I was curious, astounded, and puzzled, along with everyone else. It's logical for Jerry Thomas, Herb Marsh and Will Pennell to run for this office, but why Mike? So when I happened to run into Mike the other day in the Grill, I asked him if we could have a little talk.

Over a cup of coffee I asked him first, "why are you running for president?"

Mike not only is a football player, he looks like one. He's a big guy, 22 years old, a navy vet. "I'd like to get some tradition started in this campus," he answered. "Tradition is the base for good government."

When I asked him to clarify the word 'tradition', he stated "I mean, getting people feeling the same way, getting the students to work together so that there will be no splits such as there are now between Judicial Council, Men's Hall, and so forth."

"And speaking of tradition," Mike continued, "you can't build a tradition. But someone has to start."

"What experience have you had in student government?" I asked next. He told me that he had been president of his high school student council in Ohio. "I know this student body," he added, "like I know what it wants."

My next question was "What's your platform?" Mike answered, "I don't believe in having a set platform. I want the executive student officers to bring out the principles for which they stand if they are elected."

Mike, a criminology major at Indiana, switched to physical education when he transferred to FSU. I asked him how his experience in that field will be beneficial life if he were elected to UGA president. "I'm a student at FSU first," he answered, "and a football player second. I didn't enter the campaign for the glory of being president, nor to make a name for myself." Mike has already made a name an the football field.

Next came the question I was most interested in, "what would Your attitude be towards the administration if you were elected?" "I'd work with the administration 100%," he answered, "as long as they were working with the students." He added that if he were president he would not have any student government. "It's too big a job for one person."

Mike, a C average student, started talking about school spirit. "There's some spirit here, but not enough to brag about. I'd like to sell FSU around the state so that it could get its proper acclaim."

He continued, "I saw things in student governments when I was attending Indiana, so I put two and two together and I believe I've come up with the answer. If elected president, I'd hold my office not as a dictator, but as a helper. I firmly believe that the seat of the governments is in the Senate."

I had to go to class then, so I said goodby. I had the answer to why Mike Sellers is running for UGA president.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

ELECTIONEERING COLORS FSU CAMPUS LIFE

By JOEL P SMITH

Spring is springing and the campus is beginning to take on new life . . . people you didn't even know were living are coming out of hibernation. And what's more, they're taking up posters and shaking hands with every Tom, Dick and Dal!

Yes there is absolutely nothing like early spring around campus . . . this is the time of year that the handshakes and baby kissers of politics shake off their many thousands af friends whom they haven't seen in months . . . and the committee is swamped with attendance problems.

Without a doubt, electioneering is one of the most colorful aspects of college life at FSU. Politics were quite the thing back when we were known as FSCW, too. Grads of the old school tell me that girls didn't stand a chance for election among the females unless they were members of the "P" club.

The influx of men back in '47 and '48 gave new life to the political struggle. The ERS men on campus battled the females for the presidency of the new university . . . each men put a candidate with pants an in office. Charles McMillan became the first male president of Florida State after an active campaign in which Elizabeth Tuttle lost to the female squad member. Jim Crabtree was elected vice president and then after he won the election for president of the male's half of student government.

Dub Bill and his supporters staged much excitement and politics the following year, spring 1949, when they followed in Fuller Warren style and organized "Bill's Staff." Dub had more campaign managers than Carter has little liver pills . . . and they bombarded the campus with campaign posters, stunts and songs. James Tippin, veteran campus politico, won against Dub who had been in residence only one year. Jack Lamar made himself known, and he brought professional political tactics to the campus. During the Dub Bill—James Tippin battle, Babe Ashley emerged papers, too. Rube turned out to be the "dark horse" and the label originally reserved for Dub.

Gallup Poll's campus representatives threw up their hands and ran when "Big" John Newland and Rube Ashley threw the campus into a month of politicking that pulled Jack Lamar, Rube, John and Paul Cartis, who was defeated in the first run-off, threw the campus into the most spectacular politicking the student body had ever seen.

The dark horse, "Big" John, again nearly ran away with the election. Had there been the customary two run-offs, John would be your student body president now. This colorful campaign put the relatively new constitution to the test, but the election committee let the candidates, John and Rube, decide whether or not to go into a third run-off before the ballot count was made public.

Does Counsel Help Or Hinder Student?

Have you been counseled lately? Educational counselors are a couple hired by a university to serve the individual student in his planning of study. They are presumed to be specialists in this field, thereby qualified to offer competent advice as to what the student shall take, what he shall not take, and often, what would be the best occupation or profession he should pursue for his lifetime work.

With but few exceptions, these counselors seem to be merely relerely believes to be the best interests of the student; they are confident that their counseling is helpful and constructive. At this point, however, is where the doubt is raised. There is enough to believe that there is harm rather than good done to the student through such a setup.

HERE ARE some random examples of individuals who should stay ground for some such criticisms.

Bill, an eager freshman, arrived at the university with the hopes of majoring in law. He thought, though, that he had to consult a counselor first. He accordingly reviewed Bill's IQ records, his personality test records, his high school grades and other factual data offering the student's background. Following this in procedure, the counselor finally came to the conclusion that though Bill's chief interest was in law, it might be wiser to take something more practical since Bill's records showed more aptitude in fields other than law, and since the field of law was so overcrowded. Bill was not only discouraged but completely disillusioned. He changed his major to something "more practical." finally. Later he became disgusted with school and dropped out of school. Instead of being encouraged, Bill was discouraged from following a profession he liked. The fact that maybe he could be one example of the best lawyers in the field was not recognized.

OF COURSE. Bill's case is not a common one but this and similar cases can and do occur more often than they should.

Another example, only of different circumstances, is that of Mary, now a Junior. Mary suffered the unfortunate chance of having, not one, but nearly a half dozen counselors. Upon entering college, she was undecided on a major. All through general education she was confused and disappointed by the conflicting suggestions and programs laid out by each of her several counselors. They all differed as to what was the best thing for her. Now Mary is ready to enter the graduate school without a major. Unlike Bills, Mary's case is a common one.

Joe, half-way through his schooling, had a different experience. His counselor thought Joe was a good student and should take wide, scattered field of courses. The counselor believed that the broad view Jim has a broad standing in many phases of life. So instead of taking courses that he was interested in, or best concerned with his major, Joe had a field day; he took everything from wind and family life to Baking 101. Now he realized that he wasted so many valuable hours and so much time in general.

THESE CASES are just a few out of hundreds. However, they do not necessarily indict the counselors as a group altogether. There are many who feel that such counseling is greatly beneficial to the student. They believe that the student just should be left on his own to take care of some guidance. Now, in some schools this would hold true. But in most of the universities the student is explicitly told before hand what he must take and which in all that he really needs to know. After taking twelve hours of this, what fifteen hours of that he may choose, if he were free to do so, courses which more closely concern his particular major study.

AND THEN arises the long-debated question: Can any person really tell another person what is going in life he is best suited for and which is the best way to study for that vocation? This is a most question for which there is much pro and con and can be argued for hours.

Next issue we shall discuss various types of counselors and specific qualifications in each field.

University Sets Up Defense Council

A Florida State University Defense Council composed of faculty, staff and students is now being set up, according to Dean Milton Carothers, chairman.

This council has met three times and is still in the organizational stage.

Carothers said the purpose of the Council is to coordinate civilian and war campuses so that disaster or emergency situations may be met with minimum confusion.

PROVISIONS are being made to equip the University and to train personnel along lines involving first aid, fire fighting, and other necessary steps of war.

As soon as organizational details have been completed, students, faculty, and staff members will be informed concerning the various phases of the defense program. They will be given an opportunity to participate in the activities.

Carothers said.

KEEPIN' SCORE

BUD GOES BACK TO MISSOURI—The National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball (NAIB) national tournament will be nothing new to J K "Bud" Kennedy when he takes his Seminole cagers to Kansas City this week.

Bud, a former high school star in Kansas City, sat back and watched three of his proteges at Warrensburg (Mo) State to three NAIB title back in 1938. This time Florida State's colorful coach will be directing one of 32 teams in the 13th annual tourney—Florida State University, too, and if the Seminoles play the way they did in the Dixie tournament, chances are you'll be hearing about FSU's fourth victory march.

Kennedy was overjoyed beyond belief after Florida State earned the right to compete in the national tourney. In the opening game victory, Bud says that "it was a hard fought game with our boys playing all the way." He is especially pleased with the defensive effectiveness in holding Jim Yonge, 6-8 pivot man, to 4 points. In the consolation tilt with Xavier one finished in 29 with Yonge.

In the finals with Georgia Teachers College Bud says that everyone played top ball; our defensive team game of the season." Georgia Teachers' Parsons is one of the best set shot artists I've seen. Perkins was not overlooked by the press."

Bob Parsons and Perkins were 21 points each for the Panthers.

The national NAIB tournament is scheduled to begin at 11 Monday morning, March 12, and end at midnight Saturday, March 17. Each team will be sponsored by a Kansas City firm, and the manager of the respective firms acting as honorary coaches.

Monday evening at six a huge stag banquet will be staged by tourney officials. The famous Kansas City steaks will probably be in front of each player of the 32 starters. The following evening at the annual parade of champions will be put on in Western Kansas City.

Kennedy says the trip and tournament will be an experience he'll never forget." Dialed reckoned gold basketballs will be presented the winners following Saturday night's finals.

Volleyballers Cop 3rd State Championship

Florida State University's volleyball team copped its third straight Florida title Saturday in the Tampa YMCA, downing the Jacksonville Naval Air Station 15-13, 15-7 in the finals.

The Seminoles had previously won the state crown in 1940 and 1950.

Following the double elimination tournament, an All-State was chosen. Of the six players getting top honors four hail from Florida State. Included in the group are All-America Charlie Floyd, Emerson Kramer, Bob Crook, and George Edminston. All are lettermen from last year's championship six.

The Seminole volleyballers took a hard fought first round victory from the Tampa YMCA by scores of 15-3, 13-15, 15-10. Then the Florida State outfit went on to top Florida Southern College, 15-5, 5-15, 15-5.

In the semi-finals, FSU defeated the Jacksonville team 15-11, 15-12. After the latter topped Tampa in the losers bracket, they fell to the Seminoles in the finals.

Coach Bill Odenesl trained the play of Floyd, Kramer, Crook, Edminston, Captain Danny Hobbs, and Jim Clark.

Joe Regna Wins Intra-Squad Gym All-Round Title

Joe Regna, one of Coach Hartley Price's top gymnasts, won the first of two All-round gymnastics intra-squad meets Saturday afternoon, amassing 153.6 points.

The Sophomore performer proved to be superior on the long horse and flying rings, taking first in each event.

Carmine Regna, brother of the varsity's Joe, finished second with 150.7 points. He copped first place on the parallel bars and high bar.

Saturday afternoon at two the Seminoles will hold another intrasquad All-Round meet in preparation for the coming Southern Gymnastics League, National Collegiates, and National AAU tournaments.

Bill Roetzheim, nationally ranked gymnast who is representing the United States in the Pan-American games at Buenos Aires, is scheduled to return to Florida State next week. He will compete with the varsity in the rubber meet of the varsity-freshmen tilts. Each team holds one victory at present.

FRESHMEN FOLLOW

Following behind the Regna's in Saturday's meet were Pat Signorelli, 145.9; Jack Sharp, 145.8; Joe Gunic, 123.9; Jim McCaslay, 113.1; Bill Warner, 85.4; and Jack Miles, 76. All of the above will compete for the freshmen in the coming intra-squad meet.

Signorelli copped the calisthenics and side horse events, while Duck Gutting, another of the strong freshmen performers, took the trompoline and tumbling honors.

In the preliminary Gymkana meet, Captain Mary Cummins' "Gyms" team topped Captain Betty Wheeler's "Kana" squad, 6-4.

contest, losing 65-58 to the Firebirds.

The second-seeded Georgians found themselves tangled with a spirited team in the finals, and they lost out 69-67.

Top-seeded Tampa lost to GTC in the first round and then topped Stetson in a consolation game, determining the third place team.

Lou Fischer was the fellow who rinks a 67-67 tie with his clutch field goal, putting the FSU eagers in the National NAIB tourney. Lou's jump shot ripped the cords with one minute still left to go in the tilt.

Then Georgia Teachers roared back with great rebuttals of tying the score. With only 10 seconds remaining in the game, Scotty Perkins, 6-4 GTC forward, faked a Seminole out of position and looped in for an easy lay-up, but the ball rolled off the rim, the game ended, and Fischer was a mobbed man.

Scrappy Bob Hartman, named the tournament's most valuable player, got the Seminoles out in front with the first point of the game. From there the score was deadlocked 10 times and the lead changed hands 16 times.

The see-saw battle finally reached its torrid climax when the clutching Fischer rang the bell.

Hartman, considered one of the state's top performers (if not the top), blasted away at the hoops for 27 points, giving him a seasonal record of 420. He and Tampa's George Muntz each have 430, but Hartman is bound to increase his total at the Missouri tournament.

PLENTY OF STARS

Tops for the Seminoles during the hectic tourney were Hartman, Bob Whitmer, Tom McLaughlin, Bud Scott, Bud Marsee, Dick Trobaugh, Fischer, and Larry Dickson.

Hartman was the master all the way. He piled up a total of 42 points during the two games and played great defense ball in addition to a fine floor game.

Whitmer topped the Seminole scorers in the opening Stetson tilt with 24 markers. He added 16 more in the Georgia Teachers contest, a total of 40. Whitmer's pet set shot was working to perfection in the Stetson fracus. He, too, was outstanding defensively.

McLaughlin was a tower of strength in the FSU defense game, and contributed 15 points during the tourney. His skill in dominating both backboards over Stetson's Big Jim Yonge, 6-8 pivot man, was uncanny. During the tournament only six shots from the floor were scored by opposing centers.

Marsee, Trobaugh, and Dickson were tops in all departments. Marsee playing with a heavily bandaged elbow. Of course, Fischer's fat two-pointer in the finals will stand above most any one performance.

Gator Swimmers May Enter Saturday Meet

After having tied North Carolina State for the Southeastern AAU swimming title, Florida State University will be host team at the annual Florida AAU indoor swimming and diving championships here Saturday morning and night.

The University of Florida tankmen may enter the Saturday event, marking the first time FSU and Gator athletes have competed in either Tallahassee or Gainesville.

The Gators entered the Atlanta meet last Saturday and finished fifth. The Seminoles and the North Carolina tankers amassed a total of 36 points each. Georgia was third with 34, followed by Miami with 23, Florida with 14, Georgia Freshmen with 7, Louisville YMCA with 7, Georgia Tech 6, Cloudmont, Ala 6, and Northwestern Louisiana 3.

FINALS BEGIN AT 6

Coach Sim Sisila' Florida State mermen will probably be top-seeded in the Florida AAU meet, with Miami and Florida following. Saturday's meet will start at 10 in the morning, at which time the finals will battle in a qualifying round for the right to compete in the finals, scheduled to begin that night at eight.

The FSU swimmers copped three first-places, one second, and three thirds in the nine-event meet.

All-America Roger Slater was at top form, winning the three-meter diving title with 303.1 points. Sisila had anticipated the high board hindering the Seminole divers, but Slater wasn't handicapped. The FSU divers had been diving from a low board prior to the AAU meet.

Co-captain Walter Jardine took first place in the 440-yard free style with a time of 5:07.3, below his usual performance, Jardine, however, wasn't extended to win.

The final Seminole first place gave them a tie with the Carolina team for the title. Dick Wells, Pete Dunn-Rankin, Jack White, and Walter Jardine swam the 400-yard free style in 3:40.5, breaking the old AAU mark set by Georgia last year.

COOPER TOP SCORER

Wells took the Seminoles' only second, finishing behind Georgia's Charley Cooper, the meet's high point man with 12½ points, in the 100-yard free style event.

Walter Jardine and John Burstner took third places in the 220-yard free style and 200-yard back stroke events, respectively. Florida State's 300-yard medley relay team of Scott Ramsey, Ed Archer, and Wells ended third for FSU's final placing in the meet.

Following Saturday's Florida meet here, Florida State swims Clemson and Pensacola Navy, and then enters the National NCAA and National AAU meet.

Budget Chief Gives Series of Lectures

Dr William R Devine, chief of the Management Appraisal Group, Administrative Division, United States Bureau of the Budget in the executive office of the President, is giving a series of lectures at Florida State this week.

The federal official is one of several obtained by Dr Wilson K Doyle, dean of the School of Public Administration, for a special course on the over-all organization and management of the federal government.

IN THIS series of lectures this week, Dr Devine, a law graduate of George Washington University, will discuss "Survey Activities in the Federal Government." This will include discussions on techniques used in surveys, causes for successes and failures in surveys results, ways to plan a program of surveys, and practices followed in organizing and presenting survey proposals.

Following his series of lectures this week, Dr Devine will give a second series of lectures to public administration classes from March 12-16 on "Production Planning and Control," according to Prof Michael Balwan, in charge of arrangements for the lecture series.

Penguin Hair Dryers Installed In Eight Women's Dormitories

The penguins are here . . . the penguins are here . . .

Yes, the penguin hair dryers have been installed in every dormitory for women students' use.

THIS is the first time that dryers have been placed in the dormitories. Previously, the only machines on the campus were those found in the women's east campus gymnasium and hand dryers owned by individual students.

The newly installed penguins are gifted with a new, modern convenience. It is the only type of hair dryer on the market which does not use hot air in its drying process. The temperature remains normal. The machine is so styled that none of the natural oils of the hair are baked out and no hot air is forced upon the scalp to hurt it.

PRIVATELY owned by Mrs Dannett Mayo, new penguins can be used with no time wasted with hair nets, ear pads or eye shilders. No towels are needed for the student's shoulders for no air blows down out of the machine on to the shoulders or face.

The new hairdryer allows users to smoke while under the machine. The cigarette can be lit while the machine is in operation —no air will blow the match out.

THERE is a control switch installed in case the customer wants the air flowing from the machine to be any degree warmer. Reading may be done with pleasure while the student is under the penguin because the hood of the machine has a "no glare" reading light in it.

The penguins may be operated by inserting a quarter into the machine and turning it on. The hood may be adjusted to fit all student's heights by grasping the cylindor which attaches the hood to the machine and pushing it up or down.

Landis, Reynolds, Gilchrist, Marnolia, Broward, Cawthon, Jennie Murphre and Bryan are the dorms housing these novel hairdryers.

Wilson to Feature Works of Medtner In Faculty Recital

The piano works of Nicolai Medtner will be featured in a recital by Howard Wilson of the School of Music faculty in Music hall tomorrow evening at 8:15.

Medtner, often known as the Russian Brahms, fled to London during the Russian Revolution and has lived there ever since. Dr Wilson is a pupil of the composer.

The pianist has performed in England, France and seven of the United States. His studies include work at Yale University and the University of London, and he has studied with Ernst von Dohnanyi, Carl Friedberg, Robert Casadesus and Medtner. During World War II he organized and directed the piano department of the American University at Biarritz, France.

The works by Medtner to be included on the program will be the Sonata-Idylle, Opus 56, two "Fairy Tales" and a Prelude and Fugue in E minor by Mendelssohn and the Sonata in C minor, KV 457 by Mozart.

Rally Sends FSU Cagers To Tourney

Cheerleaders Sponsor Sendoff Tonight at 7:30; Tribe Leaves for NAIB

Florida State University's sharp basketball team will get a sendoff rally tonight at 7:30 in preparation for the Seminoles bid in capturing the National Association of Intercollegiate Basket b a l l (NAIB) tournament which begins Monday in Kansas City, Mo.

The rally, which is being sponsored by the FSU cheerleaders, will be held in the amphitheatre adjacent to the music building. All students are urged to attend the rally.

Coach Bud Kennedy's Seminoles will leave for Kansas City at the 8:25 train tonight, following the pep rally. Florida State is expected to get another "under dog" role in the tourney.

BOB HARTMAN, Bob Whitmer, Bill Marsee, Bud Scott, Tom McLaughlin, Lou Fischer, Larry Dickson, Ronnie Nettles, Jack Merriman, Dick Trobaugh, and Irwin Quinn will make the trip for the Seminoles.

Council Discusses Leadership Program

Pennell Suggests Awards For Officers, Committees

University Council again attempted to push forward the work on a leadership training program last Monday. The Council recommended that Cass Yonge and her committee bring forward plans for a short course, compulsory for all elected officers, while would be held in two two-hour sessions one week apart.

Allan Head joined Cass in stressing of the need, especially among inexperienced electees, for training in the University Government Association constitution, the relationship of student government to faculty and administration, and the balance of power among the branches of the UGA. Cass said that these points were all covered under plans now framed by the committee on leadership training.

COUNCIL also authorized a committee to consider Will Pennell's suggestion for awards to student officers and committee heads. Pennell asked for a budget provision for gold keys of various sizes to be awarded officer-holders and others who serve the students.

The proposal would require a constitutional amendment to become effective.

After extensive discussion Council took up and passed a long-range resolution by Allan Head to set up three new committees under the University Council. These groups will be appointed by the president from elected student citizens, and their purpose is to take many tasks off the shoulders of elected officers and leave them free to devote their energy to policy-forming.

THE THREE committees will be rotated thru many types of work," said Head, "giving more members an excellent experience with workings of the student government."

The Council also took up discussion of the University Defense Committee. A special movie and meeting will be held at the Student Union in near future to gain student interest and support.

ROTC Inspection Will Be Mon, Tues

The Florida State University Air ROTC unit will undergo its annual formal inspection next Monday and Tuesday, according to Col. Wendell H. Woodring, professor of Air Science and Tactics.

The two-day inspection of the unit will be conducted by Col. Roy F. Selzer, inspector-general of the 14th Air Force.

The newly organized Florida State University Air ROTC band will make its first appearance during the formal review of the unit at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, on the West campus athletic field.

Near Record Voting Chooses Pennell, Thomas To Run in UGA Final; Bradley, Kirk Also Vie

2,107 Votes Cast in Primaries; Proctor Elected on First Ballot

A near record turnout of 2,106 voters chose Will Pennell and Jerry Thomas to runoff in the University Government Association elections for president of the UGA. The finals will be held next Wednesday.

Defeated candidates for UGA president were Mike Sellers (428), Ignacio Sved (141) and Herb March (91).

In the race for vice president of UGA Jim Kirk led the field with 881 tallies with Dick Bradley 80 votes behind. Jimmie Evans was eliminated with 529 votes.

The percentage of votes cast is a new record at 42.8. However, the total votes cast is approximately 200 less than last year's final UGA election. The difference being there are less students registered this semester.

ELECTIONS COMMITTEE Chairman Paul Garrison said finals for all positions will be held Wednesday, March 14. He indicated that all four precincts would be open at that time. They are Westcott, Dining Hall-Post Office, West Campus Post Office and the basement of the Alumni building.

Garrison said the Elections Committee was undecided whether to put men's Senior representative to UGA runoff with the campaign letter far insertion in next Tuesday's issue of the Flambeau.

They must not exceed 250 words each and must be typewritten and double spaced, said Editor Dobert. Positively no letter will be given space in the paper that does not reach the office by 12 noon Monday, March 12.

Political advertising will also be included in next Tuesday's paper. Copy for these ads must be turned in at publication tomorrow. The cost is 65 cents per column inch.

class elections next month. They were inadvertently left off the ballot during mimeographing, he stated.

A close race for the runoff in Flambeau editorship developed with Jane Atchley winning out second place on the ballot over Scott Marshall by three votes. Bob Griffin was a first with 586 votes. Atchley had 413, Marshall 410.

Jo Nell Proctor was elected in the first primary to the position of secretary of UGA. She polled 1,064 votes. Her opponents tallied a total of 805 votes. Arlene Amend scored 413 while Mary Helen Speed gained 326.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT in charge of women's affairs Betty Rich and Nancy Miller will vie in the finals. Eunice Thompson, with 371 and Anne Morrow with 329 were eliminated. Rich had 503 votes and Miller came through with 455.

Sue Saxon and Bill Cornelius will oppose each other for the

ODK Sponsors Political Rally

'Big Improvement Over Last Year's Attendance'

Approximately 400 students turned out for the Second Annual Omicron Delta Kappa Political Rally Tuesday night in the open air Amphitheater. Candidates for the various University Government offices appeared on the program to present their platforms to the student body.

The political aspirants to office found themselves not only fighting a battle of words but shouting above the din of a pneumatic drill near Westcott, the police whistle on top of Reynolds, and a bicycle horn in the parking lot.

ODK PRESIDENT Doug Aller expressed his pleasure at the student response to the rally. "It was a large improvement over last year's crowd. I hope that the attendance will continue to grow and build up election enthusiasm," Aller commented.

The Rally lasted nearly two hours with candidates for all the major offices and most of the minor ones appearing on the program.

All of the UGA Presidential candidates Jerry Thomas, Will Pennell, Ignacio (Pancho) Sved, Herb March and Mike Sellers, appeared.

OTHERS speaking Tuesday evening included: Dick Bradley, Jimmy Evans and Jim Kirk, candidates for vice-president in charge of legislative affairs; Ted Biedenmeyer, unopposed for vice-president in charge of men's affairs; Anne Frances Monroe, Eunice Thompson, Betty Rich and Nancy Miller, for vice-president in charge of women's affairs.

Jo Nell Proctor spoke in behalf of her candidacy for secretary of UGA, along with the four candidates for treasurer, Bill Cornelius, Sue Saxon, Pat Weigand and George Arrants, and Doris Jean Hall and Jane Atchley.

ALICE JACKSON and Bill Hayes learned forth their views for the position of chief justice of University Court as well as James Ball and Eleanor Graves for chairman of Judicial Court.

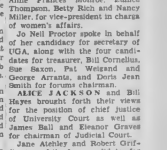
Jane Ainsley and Robert Griffin, two of the four candidates for editor-in-chief of the Flambeau also took the platform.

The time allotted for Women's Senate Representative to University Court found Susie Gibson the only one to take the platform.

Gene Barnes, a write-in candidate for editor of the Seminole Signals also took the opportunity to speak in his own behalf.

Noted Scientist Talks Tonight; Has Studied Old Age Problems

A public lecture will be given by noted research scientist in human relations, Robert J Havighurst tonight in the FSU science hall. Havighurst will speak before the FSU Psychology Department Seminar at 8:30.



DR HAVIGHURST is coming to Florida in connection with his research on problems of old age, Alexander said. The noted research scientist has been doing research in the field of personal and social adjustment in old age since 1944. He has been chairman of the committee on Social Adjustment in Old Age of the Social Science Research Council.

Also prominent as a research educator in human relations, Havighurst was director and assistant director of general education for the General Education Board, a Rockefeller foundation. During this time he helped to allocate several million dollars of foundation funds for support of experiments in the field of education at the college level.

AS CHAIRMAN of the Committee on Human Development at the University of Chicago, Dr Havighurst has made several trips to Europe since World War II for the Rockefeller Foundation. This was in connection with the educational programs.

The scientist has published his research material on children and

'Portrait' Opens Tuesday; Will Run Thru Saturday

A new price policy has been announced by the speech department for the production of Family Portrait which will open next Tuesday evening in the Conrad theater and run through Saturday, March 17.

Any group of 20 or more, including regular classes, may purchase reserved seat tickets in blocks at a special rate of $.50 instead of the single-seat price of $.75. Tickets so purchased may not be exchanged for any other night's performance, but the entire group does not have to take seats on the same night.

THE TICKET office in the History building opens Monday at 12 noon and will be open throughout the run of the play.

Production of this story of Jesus' life is under the direction of Roger Busfield, a playwright from Texas who is working on his Ph. D here. Costumes are being designed by Rebecca Grimes of the speech faculty, and set construction is under the supervision of Bill Kinser, a new-comer to the faculty. If the play can be said to have a "leading" role, the part of Mary, portrayed by Jan Vanture, is that role. The unworldly ingenuous character of Jesus' mother is admirably played by Jan, according to the director, partly because she lacks the set "stagey" technique which encumbers so many actresses.

THE PLAY is based on the Bible passage concerning Jesus' reception in his home-town: "A prophet is not without honour, save in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house." The audience is shown the family's and neighbors' reaction to Jesus' escapades, though Jesus himself does not appear on stage.

Director Busfield has emphasized the fact that this drama is not a form of religious propaganda directed for or against any denomination or creed, but only a "very human story of very human people." The Rev George Sargent of St Bartholomew's church, New York, said of it, "As a rule I do not recommend the theater to Lent, but I do recommend this play wholeheartedly."

Technical and dress rehearsals begin this evening with the final preparation for the run next week. All parts have been filled, the last being that of Esther in the last act, which has been assumed by Carolyn Moore.

First Concert Given Tonight

Reserved Seat Tickets On Sale in Music Bldg

Tonight at 8:15 in Westcott auditorium the Dallas Symphony Orchestra will play the first of its three concerts here. The Saturday matinee begins at 3:15 tomorrow afternoon and the evening performance at 8:15, both in Westcott.

Reserved seat tickets are still on sale at the Artist Series office in the Music building, and they may be obtained by payment or presentation of ID card at the box office before performance.

THE CONCERT tonight will open with the Bach Fugue in C Minor, called the "Great Fugue," which was transcribed for orchestra by the conductor, Walter Hendl. The program will also include the Prelude and Liebestod from Tristan und Isolde by Wagner; Ravel's Daphnis et Chloe, Second Suite; and Symphony No 4, F Minor, Opus 36 of Tschaikawsky.

The matinee tomorrow afternoon will include works of Strauss, Gillis, Warner, Mendelsohn, and Lukas, and in the evening the orchestra will present selections from Beethoven, Stravinsky, and Sibelius.

Walter Hendy, conductor of the Dallas Symphony, is a tall bluc-eyed blond just thirty years old. The orchestra thus claims to represent both the younger and the older generations. The group was founded in 1900.

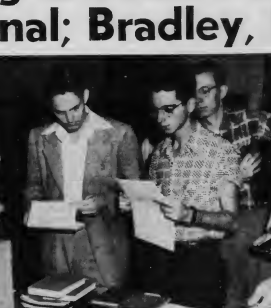
Powder Bowl Gate Donated to Chest

The Campus Chest received $70 from collections made at the Powder Bowl game last Saturday at the soccer field on east campus.

Bill Hess, chairman of the executive committee of the Campus Chest, said, "We appreciate the donation very much. With this kind of cooperation I'm certain that the Campus Chest drive will be a tremendous success."

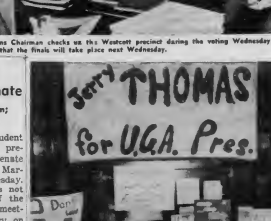
Publications Bill Presented to Senate

Meeting Lacked Quorum; No Action on Proposal



The Board of Student Publications Bill was presented to University Senate by committee member Margaret Krasaman Tuesday. The bill, however, was not acted upon because of the lack of a quorum at the meeting. Ia order to carry on business the Senate must have half of its membership plus one in attendance.

The Publications bill would require that "each publication shall submit its true working editorial policy at the beginning of each newly elected staff term of office." If this policy is violated the Board is "empowered to issue strong warning."



THE BOARD can recommend suspension for 30 days with 80 salary if the Editorial policy is violated the second time. The action of the Board has to be approved by University Council. It also acts as a Board of Appeals for the student body.

Carnival Includes Dancing, Games, Announces Veep

Plans for this year's Freshman Carnival on March 3f include dancing, entertainment, and carnival games according to Ardis Bourland, vice-president of the class. The carnival is an annual affair of the freshman class.

Ardis reported the appointment of the following committee heads: Mary Jane Parham, construction of booths and games. Yvonne McCarthy, food; Judy Simpkins, decorations; Kathryn Mason, Doodle Brunson, floor committee Marilyn Woolpert, invitations; John Adams, skit; James Arnold, clean-up, and Carlton Rue, publicity.

SHE URGED all freshmen to help out on committees. Talent of all kinds is especially needed for the skit, and anyone is welcome to try out at regular committee meetings at 7:30 p m Tuesdays in 403 Alumni building. "Just sign on the paper in lower Westcott or write me at box 91," she said.

Miss Bourland also announced the selection by the freshman cabinet of Dr Parker and Ralph Dreger as faculty sponsors. The two were chosen from a list of names submitted by cabinet members.

Magazine Deadline

Harry Copeland, editor of Smoke Signals, has announced that the deadline for material for the spring issue is March 21. "Students are urged to submit features, poems, joke, cartoons, fiction and critical reviews," said Harry.

Beginning early Monday morning, to be exact at 12:01 a m, unusual parties were begun in all women's dormitories.

THERE parties came about as a direct result of Dean Katherine Warren's announcement in Tuesday's convocation that women could smoke in their rooms beginning Monday.

The parties were billed as "smoking parties" and many entered into the festivities with gay hearts and lighted weeds.

Students expected smoke to be pouring out of transoms all over the place but in most cases this never happened.

JULIE Storm served sandwiches and cokes to her guests to a backdrop of soft music.

Miss Virginia Kempsion, senior hall counselor, found it difficult to cut through the smoke in Lois Goldberg's room where a similar party was being held.

One of the girls in Landis was sick and when Lyla invited her to attend the party she answered weakly, "I'm sorry I can't, but leave a cigarette here for me. If I wake up during the night I'll smoke it."

THERE were six freshmen girls in Reynolds who "indulged" in

SCA Plans Retreat Saturday, Sunday; Silver Lake Is Site

Silver Lake will be the site of the Student Christian association weekend retreat next Saturday and Sunday.

Mr Charles Whitworth, YMCA staff member of the Southeastern Area Student Council, will be a guest for the activities and will assist the group in improving the organization. Tentative plans include: Saturday, recreation, supper, group discussion and planning lead by Mr Whitworth; Sunday, breakfast, early morning worship service, and a cabinet meeting.

A new departure in the planning of the retreat is the opportunity for all Y members to participate in the plans for the whole weekend of activities, said James Schwark, publicity chairman.

Garrison Re-states Election Rules

In order to avoid unnecessary and disturbing campaign noise Paul Garrison, elections chairman, restated election rules in effect during previous years.

Use of sound trucks and public address system is confined to the hours of 5-7 p m and used of bands and campaigning rallies or restricted around academic buildings during class hours.

Serenading is permitted during the regular hours stated in the Pow Wow but no musical instruments or bands may be used during this time.

Garrison also restated the limitation of $25 campaign expenditures and the restriction against the use of posters inside of buildings except on bulletin boards and on trees.

Two Profs Return From Pub Ad Meet

Michael P Balwan and E Maxwell Benton of the School of Public Administration have just returned from a three-day conference in Miami with the Seminar Committee of the Florida County Tax Assessors Association.

At the meeting, the committee members conferred about the Manual of Tax Assessors which is being prepared in cooperation with the State Comptroller and the School of Public Administration. The group also prepared the agenda for the Seminar of the tax assessors group, annually directed by the School of Public Administration. This years seminar will be held in September at Tampa.

Prof Balwan is now in Washington attending the annual meeting of the American Society of Public Administration which opened today. The conference closes Sunday.

WFSU Broadcasts Until 1 AM To Give Returns to Students

It took elections, with all their excitement for potential officers, to add another success story to the pages of WFSU's log.

DUE to the heavy voting which came about from only one day of primary election instead of the usual two days, the counting of the ballots took a long time.

Since the station's duty is to the students, and since by 11 p m the counting had not ceased, your campus station remained on the air until 1 a m yesterday.

Announcing during the added two hours of broadcast time over 660 was Don DeLacure, station manager; Bill Base, production manager; and Stan Gould, program director.

THE THREE of them quickly dubbed the extra time as "WFSU's election party." And away they went, playing records by request and interrupting every few minutes with the latest election returns from the second floor of the Alum.

At 11:15 p m Stan brought an interesting verbal picture to the listeners of the student station with his vivid description of the scenes around the offices of the UGA, Talons and Flambeau, as candidates and their various campaign managers waited for the final tabulations.

STUDENTS who had been tuned in since 9 p m or earlier in the evening called 229, WFSU's extension, to request their favorite numbers, as they sat by their radios. Along many dormitory halls it seemed that there was one big radio playing, because so many students had their radios turned to 660.

"If the student response is great enough," says DeLacure, "perhaps we will be able to extend our time to midnight at some future date."

A&M Student Gets Gift Scholarship

The Disciple Student Fellowship is currently completing arrangements for a gift scholarship to be presented by the group to a worthy student at Florida A & M College.

Dr James Hudson, chairman of A & M College, and other members of the school administration are in the process of selecting the student who will receive the scholarship. The award, which will begin to receive financial aid from DSF at the end of March.

Sunday night DSF will continue its study of comparative religion by beginning a series of discussions on Catholicism. Following the discussion period DSF members, under the direction of Jeda Cato, will lead the evening worship service at the Capital Christian church. Dine-A-Mite will be held at 5:30 p m preceding the 6:30 meeting of DSF. Doris Jefferis is in charge of planning and preparing the dinner this Sunday.

BSU

All Baptists students will be joining in the associational Youth Rally to be held at the First Baptist church, Saturday, March 10, at 7:30 p m. Highlights of the evening will be the special music provided by combined youth choirs under the direction of Ervin Gaslin; Christian testimonies by Walton Grady, Harrell Cushing, Earl Sapp, and Evelyn Lumsden, and the keynote address by Dr Merrill Moore, secretary of promotion, Baptist convention, Nashville, Tenn. Following the worship service there will be a Fellowship Hour in the educational building of the church.

Tickets are now on sale for the annual BSU Faculty-Student banquet, an event of March 16, at 6:00 p m in the Lafayette room. The theme for the banquet which is one of the outstanding social activities of the Baptist Student Union will be "Hidden Treasures."

Students Spend Weekend at Camp

Swimming, volley ball, canoeing, square dancing, and folk games provided a full week end of recreation for a group of college 4-H girls who spent last Saturday and Sunday at Camp Flaccavo.

After the Saturday afternoon and evening's sports and entertainment the girls had as their guests members of the Alpha Psi Omega, a newly organized sam'n service fraternity on campus.

Sunrise devotionals began the day on Sunday, followed by breakfast. Dr Mildred I Moreen, professor of home and family, led a group discussion on "Working Together for World Understanding." Miss Ruth Lemmon, assistant State Girls' 4-H club agent, served as camping advisor for the week end.

SUO Will Sponsor Informal Dance

An informal dance sponsored by the Student Union Organization will be held Saturday, March 10, from 8 to 11:30 p m at the West campus auditorium, according to Bill Hayes, SUO president.

Emory King will act as master of ceremonies for the evening, and music will be played without interruption between 8 and 10.

Elected outright were Ted Stemmeyer to the post of vice president in charge of men's affairs; Doris Jean Smith, forum chairman, Bill Backus, Sandspur editor; Jean Smith, Senate finals editor (Gene Burnett scored 75 write-in votes), Bill Hess, junior representative to University court for men, Virginia Smith, business manager; Flambeau editor Skipper, business manager Tally Ho, Gail Kelley Albritton, editor Tally Ho; Jack Hartman and Howard Abel, men's Senior representatives to editorial council; Jane Buckley and James Chatham, men's Junior representative to judicial court; Buddy Leyrer and Richard Jackson, men's Sophomore representatives to judicial court.

IN TWO HOTLY contested judicial races Bill Hayes scored a 140 vote victory over Alice Jackson for Chief Justice of the University court, and Bob Gray defeated Eleanor Graves by 107 votes. Hayes counted 878 votes, Bell 817 votes and the losers scored 738 and 710, respectively.

Arde Bourland and Polly Anne Lassiter with 718 and 677 votes respectively were elected as women's Sophomore representatives to judicial courts. They triumphed over Teresa McCoy (601) and Jean Wetherell (647).

Other judicial courts will require runoff races. Patty Mims (772), Mary Stuart Smith (619), Jean Flynn (550) and Virginia Lee (421) will compete for two seats as the women a Senior representative to judicial court. They defeated B Margaret Marshall (382) and Mary Ellen Tavel (402).

ELLEN AVIS (886), Sara Margaret Davis (830), Elizabeth P Hill (854) and Peggy Moore (573) are in the run-off for women's Junior representative to judicial court. Joan Powell was the lone defeated candidate with 486 votes.

For women's Senior representative to University court Barbara Caruthers (664), Suzie Tilbett (533), Patricia Ledbetter (363 and Doris Dee Stevens (414), will compete. Defeated candidates were Zoe Hentz (274), Mary Ann Stemp (320) and Charline Weitman (214).

Women's Junior representative to University court will be run off between Frankie Brownlee (440), Frances Clark (383), Nancy Day (476) and June Tate (682). Defeated were Nancy Carol Rensinger (187) and Bonnie Lou Smith (393).

Journalism Honorary Petitioners To Meet

All male journalism majors interested in completing plans for a local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national men's journalism honorary, are asked to meet in the Journalism building Wednesday afternoon at 5 p m. The meeting will be held in the upstairs library, according to Harry Copeland.

A petition is now being prepared for submission to the national headquarters. This is an important meeting and all journalism majors who are interested are urged to be present, Copeland said.

is required of the Board. At the end of a 30-day suspension period the Board must review a suspension case. A majority vote of the Board or the University Council will be required for submission of a referendum vote to the student body.

The Board will be composed of (1) the faculty advisors of each publication as ex-officio members, (2) five student members who are not members of the publications and (3) editors of each publication as ex-officio members. The student members will be appointed by the president of UGA with a simple majority vote by University Council ratified by a 2/3 vote of Senate. They shall be of sophomore, junior or senior standing.

IN AN INFORMAL discussion of the proposed board Dick Brazier, Senate president, opened the floor to visitors as well as Senators.

Earl Dobert, Flambeau editor, asked what was meant by "a true working editorial policy" and how it would be arrived at. Bob Griffin, candidate for next year's editorship asked what guidelines would be made for policy changes due to unforseen events.

To these questions Senator Krasman replied that she and the committee were uncertain as to what answers could be given. She said that they were presenting the proposed bill at this time for the advice and discussion of the Senate as a whole. Because of the lack of attendance the discussion was postponed.

DURING the informal discussion following the Publication Bill presentation, Senator Jim Turner bull suggested that something should be done about the cocktail juice machines which he said "smell like pig slys."

Senate President Bradley presented a suggestion by the group to Paul Garrison, elections chairman, for an Infirmary precinct. Garrison personally toured the Infirmary with ballots on Wednesday to enable the patients confined there to cast their votes.

LET'S HAVE A PARTY OR TWO!

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party," is a slogan and for typewriting practice. This same ion could well be used on the Florida State University campus at the time of ampaigns.

In other words, we are advocating the guration of the party system similar to the Republican and Democratic parties on versity and Gator party at Gainesville. Parties have received a bad connotation national circles as well as some party tempts that have been made here. Two rs ago an attempt to establish a party with disastrous results. At that time were too young to recognize the benefits hich could be derived if a party were up.

Now we are ready. In the past two rs we have seen the necessity for organ- tions on this campus that could be held responsible for the antics of the officers who were elected from their party.

The party could be used and should be used as a whip to keep officers in line if they are seen to deviate from the prescribed ath. The party would back one staunch iatform that all candidates would adhere and seek to put across if they were elected. It standards now candidates are ected with a myriad of planks in their atforms, all of which can never hope to carried out.

The establishment of parties would en- ender more spirit among students at ction time. One of the basic aims of a rty is to get their members in power in governmental control. Toward this ject they would induce the lethargic mem- rs of the student body to the polls on ction day.

The political party could be formed as public agency, which in reality it is. At all times they would operate with the thought in mind that they must please the students or they would lose the next election. In the disorganized system under which we presently operate, this force is not prevalent.

It is inevitable that political parties should come under suspicion because of the name they have received from national politics as being uncontrolled and irresponsible. This should not be allowed to happen here. Regulatory measures—strict enough to adequately control but lenient enough so parties will accomplish that for which they are established—should be adopted.

It is not probable that qualified candidates would be left out in the cold at election time just because they claim no party affiliation. Independents are always welcome on the ballot are frequently so. In many instances, independents have better chances of being elected than do party members. (This holds true more in college politics than in local, state or national politics.) But independents sometimes live up to their name—independent. They are responsible to no one save themselves, and much of the time not even to the students who elected them.

Another stimulus which should inspire the formation of a political party system on this campus would be the educational value. Our national political scene is run on a party system. This means the student would see at first hand how parties are run and therefore gain a general knowledge that would be invaluable in later life when he leaves the confines of the red brick walls.

Although there are many loopholes to such a scheme of political parties, we can see how political parties would make for more responsible officers in the student government program. Let's have a party or two!

Third, put your ballot in the ballot box. Complicated?

We don't think so. Nevertheless, there must have gotten through the registration procedure at the beginning of the semester. Any student accomplishing this tedious problem can accomplish the voting procedure, cum laude.

Whether you are a freshman or a senior you should be vitally interested in the results of the UGA elections—underclassmen, because they are choosing their leaders for next year. Graduating Seniors, because they will be a part of FSU long after their graduation and should be interested in its welfare. They will always be FSU alumni and the type of officers they help to elect will definitely affect this university.

A further study in the procedure outlined in simple language. You have your reasons. Take advantage of this opportunity and cast your vote in the second primary on Wednesday, March 14.

● QUIRKS AND SURVEYS

A professor of English at Northwestern university reports that more Northwestern women smoke than do men. A survey revealed that 60 per cent of the girls smoke, as opposed to 50 cent of the men.

A further increase in women smokers, warns the professor, will drive the American male, who is sensitive about his masculinity, to outgrip and outgrin males.

Another survey this one at Idaho State college, showed that almost half the coeds there sleep with teddy bears, pandas or other stuffed toy animals.

The "bed check" also proved that out of 176 girls in one dormitory, 13 sleep in nighties, while the rest prefer pajamas. No one was reported to sleep in her slip or birthday suit.

A Nebraska coed complained to a bookstore clerk that it was unfair to make students buy books at such a high price, and then get hardly anything back for them on the used book market.

"But," explained the bookstore owner calmly, "you couldn't buy a dress at a shop downtown and then take it back and get the money for it, could you?"

"Well," she retorted, "at least I'd get some use out of the dress."

AMAZING TURNOUT AT POLLS

By EARL DOBERT

Front page will confirm that a near record vote was established Wednesday in the first primary of the University Government Association elections. As this article is being written the official count has not been released but indications are that upwards of 2200 students voted.

What can we attribute to the amazing showing at the polls?

UTA President Rufus Aaron said it could probably be traced to the installation of the voting machines. That along with the quality of the candidates running for the various offices were the main reasons. The diversity of the candidates is another factor which it should be taken into consideration.

The precinct system was instituted at the beginning of this year after much clamor for the same last year. Two or three student elections have been held for two days and the highest voting days was approximately 2,146. This was in last year's final election when several heated races were taking place.

This year campaigning seemed to be somewhat the place of last year's but toward the end it was picking up a full head of steam. People are not just voting this year as they have done before when two days were allowed.

More interest was aroused at the Omicron Delta Kappa sponsored political rally. More candidates came to make speeches and more people turned out to hear these speeches. Over 350 people jammed into the hard concrete of the amphitheater to hear their candidates.

The speeches made by the presidential candidates were all worthy of praise. They expressed themselves well and put their points across emphatically. The same holds true for candidates in other offices.

As I have pointed out the quality of candidates running for office was exceptionally high. If any of these were elected they could probably perform the task with equal ease. It was a very difficult choice to make up the mind this year.

The diversity of the candidates running also made for a high turnout. They varied in many aspects all of which appealed to the voter in one way or another. Candidates were affected by these varieties and each person has found their way to the polls.

The run-off election next Wednesday will probably not see as many people vetnig. The point of interest reached and new it will slowly ebb.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

DROPPING HARDWARE OR-GETTING PINNED

By JERRY THOMAS

With Spring in sight, many of the male students have taken up a big step by pinning a gal and going steady.

The frat men are the ones who really take the beating.

When a frat man drops his hardware, both he and his steady are in for rough sledding socially.

On this campus, a frat man really pays a price for giving out his pin.

He must send the little gal a dozen roses, candy and the old fella (whose hardware he has) a box of the finest cigars.

When a pin leaves and talks a fellow out of his frat pin, her friends overlook her with a fast trip to a shower.

The fellow is rewarded by anything from a kick to being dropped in the fish pond.

It is customary for the frat to come by the pinned gal's residence and serenade her.

Some colleges have had serenading until the couple have been pinned for at least a month.

FANCY THIS

AXE GRINDER, INDIFFERENT—WHICH?

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

Every time election campaigns, speeches, handshakings and baby kissing roll around, I get a chance to get an election from the candidate's point of view in the voting.

Florida State University has had a long history of a majority of non-participants ever been able to understand why there is not even such pep interests at the polls.

But last semester in one of my political science classes I had a teacher save a list of people who vote and people who don't vote. This list can apply to the FSU campus.

PEOPLE WHO VOTE:

1. The patronage crew. On the "outside" world, these include street-corner politicians, and all who owe their jobs to politics. On this campus, it has included fraternity brothers who are holding appointed jobs.

2. Politicos. Politicos. These anticipate graft from governmental elections. Some expect honest graft, some just graft. They include Sach and Sach crowd, underworld, newspapermen (wait and see, how did that get in there?).

3. Unorganized rabble. They vote as an outlet for emotional or racial beliefs. They see a politician make a speech in church or who talks the same way they do and vote for him.

4. Bored and lonely. They get their bread and butter from politics. They draw public assistance checks. They constitute relief roll.

5. Average voters. These are the unpredictables. You never know how they're going to vote. They may vote for a Democrat or a Republican. Or a Gallup Poll buys in an uproar.

6. Intellectual voters. They think the whole thing stinks and know what they're doing. How many of these are on the campus?

7. Finally there are those who vote as a matter of custom and sentiment. They are grandpas voted for Teddy Roosevelt, my father voted for Hoover. Sure it's going to rot Democrat, I'm going to vote for Democrat.

It seems that Bill Nares may run into some difficulty in getting seated if he wins the University Court election.

The story runs like this. To wit: Section 3 of Article IV in the student constitution appearing in the Pow Wow states that "The Chief Justice of the University Court shall be of senior standing and shall have had one year's experience on the University court." Haves does not meet these requirements.

If the election is contested and the court rules that Haves cannot hold the office, (assuming he wins the election), it would rule Bo Baker, present Chief Justice, out of a job. He didn't have the one year's experience either.

So what's new? The columnist is of the opinion that Bill Hayes should take the seat if he wins. It shows the students want him and that is how our democracy is supposed to function.

We want to ask everyone who did not vote in the first primary to make it a point to get out and vote in the next one. We also want to ask all those near record 2,200 to get out and vote again. We'll still be here to stand for a long time.

We will add this record to the hundreds of others as have for progress this year.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

'PEOPLE, POLITICIANS AND DARK HORSES'

By JOEL P SMITH

"People, Politicians and Dark Horses," might be a good title for a hand book on how not to get elected. Texas has recently decided to collaborate with two or more of the chief governmental horses—in compiling hints on how not to get elected. Who knows, we might need it.

Fuller Warren made scads on the sales from his book, "How To Win In Politics." So far I haven't heard of anyone getting elected on his concentrated advice. Surely there must be a market on campus for a handbook on politics. Dr. Constance Ilene reminds me of the organization that once existed on campus, the Independent Voters club. All candidates who ran for office and were defeated were eligible for membership in the club. member of the club served in the capacity for which he ran in the elections. The old club had scads of presidents, senators, and what have you. Every member was an officer of some description.

"Don't let her be elected," the dying mother said. "I'd rather see her dead," are a couple of lines from the Defeated Candidates club song. The girls, way back when we were PSCW, often ran for office for the sake of gaining membership into the sisterhood of disappointed candidates. They wore black and blue, the club colors, for days after the election. Such clubs would well serve Ila purpose around campus. There would be few defeated candidates going griping during the year . . . they could blow off their steam before an appreciative audience.

If you missed the political rally Tuesday night, you missed something well worth listening to politically and comically. Jim Kirk, deviating from the straight political platform, remarked that if the audience and the political speakers were not already assembled confer in the Amphitheater instead of a political caucus that the audience might go singing, 'Oh, Promise Me' and the speakers might be crooning "Always." One of Jim's opponents, Dick Bradley, also gave an interlaining speech in the true "Will Rogers" style. The third candidate for vice president of UGA, Senator Jimmy Evans, used every gesture in the book to arouse the audience . . . his sincerity and earnestness was quite refreshing to other candidates on the speaker's platform.

'Pareho' Sived, with his south of the border personality, thoroughly entertained the audience with his clever wit and accent. Shortly after Hero Hayes stated that . . .

The following proclamation has been distributed around campus: "Whom is the owner of Scollop- ers events it becomes necessary for true Southern Gentlemen to part, relinquishing . . . the old so- called Union—Be It Known Here and Now that a declaration must occur." By command of the Honorable Jeff Davis, President, Confederate States of America . . . remarked he was the dark horse in the race for the grab' union . . . Lincoln, "they were still friends in spite of past difficulties. Pancho cleverly answered Herb and said, "The old grey mare ain't what she use to be" . . . I wonder who his means, Dr Culpepper or Herb.

As always during elections, the campus is plastered with signs of every description, but this one takes the cake. Someone cleverly attached a sign for Bob Griffin to chase a box of cigars or a dozen roses.

They just walk around and hold hands and know that they are "hawk" with little or no confusion.

A reorganization bill which is now being worded by the Legislature Research Committee, because much debate when it is presented to the Senate next month.

This Reorganization bill will advocate a cabinet for the student body presidential.

The cabinet will be appointed by the president with a 2/3 approval of the Senate.

Another section of this bill will provide for an Attorney General of UGA.

One section will abolish several members of which from being ex officio members of the University Senate.

A final provision will delegate a Budget Manager, responsible to the Senate.

Poetically Yours

A few weeks ago a poem appeared in this column entitled, "A Woman Started It All." Now, in answer to that premise, a sparkling young lady took her pen in hand and inscribed these words in rebuttal . . .

TO DOUG ALLEY
By Hulie Mullis

A few weeks ago my dear young man,
You wrote a poem which thus began,
"God certainly had it in for man
Ever since the world began."
And so in your feeble way
You label woman the very worst
Creature on the face of the earth.
May I ask, "Who was it gave you birth?
Who cared for you through many years,
Who shared your joys, and shared your tears?"
I'll grant you, my friend, it hasn't been a task,
Who has played this role "since the world began."

Oh, for sure the world is a mess today,
But why throw the blame on woman's way?
Look at your history, since the very first hour,
It is the man who has been in power.
We might have fared better since Valley Forge,
If Martha had been General instead of George.
"To each his own" is a democratic phrase,
So to the males lavish your praise.
But when two laughing eyes peek over a book,
My dear Mr. Alley, please don't look.
We creatures do not wish to cause the disaster
Of one, who left alone, could be such a master!

Charles Hofmann Speaks Here on Primitive Music

"Music in Primitive Society" was presented in illustrated lectures Tuesday and Wednesday by Charles Hofmann, Tampa Library research worker.

Hofmann spoke on the music and dances of African tribes and Australian natives and primitive peoples of the Pacific Islands at his first lecture Tuesday afternoon. This first lecture was given before a group of music students and other interested persons.

He said experiments tried in music on African tribes, who still live much as their ancestors, showed the skilled musician of American music. However, he stated that the native tribes accepted the music of the great classmasters such as Bach and Beethoven.

Talks on the American Indians were presented Wednesday.

The noted authority on Indian Folklore said there were many theories as to how music was first started. He said that the theories are known that the primitive Indians of prehistoric eras had their own weird music.

"These primitive people," he said, "used what material they could obtain to make their musical instruments. They also had their own songs, dances and customs from generation to generation. All the tribes had their own original changes as they saw fit."

2. Women. It's unladylike.

3. Too busy people. They're respectable and wouldn't be seen at the polls. Politics are corrupt, they say, so they wouldn't so near them.

4. Intellectuals. They know better than to vote. Disdainfully they say that their vote won't be counted anyway, so why vote.

5. Indifferents. They don't care. They're uninformed and do everything the same way. They're not interested, uneducated, they just feel that they have more important things to do than read a book, listen to a political lecture or attend an educational discussion. They live in a rut all their lives, complaining, griping but inert like a dead log.

I'm going to vote for Dewey." PEOPLE WHO DON'T VOTE:

1. Negroes. Some are not permitted to vote through threats or poll taxes.

At the present day, Indians in this country, the authority stated, have adopted the white man's ways, their forefathers and prefer more modern music.

Mr. Hofmann played a number of recordings made of Indian music and dances in various parts of the world. He also played several Indian drums, a flute and an Indian musical instrument made from the wines of a bird.

The lecture has been made at the War Hoops and Medicine Songs, which is now being published. He has also had some of his music placed in the Library of Congress' Archives of Folklore.

● NO PRESSURE HERE

The University of Florida is forming a pressure group to lobby during the next session of the legislature. This group, consisting of one person from each of Florida's 67 counties, will try to influence the solons not to pass the budget of the University of Florida in entirety.

Now we are not ones to say the University of Florida does not need the money that they have requested. The fact remains, however, that they need it to improve their physical plant, their courses of instruction and their faculty.

We do, however, object to the tactics they use in trying to influence and coerce their respective legislators into providing the money.

We at Florida State University have asked for an appropriation also. Even though our stated requirements are less than those of Gainesville's, we are in dire need of this money if we are to maintain our high position among schools of higher education.

But we feel the legislators are competent men, smart enough to realize that our needs rank for themselves. We do not have to engage in the pressure tactics being employed by the University of Florida to accomplish the passage of our budget.

Yes, the members of the 1951 Florida legislature were elected by the people of the State of Florida, but they are not "pressured" into what they think is fair and just in appropriating money for the institutions of higher learning in Florida.

● HOW TO VOTE

Although student voting was creditable in the Wednesday elections, we noted that slightly less than half the student body participated. Of course, more interest was shown in this election than heretofore with 48-2 per cent turnout, there was still a majority of the enrolled student body not thinking it necessary to vote.

Perhaps the election procedure is too complicated—let us simplify it. This can be done in three simple steps. First, find your way to a polling place on campus and present the election officials your I D card. Second, take the ballot given you and place a mark beside the candidate of your choice.

Letters addressed to the editor must be sent through campus mail and should not exceed 250 words. Any over this amount will be cut to the discretion of the editor. Letters must be typed and double spaced. Due to lack of space we will not be able to print every letter received.

Thanks Supporters

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank my supporters in the UGA election Wednesday.

My name should not have been on the ballot or should have been printed Dear Editor:

I have been trying to think of the right words with which to express my appreciation to all who took part in this gala event. You made the dance a successful one, so let me say, "Thank you very much." You were a great group to work with."

I would like to thank publicity director Mrs Dieterhurst, Miss Lynn, Mrs Fargart and the girls in Reynolds Hall for their magnificent and unsurpassed assistance.

BACKHOUSE PHILOSOPHY . . .

A college student can talk on any subject because he's not hampered by knowledge.

A cynic is a sentimentalist tired of the sticky end. Only a sentimentalist would take obvious stupidity so hard.

Certainly a girl has a harder time being a person than anyone in the world. It's too easy to hide behind that label of femininity. She's trained to give the old Rotarian personality to every male within a hundred miles. When the propositions fly in she whips out a mirror and powders her nose.

Ugly people are nice because they have to develop a personality.

Romance is getting too complicated. Bring back the good old days when man used ye old club.

Why does the hero always win? Lets have a story in which the hero dies a horrible death and the villain takes off with the innocents underarm and a lecherous grin on his face. . . .

Florida AAU Meet Opens Here Tomorrow Morning

KEEPIN' SCORE

With SCOTT MARSHALL

Flambeau Sports Editor

THE GATORS ARE COMIN' TOWN—Rabid supporters of athletic relations between Florida State University and the University of Florida will probably shout with glee when they discover the Gators are coming to Tallahassee.

However, they won't be coming here just to meet the Seminoles. It just so happens—like many other things—that the Florida AAU swimming meet is being held this year in the East Campus pool.

Still it be the University of Alligator Frosh who will be representing the G-ville terrors in the pool. Undefeated High Point will also enter the meet to vie with FSU and Florida.

The corner is beginning to wonder why Florida isn't sending its varsity swimmers over here perhaps—as the grapevine has it—the Gator varsity is not up to par with the frosh. And, she wouldn't be hard to figure since Florida's aulient swimmers took fifth place in the Southeastern AAU meet last week. Florida State tied for 5th.

Florida State University will be in the national spotlight in a big field next week. The Seminole basketball team leaves by big bus(it's the Kansas City, Mo.) where they will represent District 6 in the NAIB tournament.

Coach Bud Kennedy, who will be the team's representative to the NCAA football coaches' meeting at Annapolis next week, a little revving enroute, left by car yesterday morning.

The University of Florida evidently thinks Florida State isn't good enough to act the opponents ; ; to meet the Gators this year.

The 1949 FSU football team fought Florida State to a first national recognition when it was invited to play in the 1950 Cigar Bowl. FSU won over Wofford 34. Last Fall the Seminole gridders became the first white state team in the history of the state to complete a full varsity schedule undefeated and untied.

Sectional or Dixie Conference championships have been won in each of the other eight sports in the athletic program at FSU—football, track, golf, tennis, swimming, volleyball, and gymnastics. Even the District 25 NAIB basketball title last week that gives Fly Seminoles another chance to put Florida State's name on the net nationally.

Kennedy's cagers are sure to be one of the "underdog" teams at Kansas City next week, a role to which the Seminoles have responded well in the past. Buford was from 21 to 40 with the favorite in the Cincinnati, but Florida State won and made it look easy. The Seminoles were the lowest rated of four teams in the district tournament at Jacksonville last year, then showed they had the stuff to upset the favorites.

Florida State will be carrying that same winning spirit into the final NAIB tourney at Kansas City. With such fine basketball players as Bob Hartman, Bob Kaney, Bud Scott, Tom McLaughlin, Dick Trobaugh, Lou Sadler, Larry Dickson, Ronnie Weeks, and Irwin Quinn, FSU could surprise again and come home with the title.

* * *

Florida State University has the top gymnast in the western hemisphere—Bill Roetzheim.

Roetzheim got back into international competition last week and came out with the All-Round title in the Pan-American Olympic Games in Argentina.

banquet slated by tourney officials.

The following evening at site the annual parade of champions will be put on in downtown Kansas City with all 32 teams entered participating.

Then Monday morning at 11 the round read begins. Saturday night the finals will take place after a week of top flight basketball.

FLORIDA STATE'S Seminole cagers reached the national tournament by downing Georgia State Teachers College 69-67 in the finals of the District 25 NAIB tourney.

Prior to the finals, FSU had whipped Stetson 65-58 in the first round. Georgia Teachers had beaten Tampa and the Spartans went on to top Stetson in a consolation tilt.

Scrappy Bob Hartman, who was named the outstanding player in the district, set records right and left. Gthering 92 points in the four tournaments—including Dixie conference—Bob brought his season total for 24 games to 168 field goals, 94 free throws, 430 points and a per game average of 17.9 points. These are all new school records. Hartman became the first Florida State basketball player to score over 400 points in a single season and tied George Monts of Tampa for the state scoring lead, the 430 points by both men being also a new Florida intercollegiate record.

AS A TEAM the Seminoles ran their season totals to 611 field goals, 346 free throws for 1568 total points, all new school marks. The average per game of 66.1 points is also a new record.

Florida State opponents in 1951 scored 1496 points for a 62.3 per game average—a new high.

Husky Bob Whitmer had a big week, being named on the all-conference team and playing outstanding ball in the NAIB. Whitmer ran his season scoring total to 319 points.

Other leading scorers on the Florida State squad include Bud Scott 196, Tom McLaughlin 159, Bud Marzee 153, Dick Trobaugh 130, Larry Dickson 102.

Whitmer has been charged with the most personal fouls, 92, followed by Scott, 89, and Hartman, 76.

Sigma Nu Wins Intramural Frat Title by Downing Lambda Chi 6-0

Sigma Nu won the fraternity intramural football title Wednesday afternoon by downing Lambda Chi Alpha 6-0 in the finals. The Sigma Nu's had to come from the loser's bracket, after having been beaten by the Lambda Chi's in the first round last week.

This time the Sigma Nu footballers would not be denied.

Following a big protest, field by Theta Chi against the Sigma Nu outfit, Ed Williamson announced the protest had been denied and the tourney resumed Monday.

SIGMA NU won Monday's tilt 6-0, but it was the Lambda Chi's first defeat in the double elimination tournament.

The fighting Sigma Nu's came back strong Tuesday, but the game ended in a 0-0 deadlock with each team getting seven first downs. First downs govern the winning team in the event of a tie score.

Then the two touch football powers clashed Wednesday for the third game of the series. The Sigma Nu's came out on top 6-0.

MEMBERS of the winning Sigma Nu team include Newland, Pipkin, Roberts, Mullins, Gaines, Crm. Bennett, Klein, Self, Cobb, Hayner, Hanks and Getro.

In the dormitory league the Oilers had beaten 849 Upper for the title.

Fraternity volleyball is scheduled to begin within the next few days and tennis, both singles and doubles, begins in the dorm league.

Blue Cross, Shield

A representative of the Blue Cross and Blue Shield will be available to the faculty, staff and maintenance personnel for reopening of the Florida State University group.

The representative will be on campus the week of March 12 through 17 in front of Westcott auditorium.

FSU Golfers Open Season At Rollins

Coach Bob Harbison will take a four-man team to Winter Park and DeLand this weekend as Florida State University opens its 1951 golf schedule. Today's opponent will be Rollins College at Winter Park, and tomorrow afternoon the Seminole linksmen will tangle with Stetson University at DeLand.

Coach Harbison is counting on lettermen Ted Hewitt and Dick Montney to pace this year's golf squad to another successful season. The 1950 team, of which Hewitt and Montney are the only returning regulars, won six matches, lost two and tied two before capturing the Dixie Conference links crown.

MAKING the trip this week, in addition to Hewitt and Montney, will be Freshman Eddie Johnson, Junior Tom Cumbie and Coach Harbison.

Johnson, who was Florida High School and Northeast Conference champion while playing for Leon High of Tallahassee last year, is rated a real comer by Harbison. Cumbie did not try out for golf last season, but has been an outstanding tournament player in Northwest Florida for several years.

The Florida State golfers have 14 matches lined up which include home and home engagements with Rollins, Stetson, University of Georgia, Jacksonville Navy, Mercer and Emory, and single meets with Davidson at Tallahassee, and University of Miami at Miami.

THE COMPLETE schedule:

Mar 9, Rollins at Winter Park.

Mar 10, Stetson at DeLand. Mar 20, George at Tallahassee. Mar 22-24, Florida Intercollegiate Tournament at DeLand. Mar 26, Jacksonville Navy at Tallahassee. Mar 28, Davidson at Tallahassee.

Mar 29, Mercer at Tallahassee. Mar 31, Emory at Tallahassee.

April 7, Stetson at Tallahassee. April 14, Emory at Atlanta. April 21, Rollins at Tallahassee.

May 4, Georgia at Athens. May 5, Mercer at Macon. May 17-19, Dixie Conference Tournament at Clinton, Miss. May 24, Jacksonville Navy at Jacksonville. May 28, Miami at Miami.

FSU Trackmen To Open With Duke

Florida State University's track and field team will face two Southern Conference, four Dixie Conference and one independent foes in a total of triangular meets this Spring, according to the schedule released today by Athletic Director Howard G Danford.

In addition, the Seminoles will compete in the Southern Relays at Birmingham April 14, and will be defending champions in the Dixie Conference meet at Clinton, Miss, May 19.

DUKE UNIVERSITY and Davidson College are the Southern Conference representatives on the schedule. Duke will open the slate Wednesday afternoon, March 28, at Tallahassee and Davidson will furnish the opposition for their meet with Florida State and Emory University at Tallahassee Saturday, April 21.

Dixie Conference dual meet foes include Mercer University, Florida Southern College, Mississippi College, and Howard College. The Seminoles will be competing for the last time in the conference, having resigned effective next Fall.

The Florida State track team will be coached again by Dr Ken Miller and Hurdler Max Watson will be team captain.

THE SCHEDULE:

March 28, Duke University at Tallahassee. March 31, Mercer at Macon. April 7, open. April 14, Southern Relays at Birmingham. April 21, Emory University and Davidson College at Tallahassee. April 28, Florida Southern College at Tallahassee. May 5, Mississippi College at Tallahassee. May 12, Howard College at Tallahassee. May 19, Dixie Conference meet at Clinton, Miss.

At the time of the French revolution, Queen Catherine de Medici was valued at $30,000b.

FSU Volleyballers Meet Albany YMCA Tomorrow

The Seminole volleyball team is off for Albany, Ga. tomorrow to face the YMCA there. Next weekend they journey to Memphis for the Mid-South Open and return to Tallahassee for the Dixie Conference Tournament March 24.

The team successfully defended its 1949 and 1950 State AAU titles down in Tampa this past weekend as they defeated a very strong Jacksonville Navy six in the finals.

Dr Howard G Danford, State AAU Chairman, awarded individual trophies to all the members of both the final teams.

Four of six players picked for the All-State team were from FSU. Charlie Floyd, George Edmiston, Bill Crook and Emmerson Kramer along with Callahan and Dunn of Jax Navy were the players chosen for the honor.

Danny Stubbs and Jim Clark were the other two men who figured in majority of the championship play. Also earning action in the tournament were Bob Green, Jim Cousin, James McNutt, Dick Sapp, Dick Kurras, and Charles McDaniel.

Joe Regna After Second All-Round FSU Gym Title

Joe Regna will be after his second intra-squad All-Round title tomorrow afternoon as two when Coach Hartley Price sends his Florida State University gymnastics team through another workout.

Regna won last week's title by downing his brother, Carmine. Both represent the varsity gymnasts.

Next week, after Bill Roetzheim returns after having won the All-Round title in the Pan-American Olympic Games, Coach Price will send his boys through the last intra-squad meet of the season. Both the varsity and freshmen performers have won one meet each.

The intra-squad tilts and the All-Round championships are getting the Seminole gymnasts in shape for the coming Southern Gymnastics League, National Collegiates, and National AAU meets.

FSU, Ft Lauderdale, Florida Frosh Enter

Florida State University's undefeated swimming team will probably be top seeded in the annual Florida AAU indoor swimming and diving championships here in the East campus pool tomorrow morning and night.

Other teams entering the AAU sanctioned meet include the University of Florida Freshmen and Ft. Lauderdale High School.

Preliminaries for all events will begin tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock with the finals slated to begin at eight that night. No admission will be charged for the meet.

Events to be held and the order in which they will occur include the 300-yard medley relay, 220-yard free style, one meter diving, 100-yard free style, 200-yard back stroke, 220-yard breast stroke, 440-yard free style relay.

Regulation AAU gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded first, second, and third places in all events, with the winning team receiving a trophy.

TOPS for the Gator Frosh include Frank Gaines, Sarasota; Joe Bennett, Jacksonville; Marion Dees, Tampa; Elliot Levy, Tampa; Bill Scotton, Highland Park, Mich; and Charlie Griffin, Columbus, Ga.

Outstanding performers for the Flying L's are Terry Carlisle, Ted Fiske, and Harvey Carlesmith. Carlisle, considered one of the best male tankmen to be developed in Florida, is but 16 years old and is a top free styler. Fiske, captain of the Ft Lauderdale swim squad, is another top performer in the free styles. O'Loughlin is one of the better high school divers in Florida.

COACH BIM Stubbs' Seminoles will be entering the Florida AAU meet after having tied with North Carolina State for first place in the Southeastern AAU swimming meet.

Co-captain Walter Jardine, Dick Wells, Pete Dunn-Rankin, Jack White, and Roger Blacker, who competed first places in the Southeastern, are expected to be Florida State's keenest threats. Dick Wells, Sophomore free style flash, is also being counted on in the sprints.

Following the Florida AAU, Florida State's swimmers team will tangle with Clemson and Pensacola Navy, both meets scheduled here.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 14...THE BEAVER

"How eager can they get?"

For once in his life, our fervent friend admits that eagerness can be over-done! He's alluding, of course, to all these quick-trick cigarette tests—the ones that ask you to decide on cigarette mildness after just one puff, one sniff, one inhale or one exhale! When the chips are down, he realizes cigarette mildness can't be judged in a hurry. That's why he made . . . The sensible test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test which asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed. After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you'll know why . . .

US Civil Service Needs Instructors For Lower Grades

There is a need for Elementary Teachers in the Indian Service, the U S Civil Service Commission has announced. An examination for Elementary Teachers in June 1950 found that sufficient qualified candidates have not been recruited.

QUALIFICATIONS require a successful completion of a full four year course leading to a degree from an accredited college or university. This meludes 24 semester hours in education of which 12 semester hours must be in elementary education.

Applicants whose courses do not include two semester hours in methods of teaching elementary grades or two semester hours in practice teaching of elementary grades must have had one year of teaching at the elementary level.

APPLICATIONS will be accepted from students who expect to complete the required courses within 90 days after filing their applications. A written examination is required of all applicants.

Jobs being filled from the Commission's examination pay $3,100 a year.

Information and applications may be obtained from most first and second class post offices, from Civil Service regional offices or the U S Civil Service Commission in Washington 25, D C.

Applications will be accepted until further notice, the Commission announcement concluded.

Freshman Senator From Capital City

JIM TURNBULL, a homegrown Tallahassee boy, is another one of the many Freshman students at FSU who have claimed UOA for their favorite extracurricular activity on campus. Jim's part in UOA is that of Freshman senator, and since his major is Public Administration, the experience in political work it affords him will be an invaluable asset.

The future plans of this 18-year old Senator include work in the field of politics. His hobbies now run along political lines. Jim claims he has had no experience in any work of this kind before, but there's no doubt about it—he's just a politician at heart!

His other activity on the campus is Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

Prexy Asks Graduates To Order Cap, Gown Soon

Senior class president, Bob Lanigan, has asked that interns and seniors expecting to graduate in June order caps and gowns immediately.

The announcements shall not be ordered until May 14 according to the president. He said, "This will give the interns plenty of time to order them if they plan to graduate from internship."

Lanigan said that interns shall receive from him a letter with any information needed pertaining to their graduation.

"There will be a senior class meeting called in the next couple of weeks but there is no need to call a meeting before the interns leave," Bob said. All interns will receive the minutes of this meeting after the end of the year they may be kept informed as to what is happening.

Bob has also announced that graduation exercises will start on Thursday, June 7, through Saturday, June 9. Degrees will be awarded in the Doak S Campbell Stadium at 8 p. m. June 8.

Various activities for class day are Friday, June 8, are being planned, the president has reported. Bob has appointed Miss Faye Stevens and Bob Hickey in charge of the class day activities. "Anyone interested in assisting them should see Miss Stevens at the Chi Omega sorority house before this Friday," Bob said.

All seniors should contact Bob immediately if they s ant reservations for the senior class party the graduation exercises. He stated that he will reserve the Florida Union for the following three days, June 7, 8, and 8. Reservations are going fast, Bob said. Last year, many parents who waited until the last moment had to be left at home.

Seniors needing information are to see the senior class president at Box 4446. FSU.

Political Scientists To Address Clubs

Dr Marion D Irish and Miss Dorr Parker of the department of political science will be guest speakers before two Women's Clubs this weekend.

On Thursday Dr Irish will address the Thomasville Women's Club on the role of the citizen in American Foreign Affairs." The following afternoon Miss Parker will discuss "The Great Debate" for the Quincy Women's club.

Last Saturday Miss Parker was also speaking at the dedication meeting of the Jacksonville chapter of the Association of American University Women. Her topic was "Women as Participating Citizens."

Dr Andre' Van Assendelp, associate professor of International Relations will address the Tallahassee Women's club Thursday night on "The American Position in International Relations."

All are planning social work career. Professor Bristol said.

Script Contest For Sandspur Gets Underway

Bill Backus, Chairman, Announces Dates, Rules, For Submitting Plays

The annual Sandspur script contest to select the prize-winning 1952 skit begins the first day, according to Bill Backus, newly elected Chairman of Sandspur, 1952.

The contest will end April 15 so that the winning script can be printed before this semester is over and give the committee plenty time to make the many arrangements that go into the musical production.

Rules of the contest follow:

(1) THE SCRIPT must be a tuneful comedy. Backus emphasized that he does not want a variety show and that the script must have continuity.

(2) The script must include lyrics for between 10 and 15 songs. These songs must fit into the plot of story and not carry the action along. Too many times, Backus said, it appears that the play stops until a song is over and then begins again. "We don't want that to happen," he said.

(3) The script must have at least two settings and not more then four. Sets may be either interior or exterior or both.

(4) THE PLOT may center around any subject but should be made as colorful as possible.

(5) Two typewritten copies of the script must be submitted. Previous scripts will not be considered unless resubmitted under the above qualifications.

(6) Address all enviies to William E Backus, Box 4446, Florida State University.

AT THE PRESENT time, Backus is in the process of selecting his production staff. Anyone desiring to work in any capacity on the 1952 production should contact the chairman by letter, giving experience, if any, and position desired.

Positions open are make-up supervisor, costume director, properties, stage manager and crew, choreography, musical director, dance chairman, dramatics director, publicity director and many others. Approximately 100 people are needed.

The first contest last year had only two scripts submitted with "Gypsy Holiday" being chosen. "I hope," Backus said, "that many students will take the opportunity to enter the contest."

Dancing Okay In Dining Hall

One Hour Three Times Per Week Given Okaa

Dancing in the Suwannee room will be permitted as of tomorrow, it has been announced by the University council.

Permission was granted after a discussion between the Dean of Student Welfare J Broward Culpepper, Dean of Men Otis McBride, Dean of Women Katherine Warren and Head Dietician Anna Tracy. Dancing will be allowed between the hours of 5:30 and 6:30 p m on the days Georgie Bee and his orchestra play.

PLANS ARE NOW underway to arrange a small dance area at each end of the Suwannee room to avoid cross traffic difficulties in the center of the room. In addition, this will make the dance floor more accessible to the patrons before and after each number.

Dancing will not be permitted in the center of the room or where it will interfere with the normal flow of dining traffic.

The dining hall management reserves the right to restrict dancing to the small dance floor. The wanner room when special parties are booked in the south end of the room.

Permission to dance in the dining hall was the result of efforts on the part of the University Senate and University Executive council. It had been requested by many students and a formal request was made to the University council two weeks ago.

Council Eligibles Posted in Dorms

Lists of freshmen women eligible for Sophomore Council are posted in the freshmen dorms and the day students' lounge. A Freshmen with a one point average or better for the first semester are asked to check the list to make sure that their names are included on the list.

Anyone whose name does not appear on the list and who feels the grade requirement is asked to add her name to the list. All freshmen with 1.0 or above averages and sorority houses are asked to check in any of the Freshmen dorms. Day students will check in the day students lounge in the Langmaire building.

The lists are being put up today and will be there for two weeks. Only the names on the lists Thursday will appear on the Sophomore Council ballots which will be passed out in the near future by the Women's Senate.

Band, Singers Give Concert

Symphony, Choral Group Present Joint Program

The FSU Symphony Orchestra and the University Singers will join forces Thursday evening, for a concert in Westcott auditorium at 8:15.

The program will feature two works by the eminent American composer Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music of the University of Rochester.

DR HANSON, one of the foremost contemporary musicians, is an acknowledged leader in the fields of composition, conducting, and music education.

The Lament for Beowulf, one of Hanson's best-known choral works, will be presented by the chorus and orchestra. The text is based on the 8th century Anglo-Saxon epic dealing with the exploits and death of the heroic Beowulf.

THE ORCHESTRA will play the finale of the second, called the Romantic Symphony of Hanson, and Haydn's Symphony No 94, Haydn by Brahms, and the Symphony in G by Den Gillo. The orchestra is directed by Robert N Sedore and the University Singers by Wiley L Housewright.

Wesley Players Give Repeat Performance Of 'John Doe' Play

Wesley Players will give a repeat performance of John Doe this evening at 6 at the Methodist Student house.

John Doe, written by Bernard Vincent Dryer, is a one-act drama that makes a plea for an enlightened humanism that practices understanding and humility.

The first performance was given Sunday, March 4, at the Methodist Student house, with Dalton Hosford leading the cast in the title role of John H Doe.

Other members of the cast are Grania Heath as Father Julio, Elsie Garcia, Ruby; Harry Copeland, Fireman; Jack Hall, Dr John Price, Herr Neumann, and James Taylor as Joseph.

The play is under the direction of Mrs John Wheeler.

Senior Hall Plans April Open House

Plans for the first Senior Hall anniversary open-house are being made for this weekend, Senior Hall reporter, Waldon Padgett, said.

Because of the confusion with Senior Hall in Landis, Men's Senior Hall is planning to announce a new name for the dorm at the open-house, Waldon reported.

These plans were made Thursday night at a meeting of the new dormitory officers and monitors. Bill Burnett, social director, Mrs Carroll Smith and George Hall, dorm director.

Other social and athletic activities were discussed at the meeting for the remaining school term.

Business Honorary Initiates Tonight

Gamma Gamma chapter of Pi Omega Pi will hold its spring semester initiation tonight.

The initiation, followed by a dinner for the initiates and members, will be in the Lafayette Room of the West dining hall.

UGA Run-Off Campaigns End With Finals Tomorrow

Pennell, Thomas Contest Highlights Election; Four Precincts Open From 9 am to 7 pm

Today marks the final day of campaign before the run-off balloting tomorrow in the University Government Association elections.

Taking the highlight will be the contest between Will Pennell and Jerry Thomas for the office of President of UGA. Pennell nose d over Thomas 772-675 in the primary election Wednesday in a hotly contested five-man race.

Dick Bradley, serving as vice-president of legislative affairs, will battle Jim Kirk to retain the position next year.

THE POLLS open tomorrow morning at 9 a m and will close at 7 p m tomorrow night. Precincts will again be located in the Seminole Dinner hall lobby, lower Westcott, the game room of the Longmire building and the West campus Post Office.

Station WFSU is again offering air time tonight for candidates to make campaign speeches. All speeches will be aired between the hours of 5 and 7 p m and 8:30 and 9 p m. Presidential candidates are being offered five minutes and all other candidates two minutes of air time.

SPEAKERS must sign-up for time in advance at the studio on the fourth floor of the Longmire building. A copy of the speech must be left with the station engineer. All speeches are slated to be at the station at least five minutes before they are to speak.

Election returns will be announced by the campus station as soon as they are released. All precincts will report a ballot will be counted. Stan Gould, program manager announced that all programs will be interrupted to bring the students the returns.

Elections chairman Paul Garrison indicated that he expected complete returns to be ready by the end of the evening in the run-off elections. "The shorter ballot this time should enable us to finish the tabulations much earlier than we did in the primary," he said.

LAST WEEK'S voting hit a near record peek with 2107 turning out which is roughly 42.8 per cent of the student body. Tabulations were not complete until 1:30 p m Thursday.

The four candidates for men's senior representative to the University Court will appear on the ballot tomorrow. The names of Bob Smolin, Willis Tyrrell, Ivan Kestner and Tom Cumbie were left off the primary ballot by a printing mistake. Two of them will be elected to the post in tomorrow's elections.

Jo Nell Proctor was elected secretary of UGA in last Wednesday's primary over Arlene Amend and Mary Helen Speed. Senatorial opposed were Bill Steinmetz, vice-president in charge of men's affairs; Dave Jean Smith, social chairman; Bill Backus, Sandspur chairman; Joel Smith, Smoke Signals editor. (Gene Burnett scored 75 write-in votes); Bill Hess, Junior representative to University court for men; Virginia Smith, business manager Flambeau; Bill Skipper, business manager Tally Ho; Gail Kelly Alvis-

Notify Miss Adams In Alumni Bldg If Meet Cancelled

Student organizations making reservations for meetings of their groups in the Longmire building are requested by Miss Jane Adams, director of the building, to promptly notify her office in case their meetings are cancelled for the Longmire building has supplied faculty meetings.

"When we book such meeting, the Longmire auditorium is tied up well in advance for that particular group for the time and date set," Miss Adams said. "It also means that considerable work must be done by the janitors and others in getting the place properly arranged and the proper placement of seats and other preparations.

"In the event the speaker cannot appear or it becomes necessary for the meeting to be postponed for any reason we will appreciate the program chairman or whoever is in charge of the arrangements to notify us promptly so that the use of the office and auditorium for that time and date to some other student organization."

FSU Club Models New Spring Fashions

Music Professor Will Attend Vermont High School Festival

Dr Irvin Cooper, professor of music education, has been invited to act as guest conductor and choral adjudicator at the Vermont State Music Festival on May 3, 4 and 5.

Dr Cooper will conduct the mass chorus and orchestra of 1,500 high school students in a performance of one of his own compositions, God Gave Us Song, in the concert which concludes the festival. The festival will be attended by bands, choruses and orchestras from 100 or high schools from the entire state of Vermont.

Dr Cooper's appearance in May will be only one of several which he will make this year as guest conductor and clinician and adjudicator. On March 16 and 17 he will direct the junior high school chorus of Florida district number four at Daytona Beach. Prior to the State festival in Vermont, he will act as guest conductor at the Northeastern Vermont Festival on April 28.

Professor Cooper will also demonstrate the organization and training of junior high school choral groups at the convention of the Southern Division of the Music Educators National Conference, to be held in Richmond, Virginia, April 18 and 19.

A similar demonstration brought him acclaim from leading music educators attending a convention in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania in November. Dr Cooper is a specialist in the problems of vocal and choral training at the junior high level.

Dr Cole is director of graduate studies in political science at Duke University, editor of the American Political Review and president of the Southern Political Science association.

ROVING REPORTER RUBBY

'Why Did You Take the Stand You Did in Voting' Is Question of Week

This week's "question of the week" asked of students by Flambeau roving reporter, was, "Why did you take the stand you did in voting?"

Jim Leonard, sr, Route 3: I didn't vote because I didn't know any of the candidates.

Freddy Howell, sr, 311 W Call-hurst: Like everyone else, I guess. I judged the candidates and their platforms. I didn't know them personally, their campaigns, and the posters and when I didn't know any of the candidates, I didn't vote for that particular office.

"Punk" Ryan, sr, 658 Pensacola St: I didn't vote because I have all I can do to help Herman run Landis.

Leona Dowdy, soph, 427 Oil-christ: I had several friends' former opinions in the beginning, but the main factors were the rally and the candidates' platforms.

Ellyne Strickland, soph, 322 Broward: The little hand ballots and the initiative shown in the campaign, as well as knowing some of the candidates personally is what influenced me.

Johnny Matter, ar, 217 Senior Hall: I voted because I am a student body administration and I felt it was my civic duty, my privilege to participate in any free government.

LEON BROWN, soph, 849 W Campus: I didn't vote because none of the candidates had the same name of any beer I am familiar with.

Carlyle Mayhall, sr, 661 West Pensacola: I forgot to register. (Editor's note: Registration is not necessary.)

Nancy Dell, jr, 116 Landis: I voted because I wanted more student government.

June Keirstead, soph, Sigma Kappa: I went to the rally and from the speeches I heard and judgeand the candidates I knew from their past performances, I decided for whom I would vote.

Jerry Sapp, soph, 424 S Cawthon: Mainly, my personal knowledge of the character of the people who were running helped me decide whether or not they were capable of effectively holding their office.

Ernestine Hunt, soph, Alpha Gamma Delta House: I voted as I did because of the past experiences of the people who had done the most for the school, their attitudes, and the things I thought they would do if they were elected.

ANN BLANKS, jr, 211 Landis: I didn't vote because I forgot my ID card in the morning, and just didn't get back in the afternoon.

Mary Gray Michael, frosh, 203 Jennie Murphree: I didn't know the candidates or what they stood for, and I didn't have time to find out, so I just didn't vote.

Alice Elder, frosh, D Jennie Murphree: I voted for two people because I knew what they stood for and that they would make good officers, and for the others I just went "eeny, meeny, miny, moe."

Leron Rice, soph, 505 W Campus: I voted for the friends I had, but only because I thought I was passing through the post office and if they had asked, I could vote.

Woody Southerland, frosh, 423 W College Ave: I voted as I did because I'm a Democrat: I happened to see the ballot box, and besides, it was free.

Sonny Lutz, jr, 526 W Campus: I wanted to vote against the candidates, not for them; and since they didn't have any places marked on the ballots to do this, I didn't vote.

If I'm Elected, I Promise To...

UGA President

Dear Editor:

Thanks is the one word which expresses my appreciation to those who voted and worked for me in this election.

I need and will appreciate the continued support for Wednesday's voting.

For those students who did not reach the polls last week and for those students who are still undecided, I am again listing several points of my platform.

First: Registration should be completed for the second semester before the holidays.

Second: The penalty for cutting classes should be modified so that credits are not lost for missing a class.

Third: Two new buses should be purchased. One for the athletic teams and one for deputations and organizations to use for parties.

Fourth: Strong public information publicizing FSU's athletics throughout the United States.

Fifth: Student grading for teachers and courses.

JERRY THOMAS

Fellow students:

Thank you for your splendid support in the primary elections. A candidate probably will never know who all voted for him, but I do wish to say that I appreciate the large turnout of voters in last Wednesday's election, for it was an indication of interest that you, the students, have in your candidates.

Last week I stated the basic points in my platform; now I would like to elaborate upon some of the things for which I stand.

(1) Control of the student activity fee and publications of the student budget.

(2) A wide public relations program.

a—Student speakers for the various high schools, etc.

b—Marching band to chartered buses and trains to the Miami-FSU game this fall.

c—Try to work towards getting FSU a berth in a southern or southeastern conference.

(3) Co-op buying power for the students with local merchants so that students may receive discounts

(4) An organized pep squad. (Along with this would be a card section).

(5) A more well-rounded coed university. This means sharing of facilities on both campuses. Greater representation of the "J" clubs.

(6) Student Parking Areas. (Immediate improvements are needed to correct the parking situation now existing on campus. These improvements can be met by new parking regulations and additional parking space).

There are many problems to be solved on our campus. They can be solved only by an organized student body. And to carry out your wishes, I promise to give you a strong, efficient student government that you will be proud of. A student government that will show results and not just talk! You need your student government and your student government needs you, so please continue to show your interest in the coming election.

WILL PENNELL.

Vice President

Fellow students,

A lot of you voted for me in this primary. I surely appreciate every vote because I didn't ask any of you for backing. This letter is directed to all of you now. I want your vote in the finals.

First, I must explain that I am not running a popularity or an I-have-up-the-most-posters campaign. I'm running on service and experience.

So far this year our student government has amounted to one of technicalities. The center of attention has been on interpretations rather than on fulfilling your needs, as it should be. Right now, the Senate is revising the constitution so that anyone can read and understand it. The Senate and the Legislative Reference Bureau are outlining the ways and means of administration. We are removing the obstacles that slow down any progress at all.

The situation is ripe for really having a government that does things for the students. Your recently displayed interest has indicated that. There is a need, however, for some continuity. I want to be part of that carry-over that will do things in September instead of reflect the following June on things that should have been done.

Think of what you expect from student government when you vote tomorrow. Do you want another interpretation for next year or do you want some progressive ideas to be completed?

DICK BRADLEY.

Flambeau Ed

Dear Students.

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you who voted for me in the primaries Wednesday and make it possible for me to run again in the final elections.

Let me restate for you the policies I presented to you at the DOR rally last Tuesday night.

1—Better cooperation between UGA officers and the Flambeau.

2—The presenting of both sides of any controversial issue.

3—Better coverage of campus activities.

4—I will always encourage student participation in the Flambeau through letters to the editor and contributions to the news and feature columns.

These are a few of the plans I will put into effect if I am elected your next Flambeau editor.

JANE ATCHLEY

Dear Editor:

It is gratifying to find that 596 students voted for me for next editor of the Flambeau.

I first believe in a responsible newspaper. I believe experience and an honest search for truth is the key to that goal.

Judge my ability on my record:

* Reporter.
* Assistant Feature Editor.
* Columnist.
* Business Manager.
* Member of Senior staff.

During the last 38 issues of the Flambeau the total revenue taken in by the Flambeau has increased 100 per cent over last year's intake. The reason: Work.

This is what I pledge once more. To work my hardest at editing a paper that is representative of the students and one that prints student news and student opinion.

The Flambeau will, of course co-operate with the administration, but the paper should show its own convictions sometimes. The policy will be constructive.

Put your choice mentally in the editor's seat. You would be going be free, truthful, constructive. Toward this goal I strive.

BOB GRIFFIN.

Treasurer

Dear Students,

Thank you very much for your support in the first primary of the UGA elections.

Let me urge you again to be sure to vote tomorrow. Remember that your vote is your voice in government.

I feel confident that I can efficiently perform the duties of UGA Treasurer. The final decision is with you.

I will appreciate your vote and support.

SUE SAXON.

Fellow Students:

The office of treasurer of UGA is an important one. Upon the shoulders of the candidate you elect rests a great responsibility. It is his duty to account for your money. For this reason it is up to you to consider the platforms and qualifications of both candidates. While reading the campaign letters in the Flambeau, I noticed that two candidates for UGA president as well as others, had as a main plank in their platform more central control over student funds. I also support this platform. The treasurer must know how to handle the accounting for these funds and budgets to give you the most accurate account of how your money is being spent. Your present treasurer thought enough of my qualifications and experience to appoint me chairman of the UGA auditing committee. I also advocate an increase in the base pay for student assistants and will do my utmost to further this policy. I will endeavor to keep the fiscal policies of the UGA before the students by monthly reports in the Flambeau. I will also take an active part in other student matters by contacting my vote on the University Council.

I base my qualifications on the following:

1—Treasurer of dormitory for 1950.

2—Accounting major with experience in accounting for funds, budgets, encumbrances, and contingencies.

3—Accountant for social sorority.

4—Treasurer for Campus Charity Chest.

5—Chairman of the UGA auditing committee.

I hope you will consider my qualifications and platform and support me on your ballot.

BILL CORNELIUS.

Women's VP

Fellow Students:

It is most encouraging to those of us interested in the progress of FSU to see the increased turnout in the March 7 elections. I appreciate the support you gave me in the primary election and I would very much like to receive your vote in the final election tomorrow.

I am very much interested in the Women's Affairs and will play in the progress of FSU; therefore, I am asking for the opportunity to work as the coordinator between you, your student officers and the faculty.

NANCY MILLER.

Fellow Students.

The large turnout of voters in last Wednesday's election was certainly a boost to the morale of the candidates. I, for one, appreciate the support you who supported me in the primary elections.

Last week, in my letter to you, I listed my qualifications for the office of Vice-President in Charge of Women's Affairs. I hope you will again consider my experience and qualifications when you cast your vote for this office . . . .

Don't forget to vote tomorrow!

BETTY RICH.

Judiciary

Dear Students:

My sincere thanks to all of you who voted for me last Wednesday. Tomorrow I hope you will stop and seriously consider each and every candidate before you vote. I believe past experience in UGA and self-government should fill out your ballot. I have served this campus in the judicial system and feel I have the experience necessary to continue serving you efficiently as your Junior Representative to University Court tomorrow. Needless to say I would like your support once in this office. If elected, I will strive always to carry out the responsibilities of the job to the very best of my ability.

Because I believe in this way of life—"I pledge myself to uphold the highest standards of honesty in every phase of my university life, and I refuse to tolerate dishonesty on the part of another."—I want to take my stand as your Junior Representative to University Court.

FRANKIE BROWNLEE.

Fellow Students,

You have just put me in third place for the finals on Wednesday. Thank you! It's third place won't do. It has to be first or second before I can serve you the way I want to. I am running for Senior representative to Women's Judiciary. I cannot claim years of experience on this body, but I can claim an active, vigorous interest in your welfare. Also I have been a member of Honor committee all this year.

I cannot put up a large, intricate platform and make you all kinds of tinselly promises. I will only be part of this body, a small part.

But let me tell you what I can do. I can judge you honestly, thoughtfully, and fairly, to the best of my ability. May I beg of you the chance to do this!

JEAN FLYNN

Dear Editor:

The increased interest and number of voters to cast a ballot in the primary election was very encouraging to the development of a true government student administered government here at FSU. The number of votes which I received as Men's Representative to University Court was most gratifying. Your continued support of me in the coming elections will be appreciated as I am sincerely anxious to serve you through our court system.

BARBARA CARUTHERS.

EYDIE GORME—Vocalist for Tex Beneke's orchestra which will appear at the State theater March 15.

Tex Beneke Appears At State Thursday

Tex Beneke and his orchestra which will appear at the State Theater on Thursday, is now the nation's undisputed dance orchestra leader, according to the outstanding authorities in the field and to the nation's leading critics.

TEX, who took over the Glenn Miller orchestra after Glenn's disappearance, was formerly a member of the Miller band. Before the war there was no question that Glenn Miller's orchestra was the unchallenged leader in the popular music business.

Today Tex Beneke's orchestra has recaptured the number one record-breaking position held by the pre-war band. Featured as vocalist is Eyde Gorme.

SUCH discs as "St. Louis Blues March," "Blues in the Night," "I Can Dream Can't I" and "Can I Canoe You Up the River" have sold millions of copies, to set the band up as one of the outstanding attractions on records.

"Tex" Beneke was so dubbed by Glenn Miller when he came up from Texas to join the ristns Miller organization in New York. His real name is Gordon Lee Beneke.

Tex's vocal renditions of "Chattanooga Choo Choo" with Glenn Miller broke all records for RCA-Victor. Almost two million copies of the record were sold, an all time high sales record.

ONE of the highest paid sidemen in the music business before the war, Tex was rated by the music magazines as the nation's

SCA Retreat Planned For This Weekend

a weekend of recreation, fellowship, discussion and planning is scheduled for the Student Christian association Retreat to be held March 17-18 at Silver Lake.

The Retreat is for all members, and will combine a weekend at camp with the purpose of the Retreat—to study the workings of SCA organizations and plan improvements for SCA at FSU.

Home Ec Honorary Initiates Members

The Pi chapter of Omicron Nu, home economics honorary, initiated six new members last Tuesday at Colonel's Inn. Elsie Hargrave, president, reported.

New members are Alice Cromartie, graduate student in Foods and Nutrition; Miriam Edwards, a senior in Home Economics Education; Ann Kutrow, senior in Clothing and Textiles; Sarah Carter Oates, senior in Home Economics Education; Mable O'Steen, graduate and teaching Homemaking Education in Monticello, and Louise Spaeth, junior in Home Economics Education, who recently attended the White House conference in Washington, D C.

Present at the initiation were student members of Omicron Nu, and faculty of the School of Home Economics, including two members of the Extension Department, Miss Anna Mae Sikes and Miss Ruth Lemmon. A banquet at the Colonel's Inn followed the initiation.

SYMPOSIUM: PART 2

FSU Students Tell What They Desire In Newspaper; Answer Three Queries

By BOB TIPPINS

Recently the Flambeau conducted a symposium among members of the faculty with the questions, "What do you think the college newspaper should do for its readers? What do you think of sensationalism in a college newspaper? And, do you believe college papers should have faculty control?"

This week the Flambeau carried those same questions to the students on FSU's campus. The answers received are as follows:

Rube Askew, President of UGA: "It should furnish the students with truthful and accurate news reporting, and in doing that should earnestly strive to be very objective in its reporting. It should not report events unless the reporters can look into the subject sufficiently to give the students a clear picture of the situation.

"IT'S EDITORIAL opinions should express wisdom and justice. Too many times our own paper has continually disregarded this principle.

"Our own Flambeau's stationary bears the following quotation from John Paschall: 'A newspaper can be judged by the truthfulness and accuracy of its news columns and the wisdom and justice of its editorial opinion.'"

"I would like all of the students whom this reporter cannot reach for an interview to stop and use this quotation as an instrument of measurement and evaluation of our campus newspaper.

"EDITORIAL POLICY should be one of a constructive nature and put forth an honest and sincere effort to help work for a better and greater FSU.

"Sensationalism is a cover for pseudo-journalism who do not take the time to really look into a story to find out if there is really something of interest. Attempts to play up an aspect above and beyond its true value misinforms the student reader, therefore presents a biased picture.

"I firmly believe that there should be a faculty advisory committee, although I do not think the committee should exercise direct controls, rather merely counsel."

Marian Doro: "The college paper, as any paper, should give to its readers all the available facts on news stories whether the editor agrees with the incident or not.

"IT SHOULD be willing to print the news even though its publication would jeopardize the pet peeves of the editorial pause.

"Sensationalism is an indication that the news reporter is unable to write newsworthy information unless he 'colors' it. This type of writing may be interesting reading for 12 or 13-year-old minds, but college students insult their intelligence by any acceptance of it from their own paper.

"Faculty control would be an infringement on the principle of free speech; any criticising for 'poor' writing after the paper comes out would be the only reasonable type of control. If any control is put on a college newspaper it should be of a voluntary and self-imposed nature, as an effort to improve the newspaper content."

JIM KIRK, President Kappa Alpha fraternity: "The smaller groups on the campus should get more headlines in the paper. Too often the same groups are mentioned every week.

"If possible, the paper should cut down advertising and have more features, but only if they can afford to do so.

"Finally, it should be strictly a student publication without faculty control of any type."

Dick Bradley, Vice-President Legislative Affairs: ". . . Should provide information, naturally, and be the most popular media of student co-ordination, reflecting opinions of both student and faculty.

"Anything printed within the limits of the policy stated is acceptable, provided the policies are definitely stated and accepted.

"THERE SHOULD be faculty control from the standpoint that if anything at all goes wrong it remains the responsibility of the faculty."

Sandi Horton, Sandspur Chairman: "...Present fairly the views of faculty, students, and staff without bias. Afford the students the opportunity of reaching their own decisions on local issues and offer them the opportunity and means of changing undesirable conditions.

"There is no need for sensationalism in the college paper just as there is no need for it in the commercial papers. However, the paper should not tone-down any outstanding event, but state it factually, as it happened."

FACULTY CONTROL: "Only in a very slight advisory capacity, if at all. The paper is the training ground for future commercial journalists and the policy, at any rate, should be that of the editor. The students will control by ballot."

Bo Baker, Chief Justice University Court: "Be objective, leaving interpretation to the readers, as there is usually only one paper on the college campus. Therefore a biased paper cannot be neutralized.

"The editor should realize that his editorial column is probably one of the principle formers of opinion on the campus.

"The college paper's use of sensationalism is juvenile."

● FOR EFFICIENCY'S SAKE: A CABINET

A constitutional amendment affecting a considerable change in the Executive branch of the University Government Association is now pending in a Senate committee. The sweeping changes proposed by this amendment are beneficial not only to the president of UGA but they are significant because they parallel the federal system in many respects.

We are talking, of course, of the measure which would set up a cabinet system in the Executive branch.

A cabinet system of government, besides affording more efficient operation of the student government, would fix the responsibility of the Executive branch upon one person. The method used at the present time calls for a University council made up of the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, four class presidents, forums chairmen and the vice-president in charge of men's and women's affairs. The responsibility is sufficiently split-up so that no one knows who to blame when something goes wrong—and things do go wrong.

The new scheme—the cabinet system—would make use of an advisory board only. The president would be the main cog in the machinery and he could take advice from his secretaries or not. The pending measure calls for a Secretary of Elections, Secretary of Finance, Secretary of Forums, Secretary of Organizations, Director of Athletics and Recreation, and Secretary of Social Standards. In addition, other cabinet members as needed could be provided for by law. An ample check is afforded since the Senate would have to confirm the appointment of any secretary before he could be seated.

In a plan of this sort, the class presidents would be left alone to carry out the functions of their office toward their respective classes. This is something they have wanted and needed for a long time. Too often class presidents become bogged down with Executive council committees which could just as well be handled by a secretary.

The finest feature of the cabinet system is that it does away with the double legislative body which we now have. Executive council has heretofore concerned itself with a double duty in passing laws and also seeing that such laws were carried out. This feature also puts more power in the hands of the Senate, something which has been lacking.

We will watch with interest the path taken by this measure before final ratification by the student body. Eventual passage makes certain we will have a smoother working group in student government.

● HELP THE 'CHEST'

First contribution to the Campus Chest amounted to $70 and was collected at the Powder Bowl game which was held recently. This is a good start.

To make the Campus Chest an annual affair we must send it over the top with a bang and subscribe to the amount set by the Campus Chest committee. Organizations desiring to help in the Campus Chest should see Chairman Bill Hess and let him know they plan to help out in the annual drive.

Organizations and clubs can be of great service in making sure the Campus Chest becomes a permanent fixture at Florida State University.

● A GOOD IDEA

The University council has suggested a plan that warrants the wholehearted support of every member of the University Government Association.

This plan, known as the Leadership Training Program, is designed to instruct new UGA officers in the student constitution, the relationship of student government to faculty and administration and the balance of power between the three branches in the student government.

Of course, we do not think the program should be limited to the embryo politicians; it should embrace every interested student on campus.

Student government has an important function on campus. It is the student's contact with the faculty and administration and it is the students' contact with the rest of the student body. Until the officers and students realize the importance of the instruments with which they must deal we can not hope for any harmony within that group.

Leadership programs of this sort have not panned out well in past attempts. In order that this same situation does not recur, the meetings should be made mandatory for all concerned.

We suggest a written test on all material covered in the seminars before a candidate be allowed to take his office.

● MAKE A RECORD

Another election day is coming up tomorrow.

We have impressed on your mind the importance of voting in student elections and see no need to remind you further that it is a vital necessity that you go to the polls tomorrow.

A near record was established last Wednesday. There is no reason why a substantial record cannot be made tomorrow. The shortness of the ballot should be conducive to the voter to exercise his privilege.

Take time out to vote.

● RESPECT DUE FLAG

There is a certain respect which is due the flag of the United States. These common courtesies have been drilled into us since we were students in grade school.

Why is it that they are so easily forgotten now?

Pass by Bryan ball almost any evening, and you will see Old Glory flying at night just as she does in the daytime. Is this a display of the respect we have for our national emblem?

During Sunday's rainstorm no one thought to remove the flag from the outdoor flagpole. Nor many students would have left a piece of old clothing hanging outside during the rain. Surely, we have more regard for our national emblem than that. It's just another case of thoughtlessness.

Who is responsible? Sopbomore Council is usually charged with the duty of raising the flag in the morning and lowering it at night. What has happened to that committee?

tion, editor of Tally Ho: Carlos Taylor and Howard Abel, men's Senior representatives to Judicial court, Buddy Leynes and Richard Jackson, Sophomore representatives to judicial court.

BILL HAYES and James Ball were victors over Alice Jackson and Elenor Graves for Chief Justice of Student Court, and Chief Justice of Judicial Court, respectively. These victories are being contested on the grounds that Hayes and Ball do not meet Constitutional qualifications for the offices.

Arda Bouriand and Polly Anne Lassiter were elected over Yvonne McCarthy and Jean Wetherell for women's Sophomore representatives to Judicial court.

Other contenders in tomorrow's run-off will be Jane Atchley and Bob Griffin for Flambeau editor; Betty Bird and Nancy Miller for vice-president in charge of women's affairs; Sue Saxon and Bill Cornelius for treasurer of UGA.

In the women's Judicial Court races Patty Moss, Mary Stuart Smith, Jean Flynn and Virginia Lee will compete for two seats as senior representatives. Ellen Ann Sara Marzaret Davis, Elisabeth P Bell and Penny Moore for junior representatives.

Candidates for women's Senior representatives to University Court are Barbara Caruthers, Elsie Gibson, Patricia Ledbetter and Doris (Dee) Stevens. For Junior representatives it will be a run-off between Frankie Brownlee, Florence Clark, Nancy Day and June Tate.

Due to space limitations we will be unable to print "Letters Yeo" letters from candidates who have won or lost the offices they were seeking. We will take this opportunity to express "Thank Yon's" for them.

Virginia's Major Is Home Ec Ed

Twenty-year-old Virginia Stockman is junior senator to UGA with a wealth of previous experience behind her.

Her past positions on the FSU campus include vice president of Panama City club, South Quadrangle Hall, and in her home town, Panama City, president of the Panama City club.

Virginia's major is Home Economics Education. She plans to graduate next February but her professional plans are as yet undecided. She is a member of WRA, with pin snapshots.

Besides these other numerous activities on campus include Sophomore Hop Court, and Activity Chairman of Alpha Chi Omega.

Crossed With Paint

Dear Editor:

Sunday evening many of my opponent's "Will Pennell" signs were crossed over with paint.

Whoever painted over Pennell's signs managed to leave them in place and to paint them in such a way that Pennell's name would still be legible. By doing this, it is hoped that many students will vote for Pennell out of sympathy. Pennell knows that I would not resort to such adolescent tactics, and I do not feel that he is responsible for this unfair action.

However, such a shady political move by a few, if not only reflects on the opponents, but also on the University.

SPRING HAS SPRUNG—STILL A FLOP

By BETSY BLANTON

During the breather between the primary and run-off elections there is a little time to notice the weather. Without a doubt, Spring has sprung on this campus . . . and it is the same overrated flop that it was last year.

The only bright hope in winter is that spring is just around the corner, and when it finally rears its head life is pretty much the same as during other seasons. Advertisers would have us believe that it is the mating season . . . and everyone seems to find everyone else . . . life is blissful.

It's spring at FSU, but the change of season has brought no relief from the monotony, grinding, procrastination nor the flu strain.

* * *

A couple of weeks ago, we mentioned Dean McBride's talk in University Senate. The Dean of Men said we seemed to be more appreciative of the things which we have rather than criticism of that which we are lacking.

He reminded the circus, the music building, the athletic records and several other things as items of which we can be proud.

We agree that we have many advantages that other colleges and universities do not have. And we think it is because we are proud of FSU that we are so critical of things which we feel are under a cruel lie.

McBride also implied that the student newspaper should serve as a public relations bureau in trying to convince people that we have an ideal institution. Any concepts of the duties of a newspaper differ with the Dean of Men's.

We had always been under the impression that the Public Relations Office which is located right under our own nose had that specific purpose in doing just that. They work six days a week turning out copy which sounds the praises of FSU.

On the other hand, we had always thought a newspaper was charged with the duty of printing stories that have news value. None of our professors in the school of journalism has ever mentioned anything about withholding news which was unfavorable.

* * *

Neither have we been taught that editorials should always be of an idealistic nature. Perhaps it was just an oversight, but no one told us that we were supposed to overlook procrastination on the part of elected officials, or unconstitutional actions of the legislative body.

We've wasted an awful lot of money on a college education that is full of wrong information. And they have only 3/4 of a semester to set us right.

The grapevine informs us that the election of chief justice of university court may be contested. There are those who say that the parties involved won't present a case since it would be a display of poor sportsmanship. . . .

On the basis of a previous court ruling, we have the idea that either Alice Jackson or Bill Hayes must present the case, since they are the only people directly involved.

That would be the opinion if the court is going to be consistent, but you never can tell. . .

Some instructors permit students unlimited cuts—others take 1 6 of your credit away for missing class ever three times.

If the administration is going to adopt such a policy, they should do it 100 per cent or forget it.

The cut system that we are now operating is unfair and rather adolescent.

Students come to college on their own free will and at their own expense—so why expose them to such unstable policy.

Other colleges in the State do not have a set system which takes away from credits that a student earns—why should we?

Even members of the administration are not in favor of the present system.

How long are the students to wait for a sensible change?

ANONG OTHER THINGS

SAME FOOD AT HIGHER PRICES

By JERRY THOMAS

The West campus cafeteria began to serve lunch a la carte last week.

Many of the students are complaining because they are receiving the same food as before, at a much higher price.

One purpose for serving a planned meal is the fact that it can be served at a fair price.

When students are paying 90c for a 50c meal—something's wrong, and it isn't Mamalia.

Perhaps there is a reason for this chanine. One fact is obvious—it isn't benefiting the student.

One interesting detail presented by the Senate Investigating Committee was the fact that the West campus cafeteria must pay a five per cent service charge to the East campus dining halls for their services.

If this is true, it is understandable why the West campus cafeteria must alter their usual process.

The Senate did a favorable job of investigating—but must it stop there?

An investigation is only the first part of a job—recommendations are only a beginning.

The Senate should appoint a committee to see that the recommendations are accepted and utilized.

The students certainly want the recommendations—how long are they to wait?

In many college cities, such as Tallahassee, the merchants give all college students a discount on clothing.

With a little student interest in the right place—the presentation of an FSU identification card could entail around a twenty per cent discount.

Other college cities in this State offer a discount—as can Tallahassee.

One administration policy that has been unstable and unfair is the cut system.

PEP RALLY - - - WITH 60 STUDENTS

By JEANNE O'RORDEN

Last Friday night the big pep rally to send the basketball boys off to Kansas City, Missouri, took place. Five members crowded around the amphitheatre giving out with a few cheers and songs. Marching Chiefs sat up on the stage playing FSU songs.

The boys should have attended the rally really got into the spirit of the thing . . . all 60 of them.

Maybe I'm being optimistic about that 60. "The amphitheatre was about one-third full—or it should say three-fourths empty.

We went through all this during football season to get a drum up school spirit. Finally the students became interested at the end of season. That last big rally at the circus grounds was good. We were all there again . . . a winning basketball team, but no support.

If you're been reading the sports news, you'll know that the basketball team won the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball District 25 tournament, in Jacksonville. Friday night they were defeated by the NAIB tournament. Right after the rally was over a bus was waiting in the parking lot to take them on to the game. They left, the FSU campus remembering approximately 60 students who really got out and helped their team.

Instead of 60 there should have been 600 or 1,000 students there to enthusiastic . . . but there weren't.

* * *

As the basketball team rolled out, the Dallas Symphony Orchestra rolled in Friday night and gave three magnificent concerts, each program different.

But I heard from a member of the Artist Series Committee that some students didn't like the seats that were reserved for them.

It seems that the Committee saved the best seats for the students whose seats which are in the balcony and right under the balcony. They were asked to come to get their reserved seat tickets, they griped because they couldn't get on the first row.

The accoustics in Westcott are such that for a concert of such a big orchestra as the Dallas Symphony, the seats in front are bad. Therefore, the Artist Series Office saved the best ones for the students.

That dream about Sunday afternoon concerts in the Amphitheatre might be closer to reality. I hear from Don Heckman, who first got the idea, that he's doing all he orchestra will play the first concert next Sunday.

He also reports that he has the amphitheatre reserved for following Sundays and he has other campus groups and musical organizations lined up. Omicron Delta Kappa campus leadership honorary may sponsor the concerts.

"THE SCIENCE AND ART OF GOVERNMENT"

By JOEL P SMITH

Politicking is nothing to be a scientist about. Politicking is what rightly it should be. According to Webster, politics is "the art or science and art of government . . . the theory or practice of managing affairs of public policy . . ." Our brother Webster wrote that definition I am sure that the composer of the public must have been somewhat different from the modern "politicos." The modern concept of the public must have been somewhat different from the modern "politicos." The modern concept of the public must have been somewhat different from the modern "politicos." The modern concept of the words they are interested in doing something for FSU.

It is now the belief of the belief that the candidates who are in the run-off are better than average in respect to qualifications and sincere interest . . . let's short circuit the confusion. "politics" is synonomous with "politicos." Now, every time have you heard a student voter ask "Give me ten good reasons why I should vote for your candidate"? Believing that most students do want "ten good reasons" why they should vote a certain way, your columnist asked the two candidates why they are voting for either Jerry Thomas or Will Pennell in the run-off tomorrow.

Bud Robinson: "I think Jerry has shown more interest in school than Will because I have seen him and has run since I have been in school. He attends every senate meeting."

Frerin Rasberson: "I'm voting for Will because I have worked with him all year on the Junior Class cabinet. The cabinet under the leadership of Will has accomplished more than any class before. He has been active at FSU."

Bill Dawkins: "Through close observation, I have seen the things that Thomas has done for FSU. I have been on West campus and appreciate the interest that Jerry has shown in setting the cafeteria West campus open for breakfast. He gets things done and he's always out of student body, not a minority."

Margaret Marshall: "It's a shame it isn't vote for both, but I'm voting for Will, because I know what he can do."

Joel C. Smith: "This ain't me') I'm gonna vote for Jerry Thomas because he knows more about the political system in this school, so my knowledge. I feel like he's had more to do with the administration and school."

Jim Landry: "I think Will has lots of experience, he's worked hard as junior class president, sophomore class, and elected freshman president and keep on being elected, and I can see good in the eyes of the students."

Joanne Rice: "I'm for Jerry Thomas. He's done a very good job. He gets things done . . . I've known him since high school.

Regnie Frey: "I'm for Will, he's done a good job for our school—pulling those signs up, 'don't walk on the grass.'"

Bill Bowden: "I remember one time there was a fight on campus and Will stepped in and broke it up. He shows good leadership."

Bob Tippins: "Definitely Jerry Thomas because he's been very successful in securing improvements for the school. He has stated a definite platform so I know what to expect. He is personable and is interested in Florida, therefore FSU. Jerry is conscientious, personable and knows how to accomplish his objectives."

Chaddy Downs: "Look at Thomas's qualifications listed on one of those posters in the Mecca. There is no question about it, Jerry. He has 50 more qualifications beside those listed, too."

One administration policy that has been unstable and unfair is the cut system.

Some instructors permit students unlimited cuts—others take 1 6 of your credit away for missing class ever three times.

If the administration is going to adopt such a policy, they should do it 100 per cent or forget it.

Poetically Yours

YOUR LOVE

By Neil Jacoby

Your eyes sparkle, like an uncut jewel, your hair, dark and flowing, not unlike a deep, dark sea.
I wonder if you know how much you
mean to me?

Your smile radiates, like a burnin gsun,
It would light the darkest corner of the earth, for all to see.
I wonder if you know how much you
mean to me?

Your voice penetrates, like a knight's long lance,
It would conjure up for any door to say heart's key.
I wonder if you know how much you
mean to me?

Your love hypnotizes, like a sorcerer's wand,
It captures and recaptures—makes me what I want to be.
I wonder if you know how much you
mean to me?
I wish you knew!!

Senate Has Several Committee Types

By EARL DOBERT

Committees are necessary element in the smooth functioning of any governmental set-up.

This holds true in our student government as well. We have standing committees, sitting committees, Senate committees, University council committees, committees of the whole and committees of reference.

One of the more interesting committees at the present time is the Senate committee of which Betty Rich whose sole purpose is to purchase a gavel for the Senate.

Other committees are the committee to compile all student and administrative law. Committee to follow up Bill Watters' accusations for the University Senate, the Rules Committee, Committee on Drawing up statute for the Student Board of Publications, Constitutional Codification and the Traffic and Parking Committee.

In addition, from time to time, there is the famous Senate investigating Committee which President Rube Askew calls the Harvey Committee. This latter committee has probed or surveyed the Wiss Law possibilities and the Dunne Hall.

Another committee which shall be drawn up shortly is the one to act upon the Senate investigating committee's suggestions about Who's Who. This has not yet been formed but will be in the near future.

Committees are formed with an amazing alacrity. You may but to go to one Senate meeting and you will see this process taking place. A motion comes before the floor and before you know it a committee has been formed. A draft a law for this motion. That is the speedy part of the system. Then you wait for weeks on end to hear the committee reports on this law. Finally the report is reported and acted upon. This, of course, does not take place too often.

What is needed in the Senate —and that is needed badly—is good project for the Standing Rules Committee—is to have a system of standing committees. When a bill is introduced it could be immediately referred to a standing committee and acted upon in a great deal less time.

* * *

To date the Senate librarian has recorded only four bills that have been passed by the Senate and University council this year. One is the Senate Food committee bill (which he recently classified as a bill.) One is the Legislative Reference Bureau, one is the Senate Investigating committee which has not been passed by University council and the final one is the bill setting up the Senate library.

Not such a hot record for a cold group.

On the other side of the ledger the Senate has guided through a constitutional amendment which should alleviate some of the traffic hazards on campus. Laws which are now needed by the Senate to set this operation in motion.

At the present time the Traffic court is powerless to enforce the parking regulations set up. As I have mentioned before there is a committee working on this matter. As soon as their report and some bills we should have some action on this.

The worst disgrace of any political campaign is the one backed for the race for the presidency of the Defeated Candidates Club. No politician can go any lower than to be beaten out of this position among the wearers of Black and Blue. Who will it be this year?

Florida State Scores 85-70 Victory in NAIB Tourney

FSU Nine Faces Tennessee Here Tomorrow

KEEPIN' SCORE

With Scott Marshall

THE GARNET AND NOT SO GOLD—Charlie Armstrong got as anxious as the next fellow for Florida State to get a long way in the NAIB basketball tournament, but he's going to have Bob Hartman, Bob Whitmer, and Ronnie Nettles on his baseball roster as soon as possible.

Every time Charlie takes a look at pitching staff he probably thinks of Bobby with the nine inning arm. Some days it's Hartman pitchers it's Whitmer. And, he usually wishes Nettles were behind the plate, flashing signals to pitchers.

The Seminole baseball mentor chief trouble at present is in the hurling department. He has three fair moundsmen and six veterans, but one of the pitchers isn't coming along as expected. Woody Southerland, Wallace Bullock, a pair of rookie hurlers, and Leron Rhoden are to Armstrong's mound staff, and haven't displayed exceptional talent.

Veteran Ed Lockard looks like a big hurler in early calculations, but Ed Sessions, a strong contender from last year's Dixie Conference team, has not yet pitched his peak.

As things stand at present, Armstrong is counting on Hartman and Whitmer until March 27 at the earliest. He has confidence in both Hartman assisted Florida Seminoles at that date, if everything goes. Whitmer has an injured wrist and isn't expected to be much help until early April.

So one can see that the usually lofty FSU mentor is having his share of trouble. He's even got managers Fred Hoover, Buck Campbell and Dick Taylor helping him worry.

Why would a college baseball coach turn so much over a couple pitchers? It's a simple answer if you take a look into Hartman's and Whitmer's records.

Hartman's a fancy curve ball artist. Entered three years at Purdue as one of the top Big Ten diamond team. He was a regular there with the Boilermakers. Whitmer, a strong fast baller, letter twice at Purdue and saw plenty of action in relief.

Nettles figures this way. If Don Smith, transfer from Auburn, continues to show top performances, Nettles will split the catching duties with Ronald Nelms, last year's number one receiver.

Smith has been looking good on first, Melton's regular position last season and the latter has moved back to his 1949 slot behind the plate. And Nettles, a three-year letterman, has plenty of experience.

Charlie's troubles don't end here. He can't use Lockard, Wes Benner, and Harry Bringger in Dixie Conference games, and the Seminoles won't be eligible for the loop title.

The three mentioned above have received football scholarships and, under the conference rules, cannot compete against Dixie teams.

In order to be eligible for the loop crown, a team must play at least five games with three different opponents within the conference. FSU has seven games lined up in the State, but they meet only two nines—Florida Southern and Mississippi College.

Armstrong has been burning the midnight oil trying to get a game or two scheduled with some other team in the circuit. The coach contacted, Millsaps and Mercer, say: "Sorry, all filled up."

There's certainly nothing golden about Charlie's present troubles. But, he has perhaps one of the outstanding infields in southern college baseball circles.

A tall, good looking kid, who evidently had his own cheering section, lost eight pounds while running up 16 points and individual honors in the annual Florida A&U indoor swimming and diving championships.

The boy, F. (Lauderdale High school's remarkable Terry Carlisle, surprised everyone when he edged FSU's Walker Jardine in the 220-yard and 440-yard free style events.

And, he finished second to the Seminoles' Dick Wells in the 100-yard free style, and swam on Ft. Lauderdale's second place 400-yard free style relay team.

If anyone should get an athletic scholarship to Florida State University, he's the boy.

Tribe Opens Season Here At W Campus

Florida State University's baseball team opens a 19-game schedule here tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock when it faces the University of Tennessee Vols at the West campus diamond. Admission is free.

Coach Charlie Armstrong has announced that he will send big Ed Lockard to the mound in the Seminoles' first game of the 1951 season. Lockard had a 3-0 record with the FSU nine last year as a Freshman.

The Seminoles are also expected to open with Ronald Nelms behind the plate, Ken Smith, Lee Bailey, Bob Trowbridge, and Augie Pompella in the infield, and Wes Benner, Earl Herold, and Glenn Chapman in the outfield.

THE BATTING order will look something like this: Bailey (second base), Gresham (right field), Trowbridge (third base), Pompella (short stop), Benner (left field), Melton (catcher), Smith (first base), Herold (center field), and Lockard (pitcher).

Little is known of the Tennessee outfit. However, the Vols are expected to bring a strong team to the West campus diamond tomorrow afternoon.

All of the Seminoles in the starting lineup are veterans from last year except Pompella, Smith, and Herold. Benner is a transfer from Indiana and a regular on the Seminoles' undefeated, untied football team. Smith transferred from Auburn but he did not play baseball there. Herold is a Freshman.

OTHERS who are expected to see action tomorrow are Pitchers Ed Sessions, Outfielders Al Mullen and Harry Bringger, Infielders Billy Mills, Kirne Nowlin, and Ted Neel, and Catcher Rudy Suzege.

Only seven of the 19 games are slated here.

Seminole Net Team to Open With Georgia

"There will be no rest for me this Spring," declared Coach Ralph Matherly as he looked over the Florida State University's varsity tennis schedule released today by Athletic Director Howard G Danford.

The Seminole net stars open here March 20 against University of Georgia, and in 12 days through March 31 also have matches with University of Miami, Florida Southern College, Rollins College, Davidson College, Loyola University (New Orleans), Indiana University and Emory University.

"The opponents remain tough, but they won't come at us so fast from then on," Matherly said in relief. Other schools on the FSU schedule include Jacksonville Navy, Mercer University and the Dixie Conference tournament at Clinton, Miss. May 16 and 19.

The Florida State Seminoles have been Dixie Conference tennis champions the past two years.

COACH MATHERLY, who has taken over the squad during Head Coach Donald Loucks' year leave of absence, will have five or six lettermen around which to build this year's squad. Working out regular with the team are veterans Dick Bradley, Dan Boda, Tom Bablone, George Newman and George Martin. Lettermen Bob Lenican is in school, but has not indicated yet whether or not he will be able to work practice sessions into his schedule so is not being counted on.

Promising newcomers on the squad are Ed Cooper, Jim Berry, Jack Exan, Kingman Brittain and Bob Sitrunk.

Florida State's 1951 tennis schedule:

May 20, University of Georgia, here. Mar 22, University of Miami at Miami. Mar 23, Florida Southern at Lakeland. Mar 24, Rollins at Winter Park. Mar 26, Davidson, here. Mar 29, Loyola, here. Mar 30, Indiana, here. Mar 31, Emory, here. Apr 6, open. Apr 7, Jacksonville Navy, here. Apr 17, Mercer, here. Apr 14, Emory at Atlanta. Apr 17 and 18, Jacksonville Navy at Jacksonville. Apr 21, Mercer at Macon, Ga. Apr 28, University of Miami, here.

May 2, Florida Southern, here. May 11, open. May 16 and 19, Dixie Conference Tournament at Clinton, Miss.

The first minor league player to make 2,000 hits was J Emil Frisk. He played for 17 years (1898-1914). He wound up his career with 2,183 hits.

FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY'S SWIMMING TEAM—1951 Florida AAU Champions

State High School Cage Champions Celebrate Quietly

Florida's four high school basketball champions—Andrew Jackson of Jacksonville, Seabreeze of Daytona Beach, Cottondale and Greenshore of—celebrated their titles quietly yesterday.

Jackson, which carried off the Class AA crown by beating Pensacola, 55-54, in Gainesville Saturday night, had a student assemble scheduled.

Seabreeze won the Class A title by nosing South Broward, 56-48. It was almost a replay of last year's Class B final game between the same two teams. Seabreeze also winning a close one then.

Cottondale, biggest surprise of the four winners, took the Class B final aver heavily favored Tavares, 51-37. Cottondale hadn't won its group tournament but got a ticket to the state meet under a new six-group system started this year.

Greenshore won the Class C state championship with hardly a struggle. The little West Florida high school, with a male enrollment of only 31, whipped Venice-Nokomis in the final, 83-34.

Joe Regna Wins Second Intra-Squad All-Round Title

Joe Regna, of the varsity gymnastics team, won the intra-squad gym All-Round title for the second straight time in the last campus gym Saturday afternoon.

Regna piled up 157.5 points and copped three of the six first places. Second place Jack Miles, of the freshman performers, finished with 150.1 points, and Jack Sharp, also of the freshmen, ended with 142 to hold third place. Joe Gusic placed fourth.

Carmine Rezza, who placed second last week, and Pat Signorelli were unable to compete as a result of injuries. Other members of the squad were not able to compete because they could not do the National Set routines.

In the Gymkana meet, Mary Cummins' "Kana" team defeated Barbara Sirode's "Gym" team 5-2.

The results:

Side horse: Regna (34.6), Sharp (32.1), Gusic (31.5).

Side horse: Regna (27), Miles (23.1), sharp (24.5).

Horizontal bar: Miles (25.6), Gusic (25.2), Regna (23).

Parallel bars: Regna (27.4), Miles (26.5), Sharp (25.5).

Still rings: Miles (27.7), Regna (27.6), Sharp (25.2).

Long horse: Miles (26.4), Regna (27.3), Sharp (26.9).

FSU Volleyball Squad Tops Albany, Enters Mid-South

With a victory over the Albany YMCA, Florida State University's volleyball team moves up to Memphis Saturday to compete in the Mid-South tournament.

Using a varied and strong attack, the Seminoles defeated the Albany team 11-15, 15-1, 15-7, 17-15. FSU started weakly, having trouble getting the passes and spikes within range.

In the second and third games, however, Coach Bill Coleman's squad, lead by Captain Denny Hobbs and All-State spiker George Edmiston, caught fire and couldn't do anything wrong.

DURING the fourth contest, both teams committed several errors, but the spiking power and accurate sets by the Seminoles when they were needed pulled FSU to a 17-15 victory and the match.

FSU Tankmen Cop Florida AAU Title

Florida State University's powerful tank team took six of eight first places and piled up 102 points here last night to win the annual Florida AAU indoor swimming and diving championships.

The sharp Seminole swimmers also copped six seconds, six thirds, two fourths, and one fifth in the nine-skied meet.

Ft Lauderdale High School finished second with 30 points, and University of Florida Freshmen ended third with 22. The Daytona Beach Aquatic Club entered the meet but failed to score.

CO-CAPTAIN Walter Jardine paced the Seminoles in individual points with eight, but Ft Lauderdale's remarkable Terry Carlisle copped individual honors with 16 points.

The versatile Flying L swimmer took first in the 20-yard free style and 440-yard free style, and finished second in the 100-yard free style. Jardine swam second to Carlisle in both the 220-yard and 440-yard free events, and swam anchor in the Seminoles winning 400-yard free style relay team.

SOPHOMORE Dick Wells broke the only individual record by posting new 100-yard and pool marks in the 100-yard free style with a time of 52.9 seconds. The old standard stood at 54.5 seconds. Wells followed Jardine in individual points with six, and he swam on both the FSU first place 300-yard medley relay and 400-yard free style relay teams. The crafty Orlando swimmer teamed with Jardine and Ed Archer to set a new record of 3 minutes 6.1 seconds in the medley.

In addition to Carlisle's two firsts and a second, Ft Lauderdale added one second, one fourth, and three fifths.

FLORIDA'S Freshmen took two firsts, two fourths, and two fifths. Daytona Beach entered only the 400-yard free style relay, but failed to place in the top five.

Event summaries:

300-yard medley relay: FSU "A" (Jardine, Archer, Wells), FSU "B", Ft. Lauderdale. Time: 3:06.1.

220-yard free style: Carlisle (Ft Lauderdale), Wal. Jardine (FSU), Burnett (FSU), Bumgarner (Freshmen), Sizemore (Unattached). Time: 2:30.3.

400-yard free style relay: FSU "A" (Wells, White, Dunn-Rankin, Wal. Jardine), Ft Lauderdale, FSU "B", Florida Frosh, FSU "C". Time: 3:48.1.

FSU Linksmen Trounce Stetson, Tie With Rollins

Florida State University's golf team opened its winning season Saturday by smashing Stetson 9-0. Friday the Seminole linksmen had tied Rollins 9-9.

Ted Hewitt's 70, which won medal honors for the day, paced Coach Bob Harbison's Seminoles to their first win.

The FSU golfers meet the University of Georgia here March 20 in the next meet.

Hewitt's 70 enabled him to win 2½ of the possible three points from Stetson star Chuck Rex, who was low for Stetson with a 75.

DICK MONTNEY was the only other Seminole medalist, firing a hot 69 that enabled him to win two points from Rex in Key Key had a 75 in winning one point from Montney.

Eddie Johnson, Montney, and Tom Cumble also recorded individual victories in the Stetson meet, while Hewitt and Johnson and Montney and Cumble teamed to win the two doubles matches.

Montney was the only Seminole able to win an individual match from Rollins, but Montney and Johnson and Hewitt and Cumble teamed to earn an even break with the Tars.

In the Rollins meet Florida State's golfers belied a total of 18 hits out of bounds during the deadlock.

'S Dakota State Falls, Whitmer Registers 23

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Paced by the accurate shooting of Bob Hartman, Bob Whitmer, and Bud Marsee, the Florida State University Seminoles moved into the second round of the NAIB basketball tournament here yesterday afternoon by defeating the South Dakota State Teachers College Jack Rabbits 85-70.

The Seminoles took the lead 33-29 on a field goal by Marsee 2 minutes 41 seconds before the first half ended, and were never headed from that point.

Florida State's next opponent in the tournament will be decided this evening at six when fourth seeded Pepperdine College of Los Angeles tangles with Wisconsin State Teachers College of Eau Claire, Wis. The Seminoles will face the winner at six tomorrow night.

FLORIDA STATE had a 16 point lead early in the second half, saw South Dakota whittle the lead margin to four points with seven minutes of the game remaining, then pulled away again in the stretch to win with ease.

Bob Hartman, the Seminoles great guard, ticked off 18 points during the afternoon, bringing his season total to 648, a new state of Florida individual intercollegiate scoring record for a single season. Hartman broke the old contest tied at 630 with Tampa's George Monk.

Hunk Bob Whitmer was high point man for Florida State in the game with 23 markers, and teammate Bud Marsee gathered 17.

Scoring honors for the contest, however, went to Big Dave Alberg, South Dakota State's 6-6½ pivot man, who poured 28 points through the hoops.

WHITMER, MARSEE, and Center Tom McLaughlin all played great rebound games for the Seminoles while the defensive play of Guards Dick Trobaugh and Bud Scott were outstanding. Chunky Lou Fischer came in as a substitute for Hartman after the latter had fouled out of the game with 6 minutes 25 seconds of the contest remaining, and paced the Seminoles' closing rush with seven points.

Florida State appeared to be deep in trouble when starters McClaughlin, Hartman, and Scott had all fouled out with 5 minutes 39 second of the game to be played. But substitutes Fischer, Ronnie Nettles, and Larry Dickson more than held their own in the closing minutes.

CALL FOR PHILIP MORRIS

Jayne . . .

Jan . . .

Julie . . .

Call Mary...Mary...Mary... Yes, Say Jan, Julie, Jayne

Mary . . . Mary . . . Mary, or I call them Jan, Julie and Jayne.

This is how the female leads will answer curtain calls after tomorrow night's speech production, "Family Portrait."

FOR surnames it would be, in full, Jan Vanture as the mother of Jesus, Julie Storm as Mary Cleophas, and Jayne Gardner as Mary Magdalen.

In any dramatic production each character assumes the name of his or her portrayal. In "Family Portrait" questions addressed to 'Mary' got three answers during the rehearsals.

The three Mary's are all, naturally, interested in drama.

Jan Vanture, who will make her "front stage" debut in this production states that she will be "scared stiff" as the curtain slowly parts tomorrow night.

At present, a member of Zeta Phi Eta, speech honorary, Jan was one of the first members of the campus radio station, WFSU. Jan worked as the first music librarian on the student station.

JAN'S start in dramatics was a play reading of Somerset Maugham's "The Breadwinner" in the Players, a Sarasota, Florida, little theater group.

Jan has found time, between AOP sorority activities and top grades, to work as head of costumes for "Ladies In Retirement," and publicity head in "Arms and the Man."

About tomorrow night's curtain, Jan replied quickly, "I get butterflies every time I think of it, but I think "Family Portrait" is a great play, and the portrayal of Jesus' mother is quite a challenge!"

Julie Storm, a senior in three years with a two point five plus average, will play Mary Cleophas, sister of Jesus' mother, Mary.

JULIE will be remembered as the "Iphigenia" which was presented by the speech department last spring.

A comparative literature major, Julie was assistant director of "School for Husbands," and played the crazy sister in "Ladies In Retirement."

Julie replied, "The script is very moving," when asked by a Flambeau reporter for a comment on "Family Portrait."

Julie is also a new tap for the speech honorary, Zeta Phi Eta.

JAYNE Gardner, who will portray Mary Magdalen, has an impressive background for the part.

A transfer from the University of Alabama, Jayne played several leads and was head of the costuming department for a year.

A junior at Florida State, Jayne has played the lead in "Ladies in Retirement," the daughter in "Arms and the Man," and had a part "Craig's Wife."

This speech major is from St. Petersburg, at which place Jayne was assistant director of the Children's Theater group there.

"I feel this play, 'Family Portrait,' is one of the most dramatic plays," stated Jayne.

In the play, Jayne's scene holds the dramatic key to the human emotion and force of the portrayal.

Two Coeds Assist Direction of Play

Assistant directors of the forthcoming play "Family Portrait" are Lyle Goldberg, and Evelyn Gray.

Evelyn, an attractive brunette junior, describes the assistant directorship as the "most valuable thing I've done." She said, "I like to coach the actors, because that means I have to think through their parts thoroughly and that gives me a good insight into the play as a whole. I'm just beginning to realize all the intricacies of the tasks of directing and blocking."

Evelyn, a speech major, plans to teach high school dramatics.

"As for "Family Portrait," I think it is being handled well and will be very good. The play has an important message and everyone who can should see it!"

Lyle, of New York and Hollywood, Florida, will be remembered as director of the one-act play "Hello Out There" by William Saroyan. She is majoring in psychology and believes that the essentials of acting can be applied in her field to good advantage.

"I have enjoyed working with the cast and production members of Family Portrait. I have learned a lot of valuable things about direction. Furthermore, the play is a good one and I hope everyone grabs the chance to see it," she concluded.

Besides being the assistant directors, Lyla will portray the part of Selima and Evelyn will be seen as Reba.

Designer Grimes Pictures Costumes As Peasant, Simple

Playwrights Coffee and Cowap, stated in directions for costuming the play "Family Portrait," that the spirit of the play must be both timeless and dateless.

With this guide, Rebecca Grimes, costumiere for the speech department decided the clothes worn in the play must be peasant costume.

"There is the quality of peasantry that the designer must capture, the feeling of universality as found in mankind's actions," Miss Grimes stated.

All specific hints of locale have been obliterated.

"Because of this, the designer is left with simple lines and the vast range of color spectrum to work from," Miss Grimes pointed out. "It was decided that earth colors would best utilize the shades of earth, sun and sky."

The actors will not use beards, head covering, or biblical costumes to achieve the affect demanded.

Ho, Ho, That's Rich Is Rose's Favorite

"Ho, ho, that's rich," is the favorite expression of Rose Mary Biancarosa, assistant stage manager of "Family Portrait."

At present a 'goal' for the 'great organization' (quotes by Rose Mary), the women's 'P' club, Rose has combined a modern language major with dramatics.

Rose Mary has been, in past productions, head of the stage crew in "Arms and the Man," and worked on props on "Ladies in Retirement."

When rehearsals go rough for the cast of "Family Portrait," one remark always eases the tension a bit. "Ho, ho, that's rich."

'Portrait' Featured For Handicapped

"Family Portrait" will be an entertainment feature of the 10th annual Florida Conference on service to handicapped children of Florida.

The extra performance will be given Monday, March 19.

Nationally known social workers and specialists with handicapped children fro mthe South will attend the two day conference.

'Family Portrait' Director Has Wide Experience in Field

Directing Family Portrait is a young playwright named Rodger Busfield, who is working on his PhD here under George McCalmon, chairman of the dramatics area in the department of speech.

Busfield was born in Texas just 26 years ago, and it wasn't long before he acquired a taste for dramatics. In fact, at 12 he was acting in a well-known radio program in Chicago, and he continued in professional radio for a number of years thereafter.

WITH a growing passion for play-writing, Rodger returned to Texas to take degrees at the University of Texas ano Southwestern University. After four years of teaching at the latter university he came to FSU to work with Dr McCalmon, a nationally recognized authority on the art of play-writing.

The youthful director has already had two plays published. One of them is on the list of plays approved for high-school contest use by the American Educational Theatre Association. In addition he has directed a large number of plays in the past.

BEFORE rehearsals Rodger often takes time to talk over the general aims and ideas of the play with the cast. At one such session he described 'Family" Portrait" as having "a message for all people, regardless of religious denomination or creed."

Rodger Busfield

He stated very emphatically that it was not a form of religious propaganda, either pro or con. It is only a "very human play about very human people."

Curtain Time 8:15 For Religious Play

The curtain will rise on "Family Portrait," a simple language drama of the life of Jesus' family, tomorrow night at 8:15.

The speech department production, directed by Rodger Busfield, will be presented March 14, 15, 16, 17 and 19 in the Conradi Little Theatre.

JAN Vanture, in the leading role, will portray Mary, the Mother of Jesus.

Authors Lenore Coffee and Jerone Cowan tell in "Family Portrait," of the family of Jesus during the time he was preaching away from Nazareth.

The script is an interpretation of the passages in St. Mark 6:1-5 and passages in St. Matthew and St. John in the King James Bible.

THEME of the play is Jesus' own saying, "A prophet is not without honor, but in his own country and his own house."

In its entirety the story encompasses the last three years of Jesus' life. It begins in Nazareth, from which Jesus left to go upon his life work. In the play his remaining brothers understand only that he has left them and depleted the working force in the height of the building season.

Family Portrait was first produced by Margaret Webster in New York and starred Judith Anderson.

Although Jesus himself does not appear on stage, his four brothers do. There are: James, played by Don Mowrer; Joseph, played by Bill Yarbrough; Simon, characterized by Alan Downes; and Judah, with Don Remington in the part.

Sigma Chi's Give Blood As Colony Goes National

Nineteen Candidates Slated for Initiation Ceremony; Idaho Senator Welker, Executive Chairman on Hand

Nineteen candidates for initiation into Sigma Chi this weekend will contribute blood to the local blood bank, a project of Omicron Delta Kappa, national honorary-leadership society.

Sigma Chi arrives on the campus this week amid much fanfare and celebration. It comes as a climax to the local fraternity's bid for a National charter.

Highlight event will be the formal banquet at Wakulla Springs Lodge Saturday night. U S Senator Herman O Welker of Idaho will make the chief address. Kenneth Y Craig of Chicago Chairman of the Sigma Chi Executive Committee, will officially present the National Charter to the group at this time.

ROBERT LEIGH, faculty advisor to the local Sigs, said the only fraternity will be Epsilon Eta chapter of Sigma Chi. It is the 122nd chapter of the fraternity which was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, June 28, 1855.

The nineteen students will be initiated today. Project of the committee, in addition to the good bank contribution, will be starting funds for the Red Cross and painting a room for the Human Relations Institute on Eastern street.

SIGMA CHI chapters siding in initiation are the University of Florida, University of Miami, University of Georgia, Georgia Tech and Emory.

The program for the formal banquet will include greetings from Bill Dobert, FSU president; address by Senator Welker, and short talks by Dr Frank G Dickinson, Dr H Franklin Williams, vice president of the University of Miami and Dr Thomas H Cross, provost for agriculture at the University of Florida. Dr Hillel Bernstein DeLacye, first president of the new chapter here, will be honored guest. Presiding will be Hamilton Douglas of Atlanta, former national president of the fraternity.

OTHER NATIONAL officers present for ceremonies will be Dr William B Hicks, past national president; Merrill C Meigs, editor of The Magazine of Sigma Chi; Robert M Coyner, field secretary; Robert L Franklin, director and Gardner B Allen, Dr Roy McKeith, Norman Brown and Robert C Garrison, Grand Praetors.

At the banquet special FSU items will include Dean Broward Culpepper, Dean Otis McBride, Jim Miller, FSU Business Manager Rod Shaw and Jack Roney, president of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Candidates for initiation are: Olin Bullock, Jr, Fred McNeill, Bo Dobry, Robert "Mac" Huey, Jim Ayers, Bill Cornelius, George Cornelius, Kenneth MacPike, Earl McPherson, Kendall Lorch, Hush Campbell, Pete Hammond, Claude Latna, John Winslett, Dennis De-Lacye, Bill Smith, Fred Hoover, Jim Hamrick, Joe Yon.

Wodrich Blasts Paper Editor In Senate Meet

Charges Irresponsibility On University Editorial 'No Comment' by Dobert

BY BILL FALCONER

"The present Flambeau is a shining example of what can happen when an irresponsible person gets to be editor," stated Freshman Senator Bob Wodrich during a discussion of the proposed Student Publications Board at the UGA Senate meeting Tuesday.

Wodrich added, "I can cite three examples of the Flambeau being irresponsible. The way it ran the Who's Who controversy into the ground and the fact that the paper has been prejudiced in school elections." Earl Dobert, Flambeau editor, made no public comment.

HARRY COPELAND, editor of Smoke Signals, stated that the proposed bill is a very good idea. "There should be a check on the editors of the student publications to see that they fulfill their obligations to the students."

Senior Senator Herb Marsh said, "I believe that an editor should be suspended if his policy is contrary to the general will of the students."

Allan Bell discussed the suspension clause of the proposed bill. He stated that the Student Publications Advisory Board is a good idea, but "there should be a provision in the bill that would suspend an editor for months and months pending action." The proposed bill sets a 30-day limit on suspensions.

RONALD KOONS reported on the Traffic Committee and said that the committee was still at work on the organization can become effective. He added that the traffic council will be ready to function efficiently next year.

Jessie Adams was appointed as Women's Senior Senator to fill the vacancy left by Wanda Evans, and Patrick Kean was introduced as the new Junior Senator for men.

Senator Pete Williams was absent.

Pennell Elected Prexy; Kirk Cops Veep's Post

Rich, Saxon, Griffin Chosen; 2,056 Ballots Cast in Finals

In one of the closets presidential races ever held on the Florida State University campus, Will Pennell was elected president of the University Government association in the final elections Wednesday. Pennell received 1093 votes in defeating Jerry Thomas who gathered 963.

A total of 2,056 votes was cast in the UGA final elections as compared to 2,107 votes in last week's primaries.

AFTER receiving the news of his election, Pennell said that he planned to carry out the wishes of the students. "I'll be a president they can be proud of," he added.

Jerry Thomas, defeated by his bid for the presidency by 130 votes, said, "I want to wish Will the best of luck. He has a tough job ahead of him."

In the election for vice president of UGA, Jim Kirk received 984 votes to defeat Dick Bradley who got 779.

BETTY RICH was elected vice president in charge of women's affairs. She gathered 975 votes to win over Nancy Miller receiving 758.

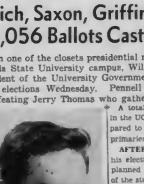
In a close race for treasurer of UGA, Sue Saxon got 893 votes to top Bill Cornelius by a 38 vote margin.

Bob Griffin was elected editor of the Flambeau by a margin of 606 votes against Jane Autchley's 606.

PATTI MIMS and Mary Stuart Smith were elected senior representatives to Judicial Court. They received 1022 and 792 votes respectively over opponents Jean Flynn (656) and Virginia Lee (589).

In the election for a senior men's representative to University court, Bob Schaap said Tom Crumpler racked up 946 and 766 over opponents Willis Tyrrell (498) and Don Kenner (349).

In the election for junior women's representative to Judicial court, Elizabeth P Hill received 796 votes and Percy Moore got 734 to win over Ellen Avis (723) and Mara Stuart Davis (683).



BARBARA Ann Caruthers with 876 votes, and Bunie Gibson with 816 votes, elected senior women's representatives to University court. They defeated Patricia Lobbell (614) and Doris Stevens (605).

In the election for junior women's representative to Judicial court, Frankie Brownlee got 761 votes and Jane Tate received 697 to defeat Nancy Day and Frances C Clark. The losers received 667 and 594 votes respectively.

Elected in the first primary election held in the area for Vet Proctor, secretary of UGA: Bill Hayes, chief justice of UGA: Bill Cunningham; James Ball, chairman of judiciary; and Artis Bourland and Polly Anne Lester as women's sophomore representatives to judicial court.

TED Lindley Rich was elected vice president in charge of men's affairs; Doris Jean Smith, forums chairman; Bill Barker and Jane Spur chairman; Joel Smith, Seneca yearbook editor; and Bill Lee junior men's representative to University court.

Elected as Flambeau business manager was Virginia Smith; as Bally Ha business manager, Bill Cooper, with Gail Kelly Abbritton as editor of Tally Ho; Carlos Rodriguez and Howard Abel were elected as men's senior representatives to Judicial court; John Burkey and James Chisholm, men's junior representatives to Judicial court, and Buddy Leynes and Richard Jackson, men's sophomore representatives to judicial court.

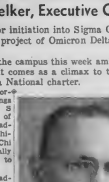
Mag Pay Request Discussed at Meet Of UGA Council



A request to pay the managing editor of Smoke Signals a salary of $15 per month was discussed by the University Council at the meeting Monday.

Allen Head, who presented the request, stated that the managing editor has a great deal of responsibility and should be paid for the work. Head is the present associate editor of the magazine. He pointed out that people in similar positions on other student publications receive compensation for their work.

THE SALARY proposal would read that one hundred dollars per quarter out of the Smoke Signals.

Dean Otis McBride pointed out that careful consideration should be given the proposal before it is voted on because student activities are going to have to run on a reduced budget due to the decrease in enrollment.

Lucille Rogers was appointed editor of the Fow Wow for 1951.

KENNETH Y CRAIG of Chicago, chairman of the Sigma Chi executive committee, will present a National charter to the local group president, Sigma Chi at Florida State University Saturday night.

Janet Smith Chosen Faculty Play Lead

Cast in the leading role of the faculty play, The Madwoman of Chaillot, is Janet Smith, professor of Home and Family Life.

The Madwoman at Chaillot, presented and produced by the faculty and staff, will run early in April, according to Miss Eva Mae Atwood, producer. The exact date has not yet been set, she said.

WRITTEN very recently, the play was the New York Critic Circle Award of 1949. It was written by the Frenchman, Jean Giraudoux and adapted in English by Maurice Valency.

Directing this year's faculty production is Mr Lester Moore of the English department. Moore has described the play as "a strange country with strange characters."

Three other women, whom Miss Atwood described as equally med as the lead, will be presented by Peggy Flynn, wife of Roy Flynn of public relations; Jean Johnson, instructor of art education, and Faye-Tyler Norton, wife of James A Norton, dean of the graduate school.

OTHER CHARACTERS will be a policeman, played by K L Yudowitch, assistant professor of physics; police sergeant, Richard Baker, jr, classical and textiles department; Irma Nancy Gunn, wife of James Gunn of the music department; martin, James Gunn, instructor of music theory.

Robert Arends, instructor of philosophy, will play the role of prospector and Stephen S Winters, associate professor of geology, will portray the ragpicker. Wesley Harter, associate professor of the business school will play the "little man." The president will be presented by Carl Hochschwender, assistant professor of music while Albert Leduc, assistant professor of modern languages will be Dr Peaceful. The baron will be portrayed by Lincoln Canfield, head of the mathematics department and Woodrow Pickering, instructor in voice as Pierre.

Technical duties will be played by Dabney Adams, English instructor; Tania Leuhdorf, modern languages instructor, and Francine Falhaber, wife of James Falhaber of the mathematics department. Dr Holschuh of the art department will be the sewer man. The flower girl is to be Ann Lee Hall and Ann Higgins, wife of T G Higgins, of the political science department.

Debating Pair Go to Tourney

Sophomores Represent FSU at National Meet

Arlene Amend and Katherine Skogstad, sophomores from Miami, are at the Lincoln Memorial University, Harrogate, Tennessee, representing Florida State University in the National Tournament and Convention of Tau Kappa Alpha, national forensic honor society.

The tournament began yesterday, and ends tomorrow.

Arlene and Katherine, who last year were declared champions in debate at the All-Southern Tournament, will be facing their toughest competition to date. Other schools represented are the University of Alabama, University of Tennessee, Emory University, Duke University, University of Southern California, University of Kentucky, Georgetown University, Vanderbilt, Purdue, and the University of Florida.

The FSU representatives will be requested to debate both sides of the national intercollegiate question: Resolved, that a new international organization of nonaligned nations should be established. They will also take part in student discussions and conferences. Finally, they will attend the TKA business meeting.

Dr Greig Pfifer of the FSU speech department also made the trip to Judee in debate and serve with Dr Waldo Braden of Louisiana State University on the TKA committee administering discussion contests.

FSU is the youngest chapter represented at the meet, since the chapter was the only one approved at the last meeting of the national council in New York City last year.

Curtis Announces Tryouts For Annual Frosh Events

Freshman carnival try-outs will be held Monday night in Westcott auditorium, Charles Curtis, class president, has announced. Tryouts will begin at 7:30 pm.

Charles said, "We're making another desperate appeal to freshmen for talent." He said they need dancers, singers, piano players. Jugglers would welcome any other talent. The students will be judged by the entertainment committee: John Adams is chairman of the committee and may be contacted at box 4801, West campus.

This year's carnival is scheduled for March 31 in the East Campus gymnasium. Charles said that there will be door prizes, cake walks, games, fortune telling and talent shows.

The class president also announced that Phil Harris and his four-piece band will play at the carnival. Harris is transfer student from Davidson college.

The president reported that it was undecided whether there would be a carnival queen.

He also mentioned that there will not be a definite theme for the carnival. "The carnival will be representative of a carnival spirit."

Anita Bellamand, vice-president, has asked that all committee chairmen be present at the present Tuesday's cabinet meeting.

Chairman of the clean up committee, Charles Curtis, has called for volunteers. Curtis noted.

Anyone interested should be contacted about the carnival through advertising and letters, the president concluded.

Dean of Journalism Praises Newspapers During Conference

"If all our newspapers were shut down tomorrow the collapse of government and paralysis of industry would be a matter of days," said Dr Laurence Campbell, dean of the School of Journalism at the Southern Newspapermen's Conference here last week.

Caspbell added that if this nation had no press it would "plunge into the dark ages."

Campbell said that the press was not only a voice of freedom, of which many countries like Russia and Spain have been deprived, but also a great economic and educational asset. He cited the newspaper as the best medium for the marketing of services and also a help in guidance on moral, medical and business affairs.

"It is so certain that the American newspaper is so much that good about it the subject can never be exhausted. It is also certain," he added, "that if ever we read the obituary of the press we should read the epitaph of democracy."

Hardee to Discuss Opportunities for Setting Up Goals

The opportunities available to high school students in setting up academic goals will be discussed by Dr Melvene Hardee in a talk before students of Leon High school today.

Dr Hardee, co-ordinator of counseling at Florida State University, will speak on the topic "The Student Asleep at the Wheel." In her talk, she will stress the opportunities available to students in high school and the need for students to work co-operatively with the faculty and administration in the matter of setting up academic and vocational goals.

Dr Hardee has been meeting with members of the faculty of Leon High school in an effort to adjudge the facilities available for individual guidance of students along educational and vocational lines. Continued planning for the expansion of the guidance program at Leon High school has been emphasized, and the matter of informing students of the facilities is an important part of the present emphasis, the co-ordinator reports.

FSU Beaux Arts Ball On Slate March 31 In Westcott Bldg

Tickets for the second annual "Beaux Arts" ball will go on sale next week in the Seminole dining hall lobby, Mike Burson, publicity chairman, has announced. A limit of 100 tickets will be sold, Marie said.

The tickets will be sold on Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 50 cents a ticket.

The ball will be held March 31 at 8 p m in the Westcott auditorium of 407 Westcott. The Art department is sponsoring the ball with Dr A J Reinoehl as faculty advisor.

The "Beaux Arts" ball is a costume ball and features this year will center around the theme of "The Latin Quarter." Highlighting the evening will be a floor show. Contests will also be held. Refreshments will be served in a French style with French foods.

Marie emphasized that all students are invited to attend. He made no card games, too. All FSU students are invited to attend.

Hobby Shop Offers Art, Metal Work

Are you interested in working with metals, leathers, beads, shells and numerous other materials?

The Student Union sponsored Hobby Shop offers all of these supplies and if interest is shown may add more.

Students have been working with aluminum and cooper and have made trays, vases, bowls, plaques, many of which are etched in gold.

According to Miss Tinney at the Student Union business office, no one to seven students have taken advantage of this recreational facility. The hours are from 7-9 and 11:00 p m—Monday through Thursday.

Mr William Boyles is in charge of the Hobby Shop and according to Miss Tinney is very interested in helping the students with work along this line.

Miller Represents FSU at Convention

Florida State University will be represented at the National Convention for Men's Physical Education, Physical Education and Recreation in Washington March 19-21 by Miss Mary Kate Miller of the Women's Physical Education department.

The conference is sponsored by the AAHPER in cooperation with the United States Office of Education and under the auspices of the National Conference for Mobilization of Education.

Miss Miller was elected vice chairman of the basketball section of women's athletics for the Southern District of the American Association of Health, Physical Education, and Recreation during the annual meeting in Richmond, Virginia.

Monticello Veterans Sponsor FSU Gymkana Troupe Tonight

Forty members of the Gymkana troupe will appear at the Monticello High School tonight under the sponsorship of the Monticello Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion. Proceeds from their performance will be used to help build a new swimming pool there.

Dick Gutting will be master of ceremonies. A slinger and accompanist will appear with the group but they had not been named at press time.

Members of the gymnastic squad making the trip include Dick Gutting, Laurence Weston, Scotty Stanton, Joe Calzetti, Bill Wagner, Carmine Reina, Joe Regina, Bill Vrettos, Joe Gusic, Jim McCauley, Beans Stephens, Dick Platt, Jack Miles and Bill Roettsheim.

COEDS GOING will be Gladys Tinkler, Barbara Strode, Emily Koon, Susie Ball, Sparky Parker, Jeannie Brinson and Glorida Ann Miles, and the Tallahassee Tumblerettes.

The Price announces that tryouts are being held daily from 4-6 p m in the Dale Mabry gymnasium. Coeds who are interested in qualifying for the Gymkana troupe. Applications may be made for dancing, sinaing, acrobatics, art and managerial work.

Future trips for the troupe include Chattahoochee, Avon Park, Florida State Prison and Macon, Ga. "The new members of the troupe will have a chance to make these trips," Dr Price said.

'Family Portrait' Cast Swings Into Final Two Performances

The final two performances of Sidney Kingsley's drama, The Family Portrait will begin tonight and tomorrow evening at 6:15 in the Augusta Conrad Theater. Reserved seats are on sale at the ticket office in the History building from 12 to 4 every afternoon and at the box office at 7:30 p m.

A new price discounts system has been inaugurated by the department. Tickets may still be bought in blocks of 20 or more at 50 cents each instead of the regular price of 75 cents. Tickets so purchased may not be exchanged for any other night's performance, but the entire group does not have to attend on the same evening.

THE PLAY attempts to bring to life the common people who surrounded Jesus and to show their normal reaction to his acts and teachings. For example, when Jesus left home to begin his work his brothers considered this action not only a shirking of family responsibility, according to the play, but little short of insanity. There is constant conflict of this kind between Jesus and his people, even though Jesus himself does not appear on stage.

In one respect Family Portrait is very different from other modern dramas. It has been compared to some of the greek dramas, whose effect depended largely upon the audience's previous knowledge of the story. Most of the scene-closes, which have been described by a reporter as "the end of the moment powerful" he has seen, depend upon this audience-preparation.

FAMILY PORTRAIT is under the direction of Hugh Hodgin, a 26-year-old playwright doing graduate work here. Assistant directors are Lyla Goldberg and Evelyn Gray, and stage-managers are Jayne Gardner and Rose Biancaroa. In charge of lighting are Bob Warner, George Cary, Jim Hamrick and Bill Hamilton. make-up is under the direction of Hudis Hall and the various properties list is in the hands of George Cary, Lee Hildman, Dora Jean Smith and Jayne Gardner.

Costumes were designed by the costuming design class under the guidance of Madelyn Burgess, committee head, and Rebecca Grimes of the speech faculty. Shirley Hurlburt heads the publicity committee, and Sarah Margaret Davis is responsible for housemanagement. Jayne Gardner and Jeanne Hall comprise running committee officers, and Barbara Hull is responsible for the presence of the 27 actors on cue.

HEADING the cast is Jan Vanture, in the role of the mother Mary. Her older sons, the brothers of Jesus, are Don Kenner as James, Bill Yarbrough in the part of Joseph, Don Remington as Judah, and Alan Downes playing Simon.

Eight-year-old Ned Hefner will appear as Judah, Julie Storm as Mary Cleophas, Jayne Gardner as Mary of Magdalen, Earl Harford as a disciple, Evelyn Gray as Beba, and Karolyn Bardin as Naomi.

THE PART OF the Rabbi is taken by George Griffin Nicholas. Selma is filled by Lyla Goldberg, and Mendel the marriage-broker by Fred Niven.

Shirley Hurlburt is Hepzibah. Leah LaPlante plays Anna. Bill Leah LaPlante plays Anna. Bill Tebo portrays Mathias, Pete Williams Eben, and Avery Crosby Amos. The part of Esther is taken by Carolyn Moore, while J W Mannix plays Leben, Bob Griffin Nachman, John Mader, Appius Hadrian. Mary Alice Newton takes the character of a Woman of Jerusalem. Leila Aiken fills the part of Joshua. Jean Flynn that of Beulah, and George Cary that of Mordecai.

● WITH PRIVILEGE COMES RESPONSIBILITY

The 1951 elections are over!

Candidates that came out victorious have big jobs before them. Rather than spending the immediate future forgetting the promises made during the campaign, these newly-elected officials should spend considerable time thinking about how they will carry these promises out to the best advantages.

The newly-elected University Government Association officials will be given many privileges when they take over the various offices in a few weeks.

But with any privilege comes responsibility. These officials have a two-fold responsibility—one to the students of FSU and one to the betterment of the university as a whole. The near-record number of students voting for each elected leading office deserve the best service the new officials can possibly give. That is the main responsibility of the newly-chosen officials.

Plans are now underway for a leadership training program to be held in the near future for the incoming UGA officials. It is hoped that the UGA officers who were sincere in their promises and who feel the responsibility vested in them by the student body, will attend this conference.

Last year a 100 per cent attendance at this conference.

The positive approach would be to interest students in the forums and discussions which are going on all the time. The fact that when the editor of the Atlantic Monthly comes to campus to speak, the auditorium is filled; and when there is a forum on the place of the U S in international affairs, few people attend, shows this lack of interest in education.

It is not a lack of time, it's a lack of interest on the part of the students.

If the Senior Hall project goes through, the questions concerning interest in offices and time for studying will be answered.

● NEED NEW MOUNTAIN

The untimely dismissal of 17 faculty members at Rollins College threw the state in a flurry. College President Paul Wagner claims that he fired one third of the teaching staff due to a lack of sufficient funds and expected decrease in enrollment next year.

Wagner attempted to explain why exact seniority was not followed in the firings which are effective August 1. But his explanations appear to have satisfied representatives of the students, faculty and alumni who attended Wednesday's hearing.

The board of trustees backed up the college president's action and refused to let students attend the meeting for a statement. The meeting ended in disorder.

A member of the board said that the board is not opposed to students or faculty, but simply that the dismissal of some students are obviously opposed to the board . . . or at least to its latest action.

Just why Rollins found it necessary to dismiss one third of its faculty while four of the other six college in the state have made no such move is perplexing. It is also difficult to understand why this small college with a comparatively low student enrollment expects such a drop in attendance next year.

Not so many years ago Black Mountain College was founded by a former staff of this same college withdrew in protest of Rollins' practices. History may repeat itself if those discontented faculty members and students can find another mountain top.

Dear Editor...

No Solicitation?

Dear Editor:

Tuesday evening, at the suggestion of the President of UGA, one of the women students in one of the Freshman dorms asked the help of another student, went around collecting contributions to send a congratulatory wire to our basketball team that had just won the game in Atlanta by one point. The purpose of this wire was to bolster our team and urge them on to further victories. The wire was sent. After collecting $2.76 from willing contributors, the girls were notified by the office that collecting money in the dorms, other than those dues, is an infraction of the rules.

After searching the various printed sheets the Freshman rules, I can find no rule except that one found on page 71 of the Pow Wow which states, "No solicitation may be carried on for an individual student's benefit exclusively." Certainly no individual student would benefit from this particular incident. This is just another case of an unprinted rule that is interpreted by the editor.

I know of several instances where money has been collected for such things as flowers, for welcoming decorations, and parties, and this rule has not been mentioned. If there is a rule that we students have been violating by doing this, I would appreciate knowing about it at the same time we are informed of all the other rules that govern our campus life, and I know many other students would also.

I fully realize why such a rule might be made to prevent a few not-so-well-meaning students from taking advantage of student generosity, but as adult students we should be able to make the decision of whether a cause is worthy or unworthy.

The money that had to be returned to the disappointed students represents all the cheering that we were not able to do for the deserving boys on the basketball team. And I still think that sending such a wire was a good idea.

SONNY MEYER.
Freshman Senator.

An Open Letter

Dear Editor:

This is an open letter to the student body.

In the first primary of the UGA elections, I was elected to the office of Chief Justice of the Student Court. This election is being contested by the person who opposed me on the grounds that I was not qualified in regard to experience for run for this office. I would like to say that in the opinion of many of the voters in this election, I am fully qualified for the office and not have entered the election in the first place.

This is the situation: The present constitution was amended last year in the second primary to require the chief justice to have one year's experience on university court.

I don't believe that it is the policy of any American document or court to allow an injustice to be done to any man. As I see it, this amendment affects me unjustly, in the official term—retroactively.

I am going to ask for a delay in the election so that I will have time to organize my case, since I was notified but the day before the hearing (Wednesday afternoon). I would appreciate the support of my friends in my stand.

Sincerely,
BILL HAYES.

Watch Your Tires!

Dear Editor:

I should like to issue a warning and a timely suggestion to the car owning students, that is.

There is a crying necessity in some of the filling stations in this area, that of switching tires left or right sides. Just because a far more worn tire in exchange. People are usually trusting and nearly always careless in a matter of this sort, and very few people know the serial numbers of their tires. Ever hurrying and often inexperienced college students make an excellent mark for this racket and there is no defense other than extreme caution.

I have been victimized twice since coming to Tallahassee last September, through no fault through ignorance and the second through the very great stupidity. Of course, quite the chief justice to have one's experience on university court.

Please, jot down your tire numbers and if possible stay around while your tire is being repaired. If not, make a point of checking the number before you leave.

I hope this letter can give me some small measure of secondhand revenge by cutting down these operators' illeti profits.

Doleefully yours,
DEAN H OBRECHT.

HOW TO LOSE FRIENDS AND WIN HEADLINES

By BETSY BLANTON

University Senate was at it again Tuesday afternoon. More discussion on the Student Publication Board was on the agenda, and at least one person got a little hot under the collar during the conversation.

Fresh Senator Bob Wedrich filibustered for several minutes on the inadequacies of the Flambeau. The editor could not complain to be true that the editorial was aimed directly at the newspaper.

The senator remarked that the present editor had been getting irresponsible one he's seen at FSU. This could well be true since Editor Bert Dobell is the only Flambeau editor the freshman has been acquainted with.

He charged the Flambeau with being a club in the hands of said irresponsible editor. We laughed heartily at this since we know from first hand information how the editor usually spends in plotting ways to discriminate against people. They are few.

Perhaps the reason for this ridiculous editorial on the student union was the charge that the student newspaper had supported candidates in the UGA election. Namely, he thought we had supported a candidate who opposed one of his fraternity brothers for the office of vice president in charge of legislative affairs.

This columnist attempted to discuss the matter with Wedrich after the meeting, but found him to be unwilling after his charges had been proven ridiculous. Like so many, he was quick to make accusations, he prefers to nurture his little misadjustment rather than bring his problems to the proper authority for discussion and reaching a suitable solution.

The senator objected to the news story on the outcome of the UGA primaries, saying his candidacy was not given enough publicity, while the other candidate was given a plug. Yet Wedrich could point to no falsification of facts in the story.

Wedrich was permitted to utter his discourse in Senate on the basis that he promised to present facts. He failed to carry out his promise . . . with the result that his entire senate session found it necessary to apologize to Flambeau staff members for their colleague's desperation.

The Student Publications bill itself, the reason for the caustic comments by Wedrich, is aimed to protect FSU directly at your student newspaper, the Flambeau. It calls for the Board to have "general power over all student publications" on campus. That, of course, is contrary to amendment number one of the United States Constitution which declares there shall be freedom of the press. No governmental agency can be established for control over a newspaper.

Section three of the bill calls for the Board to review the "true working editorial policy" each year. Of the four student publications on campus (those receiving funds from the student activity fee), three, the Pow Wow, Tally Ho and Smoke Signals, do not have stated editorial policies.

The bill also says editors may be suspended if they refuse to comply with requests of the Board two times in a year. The only times they can question anything is after the publication has appeared. The annual appears per year and the Pow Wow the same. Those publications can be suspended at all. The Smoke Signals is issued four times per year. They have no editorial policy so they could not be warned about anything. The Flambeau appears twice each week. Their editor could be suspended every third issue, and they put out 36 issues.

Discriminatory? You can bet your bottom dollar.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

IT COULDN'T HAPPEN HERE, COULD IT?

By EARL DOBERT

Writing this column makes me feel right at home again. Most of you will remember that I was the author of little epistles before the league Jerry Thomas took over in the spring of last year.

But enough of reminiscing, let's get down to business . . .

Once upon a time there was an election at a state university. This election was held among the student body to choose the officers who would take charge of the student government for the next year.

After the election it was rumored that certain irregularities were would contest the elections because of some wording in the student constitution. Charges were carried on and the case was served in that particular governing body for one year prior to the time they had run.

The case was to go before the judicial body of the university to be decided. It was even rumored that the officers of that judicial body were prejudiced in favor of the candidate that lost the election because it was known that members of the court who urged the student body to nominate him made the decision of the case known before it had been tried.

But that couldn't happen here. Could it?

It wouldn't be nice to say that the rules requiring experience in a judicial body was inserted in order that successors might be chosen before the election. Even if it were, it is right that the judicial judge do not require experience. Why, therefore, should he judge-ship?

An oligarchy is government by a few. The rulers in an oligarchy are usually selected by the choice of the ruler of the few. It would hardly be nice to say that this was happening in student government. So we won't say it is happening in our student government.

After having a brief talk with Will Pennell, president-elect of the UGA, I am convinced he will do all in his power to make it easier for more people to vote in elections.

He has a scheme that warrants the attention of every interested person. I recommend advocate on campus. It is simply that in each precinct there would be set up in each dormitory on campus. This would give many people the opportunity to vote who do not do so now.

Will's plan calls for a cash award or trophy to be given to each dormitory reporting 100 per cent voting. Although it would take many more people to be on duty during the hours of voting, the end result would be beneficial.

This manner we could reach that heretofore mythical 100 per cent voting figure. Day students living in Gamma Hall or in Westcott. When one dormitory finished voting the counting would begin. Immediately the results could be recorded as they came in.

It was interesting to note the voting practices which previous reported. Thomas led in the first two precincts reported but when the dormitory precinct was tallied Pennell had gained enough strength to overcome the lead and win going away. However, this was the closest UGA presidential race in the history of the school.

Jim Kirk, vice president-elect, trimmed Dick Bradley handily for the office of secretary-treasurer-elect, also gained her victory by defeating Ann Fay, opponent, Bill Cornelius, carried West Campus and Westcott.

FANCY THIS

DO YOU WANT A BROADWAY SHOW?

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

I hear from a member of the Artist Series Committee that the group is now beginning to get in touch with entertainers for next year's season. It is a good time for students to make their requests.

The Committee has a chance to sign a touring company of a Broadway show. At the present time I'm not at liberty to say it is but its on the order of Cabaret or Junior Miss or Your Gun. But if the series is successful in obtaining this show for presentation next year, it will cost much money that the number of events throughout the year will have to be curtailed.

You students have the say-so. Which do you . . . have two popular artists (a pianist, and an opera star for example) and the Broadway show. Or do you rather have five of six presentations like the ones we've had in the past?

Personally I wouldn't mind if they cut down on the quantity of Artist Series presentations here if we could have something like the Broadway show mentioned above. This is the first step in creating a more balanced Artist Series.

If you have any suggestions for entertainers you would like to see next year, let me know and I'll see that your suggestion get to the Series office.

Answers given by students on tests. Here's a good one for the many laughs on the part of the students. In a geography class here at FSU, one girl thought the world was flat because she'd heard of the four corners of the earth "and if it has four corners, it couldn't be round."

A few years ago a book came out containing questions asked by professors and the foolish answers given. Following are a few of them.

RUNNING FOR OFFICE—GOOD EXERCISE

By JOEL P SMITH

The ballot box is a thing of the past . . . at least for a while. It's true the defeated candidates lose, but as the old saying goes, "Running itself is good exercise." Gosh, some of the defeated candidates must be in swell shape. If they had been on the ticket for the cross country Pan-American relay, the coaches of these defeated would have scouted the defeated candidates. Although I've got to make a showing in the Dixie Conference Track meet, I can't prove a thing but will be happy to exhibit my beautifully matched set of tonsils.

Please, jot down your tire numbers and if possible stay around while your tire is being repaired. If not, make a point of checking the number before you leave.

I hope this letter can give me some small measure of secondhand revenge by cutting down these operators' illeti profits.

Doleefully yours,

What Do You Think Of Dating Bureaus?

"What do you think of establishing a dating bureau on campus?" This was the question of the week asked by the roving reporter, Paul Hearn. Here are the answers he received:

Margaret Lawhon, Frosh, 145 Reynolds: I think a dating bureau would be quite convenient for the freshmen girls who have just come to Tallahassee and don't have to go to a dating bureau.

ANN JACKSON, SR. 231 Gilchrist: Don't you think that a recreation center would be even better?

Bill Palance, Soph, KA House: Impractical. Good in theory, but not in practice. I don't think that the kids would go for it. I know I wouldn't go to a dating bureau to get a date, because I wouldn't ever want to let anyone know that I was that hard up.

Dody Meeks, Frosh, 334 Jennie: It might be a very good idea to get some beautiful people who wouldn't ordinarily get a date.

Bill Upshaw, sr, 521 Terrace Street: I'm all for it. I think it would be an interesting experiment. There are a lot of bashful people around and such a thing would undoubtedly be a great help to them. They would know that they were going out with someone who really wanted to be with them and it would give them a world of self-confidence.

LIZ FUTCH, JR. 201 Landis: The type of girl that goes to a dating bureau would use can get a date by herself.

Betty Martin, Sr. 537 West campus: This's necessary.

Tommy Hathaway, Frosh, 949 West campus: Who needs one?

Doris Harding, sr, 236 Landis: Something like that is needed. Since it's so difficult to meet people on campus. But perhaps an open stag and log party would be much more effective and easier to handle.

Willard E Osborne, sr, 537 West campus: It could be very nice. The dorms could have a list of women that would like to go out and let the guys and gals meet ordinarily. Then if you get enough people behind it, it could even become a school function.

Jack COLLINS, JR. 236 Landis: Import some boys from somewhere, and I don't mean FSU.

John Crosby, sr, 211 Senior hall: I don't need one, thank you. If a man hasn't got gumption enough to get a date on his own he shouldn't have one.

Nancy Fuller, Frosh, 342 Landis: I don't think it's a good idea. It's like ordering something from a catalogue.

Campus Characters

By STAN SCHMIDT

THEIR SISTER'S KEEPER . . .

How about those three characters who turned in a dorm-mate last week for the monstrous crime of drinking a bottle of cold beer on a warm night. Why do holier-than-thou's always have to inflict their pious views on others? They maintain the sanctity by hiding behind the Honor System and implying idealistic motives. That's garbage; anyone with half a brain knows they're getting the dorm-mate cheap revenge for many words on a washroom wall. People without the guts to do anything always enjoy punishing the individualist for doing what he damn well pleases.

Student Receives Unusual Package

John Parker Browning got a package yesterday morning. It wasn't a very big case, but it had lots of stickers on it.

"Fragile," "Handle With Care," "Unwrap Before Opening"

"What has that tall ol' mine done this time?" John asked himself, scratching his head.

Gingerly he took the first wrapper off. Another sticker greeted him. "This side up." Tenderly he took that wrapper off.

He opened the box. Inside was a fuzzy ball of fur. He dumped it out into his hand and it hopped away. What was it? A tiny mechanical rabbit.

John always talking about going rabbit hunting. This was Shirley Kohn's idea of a joke. Shirley transferred to Tampa University from FSU this semester.

"I almost got my gun and shot him," John reports.

Pan Am Convention Date Is Changed

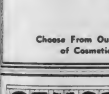
Due to conflicting Pan American Day celebrations planned by several Los Paraeos chapters, chapters which were scheduled to attend this year's spring convention at Florida State University the convention date has been postponed.

The new date will be announced as soon as it is decided upon. Originally the convention, to be attended by chapters from Florida and Texas, was scheduled for April 13, 14, and 15, according to Amelia Fernandes, state secretary of Los Paraeos.

Garnet Key Honorory Entertoins Gold Key

Garnet Key, women's service honorary, entertained Gold Key, the corresponding men's group, with a party Tuesday evening in the Alumni building.

Members of Garnet Key were hostesses at the informal get-together, and both groups participated in the entertainment.



Gold Key president Bill Conklin and Jean Sayer, Garnet Key president, announced that each group would send a congratulatory telegram to the basketball team at the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball tournament in Kansas City.

Campbell Waltz Played To President, First Lady

A special song has been written for President and Mrs. Dosk S. Campbell by Frank Killgo, a junior music education major.

The song, Campbells' Waltz was played for the first time at the Landis formal dance Saturday night.

KILLGO, a drummer with the Jerry Kohler orchestra, conceived the idea for the Campbells' Waltz when the orchestra had trouble selecting appropriate songs for dedication to FSU's first couple.

"Every dance has a different theme and sometimes its mighty hard to stay within that theme and still dedicate a song with dignity befitting the Campbells," Killgo explained. From now on every time the Campbells' attend a dance at which the Jerry Kohler orchestra plays the Campbell Waltz will be dedicated to them.

Killgo wrote the song on Friday but had not intended to use it until later. On Saturday afternoon he and some of the band members were sitting in the Music building making the arrangements for the band to use.

PRESIDENT Campbell passed through the building showing several visitors around, and Killgo asked if he and Mrs Campbell would be attending the Landis dance that evening. When the president replied that they would the musicians got to work finishing the arrangements in time for use that evening.

Lyrics for the song are:

Everyone's waltzing the Campbells' Waltz,
Everyone knows its the Campbells' Waltz.
When there's a dance and the Campbells are there,
That is a dance with romance in the air.

Everyone knows them, I do, do you?
Everyone loves them, its true they do.
They are a couple without any faults,
Everyone's waltzing the Campbells' Waltz.

University Gallery Features New Art Of "Modern Home"

A new exhibition of art is now being featured at the University gallery. Professor Adolph Karl, associate professor of art, announced yesterday. The exhibit will center around the "modern home."

The exhibit is based on the modern architecture of Marcel Breuer. Actual chairs and kitchen utensils, and textiles that are available to Tallahassee will be featured. These are shown in an arresting fashion to future decorators for their homes.

Professor Edmund Lewandowski, noted artist, and several graduate students and students of art have prepared the installations. The exhibit will run until April 15.

Three members of the FSU Art Department are meeting in Gainesville, Florida today and tomorrow with the Southeastern Art association.

The Art Department also rent exhibits of FSU students' work to be meet.

Dr Adolph Karl, Professor Laura Lee, and Dr J M McDonough will attend.

Magazine Contains Article by Burns

The February issue of "The School Director" magazine carries an illustrated article by Clyde Burns ,director of industrial arts education. Burns has titled his article "Industrial Arts at Florida State University."

In it, Burns points out the four sequences in the undergraduate industrial arts program at FSU. They are: a study of the materials of industry; a study of the industrial processes; the industrial impact on the home; and the fourth sequence consists of experiences in a modern school.

Facilities are available in the industrial arts laboratory, Burns points out, for work with metal in various forms, wood, plastics, ceramics, textiles, leather, native materials and other materials of student choice. Aids for learning include laboratory experiences, field trips, and audio-visual aids.

Senate Okehs List Of New Counselors

Wednesday night the Women's Senate approved the list submitted by the Dean of Women's office for use in the selection of Junior Counselors for next year.

A student group from Senior Hall, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Lynn, assistant dean of women, made a final selection of 94 from a group of 138 to be considered. These girls are selected from a list prepared by social workers, sorority chaperones, student groups and resident counselors. They had excellent records for their selection, but some were eliminated because of insensibility, sorority duels, low scholastic average and the responsibility they already carry, Miss Lynn reported. Letters were sent to these girls to find if they are desired to be counselo, and for information pertaining to their qualifications in the office.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Installation was held Monday night for the newly elected officers. There will be an open house from 7:00 to 9:00 Thursday night in honor of the new initiates, patrons, and faculty advisors.

Zeta's will entertain Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity Tuesday night at 7:30.

Coffee Honors DSF Members; Newmanites Have Lawn Party

RELIGIOUS NEWS
CHRISTIAN

A coffee will take the place of the usual Dine-A-Mite and Disciple Student Fellowship meeting Sunday evening. Mr and Mrs Ross Hoffman have invited DSF members to a coffee at their South Meridian street home on Sunday at 6:15 p m. Students should meet at the Capital Christian church at 6 if they wish to take advantage of the transportation which will be furnished to the Hoffman home.

After the coffee, DSF members will return to the Christian church to participate in the evening worship service at 7:00 p m.

NEWMAN CLUB

A lawn party will be held by members of the Newman club tomorrow at 1:30 p m. The party is a "work party to fix up the yard at the Newman house," according to Edna Faber, vice president.

All newmanites are asked to come out with their oldest jeans to help with the work.

Tomorrow night at 7:30 the club will hold a St Patrick's Day party at the house. Square dancing and novelty dances have been planned, as well as slow dances "for those who don't indulge," Edna said.

Sunday morning the Newman club will hold its next regular meeting. In keeping with a suggestion made at the last meeting the club will meet immediately following 10:30 mass. Coffee and doughnuts will be served.

Sunday evening the movies taken at the costume party during the Newman weekend will be shown at the house at 7:30. All those attending the party are invited to come and "relive the Newman costume party." Refreshments and dancing will follow.

Seminole 5 Eliminated From NAIB by Millikin Blues

KEEPIN' SCORE

With Scott Marshall

TUMBLING, TUMBLE GENTS— Those Florida State University gymnasts will be at it again tomorrow afternoon at 2 in the rubber meet in three intra-squad tussles between the varsity and freshmen performers.

Coach Hartley Price will sit in the background and watch the two teams go through their paces in an effort to take the meet. And, from all indications it should be quite an occasion.

The Seminole varsity has one triumph over the freshmen, and vice versa. But, the varsity was without the services of Bill Roetzheim in the loss to the freshmen.

In tomorrow's meet, Roetzheim will be with the varsity gents once again, having returned from Buenos Aires where he earned the All-Round championship in the Pan American games.

Price rates this meet as one of the greatest in regard to talent competing.

For the varsity there's Roetzheim, Joe and Carmine Regna, Gene Vasik, Eddie Evans, Howard Stephens and Frank Leone. Most every one around campus has been exposed to the qualifications of the above boys.

The galaxy of freshmen gymnastic stars are rated by Price the equal of the varsity. The squad includes:

PAT SIGNORELLI—Pat was a member of the famous Swiss Gymnastic Society in Union, N. J. School. He was the Parallel Bars champion in the New York Junior Metropolitan AAU. Pat is an Olympic prospect for the 1952 United States team. His town is Jersey City, N. J.

DICK GUTTING—Dick is one of the outstanding trampolinists in the United States. He was runner-up for the National Trampoline Title in 1948. He also won the Central AAU Trampoline in Chicago. He added the Florida AAU Trampoline and Tumbling titles this year. His home town is Chicago, Illinois. Dick is Men's General Chairman of Gymkana.

JACK SHARP—In 1947 Jack won the Philadelphia ring championship while in Germantown High School, where he was captain, and earn his letter. While at the University of Illinois he won the 39 Ten Firing Rings Championship. He also earned a letter in gymnastics at Illinois. In 1949 he took 4th place on the ring in the NCAA. In 1950 while in Naval Flight training at Pensacola he won the Senior Florida AAU Firing rings championship. Jack has moved from Philadelphia and is now making his home in Tallahassee.

SCOTT STANTON—Scotty was the captain of the 1950 Western State College Gymnastic Team. His former coach was on Price's 1942 National Championship Team at Illinois. Scotty is a great competitor and should give a good account of himself in gymnastics at FSU.

LAWRENCE WESTON — Lawrence had three years experience under the capable teaching of Les Beard. He was first on trampoline in Junior Open and second in Senior Open at the Florida AAU Championships. He was first in Novice Tumbling in 1949 His home town is Marianna, Florida.

JACK MILES—Transfer from Temple University. No Varsity competition. Member of Philadelphia Turner. Championship Team in 1950. Members of Germantown YMCA Championship team in 1950. Won firing rings. middle Atlantic Junior AAU in 1949; 1st firing rings, Middle Atlantic Senior AAU in 1950; Eastern Turners All-around Junior Champion in 1950. His home town is Philadelphia.

JIM McCAULEY—Jim was a member of the Lindblom High School Chicago championship gymnastics team in 1949 and 1950. Jim is also a member of the University of Chicago Acro theatre. His home town is Chicago, Illinois.

JOE GUSCIC—Joe was in the championship team at Lindblom High School for three years. He was captain of the team in 1950. He was also a member of the University of Chicago Acro theatre for three years. His home town is Chicago, Illinois.

BILL WAGNER—Bill was on the championship gymnastic team at Lindblom High School in 1948. His home town is Chicago, Illinois.

FRANK HILL—Frank has had no previous experience. He is specializing in rope climbing.

TONY FLITCRAFT—Tony has had no previous experience. He is specializing on the trampoline and tumbling.

Meeting Scheduled

The West Campus Home Demonstration Club will have its regular monthly meeting at the West Campus Clubhouse, building 632, on Tuesday, Mar 20 at 7:30 p m, according to Mrs Ralph Heath, the club reporter.

All interested women are cordially invited to attend.

Steagall Tallies 32 Points In 91-61 Win

KANSAS CITY, Mo.,— Florida State University's Seminoles were eliminated from the 13th annual NAIB basketball tournament here last night by dropping a 91-60 contest to the powerful Millikin University Big Blues.

Little Scotty Steagall poured in 32 points to lead the Decatur, Illinois, quintet into the semi-finals. Bob Hartman topped the Florida State scoring with 28.

Millikin's season record before the tournament stood at 20 victories and only six losses. They defeated Mississippi College 111-51 during the season.

Leading the Big Blues all season has been 5-11 Steagall. The 175-pound forward tallied 745 points in 26 games, for a 28.6 per game average. In addition he is a great team man, having been credited with feeding teammates 113 scoring passes and capturing 170 rebounds.

Chuck Taylor, veteran basketball coach, rates Steagall as one of the three top cagers in the country, and the best for this size.

COACH BUD Kennedy, whose Seminoles pulled a surprise in the game in another underdog role, says "they are all tough from now on. We'll concentrate on them one at a time by trying all the time. Our boys are beginning to like the word 'upset.'"

The Seminoles had upset Pepperdine University 61-59 to earn a berth in the quarter-finals.

Accuracy from the free throw line, determination, hustle, and a swell planned control ball game enabled FSU to come from behind and topple the much taller Los Angeles five. The Waves outscored Florida State from the field, 24 field goals to 21, but the Tribe cashed in 19 of its 26 charity toss tries while Pepperdine was getting only 11.

Guard Bob Hartman dropped in five from the floor and seven free throws for 17 points to pace the Florida State attack. Bud Scott got 13 and Bob Whitmer added 11.

FORWARD JOHN Furlong of Pepperdine with 20 points, 10 of which came from the charity line, was the game's individual high scorer. This was a far cry from the big 6-6 Waves' 31-point total in Pepperdine's opening game of the tournament, and the Seminoles' ability to hog down the California star had much to do with the victory. Whitmer was the Florida State player assigned to Furlong on defense.

FSU set the tempo of the game from the opening whistle, screening out the taller Pepperdine cagers from the defensive backboards, and working deliberately with the ball each time they went on an attack. This paid off well in the first 12 minutes of the game when the score was tied up three times and the lead changed hands five times.

With eight minutes of the first half remaining, Pepperdine went out front, 15-14, then extended their lead to 30-23 by halftime as the Seminoles couldn't seem to hit from the floor.

FLORIDA STATE came out after the intermission and had tied

FSU Nine Edges Tennessee After Bailey Steals Home

HANDLES 13 CHANCES FLAWLESSLY— Ken Smith (above), transfer from Auburn, handled 13 chances without an error in the Seminoles' 10-9 victory of the University of Tennessee Vols Wednesday afternoon. Although Smith went hitless in four trips at the plate, his play in the infield was outstanding. He holds down the first base position.

Despite 10 errors in the field and two home runs by Vol shaggers, Florida State University's baseball team opened its 1951 season Wednesday afternoon as the West campus diamond by edging the University of Tennessee 10-9.

Six of the Seminoles' 10 hobbles came in Tennessee's two big innings the fourth and seventh. The Vols tallied four runs in each frame.

A stolen base by Second Baseman Les Bailey with two out in the eighth gave the Florida State nine the margin of victory. Bailey had doubled home Lee Mullen and a wild pitch by Vol hurler Jim Gillespie tied the score at 9-9. Then the alert Seminole infielder broke for home from third. Bailey slid under the Tennessee catcher and the Seminoles were out in front to stay.

SOPHOMORE Ed Sessions relieved Big Ed Lockard on the mound and received credit for the victory. Sessions held the Big Orange Vols to a single hit, fanned four and was never in trouble during his 2⅔ innings on the hill.

Harold Payne, former Pensacola High star who transferred to old Hatfield blasted homers for the Vols. Payne's came in fourth and fifth at the bases loaded, and it was Tennessee out in front 4-0. Hatfield's came in the seventh. Gillespie's a four-run outbreak by the visitors.

The banging Payne drove in five Vol runs, belted the homer and a single, and crossed home plate twice. Hatfield was nearly as tireless ball in the outfield, handling his one chance with ease.

FLORIDA STATE got its rallying cause in the fifth. Earl Herold led off with a single and Lockard drew a walk. Bailey's routine roller to first was bobbled by Dave Powell, and Jack Stevens, Seminole's single scored Lockard and Bailey. Herold had been caught off third on Powell's error. After Bob Trowbridge fanned, Angie Pompella blasted a single which scored Gresham. Wes Benne drew a free pass, and then Ronald Melton cleaned the sacks with a double. He was tagged at third trying to stretch the hit into a triple.

Girls' Intramural Swim Meet Slated

The women s intramural swimming meet will be held on March 22 and 23 in the pool at the East campus gymnasium.

To qualify for participation a swimmer must have three practice hours by March 21, and one qualifying period.

The classifying periods will be held on March 21, 22 and 23. During these periods the swimmer will be classified, according to her skill level, as a non-swimmer, a beginner, an intermediate, or an advanced.

the score 33-33 three minutes 45 seconds after the period began. The game really began to be a ball game.

In the next 14 minutes and 22 seconds the game was tied six times. FSU took the lead four times and Pepperdine had it four. Then, with the score deadlocked at 57-57 and 1:29 of the contest remaining, Hartman slapped in a one-hander from the corner to put the Seminoles out in front to stay.

Center Tom McLaughin, who had been held scoreless by the backboard in the second half, grabbed a rebound after Pepperdine took a desperate shot that just rolled off the rim. The Seminoles then stalled the ball until Scott broke free for an easy lay-up that put them on top by four points, 61-57, with 21 seconds remaining. Pepperdine's Russ Reynolds got the final fielder of the game with 8 seconds to play, but the Waves never got their hands on the ball again.

On Your Mark

With Spring holidays just around the corner we realize that second semester is rapidly passing by. To sports enthusiasts this means that the time is here for the swimming Intramurals. Practices are to be held this week and next in the Women's Gym. A minimum of three one-hour practice periods is required in order for a swimmer to be classified.

The swimming meets will be held during the first weeks in April, with events in each of the four classifications; non-swimmers, beginners, intermediate, and advanced.

In the softball intramurals for the sorority league the over-all winners were the Alpha Xi Delta's. They won over the A O Pi's in the finals this past week.

SPEAKING OF intramurals, the director during this past semester, Joan Solomon, is going to leave tomorrow to intern along with numerous other well-loved and outstanding co-eds. Joan has led a big job and has handled it to the best of her ability, which was very well indeed. She really deserves a big hand and a "Well done, my good and faithful servant," from all of us for her fine work.

Last weekend the "P" Club had their final initiation at Camp Flastacowa. The "Goats" are all very proud of their new letters and we, their friends, are certainly proud of them, too. They have worked hard and deserve our "Congratulations."

YESTERDAY afternoon moving pictures were taken of the girls in the Charm Course offered by the Physical Education Department. These modeling lessons, which come under the heading of "C" health, are combined with "skishing," or casting, to present a very helpful and interesting course for the co-eds on campus. From what I could gather, these pictures are being taken to show the diverse activities offered by FSU.

University Court Decision Not Reached in Hayes Case

Expected to Be Announced Tonight; Defendant Claims Retroactive Law

No decision has yet been announced in the constitutional case of Hayes versus Bill Hayes, hearing was held in the UGA Senate room last Thursday evening. It is expected the decision will be announced at tonight's session of the court.

Jennie brought the case against Hayes because she felt he was not qualified under the stipulation in the student constitution regarding the experience requirements for the position of Chief Justice of the University court.

HAYES DEFEATED Alice Jackson in the first primary of the UGA elections.

The constitution states that a person must serve one year on the university court before he is qualified to hold the office of chief justice.

During the trial Hayes said that the qualifications requirements is necessary, but "I feel that it is being me an injustice. I was elected vice-president in charge of men's affairs in the first primary last year. The constitution at amendment that set up the present qualifications for the office of chief justice was passed in the second primary. So there was no way possible for me to satisfy under the new rule."

Jennie Adams replied that the qualifications had to be set up anytime a vice-president was going to desire to assume people.

HERB BLASHER was acting as Hayes' counsel, said, "When laws of this nature are passed they usually seeming people who could easily under the old regulations are now in a position to run for the office."

Bo Baker, present chief justice of the court, said that the court will go over the evidence and announce its decision as soon as possible. The decision will be announced today.

The case of Eunice Thompson versus Paul Garrison and Jennie Adams versus James Ball were postponed and are on the agenda for a hearing tonight.

Men's Dorm 849 Goes National; Installation Date Set March 27

Men's dormitory 849 has set March 27-31 as a "No National Fees" Period, Leone, president of the dormitory has announced. "This will be the first dormitory to "go national" in history," he said.

Thirty-five members were rejected by Roy Horton, dormitory director, to have been present at the first rush party held on March 15.

The 849'ers spent all day Sunday writing up a constitution, Roy said. The constitution was presented to the group last night. We have written a constitution and all constitutions," the dormitory said, "and it will be posted during 849 Week."

Everyone in 849" will be invited by the group for the "849 National Week." Any girl who is eligible, and pictures are to be submitted before March 22, Roy said. Pictures may be sent to Frank Leone, box 4235. The queen will be announced in the next edition of the Flambeau.

After the week-end holidays, 849 is planning to have a banquet. Dinner will be served by servants of the dormitories, and close with a "Fireside Chat" by Roy.

"There will be many surprises which are being kept secret until the big week," Roy said. "Our motto '849 Go National" will be the biggest thing that ever hit Florida State University. "Life Magazine has even been contacted," he said. There was no report from that magazine before yesterday however.

Classes To Sponsor Projects For 'Chest'

Bill Hess, chairman of the Campus Chest committee, has announced that each class will sponsor the campus chest drive through their respective class projects. He declined to comment on the type of projects the classes will sponsor.

Hess said that he is glad to see the school set behind the campus chest. "The committee feels that the cooperation being received from the students is excellent."

Florida Flambeau Publishes Special Issue Of Student Union Sponsors Annual May-Day Dance

Formerly a project of the Senior class, this year's May Day dance will be sponsored by the Student Union Organization.

The king and queen of May and their court will be chosen from the student body at large instead of being restricted to seniors as in the past.

NOMINATIONS for these positions of honor will be accepted from the various societies, fraternities, residence halls, and other specified organizations on campus. The king, queen and court will be elected from among these nominations by a popular student ballot, with a coronation ceremony to be offered as the highlight of the dance.

Scheduled for the last weekend in April, the dance will be held as the "O Club" and will be formal.

At a meeting held by members of the Student Union organization last Wednesday evening, it was decided that the organization would sponsor an art auction sometime in April with the proceeds to go to the Campus Chest. Faculty and Tallahassee townspeople are especially urged to attend this auction in which paintings, pieces of sculpture, and other artistic works produced by students of Florida State University.

Special invitations were sent out last week to all the secretaries, fraternities and residence halls inviting these groups to send representatives to the next Wednesday's meeting, as several of them had been neglecting to represent themselves at the monthly meetings.

FOR THE BENEFIT of the new members present, Bill Hayes, president of the Student Union Organization, stated that this was the purpose of the group. He said that the Union Board was to familiarize the student body with the many activities carried on in the Union Building for students, and to aid in coordinating these activities with those of the student body.

"Every college community should have a large and successful Student Union Organization," said Hayes who then cited the example of universities throughout the nation which are noted for their influential and successful Student Unions.

Yudowitch Article Published by Mag

Dr Ken Yudowitch of the Department of Physics has had an article published in the Journal of Applied Physics. The article concerns the measurements of tiny magnetic spheres, the techniques which he developed himself.

The article is accompanied by a picture of the apparatus assembled in his FSU laboratory built by Dr Yudowitch to conduct the experiments.

The discovery of the latex spheres was made accidentally at Dow Chemical company of Michigan, which sent samples to leading scientists in the world. Dr Yudowitch was able to measure the spheres by a special independent X-ray technique which he developed in the FSU laboratory.

Harding Appointed As Chief Justice

Doris Harding has been appointed chief justice of the court of the University court in the absence of Bo Baker who is interviewing Dean Rush for the Student University Council in their meeting yesterday.

Other appointments made by the council are Ruth Engel to fill Harding's position as Associate Senior Representative to University; Clark Gruver and Ivan Kestner to a vacancy as Junior Representatives to University Court.

The council has not pass on a motion to allow Eleanor Graves to assume the position of chairman of the Social committee replacing Faye Patterson. This was due to the fact that Miss Graves holds a position on Women's Judiciary.

Sandspur Contest Draws Five Authors

No Scripts Received Yet; Ends April 15 Backus Says

At least five aspiring authors are known to be working on scripts for entry into the Sandspur script writing contest, according to Bill Backus, chairman of next year's Sandspur production.

The contest closes April 15, and although no scripts have been received as yet, Backus was pleased over the number of students reported to be working on them Only two scripts were submitted last year, the first year of the contest.

As yet Backus has made no permanent appointments to his production staff but Mickey Johnson and Sandi Horton are serving temporarily as assistant producer and choreographer respectively. Applications are being accepted for all behind-the-scenes positions, with casting to take place soon after the script is selected.

ANY STUDENT interested in working on the production may do either write a letter to Bill Backus. Box 1028, or if he want to see Bill in person, to drop a note on the Sandspur bulletin board stating when he can be reached. Meetings daily needed are: Prompters, stage hands, a business manager and publicity director, plus constantia desiring to work on lighting, set designing or painting, costuming and advertising.

Sandspur will definitely not go on tour this year due to numerous schedule conflicts, according to Backus.

Therapists' Confab To Conclude Today

Third Annual Conference Ends Meet; Play Performance Given for Guests

The Conference on Handicapped Children will end its third annual conference here today when it meets at Southwood Plantation as guests of Mrs Alfred I DuPont at 5 p m.

Is was through the interest and financial support of Mrs DuPont, Dr A R Shands, jr, and H P Adair of the Nemours Foundation that the conference was possible.

The conference got under way yesterday morning, after registration and an informal reception held Sunday night. President and Mrs Dook S Campbell were hosts to the group at the reception.

THE PROFESSIONAL workers and nationally known speakers of handicapped children were welcomed at the opening session by Gov Fuller Warren, President Campbell, Mrs duPont and Dr Shands, jr. Mrs T A Whiteside, chairman of the Florida Children's Commission, was chairman for the assembly period.

In co-operation with the Florida Children's Commission and the Florida Crippled Children's Commission, the Florida State University department head of speech directed plans for the conference.

A special performance of the speech department production, "Let's Talk About Speech" presented last night after a dinner in the Atlantic dining hall.

AMONG the numerous national and international authorities to address delegates to the conference Timon, professor of Psychology of Speech at Northwestern University. In his talk on "Interpretation to the field of speech correction and Service Work" Dr Simon provided a picture of the kinds of work done by speech pathologist and audiologist.

Although there are many communicative disorders involved, the world is all basically educational or re-educational," he said.

He also explained the ways in which this area of working with the handicapped child draws upon other fields of information. The primary aim, he said, is to improve oral communication abilities of those handicapped. In addition, Dr Simon gave a picture of the extent and types of speech and hearing problems and the kinds of research being carried on at present.

DR WENDELL Johnson, director of the Speech Clinic at the State University of Iowa, discussed the stuttering problem. Dr. Johnson opened the talk at the University to correct his own stuttering. After showing characteristics of different types of stutterers and stuttering. He summarized the trends of approaches to this problem and gave a representative program for stuttering.

Dr David R Murphey of Tampa and president-elect of the Florida Medical Association spoke on problems with speech impediments in relation to Cerebral palsy.

Discussing voice and articulation disorders was Dr Charles Van Riper, director of the Speech Clinic of Western Michigan College of Education. He gave a comprehensive talk on the problems with which the speech correctionist is faced. Dr Van Riper outlined how these problems are treated by the correctionist after a thorough possible causes. He also stressed that these problems can be accompanied by psychological problems.

SPEAKING on the nature and characteristics of cerebral palsy was Dr Herbert K Cooper of the Lancaster Cleft Palate Clinic, Inc, Lancaster, Pennsylvania. Dr Cooper presented the kinds of speech problems that occur with the cleft palate. He outlined the methods of treating the physical problems with surgery and artificial palates.

Dr Harriet E Gillette, medical director of the Aldmore Crippled Children's Convalescent Hospital and the Cerebral Palsy Day School n Atlanta, Georgia also spoke. Dr Gillette talked on methods which physicians use to determine the particular type of problem a child has.

The authority pointed out "that speech needs vary with the severity and the kind of cerebral palsy the child has."

CONCLUDING yesterday afternoon's talks was Dr Bonnie P McDonald, director of the Speech and Hearing Clinic at Pennsylvania State University. Dr McDonald discussed organic problems which affect speech other than cerebral palsy and cleft palate.

In addition to paralysis of the tongue, lips, and vocal cords these include the badly aligned teeth and general inadequate development of the mouth. A description of brain injury which affects speech and language problems found when it is necessary to remove the larynx."

Mrs William G Hamm, prominent Junior League leader of Atlanta, Ga. spoke last night at the conference dinner. Her talk was on "Privately Supponored Programs for the Speechs and Hearing Icappled." Mrs Hamm was responsible for the beginning of the Junior League Society for Speech Correction in Atlanta 13 years ago.

Campus Radio Station Features 'Perfect Village' on Air Tonite

WFSU's "theater of the air" will swing into action tonight at 8:30 with its production of "The Perfect Village."

THE play which was written by John Russell McCarthy is the story of a communistic village. Not a pleasant story, it presents the happenings of this "idealistic" village and its folks.

It is a terribly bitter and unhappy piece, and it grows on the unsuspecting audience and by the time is a tragic satire on the totalitarian state, with a lashing whiplash of caustic humor. The climax line of the whole play is the one that reads: "Even a tiny humming bird owns its own hell."

The show promises to be one of the most interesting programs ever to see 800 days of the year, McCarthy. Its author, has previously been a college English teacher. His chief editing job was the nine-volume series of books called "Civilization" now a standard work in most California schools and libraries.

HE was awarded the John Burroughs Memorial Medal for nature writing in 1934 for one of his which have been published in many magazines include poetry and prose.

M J Pathan is student director and Terry Porter is in charge of engineering and special effects for the broadcast.

Those appearing in the cast are: Paul Jacoby as the narrator; Gracey Erickson as Esther; Len Melton as the police chief; Buck Gould as the father; Joan Dewey as the mother; Dolores Bates as Bobbie; Jerry McCall as Robert, and Bill Bass as announcer.

TONIGHT will also conclude the "Theater of the air" series until after the Easter vacation.

All members of the general staff of the student station are asked to attend a special meeting tonight at 6 in the Annex auditorium.

Camp Flastacowo Open to FSU Staff

Camp Flastacowo has been opened to faculty and staff on Lake Jackson and Lake Lafayette, Dan Morning, Dean of Men, Otis McBride has announced. This is a result of a meeting of the student University Camp Committee.

Rules and regulations formally restricting use of the camp to students at those times. However, since the camp crowds have become so large, the presence of faculty will be of aid to the camp director, Miss Mary Virginia Alexander, in taking care of the many students.

Facilities for getting back and forth from camp have been improved and also the facilities at camp have been improved, Dean McBride said.

In warm weather, the camp has reported crowded as large as five to eight hundred on Saturday afternoons. Miss Alexander feels however that the crowd is that large a few more would not make any difference.

Water, Water All Over Campus But We Might See Sun Today

By EARL DOBERT

"Water, water all around and not a drop to drink," could well have been the slogan for all FSUers yesterday as the campus was deluged with over five inches of rain in two days.

Now don't get us wrong. Water is a fine thing to have, People can bathe in it, wash their dirty clothes in it, dilute bourbon or Scotch in it and some of the more hardy souls drink it.

Fish live in it and ships sink in it; kids use it in pistols.

Industry could not suffice without it because it generates hydro-electric power.

But what does the college student think of it? Here are some typical comments after yesterday's downpours.

"Dam the water . . ."

"Look at the river flowing down College avenue."

"Can't go to class if this keeps up."

"Why didn't I stay in bed this morning?".

"Who said it wasn't going to rain?

"It's stopped for a minute . . . I can get to the history building now." (Famous last words.)

"If this rain doesn't stop, people will develop fins."

And so it went all day long. But for today the weather man promises we will see the sun again. Of course he didn't say for how long.

FLAMBEAU EDITORIAL

● SPRING FADS THIS SEASON: INCONSISTENCIES

Inconsistencies seem to be the fad at Florida State University rather than new Spring fashions that usually swamp the campus at this time each year.

Look at the FSU University Court. Last month Emory King presented a case to the Court regarding the Who's Who selection. The case was promptly dismissed on the grounds that Emory was not directly concerned.

Last week Jennie Adams presented a case regarding the recent election of Chief Justice to the University Court. Though Jennie Adams did not run for that office, the Court held a hearing last Thursday night. Inconsistency?

Not so, according to the Court. They feel that any student in the university is connected with this particular election since each student is a potential voter. There was no voting on the Who's Who selection, but it appears evident that any student in the university displaying enough interest to bring a case before the court deserved the right to a decision. On the other hand, if one is refused for not being directly involved, then it seems evident that the other should be refused.

The Court's decision on the Adams case will be delivered tonight. We feel the decision was made last month when the King Case was dismissed.

● TO THE WOODS

Spring is sprung and vacation is two days away. Blessed are the creatures with no Thursday classes who take off for home tomorrow. This will be the first year, in many, that Florida State University will have Spring vacation scheduled to co-incide with Easter—something good about the semester system. For many seniors this will be the first Easter that they will spend at home since they came to college. Previously Spring holidays came around St Patrick's day between second and third quarters, and because of distances there just wasn't time enough to get home Easter.

This spring holiday we will go home with a free conscience over exams flunked. Many will work on term papers, and many more plan to hut never "will quite get around to it." Ah yes, the road down under is paved with good intentions. But for us it's "To the Woods!!" Happy Holidays.

● HOW ABOUT IT?

Just last Thursday night it was pointed out to Chief Justice of University Court Bo Baker, that although a lot of people had been taking a lot of things for granted in regard to the duties of the Election Committee, this committee was given only one specific duty by the Constitution regarding qualifications of candidates. This was checking to see that candidates had the required grade average for the office they sought.

Which brings us around to a most important question. In every governmental system where qualifications are given for an office, someone is empowered by statute to check these qualifications and is also given a specific set of instructions as to the manner of carrying out the elections and certifying the elected candidates. In short this is known as a set of election laws. Why have no such laws been set up and codified for Florida State University's Government Association?

Must the Election chairman each year grope around in the dark when it comes to setting up the elections and wait until someone contests an election to find out whether he has jurisdiction in a given field? These election laws, when set up, should be published in the Pow Wow or at least made available to candidates for office for use as guides. Ignorance of the law may not be an excuse but absence of a law is none either.

'PON MY WORD

SAME PRINCIPLE, DIFFERENT INTERPRETATION

By BETSY BLANTON

University Court is in the limelight this week with the duty of ruling on three constitutional cases in one day.

Thursday night they heard complaints from Eunice Thompson versus Paul Garrison, Jennie Adams versus Bill Hayes, and Jennie Adams versus James Ball.

The first concerns the alleged failure of Paul, elections committee chairman, to carry out the duties of his office. Eunice thought it Paul's obligation to check the qualifications of each candidate before he could qualify for election. This case was postponed until tonight.

Paul has good foundation for his defense in that the Pow Wow constitution says the only check on candidates will be certification from the registrar's office as to grade average qualifications. It says nothing about the election committee checking other qualifications.

The second case was discussed at great length, and the court's ruling will be announced tonight. Herb Marsh did a good job of defending Hayes, and brought up some embarrassing points for debate.

One of these was the fact that the court is ruling on the case at all when it is not presented by a person directly concerned. Chief Justice Bo Baker has argued that Jennie is directly concerned with the case as a voter.

It has also been said that she is no more concerned than was Emory King when he contested the Who's Who issue. Many felt that Emory, as a fellow student, as a potential member of that organization was directly concerned with it, and the court ruled otherwise.

Now they have suddenly reversed their decision. Jennie is a voter, but it may also be noted that she is a senior and will not be around when either Hayes or Alice Jackson holds the office of chief justice of University Court.

Actions such as this leaves doubts in this columnist's mind as to the impartiality of the court. Herb Marsh also questioned their bias. He charged that the court had already discussed this case with other students and reached a decision before the hearing had begun.

"Pon My Word feels that Herb's accusation's are well founded in some instances. And incidently, we are not the only ones who hold this opinion. Yet, the court would not permit him to question them to determine whether they are biased.

The court is evidently looking at personalities in reaching its decisions. It is truly a task which we would be better for Alice or Bill to hold the office. And it is unfortunate that their bias leans toward Alice who is at present a member of the court.

Perhaps if the court more frequently looked at the FSU constitution as a basis for its rulings, and had a better knowledge of fundamental law, its opinions would be held in higher regard.

The case of Jennie Adams versus James Ball was also postponed until tonight. Whether it is to give the court time to reach a decision, or whether it is hearing or to give Jim time to prepare his case is open for debate.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

SEE SECOND ACT; IT STARTS TONIGHT

By JERRY THOMAS

Every student who appreciates good productions will have the opportunity of watching the University Court in action tonight.

Although the Court, by Baker, will not be present because of illness, the Court has appointed an experienced understudy.

The Court met last Tuesday evening to hear charges filed against Bill Hayes and James Ball.

Hayes was recently elected Chief Justice of the Court by the elected Chairman of Judiciary.

The protest against Hayes contends that he has not served a full year on the University Court, as required by the Constitution.

A similar protest against Ball contends that he has not served on a judicial cases a full term as required by the Constitution.

The Court members are Paul Garrison, Elections Chairman, to appear and answer several charges.

Ball and Garrison asked the Court to postpone their case until tonight, Permission was granted.

Hayes, on the other hand, had Herb Marsh act as his lawyer in defending his stand.

Marsh was well prepared. To begin with, he stated that the Court did not actually have a case because there was no fraud involved and moved that the Court recognize this evidence.

The Court ignored this plea, so Marsh challenged the Court.

The Court was baffled, as Marsh explained that the challenge meant that he was questioning their prejudices on the ground that several members had previously stated what the decision of the Court would be —regardless of the information presented by the defense.

Marsh reminded Baker that only last semester he had released Emory King's case against Who's Who because King was not directly involved.

By such presentation, Marsh cleverly insinuated that the plaintiff was guilty of the very thing of Hayes' qualifications was not directly involved.

Baker again expressed his ignorance and Marsh continued.

March rang the bell when he stated that the time to protect a candidates qualifications was before an election . . . not after the voters had put him in office.

Baker again followed his usual procedure and Marsh continued to ring a few more bells.

The Court became quite perplexed when Marsh informed them that the constitution they were using in the Pow Wow was not legal.

After a few questions from the floor, the Court moved to adjourn . . . not after Incidentally, the meeting will take place in the Alumni building at 8:30, and anyone may attend.

FANCY THIS

FUN IN THE SUN 'TIL YOU'RE DONE

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

It looks like warm spring days are finally here, but by the time this column appears in print it may be snowing again. Anyway, taking a chance on the remaining days, I've made a survey of facilities available to FSU students to while away their leisure hours in the sun.

The most inviting is Camp Flaxtorwin on Lake Bradford. Each weekend hundreds of sunseekers pile into busses or cars and head towards camp with their blankets and portable radios. They swim or just soak in the rhythm of it all, but if they want energetic, canoes, rowboats and sailboats are available.

The scenery there is beautiful and students can paddle through a chain of lakes connected to Lake Bradford. The Cathedral, a formation of trees surrounding a tiny body of water, may also be seen.

If a student is still more energetic, he may play volleyball, badminton or ping-pong at camp.

Back at the camp again, behind the gym are tennis courts. Rackets and tennis balls may be checked out for an afternoon of sun and fun.

For the lucky people with cars, the Gulf coast is not far away. Fishing is wonderful there. Beginning in April, the Sunday afternoon music matinees will start, to be held in the outdoor amphitheatre of the Music Building. Off campus there are stables where students may hire horses for rides in the country. And the woods are available for students who like to walk . . .

If you don't care about the sun, there is bowling and swimming at the East Campus gym. Several bowling alleys are available, but during the week and special times are reserved for students who want to perfect their strokes in the indoor pool.

Out at West campus there is a pool hall for people who like that indoor pallor.

These are the outstanding recreational features at FSU. Students can spend many hours in these healthful, pleasant surroundings.

Have you often wondered, as I have, why there are so many 68 license plates in Tallahassee? Yes there's the Leon County number is 13, but many residents request 68 which comes directly from the license bureau here in town.

Bob Pinson, who knows a little about everything, says the reason is that they're superstitious.

Bill Dunn told me about the time he sat in on a French class here to review first year French before going on to second year.

Bill had taken first year French at the University of Tampa and thought that his knowledge of the language would hold up here before signing up for the course.

When asked by the professor what book had been used at Tampa U, Bill showed him the book, but told him that they hadn't considered it very good and that he didn't think they were using it now.

To this the professor replied, "I always thought the book was pretty good—by the way, I wrote it."

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

AUSTRIAN STUDENT VISITS ALPHA GAMS

By JOEL P SMITH

There must be something about FSU that appeals to foreign students. Not only do they enroll in numbers and join our student body, but they are eager to visit our campus. The Alpha Gamma Deltas are playing host to Greti Schutta, an Austrian student from DePauw University. Greti is a pledge of the sorority at DePauw where she is a foreign exchange student on the army re-education program.

Greti, like most of our FSU foreign students, is a favorite with college students. The Alpha Gam chapter at DePauw is planning an initiating her before the close of the semester. She will return to Austria shortly after the close of the semester since Greti's arrival in Indiana at the beginning of the school year, she has had her heart set on seeing Florida—and now her dream has come true.

She arrived in Tallahassee yesterday and after spending a few days with the local Alpha Gams, she will travel to central Florida with Betsy Ball where she will spend Easter. The Alpha Gams are learning much about Austria, and Greti is getting the poop on Florida.

The Zeta Tau Alphas had a house warming last Thursday that almost scorched the rafters! The Zetas got all hot and bothered when their neighbor's house caught an fire. They tore down coffee bill like mad when the smoke began rising. The funny thing is that the Zetas had sent out invitations the day before to the various organizations on campus asking them to come to a house warming. Looks like the excitement came a few hours early.

Bruzzing around in the exchange for some more newspaper is novel entertainment sometimes. These gal schools come out with some clever jokes every now with then. The SPECTATOR of Miscongi State Teacher's College came out with the following jokes a few days ago:

A man was perched atop one of Richmond's buildings contemplating suicide. A policeman had made his way to the roof and tried to dissuade him from jumping.

"Think of your mother and father," pleaded the officer.

"Haven't any."

"Think of your wife and family."

"Haven't any."

"Your girl friend, then."

"I hate women."

"All right, think of Robert E Lee."

"Who's Robert E Lee?"

"Jump, you damnyankee!"

SNEAK PREVIEW . . . Just had a sneak preview of the first issue of Smoke Signals which will be distributed April 5. From where I sit, the mag is really making strides. The cover is really a dilly. It plays up the college emblem and is absolutely unique to Talaria. Smoke Sig's forerunner. This issue is evidence that the staff is trying to please the students. You'll find humor, pictorials, and features that were lacking in Ye ole Talaria.

Editor Copeland tells me that there are approximately 50 copies of the last issue of Talaria in the Smoke Signal's office. He'll be glad to give you a copy for the asking. These copies were left over from the exchange allotment, and the staff will be glad to dole them out.

Poetically Yours

LIFE IN THE COUNTRY
By Carolyn C. Ellis

Oh how I love to live in the country
Out from the City's throngs and press
Where life is simple, and people, sincere.
And when 'ere I ride to the city, I ponder;
What draws all the people—
Do they w-a-n-t to live here?

For the City lacif, was, is and will always be Built by many men—
While the Country was made by our Father God
And the happiness of the City fair
Will ne'er compare with those who share
And live to till His earthly sod.

The Country folks all help their neighbor
They borrow and they lend
But more than that, they pull together,
They know the joys of sharing
They live to give their lives in service
Regardless of time, task, or weather.

I DON'T MIND
By Nell Jacoby

The stars are out tonight; they're bright,
but some are out of sight; that's right,
your face is there; remarkably fair,
our love is here; no sin to bear
but can't be seen; like some stars, I mean
Invisible wall between; stark dream, which means that love is blind; I find,
a love to bind and—I don't mind.

Seventy pledging is based on a system of retiring competition. They pull in the rearly crop of good-looking, personable kids fresh out of high school. Seminoles to Battle Georgia Nine Here Tomorrow Afternoon at 3:00

The University of Georgia Bulldogs will tangle with Florida State University's baseball team tomorrow afternoon at the West campus diamond at three o'clock.

Coach Charlie Armstrong's Seminole nine will be seeking its second victory over a Southeastern Conference foe. Last week Florida State topped the University of Tennessee nine by a 10-9 margin.

Armstrong will name either Ken Lockard to start on the mound in tomorrow afternoon's tilt.

LOCKARD started the Vol game but was relieved in the seventh by Seasions. Seasions went on to hold the Tennessee sluggers, who topped the University of Florida the following day, to one hit.

Others who are expected to start for the Seminoles include Ronald Melton, catcher; Ken Smith, first base; Lee Bailey, second base; Bob Trowbridge, third base; Augie Pompeila, short stop; Wes Skinner, left field; Harry Bringger or Les Mallon, center field; and Glenn Gresham, right field.

Smith and Bringger are the only two newcomers to the squad from last year's Dixie Conference champion team. Smith has looked good at first, and Bringger covers a lot of ground in the outfield. The latter started for Winter Haven High school in the infield.

day to give him a total of 223. Johnson, Saturday's leader, slipped to an 82, but he was still in second place with a 223 score.

Johnson shot a 75 in the opening round and then zinged a 69 in the afternoon. It was the most striking distance of such golf stars as Jim Ferrier, Lloyd Mangrum, Ed Oliver, Lew Worsham, Ed Furgol, and Jim Turnesa.

The Florida State University tournament is the largest trophy in the history of its existences at FSU by winning the Mid-South tourney in Memphis.

The Seminoles took ten of twelve places in winning the tournament.

DOLEFUL DON RETURNS—Don Veller, Florida State University's head football coach, has returned from a recent "tour" of the Northeast and is already making plans for Spring training.

The popular FSU mentor announced yesterday that the training period will begin Monday, April 2. However, equipment will be issued March 29 and a meeting will follow at four in the field house located on the West campus athletic field.

Veller wasn't too pessimistic over the player yesterday morning. During the trip he'd sent Fred Pettijohn, Tallahassee Democrat Sports Editor, a note gayly saying: "I'm not interviewing kids at students."

It was evident that the Seminole grid head mentor he wasn't sent too many football players, however, yesterday Veller said he walked to quite a few football players."

If you see a couple of big bruisers on campus, you'll know that Veller accomplished something on the tour." You see, Florida State sent in three first line tackles last year.

Bob Hartman, senior flash for Florida State's basketball team, wrote a blazing new page in Florida college case record books last week by collecting 43 points in three NAIB cage contests for a grand total of 493 counters in 27 games during the 1950-51 season.

The final output breaks the mark set last year by Tampa's George Monts of 419. This year Monts also broke his own mark by scoring 434.

Hartman, just up from an attack of flu, made 16 points against South Dakota State in the Seminoles' first round effort at Kansas City. The FSU five won 81-70.

In the second round, Hartman swished for 17 against a favored Pepperdine quintet. The Seminoles surprised with a 61-59 win. In the quarter-finals classy Millikin, led by the amazing Scotty Steagall, lashed FSU 91-80. In this contest Hartman made 26 points —Steagall bagged 32.

Steagall went on to be named the most valuable player—perhaps the most outstanding ever —in the 13th annual NAIB tourney.

The writers, broadcasters and officials who named Steagall the most valuable took into account the little man's meet record of 143 points for five games, his sparkling playmaking and defensive work.

Florida State's Eddie Johnson was the second leading amateur in the Jacksonville Invitational Golf Tournament after Sunday's third round.

Gymnasts Enter Southern Tourney

The Florida State University varsity gymnastics team leaves on Thursday morning to compete in the Second Annual Southern Intercollegiate League Championship.

The meet will be held at the University of North Carolina at Raleigh. Competing teams will be Maryland, Georgia Tech, Georgia, North Carolina, West Virginia, Duke, and Florida State.

The meet is conducted according to NCAA rules and therefore freshmen are ineligible. Last year FSU was announced ineligible for the meet because of the one year residence rule. Maryland won the meet last year at Georgia Tech. There is a possibility that Florida State might be awarded the championship meet in 1953.

Coach Harley Price has named Joe Regna, Carmine Regna, Bill Vretios, Dick Platt, and Ben Koetz as the FSU representatives in the meet.

CAPTAIN BILL Roetzheim, Pan-American, Olympic and National AAU All-Round and high bar champion, has not make the trip. Although the move weakens Florida State greatly, the motive for such a move is three-fold:

(1) Bill Roetzheim has been through a gruelling competition in the Pan-American Olympic games and needs as much rest as possible before the Florida State gymnastes to be held at the University of Michigan on March 30 and 31.

(2) If Joe and Carmine Regna can win a Southern Intercollegiate championship they will then enter the NCAA meet with increased confidence. The Regna twins have made remarkable progress since last season. At present they are ninth and tenth in the gymnastics in the United States.

(3) If either Bill Vretios a chance to get ready for the NCAA meet. Bill has been hampered all year with injuries. He will compete in the NCAA on the high bar.

COACH HARTLEY Price plans to take four men to the NCAA. These men would include the Regnas and Vretios. For the Southeastern AAU slated in April, he will enter two teams, varsity and the freshmen-varsity. The varsity will be the dividing meet in the freshman-varsity series by a score of 40½-34½. Saturday afternoon. Prior to the meet each team had one victory to its credit.

Roetzheim led in first places with a first on calisthenics, side horse and tied with Carmine Regna on the horizontal bar. Carmine Regna also won the parallel bars.

Joe Regna won a first place on the flying rings and Jack Miles took first place on the long horse.

FSU Tankmen Top Clemson

Florida State University's undefeated swimming team added Clemson to its long list of victims in the East campus pool Saturday night, topping the Tigers from the Southern Conference by a 43-32 score.

The Seminoles, who tied North Carolina State for the Southeastern AAU title and took the Florida AAU crown with ease, were pushed all the way by the Tigers before gaining the victory.

Coach Sim Stults, however, used his reserve swimmers during the big part of the meet.

Co-captain Buddy Browning set a new school record of 2 minutes, 37.2 seconds in winning the 300-yard breast stroke, and John Buettner churned up a new school mark of 3 minutes, 21.4 seconds in topping the 300-yard back stroke.

The Seminole swimmers are scheduled to enter the National Collegiates and the National AAU in early April. They have no more dual meets slated.

The results:

300-yard medley relay: FSU (Buettner, Archer, Wells). Time: 3 minutes, 8.9 seconds.

200-yard freestyle: 1—Burnett, FSU; 2—White, Clemson; 3—Klinck. Time: 2 minutes 10.6 seconds.

50-yard freestyle: 1—Bee, Clemson; 2—Converse, Clemson; 3—Buster, FSU. Time: 25.7 seconds.

Diving: 1—Parrell, FSU; 2—Kirkpatrick, Clemson; 3—James, FSU. 94.9 points.

300-yard freestyle: 1—White; Clemson; 2—Boone, FSU; 3—Taylor, Clemson. Time: 2 minutes 21.4 seconds. (School record)

200-yard breast stroke: 1—Browning, FSU; 2—Archer, FSU; 3—Monroe, Clemson. Time: 2 minutes 27.2 seconds. (School record).

400-yard free style: 1—W Jardine, FSU; 2—Klinck, Clemson; 3—Farrell, FSU. Time: 5 minutes 11.4 seconds.

400-yard free style relay: 1—Clemson (Converse, Klinck, Bee, White), 4 minutes, 3 seconds.

Practice Hours Set For 'Mural Meet'

The women's intramural swimming meet, scheduled for April 2 and 3, will be the second consecutive meet in many years. Last year's winner was AGD, and the KACs were runner-ups.

The number events each girl may enter and the number of practice hours each girl must have before participating in the meet has been set up in the Aquatics guide of the National Section on Women's Athletics, Jane Kirk, publicity chairman for the swimming meet, says. "We are going by the standards in the guide because they are pertinent to the health of the swimmer. These standards are why each girl is limited to three events and must have at least three practice hours."

The classifying times are as follows: March 27 from 9:30 to 10:30. March 28 from 8 until 7:30. March 29 from 8:30 to 10:30. Each swimmer MUST be classified before entering the meet.

The meet is under the direction of the Women's Junior Physical Education class.

Weary Seminole Cagers Surprised By Big 'Welcome Home' Turnout

Taxen completely by surprise a travel weary Florida State University Basketball team was greeted at the Bus station on Saturday afternoon on their return from Kansas, Mo, where they represented District 25 in the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball tournament.

The welcome home celebration started with a snake-dance parade from the Music building at 5 p m which wound its way down College avenue, over Adams street to the Union Bus Station, where the team arrived at 5:25. Originally the team was scheduled in at 1:45 p m at the railway station but connections were missed in Jacksonville and they completed the trip to Tallahassee by bus.

PRESIDENT and Mrs Doak S Campbell led the welcome parade along with Public Relations Director John Newton Baker, UGA President Rube Askew, Seminole marching chiefs and cheerleaders.

A little over two weeks ago the team was underrated and then the Seminoles went to Kansas City where they survived until the original 32 district championship teams had been reduced to the final eight. Florida State was one of those top eight.

As the bus approached the station, Bud Scott remarked about the crowd he could see in the distance and someone said maybe there had been an accident. Then the boys began to recognize classmates and girl friends. When the band started playing they realized for the first time that it was a planned reception.

AS NED WEST, sports publicity director who accompanied the boys described it, "No one wanted to get out of the bus first. These fine athletes who had just returned from a 2,600-mile trip and had played great ball before crowds of six and eight thousand fans, were so dandy she before the folks at home who had turned out in such great numbers to honor them."

Finally after all the other passengers had left the bus they came out one at a time and only with great ursine. The students formed a runway for them directly to the WTAL microphone where Bob Delaney was waiting to interview them and President Campbell welcomed them on behalf of the university

General Culture Test Given March 28, 29

The General Culture Test for all juniors will be given on March 28 and 29 at 4:30 p m in the Westcott Auditorium. Due to the length of the test it was deemed advisable to break it into two halves, both being necessary for the completion of the requirement.

The primary function of this test is to furnish definite information to the students concerned and to their Deans or Counselors in order that they may plan future work more effectively. It is primarily a guidance instrument.

A COMMITTEE was set up to decide if the test was valid and in the report of the committee to the Executive Council, the following listing of the present uses of the test should indicate its potential values:

1—The individual student receives detailed information regarding his performance on the test. This information is interpreted on the basis of both national and local norms. Students are urged to consult advisors on the significance and implications of their score.

2—EACH ACADEMIC dean receives a duplicate of the above information for his files. One school, at least, has found these to be of great value in counseling.

3—The results of each student's performance on these tests is recorded in the Personnel Records Office. There they are continually available to counselors and interested faculty members.

4—SUMMARIES OF the performances of FSU students are transmitted to the General Education Office for study and interpretation. These tests serve as one indicator as to the effectiveness of the general education program.

5—Data concerning the performance of students area by area are transmitted to the general education chairman concerned.

6—The Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement makes considerable use of these data.

7—The data are available for research purposes.

Freshmen Receive Guidance For Educational Specialties

Approximately 125 freshmen students who entered in the Fall indicated on registration materials that they were undecided about an educational specialty in the University.

IN an effort to help these students and to supplement the aid given by the educational counselors of these students, the Office of Coordinator of Counseling has set up a special research study designed to review the problem of these freshmen and to make recommendations concerning their counseling.

Mr Joe King graduate intern in guidance in the Office of Coordinator, is working closely with Dr Melvene Hardee on the project. A graduate of Drake University in Iowa, Mr. King also spent 14 months in the navy.

"I came to Florida State University," he said, "because the faculty at Drake strongly recommended the guidance program here. I have been here one year and I hope to get my Master of Science degree in June."

THERE is another reason why Mr. King chose Tallahassee to continue his studies. His fiance lives here.

"My interest in this field," he continued, "was fueled by two factors. I myself was mixed up in high school and during the time I spent in the navy, even for the first year and a half of college. Now I'd like to help other people with their problems. Another reason is that I like people, and being with them very much."

There have been some surprising results in the counseling Mr. King has done for seventy-six students. He found what parental influence causes almost no mix-ups. The attitude of the counselees is very good. There was no student who wasn't interested in a special area and who wasn't willing to talk to a person in that particular area, for further guidance.

THIS is the first time such a program has been used at Florida State and the first time this particular study has been attempted anywhere, although parallel surveys have been made elsewhere.

Mr. King says enthusiastically that "There is a great deal of personal satisfaction in this work," and he concludes, "any undecided students wanting help should contact with Guidance Office. We are always glad to help."

Deans, Counselors Go To Chicago For Meet

Six of FSU's deans and counselors will attend the Convention of Councils, Guidance, and Personal Association to be held in Chicago on March 28-29.

Five National associations for counseling and guidance will be represented. FSU's delegates will be Dean Culpepper, Dean McBride, Dean Cutlingham, Dr. Wesley Vordenerr, Dr. Melvene Hardee, and Mrs Margaret Blair.

Moth Professors Go To Tennessee Meet

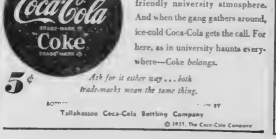
Three Florida State mathematicians attended the annual meeting of the Southeastern Section of the Mathematical Association of American last weekend at George Peabody College and Vanderbilt University in Tennessee.

Dr. Dwight B Goodner will speak on "Cyclic Sextuns in the Ethpic Plane." Dr. Steven L. Jamison, "The Coefficients of a Regular Normal Operator," and Dr Howard E Taylor, "An Application of the Theory of Normal Families to a Problem in Riemann Surfaces."

Tall, Lanky Lanigan Plans Coach Career

Tall, lanky, interested in student affairs . . . these phrases mean Bob Lanigan, senior class president.

Bob, whose major is physical education, plans on a coaching job at West Palm Beach High School upon graduation.



His activities have been numerous while here on FSU's campus. He was Dean conference singles champion, has played basketball and football for FSU, and basically enough he is a member of the Men's F Club and Physical Education Club.

This Coral Gables fellow also has a past as junior senator and former sports announcer for WFSU.

He's 24 and considers sports announcing, tennis, all types of athletics and photography as his current hobbies.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 15...THE LONG-WATTLED UMBRELLA BIRD

"They must think I don't have enough sense to get out of the rain!"

It made L. W. madder than a wet hen when they asked him to judge cigarette mildness by taking one puff, one huff, one whiff or one sniff. Our common sense friend enjoys a good smoke too much ever to settle on any brand in such a snap-judgment way! For him and for millions like him, there's only one convincing way to test cigarette mildness.

It's the Sensible Test . . . the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke—on a pack after pack, day after day basis. No snap judgments needed! After you've enjoyed Camels—and only Camels—for 30 days in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), we believe you will know why . . .

Annual Carnival Starts Tomorrow

The fourteenth annual Freshman Carnival will open its doors at 8:15 tomorrow night in the East Campus gymnasium.

Thirteen different booths will be open to those who like to participate in games for prizes. Pie pitching, basketball throws, ring throws, baseball throws and dart throws are some of the many activities which will be going on during Carnival time.

THERE WILL be fortune tellers and a handwriting analysis booth to delve into inner personalities.

Phil Davis' orchestra will provide music for dancing and Carnival show will be featured at 10 p.m.

Arda Bourland, chairman of the carnival and vice-president of the freshman class, says that this year's theme will resemble closely last year's theme of "April Fool's Do".

PRIZES for the different booths and games include such things as chicken dinners, lamps, sports shirts, blouses, cartons of cigarettes and record albums. Other prizes consist of shaving soap, socks, free theater passes and a free haircut. All of these were contributed by merchants in town.

The carnival dates back to 1937, when the Freshman Carnival replaced the Senior Carnival. At that time all four classes participated the affair and the proceeds were equally divided.

The themes through the years have varied from "The Wild West" and a "Day On the Farm" to "Mardi Gras." During last year's show two of the booths received top billing—"Fun Only—Four Bisons of Love" and, for girls, "Summer and Nells."

THE FRESHMAN class, with Charles Curtis as president; Arda Bourland, vice-president; Ava Mae Hiscock, secretary; Joyce Winston treasurer, and Marcia Morris, parliamentarian, began

Helen Hobbs Part Of Schooner's Crew

A schooner on which Helen Hobbs, former Florida Flambeau editor was traveling as part of the crew was found last night after it had been missing for three days.

Helen, now a publicity director for a St. Petersburg radio station, went along on the cruise to Havana, Cuba, for publicity purposes. The search was also participating in a race, got lost from others of its type during a tropical disturbance that struck the Florida peninsula.

The schooner was sighted by Coast Guard planes which had been employed in the search.

Graduating Interns Should Make Orders

All interns who plan to graduate in June should order their announcements before April 16 and their caps and gowns before May 17, according to an announcement made by J. P. Wheeler, manager of the University Bookstore.

All interns who plan to place orders for caps and gowns should contact the bookstore immediately after their return May 14.

Orders for announcements should be accompanied with a check or money order. Prices for the announcements will be 50c for leather, 43c for cardboard and 15c for Dutch fold.

Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, and Miss Elizabeth Lynn, assistant dean of women, are attending the National Association of Deans of Women in Chicago this week.

Annual Jr-Sr Prom Court Nominations Today, Tomorrow

The annual Junior-Senior Prom, a junior class project will be held April 7 in the East dining hall. Bob Cole and his orchestra will play. The dance is open only to juniors and seniors, and admission is free.

A king, queen and court will reign over the dance. Nominations for the court will be held in lower Westcott all day today and until noon tomorrow. Nominations are limited to three girls and three boys from each class.

Juniors may nominate to serve on the court, and seniors will nominate seniors to run for king and queen. Final voting will be in Westcott Monday and Thursday according to Evelyn Raulerson, junior class publicity chairman.

Peggy Sharkness is dance chairman and Katrine Austine is in charge of decorations. All students who are interested in helping these committees may contact these girls.

A junior class meeting will be held Tuesday, April 3, at 5 p.m. in the Lonergan auditorium so that preparations for the dance may be completed.

Positions Now Open In Georgia Welfare

Seniors in School of Social Work who are interested in positions in the Georgia State Department of Public Welfare may contact the Office of Vocational Guidance and Placement, 202 Westcott building, for information.

Openings include such positions as public welfare worker and child welfare worker in training. Those interested in positions of senior welfare worker, child welfare consultant, public welfare supervisor, and associate welfare field representative should write the Merit System regarding qualifications. Further information for these openings may be obtained at the Westcott office.

Cigarettes Awarded To Contest Winner

Lillie Belle Cipletree is last week's winner in the Flambeau's cigarette contest, according to Ted Yedder, campus representative.

This week's question, still unanswered, is "According to the front page of the Flambeau, who is Dean of the School of Journalism?" The answer is Dr. Laurence Campbell. The student who answers this question correctly will receive a carton of Chesterfields.

Political Scientist Lectures Tonight

"How Democratic Is Western Germany," is the topic to be discussed by Dr Robert Taylor Cole, director of graduate studies in Political Science at Duke University, in a lecture this evening at 8 p m in the Longmire auditorium.

Dr Cole is also editor of the American Political Science Review and president of the Southern Political Science association. His lecture is under the sponsorship of the Florida State University department of political science.

The public is invited to attend the lecture.

Senators Kill Student Board By 9-5 Margin

Would Have Had Power To Stop Editor's Pay For Three Parades

The controversial Board of Student Publications bill, calling for suspension of editors, was killed by the University Government Senate last week by a 9-5 margin. Four abstentions were recorded on the roll call vote.

THE BILL was designed to set up a student board with the duty of seeing that the various campus publications do not run on a policy that is contrary to the desires of the students. The board would have had the power to suspend the salary of an editor for a 30-day period if he was found guilty of conducting such a policy.

During a discussion before the voting took place, Senator Jim Turnbull questioned the legality of having appointed officials ruling over the elected editors of the campus publications.

Senator Dick Yeager disagreed. "This paper (the Flambeau) is the official organ of FSU. It reflects on the whole student body of the United States. There should be some authority for the editor to answer to.

SENATOR BOB WODRICH said that the unrecognized UGA president could appoint all of his friends to the advisory board and thus control the Flambeau, the paper. "The bill would give the president too much power," he added.

Senators voting for the bill were Margaret Kramer, Marion, Betty Rich, Virginia Stockman, Mary Ruth Summers and Dick Yeager.

Those who voted against the bill included Jimmy Evans, Nancy Smith, Gene Armstrong, Ann Turnbull, Pat Egan, Pete Williams, Bob Wodrich and Herb Marsh. Gene Armstrong, Ann Oliver, June Conyers and Sonny Meyer abstained.

ROVING REPORTER RUBEY

Students Voice Views on Picketing Of Administration Building Tuesday

Following the picketing of Westcott hall by members of the Anti-Privilege Council, the roving reporter, Paul Rubey, asked the following question this week: "What do you think of the IPC affair?"

Lewis Carr, Sophomore, 725 West Pensacola: I'm too busy to even be bothered with the whole mess.

Ann Sheffield, Sophomore, 210 Gilchrist: If the administration had handled it right in the first place, there wouldn't have been so much trouble, but the boys are right. They got a dirty deal, and I don't think they should be made to apologize.

Betty Wall, Senior: 649 West Campus: Mess balls is for saints and honky-tonks is for sinnin'.

Pat Griffin, Senior, 129 Brownell: I don't even know what it's all about.

Glen Allen, Senior, Campuside: IPC was all right. They had the administration was right. They should all be thrown out of school.

Dena Oetjen, Freshman, 202 Jennie Murphree: I think the picketing was fine. It showed great spirit.

Jeanne Nereu, Freshman, 129 Jennie Murphree: I think the boys showed great originality in making their signs.

Roberta Yoak, Senior, 210 Senior hall: I regret that they had to resort to picketing to try to gain their ends and hope it will be settled in a peaceful way.

Nola Collins, Junior, Zeta Tau Alpha House: I hope the whole thing blows over and that there's no more trouble.

Iris Sullivan, Senior, 222 Brownard: I think it was completely justified.

Nellie Lawrence, Freshman, 232 Reynolds: I think it was very dumb to begin with, because several other organizations have been refused, but I do think that the cafeteria should be open to all student functions.

Sam Baker, Senior: It's an all-fouled-up affair.

Bob Adams, Senior, 515 West Campus: I'm in favor of the IPC and am in back of them 100 per cent.

Beverly Berry, Junior, 142 Mas-nolia: I agree with the principle, but I think the method used was rather childish and amateur.

Al Feldsenen, Graduate Student, 503 West Campus: I think it's stinks, and the fact that some and the heritage of our university has been despoiled. The only course that will ever enable our school to grow is that which will require firm, vigorous and undaunted action from the administration after the manner of that undertaken unfortunately (unsuccessfully) at Princeton forty years ago; although I don't think we have a (Woodrow) Wilson here.

Ines-Nell Roman, Junior, 105 Landis: I think it's a disgrace and a shame and I agree with Mr Feldsenen. (Everybody insists on that.)

Jack Gaither, Junior, 236 North Cawthon: I don't blame the IPC.

Gloria Jahnow, Freshman, 251 Jennie Murphree: I think picketing showed that students are taking a more active part in school affairs. I think it was bad publicity for the school and should have been done with more finesse. P. S. Do all dogs have fleas?

Social Welfare Prof Is AAMC Member

Assistant professor of Social Welfare, Dean Johnson, is now an active member of the American Association of Marriage Counselors.

The American Association has strict requirements of training and experience for active members. It is the highest accrediting body of marriage counselors and the 1951 Social Work Year Book lists only 70 members.

Organized in 1942, the Association has four classifications of membership, Correspondent, Affiliate, Associate and Active

Art Ball Called Off

The "Beaux Arts" ball, sponsored by the art department, which was slated for tomorrow night at the oil painting room of Westcott, has been called off, according to Maria Russo, publicity chairman of the Art club.

WESTCOTT serves as a background for protesting Interfraternity Council men as they walked all day long in front of the administrative building last March 20. The members and pledges of 11 FSU fraternities attended in protest of an administration policy which denied them the use of the dining hall as a site for their dance.

Music Festival Ends Tomorrow

Gala Concert Concludes Meet; Hanson Leader

The spring music festival of the School of Music will close tomorrow evening with a "gala concert" of the combined University Symphony Orchestra and University Singers, according to Dr Karl Kuersteiner, dean of the School of Music. The public concert will begin at 8:15 in Music Hall.

In conjunction with the festival, the Florida Composers League is holding its annual convention, which opened this morning in the Music building. A wide variety of compositions will be played this afternoon in the Music hall, either by the composers themselves, other composers, or FSU musicians, and more will be heard tomorrow, according to John Boda of FSU, president of the League.

Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music, is serving as guest conductor and critic during the convention. He is well-known as a composer, conductor, and music educator. The program Saturday night will include two of Hanson's works, his Romantic Symphony and The Lament for Beowulf, which will be conducted by the composer himself. Music of various Florida composers will also be played during this concert.

The School of Music and the Composers League will join in holding their annual banquet tonight in the Lafayette room. Special music will provide entertainment.

James Ball Charges Votes Not Counted

Shiphorst Says Judicial Tallies Never Recorded

James Ball, whose recent election as Chairman of Judicial Court has been contested by Jennie Adams, threw a bombshell into the case hearing Tuesday, March 20, when he announced that the ballots had never been counted in the constitutional amendment election which ratified Article IV Section 3. Jennie's case is based on that article.

Bill Hayes was ruled out of his office as Chief Justice of University Court under the article which is now in dispute.

THE ARTICLE in question states that the Chairman of Judicial Court must have one year of experience on that body.

Ball told the Court, "No one knows how the vote was. No one has a record. In the face of such testimony I ask for a dismissal because no such qualifications are found in the FSU constitution."

He then called upon Bill Shiphorst, who was elections chairman last year. Shiphorst stated: "We never counted the ballots on the constitutional amendment."

THE CASE WAS postponed until more factual evidence can be found concerning the case.

Confab Scheduled on Picketing Of Westcott by Interfrat Group

Frats Apologize for Personal Reflection On President; Ask for Group Meeting Soon

The interfraternity Council will probably have a meeting with University President Doak S Campbell within the next few days to discuss the picketing of Westcott by IFC members last week, Jack Nooney, IFC president said. No other new developments have been announced concerning the controversy, he said.

Dr Campbell could not be reached for comment.

The picketing was a result of the administration's refusal to give the IFC adequate facilities for their annual week end.

THE IFC asked permission to use the Suwannee Room for their dance, but the request was refused on the grounds that the school had lost money on previous dances held there. It was found that the loss suffered was $110 for two dances. The faculty committee which was to consider the matter further then had a meeting with other campus organizations who had been refused permission to use the dining hall, IPC offered to pay the $55 difference to the university if the dance could be held there.

The committee felt that other organizations couldn't present the special consideration given IPC. The organizations said that they did not. The committee then decided that the request for special consideration was not a strong enough and permission to use the dining hall was once more refused. It was on account of this decision that the council decided to picket Westcott, Nooney explained.

PENDING a letter to President Campbell asking for a meeting to discuss the incident, the IFC made it clear that no apology was directed at him personally, reported Nooney.

The text of the letter sent by the IFC to President Campbell is as follows:

"Dear President Campbell,

"The fraternities of Florida State University wish to apologize for any personal reflections on the personality or character of you, our President, that may have resulted from the collective action of the fraternities involved on Tuesday, March 20. The fraternities individually and collectively have nothing but respect for you as president of the university, and our grievances are not directed at any individual.

"HOWEVER, the fraternities have considered individually and their sentiments are the same. We feel that more can be accomplished by the Interfraternity Council group, since we are all equally concerned and the consequences must be equally shared.

"Therefore, we the fraternities of FSU do hereby respectfully request that the Interfraternity Council group act as a forum for a group meeting to discuss the grievances of the fraternities and the administration may be resolved in a manner mutually satisfactory to all concerned.

"Respectfully yours,"

Signed by presidents of all fraternities.

ROTC Unit Gets Satisfactory Rating From Inspection

Florida State University's Air ROTC Unit received a "satisfactory" rating recently in the second annual formal inspection conducted by Col Edgar T Belser, 14th Air Force of the Inspector General's office at Robbins Air Force Base, Georgia.

The colonel, who was accompanied by Captains Robert C Mathers and Robert D Thompson, both of the 14th Air Force Base, commended the unit and uniformity of drilling in his report to FSU President Doak S Campbell and Col Benton S Barr, university commandant, on cadet and tactics.

The university officials, said Col Selser, were very cooperative and very much interested in the training and progress of the unit. The ratings of "satisfactory" and "unsatisfactory" are the only ones given in inspections.

Col Barr's staff, Maj Donald N Johnson, staff assistant; Capt Garland V Fory, training officer, and Capt Eugene McGlauflin, unit adviser on supplies, were also commended by the inspecting officers.

FSU Sends Twelve To National Confab

Twelve personnel officers from Florida State University attended the National Conference of the American College Personnel Association in Chicago this week. The conference, which began Monday, ends today.

Representing FSU were Mrs. Mamie Blair and Dr Ralph Vordenberg of the Vocational Guidance office, Dean J B Culpepper of Student Welfare, Dr Harold Cottingham and Dr Stewart Murray of the Guidance Training Unit. Miss Katherine Warren and Miss Elizabeth Lynn from the Office of the Dean of Women.

Others representing the university were Dr Melvene Hardee, Coordinator of Counseling; Dean Otis McBride, dean of men; George R Hellman, counselor for men; Robert G Bower, director of men's residence; and William Earle, counselor for men.

Soph King, Queen Nominations Slated

Nominations for Sophomore Hop king and queen will be held Wednesday, April 4. All nominations will be placed in the ballot boxes in lower Westcott and in the Seminole Club lobby.

Nominations will be held for one day only. Any questions regarding the nomination should be taken to Margret Kraemann, chairman, of the elections committee for Sophomore Hop King, queen and court.

Plot Charged To FSU Athlete

Argentina Discredit Laid to Roetzheim

In an article appearing March 21, a Buenos Aires government newspaper accused Bill Roetzheim of Florida State University with taking pictures intended to discredit Argentina's prestige abroad.

The newspaper charged that United States athletes at the recent Pan American games in Buenos Aires had instructions from the U S Pentagon Bureau of Investigation to take the photographs.

The paper, La Nacion Gratuita, said that photographs taken from Roetzheim and Stanley Stancook of Miami, two members of the U S team, proved there was a plan afoot to push Argentina as a totalitarian country.

The paper quoted police as saying that particular attention was "aroused" because the athletes asked soldiers on duty at the National Military Academy, where all the visiting athletes were housed, to pose while they took motion pictures. The police complained that films immediately and returned the camera.

The report said one picture made it appear that the soldiers were searching a civilian at the door of a cliff.

WHILE ONLY one picture and two athletes were cited by the Argentine paper, a check of official Argentine investigation of charges against members of the U S team had been instructed by the FBI to gather evidence against Argentina.

The U S Embassy said the matter had not been brought to its attention.

Faculty Takes Part In FEA Convention In Tampa This Week

Fourteen Florida State University faculty members are taking part in the annual Florida Education association convention being held in Tampa Wednesday through Saturday.

The FSU pedsonnel will serve as committee chairman, speakers, and discussion participants on the association board of directors. The chairmen are Dr Doak S Campbell, FSU president; Dr Mode L Burns, professor of education; Dr Ruppert H Lawhon, of the education department; Dr J Frank Dame, dean of the school of business; Prof E Woodfin Weaver, associate professor of classics; Dr Henry P Becker, geography professor.

Dr Hugh Wakken, head of the department of psychology; Dr Christine Foster, professor of physical education; Pauline A O'Melia, assistant professor of library training; Dr D Lincoln Canfield, head of the department of modern language; Dr W T Edwards, professor of education; Dr Gordon Aldridge, associate professor of social work; Dr Howard C Dashiell, director of the physical education, and Prof Mary Grace Fox, associate director of physical education.

Student Directories Will Be Distributed

The student directories for the spring semester will be ready for distribution the second week in April according to Mr Robert Leigh, department of educational research.

The directories will include a complete list of all Florida State University students through the second semester. It will contain the school address, home address and the school in which they are registered.

A complete list of faculty and staff of the university will also be included.

Honorary Meets

Sigma Tau Delta, Florida State University English honorary, will hold a meeting in the old museum room on the fourth floor of the Alumni building next Tuesday, April 3, at 7:30 p.m.

All members should be present, as election of officers will be held.

Experiment Chooses Albritton To Travel Abroad in Summer

Gail Kelly Albritton, Junior, was selected this week by the Experiment in International Living as one of a group of students from colleges and universities in the United States who will travel abroad this summer.

Gail will live with a Dutch family for eight weeks and will then travel in France, Belgium, Denmark and England. Selection is competitive and is based on leadership, character and ability to utilize the experience to promote international understanding. The experiment is engaged in teaching outstanding students the culture of other nations.

AFTER THEIR return, students speak to civic and student groups about the customs of the particular nation they studied.

Gail is treasurer of UOA, Managing Editor of the Tally-Ho and the 1950 Pow-Wow. Next year she will be editor of the Tally-Ho.

FSU students selected for the Experiment last year were Pat Murphy, Peg Thompson and Marie Chillingsworth.

GIRLS AND BOYS are eligible regardless of major for selection. Persons interested in competing for selection next year may get information by writing The Experiment in International Living, Putney Vermont.

FSU DIRECTOR TO SERVE

Florida State University Athletic Director Howard O Danford has been asked to serve on a special National Recreation Association committee that will plan national standards for the conduct of competitive activities for boys under 12 years of age. Danford has accepted the appointment.

'Go National Week' Ends With Parade

Among highlighting events of $49 "Go National Week" will be a banquet tonight at 6:30 in the Suwannee Room. Frank Jones, dormitory president has announced.

Diners will witness a program of will centered around a reading by Roy Horton, dormitory reporter. Frank said that in addition a reading of their constitution may possibly be presented. The constitution has formerly been described by Roy Horton as "the constitution to end all constitutions." A dedication for the group has been promised by Georgia Bee and his orchestra for the program tonight, Frank said.

The week's activities in the "Get behind $49" publicity will end in a parade down Park Avenue tomorrow noon, the dormitory president has reported. The parasders will march back to the front of Bryan hall where a short ceremony will be held revealing Nancy O'. $48 sweetheart.

Since no entries were sent in to the contest for the dormitory sweetheart, the $49'ers have announced that they will present their own original selection, Frank said that the group was sincere about the sweetheart entries, however.

At the final ceremony tomorrow the sister dormitory will also be announced. Frank stated that the $46 boys wanted a sisters dorm but one who would join in on the laughs. He mentioned that the Theta Delta Iota has been invited to several teas in the girls dorms lately. Wednesday night, ODI serenaded all the girls dorms.

The Greek letters have been selected by the boys symbolizing the order of $49 in the Greek alphabet.

The parade tomorrow will end the week of good-humored disturbance on the FSU campus by the group of 32 boys.

"We have been trying to stir up some friendship, joy and humor throughout the campus," Frank replied to a question on the purpose of the "Go National Week." He emphasized that the "$49 troops" were not satirizing fraternities, but were only expressing their idea of fun.

"We are just setting examples for other dormitories, girls as well as boys, to see how much fun they can have together," he stated.

The $49 group is open for membership to any male on campus, Frank said. You do not have to be living in $49 dormitory to join in the fun. An attendance at one of the meetings will assure membership. "Just be sincere and you're a member."

The spirit of $49 has reigned over campus since Tuesday night. Numerous posters of "Get Behind $49" have been posted throughout the campus.

The boys have made themselves noticeable in their railroad caps with protruding horns over the bills. Bill Frank, whom Frank Lyons described as a staunch $49'r said, the object of the horns was to signify that "You have to toot your own horn to be heard."

Also outstanding in $49 costume this week have been the church key worn around their necks or pinned to their shirts in likeness to fraternity pins.

case, commented: "I agree that Ball is innocent if the ballots haven't been counted."

In a unanimous decision, the University Court has ruled the election of Bill Hayes as Chief Justice of University Court for the coming year to be unconstitutional. Hayes was elected in the UOA primary held March 7, over Alice Jackson.

In announcing the decision the University Court based its argument on Article IV Section 3 of the UOA Constitution which states: "The Chief Justice of University Court shall be of senior standing and shall have had one year of experience on University Court."

HAYES CONTENDED that this portion of the Constitution which was ratified in the UOA final election last year was in effect a retroactive law. Hayes was elected vice president of men's affairs in the UOA primary last year and therefore there was no way for him to qualify for a University Court position following the ratification of the amendment.

The Court said that the Article "came into effect upon its passage. Therefore it appears that it was intended for the whole of Article IV to become immediately effective."

IN THE CASE of Ennis Thompson vs Paul Harrison, elections chairman, the court rules that it could not hear the case and offer a decision since three of its membership were sitting without authority.

Acting Chief Justice Doris Harding, Ivan Kestner, Junior men's representative and Ruth Engle, senior women's representative, were appointed by University Council to fill out two seats approved by University Senate.

Thompson contended that Garrison had not conducted the election according to the procedure outlined in Article IV Section three of the Constitution.

FSU Linksmen Tackle Emory Tomorrow

After having scored an impressive 17½-½ victory over Mercer University Bears yesterday afternoon, the Florida State University golf team will battle the Emory linksmen tomorrow afternoon on the Tallahassee Country Club course.

FSU's Dick Montney took the medal honors in yesterday's Mercer meet with a two under par 70. Florida State swept all matches save ½ point salvaged by Mercer's Harry Bloon against Eddie Johnson.

JOHNSON followed in medal score with a 71. Both Bud Marses and Tom Cumbie fired 74's.

Montney shellacked Mercer's Billy Coleman 3-0, Marses topped Jack Gillen 3-0, Cumbie downed Arnie Birdsey, 2-1, and Johnson scored a 2½-½ decision over Bloon.

Johnson and Marses teamed to top Bloon and Gillen 3-0, and Montney and Cumbie combined to whip Coleman and Birdsey, 3-0.

The victory gives the Seminole linksmen a record of three victories, two losses, and one tie.

Coach Ralph Mercer's match, the Seminoles had beaten Stetson and Georgia Tech, tied the U. of Jacksonville Navy and Davidson. They tied Rollins earlier in the season.

In the Wednesday meet with Davidson, the Seminoles fired a four under par 68 but Florida State fell 21-15.

Montney and Marsee and the double combine of Dick Montney and Johnson took matches for the Tribe golfers.

MARSEE ended with a one over par 73 to top top medal honors for Florida State in its 17½-½½ loss to the Jacksonville Flotilla. Johnson, a Tallahassee freshman, won his match 3-0.

RONALD Marsee collected three of FSU's six hits, all singles.

In the second tilt Big Ed Lockhart's Seminoles trounced the 13-4 victory overthe mighty Miamians.

Florida State broke loose for seven runs in the last two frames of the game, collected 11 hits, and committed only two bobbles.

Before the Florida road trip the Seminoles topped the University of Georgia here 8-4.

Lockhart slated, who played tenth last year in the national meet, will be a definite threat in the diving events, both high and low board.

Coach Bim Stulis expects the Seminole swimmers to be practically through by Friday. Only one high board diving will be left by Saturday.

IN THE Southern Gym tourney Carmine Regna took the All-Round title with 986 points. He was followed by Joe Regna with 856, and Bill Vrettos with 858, giving the Seminoles a clean sweep in that department.

Carmine Regna took first places on the parallel bar and flying rings. Joe Regna copped the side horse, and Dick Platt ended first in tumbling. Bill Roetzheim did not enter the meet, having been through the long Pan-American Games.

Following the meet Coach Hartley Price announced that the 1952 Southern Gymnastics League tourney will be held at FSU with Duke as the alternate.

Seminole Nine to Face Miss College Monday

Florida State University's baseball team will be seeking its sixth victory in seven outings here Monday when it faces Mississippi College in the first of a scheduled two-game series. The second tilt is slated Tuesday. Both games will start at three on the West campus diamond.

The Seminole hits increased its record to 5-1 during the vacation period by topping Georgia, Miami, and Florida Southern twice. They had previously he a ten Tennessee in the opening contest. FSU lost to Miami for the only defeat to date.

In the Tribe's most recent game Bob Harriman donned a baseball uniform and hurled a seven-hit, 13-3 victory over the Mocs. The game was featured by eight Seminole runs in the second.

OUTFIELDER Les Mullen topped the Seminoles at the plate with three singles in five trips.

The day prior Florida State's Ed Sessions tossed a seven-hit 13-6 triumph over the Lakeland outfit. This time Coach Charle Arnsparger's charges rolled eight runs in the third.

Sessions added his own cause by blasting three singles in four trips at bat. First baseman Ken Tebbs smacked a double and a single, drove in four runs, and scored three himself.

In the Wednesday meet the Seminoles' Sessions had control trouble in the opening frame of the ball game and walked the first six in to put out the fire, but the men he faced, Cecil Hendry and Canes scored six runs.

RONALD Marsee collected three of FSU's six hits, all singles.

In the second tilt Big Ed Lockhart's Seminoles trounced the 13-4 victory overthe mighty Miamians.

Florida State broke loose for seven runs in the last two frames of the game, collected 11 hits, and committed only two bobbles.

Before the Florida road trip the Seminoles topped the University of Georgia here 8-4.

Lockhart slated, who played tenth last year in the national meet, will be a definite threat in the diving events, both high and low board.

Carmine Regna took first places on the parallel bar and flying rings. Joe Regna copped the side horse, and Dick Platt ended first in tumbling. Bill Roetzheim did not enter the meet, having been through the long Pan-American Games.

Following the meet Coach Hartley Price announced that the 1952 Southern Gymnastics League tourney will be held at FSU with Duke as the alternate.

SEEKS ANOTHER CROWN—Ronald Mellon (above), last year's Florida State University batting champion with a .341, is well on his way to the 1951 slugging title. He is currently batting above .500. He will start behind the plate in Monday's opening game of a two-game series with Mississippi College.

FSU Netmen Face Indiana, Emory Teams

After having yesterday's Loyola match rained out, the Florida State University tennis team will be forced to play three matches this week-end instead of the scheduled two.

The Loyola contest will be held this morning at nine and the Seminoles will follow at 2:30 this afternoon against the Indiana University netmen. Tomorrow afternoon Florida State battles Emory. All matches will be played on the East campus courts.

The Seminoles now have a record of two victories and four losses.

Previous to yesterday's scheduled Loyola match the Seminole netters had beaten Concordia (Ft. Lenis) and Florida Southern and had lost to Georgia, Miami, Rollins, and Davidson.

The Seminoles fell to Davidson 6-3 in the most recent outing prior to yesterday. Larry Dickson, Ned Cooper and the doubles combina of Jim Berry and Jack Egan scored the Tribe points.

Dickson won his match 6-3, 8-6. Cooper triumphed 6-4, 7-5, and Berry-Egan won 6-2, 3-6, 7-5.

IN THE FSC victory, Dickson, Miami Hurricane ace and a 6-1 victory with Dickson's 8-6, 7-5, 6-3 victory over Bob Sierra saving a shutout.

DICKSON, Bob Lanigan, and Dan Bodo won singles matches from the Georgia netters and the Bulldogs had also taken three singles decisions. However, in the doubles the Athens outfit took the meet 5-4.

Following the opening, Georgia lost the Seminoles rebounded to crush Concordia 7-1.

Following the Indiana and Emory matches, the Seminoles will face the Jacksonville Navy crew here Saturday on the East campus courts.

Spring Football Drills Begin Monday—Veller

Coach Don Veller announced yesterday he will send his 1951 Florida State University football team through its first day of spring training Monday afternoon at the West campus athletic field. Uniforms were issued yesterday—a total of 46.

The Seminoles, who won all eight of the games on their 1950 slate, will have 36 lettermen and eight freshmen numeral winners returning for the coming season—pending Uncle Sam.

Five of those, Wes Benner, Harry Brinager, Jimmy Arnold, Ed Lockard, and Tommy Brown, will miss the drills because they are on varsity teams in the spring sports program.

Gone from last year's Dixie Conference championship squad are such stalwarts as Captain Duke Maisby, Sam Baker, Norman Rhinds, Ed Revlin, and Dub Kendrick, all of whom graduate in June; freshmen Wendell Dennis, Don Gladden, and Carmine Lombardi, who have been called into military service; Dwight Oehs and Cliff Powell, who have dropped out of school.

VELLER will have his entire starting backfield returned for the 1951 campaign. It includes Bill Driver, Nelson Italiano, Brown, and Mike Sellers. Reserve backs returning include Brinager, Mac Huey, Don Linton, Preston Bradley, Dick Turk Benner, Phillip Wes, Gary Polonis, Eddie Gray, and Ernie Hugget.

Veller's problem is expected to be at tackle, where he has lost his first five men, and at end where starters Nevvis and Eubanks have graduated. Captain-elect Bill Dawkins, Bob Schmelz, and Earl O'Neal gives him a fine nucleus to start on at guards, however, and lettermen Steve Kalenich and Monte May will be back at center.

ENDS returning from the 1950 squad include defensive star Arnold, Curtis Campbell, and Vic Saccopanli. Bob Wodrich and Lawrence Mero look the best of the returning backs and reserves Jack Phillips and George Spurlin will be back at guards.

Outstanding among the newcomers are end Lamar Massey, Bob Whitmer, and Ronald King.

Massey saw action with the University of Florida last year, Whitmer three varsity years at end for Purdue, and King was the starting fullback on the Tulsa University freshman team last year. Whitmer and King, who are out for baseball and track, respectively, will probably miss the drills.

Tribe Coach Devises New Score Method

Florida State University Coach Bill Odeneal has devised a new scoring plan for volley ball that he believes will make the game more popular with players and public alike. Coach Odeneal will present his plan to the United States Volley Ball Association when it meets at Springfield, Mass. May 8

One of the greatest weaknesses in the present volley ball today is the lack of good public relations, according to Odeneal. As the game is presented to the public thorough the various newsmediums today he said, the public is given only the game scores.

No effort is made and no plan has been accepted to give individual players on the participating teams credit for points scored, kills, aces, blocks or errors —all of which are essential parts of the game and if recorded would personalize it to a great extent.

"IF WE CAN record each individual player's accomplishments in the game as is done in basketball, baseball and other sports, Odeneal said, "I am sure it will make the game much more interesting for the players. It should also help to build up interest with the fans as they will be able to understand what is going on while watching, and be able to read about it the next day and know what players deserve most credit for their team's win."

The Seminole volleyballers have so far this year won the Florida AAU and the Memphis Mid-South Invitational tournaments. They will be entered in the National Intercollegiate tournament at Springfield May 10 and 11.

Gymnasts, Swimmers Enter National Tourneys at Ann Arbor and Austin

Florida State University's gymnastics and swimming teams left here earlier in the week to participate in the annual National AAU Championships in Ann Arbor, Mich. and Austin, Texas, respectively.

The Seminole gymnasts go into the tourney today at the University of Michigan after a fresh from taking the Southern Gymnastics League crown. The Tribe tallied 69 points in winning the meet, Georgia Tech following with 56, and Florida third with 30, Maryland fourth with 24, and North Carolina fifth with 8.

Representing Florida State at the NCAA at the Bill Roetzheim, Carmine Regna, Joe Regna, and Bill Vretton. The team left Tuesday night and held a workout at the University of Chicago Wednesday night.

Meet preliminaries will be held this morning with the final selated tomorrow. Others entering are Illinois State, Syracuse, Michigan, and Penn State.

THE NATIONAL NCAA swimming meet started yesterday, and ends tomorrow night. Florida State, co-champions of the Southern AAU and Florida AAU champs, will be one of the strong teams competing in the meet.

They are expected to be powerful in the 300-yard medley relay, 440-yard relay, 50 yard, and dashes. All-America Hoger Slater, who placed tenth last year in the national meet, will be competing.

● THE COURT IS COURTIN' TROUBLE

Bill Hayes has lost his office as Chief Justice of the University Court, an office he was elected to by 878 students in the recent UGA elections. He lost the office in a unanimous decision of the University Court. Five members of the nine member tribunal brought forth the decision.

The constitutional basis for the case (the section saying the person running for the office must have one year of experience on University Court before he may run) is an absurdity. One need but sit in on one session of the court to see that one year of experience in that environment would lead only to dire confusion and frustration instead of helping an inspiring Chief Justice to undertake the technical experience. No person could have with the University Court the better he would be equipped to mete out justice.

But that is the subject of another editorial. We have the restrictive clause and we are stuck with it until such time as a constitutional amendment rids us of this cancer in our court and substitutes it with a clause saying court members shall be pre-law or political science majors. Or we would be content to have members on the court who understand a few legal terms.

But, as we were saying, we have it and we are stuck with it and the new Chief Justice was caused out of office because of it. It was this clause that was used by the court in its decision but they made two grave mistakes in not allowing Bill Hayes to remain in office.

The first mistake was that the court should not have even considered the case. Bill Hayes was an elected official. And as an elected judge he cannot be removed except by impeachment. Furthermor, since there is no allowance in the student constitution for the removal of any officer, whether by impeachment or recall, no officer can be removed. The proper steps that should have been taken by th plaintiff were to ask the court for an injunction against Hayes before the election was run. The hearing should have also been held before the election was run, of course. As the plaintiff had no idea that her candidate would lose the election, that being, after all, the latest reason for the whole squabble.

Reason number two in a "point of law." On May 23 and 24, 1950 Article IV, the Judiciary article, was supposedly passed by the student body. In the University Government election held on April 10 and 11, 1950, Bill Hayes was elected Vice-president in charge of men's affairs. He could not possibly have had the chance of being elected to the University Court since one person cannot held two elective offices. This what is known as a retroactive enactment and cannot be held against any person before it was impossible for him to get the experience as required in the restrictive clause.

The court did not have an answer for this "point of law" and did not comment upon it in their opinion.

We leave it up to you? Did the court substitute means to an end for justice? We think they did.

● AT IT AGAIN

The classic news even of late is the most recent publication of the Ku Klux Klan.

The organization is famous for its habit of slamming everyone with no basis for their slurring remarks. It is also notorious for its subversive actions and its undemocratic organization. Yet, the editors of its official publication, the KKK News, have decided that they are capable of determining just who is loyal to America.

Apparently for a lack of anything else to do, they have found FSU as their target this time. The specific misladjustment seemed to be the preparation for marriage courses, which they branded as How to Prepare for Intercourse. It is quite evident that the pea minds have not yet advanced to the present day thinking that sex problems can be relieved by sex education. The conclusion may be drawn that many klansmen have little education at all.

The News blasted Kenneth Ballinger for befriending Negroes and for being a Methodist. It smelled contempt that the publisher of the Tallahassee Democrat was Jew. They couldn't be more wrong. Does this sound as if the Klan is a democratic organization?

Not content to perjure people in the local area, the News listed several movie stars whom they labeled out as "pro-communi-reds." They also hastened to add that most of them are also Jewish.

The thesis of the entire paper seems to be that all Jews are communists and all communists are Jews. If this is their theory, it can easily be disproved.

The paper shouts "America First" throughout, but doesn't back this patriotic statement with its actions. In hinting these people who are guilty of nothing more than belonging to the Jewish or the Methodist faith, the paper demonstrates that it is intolerant, biased and subversive.

Fortunately, the Klan's beliefs are scorned by intelligent, thinking people so long as these people are in the majority, the KKK will continue to be a subject of ridicule.

Perhaps the greatest crime of our democratic state is that organizations such as this are permitted to exist.

● TIME FOR ACTION

The recent picketing of administration offices in Westcott by the Inter-Fraternity Council was a trial of action when words no longer have effect. After weary hours of discussion with the administration in attempting to obtain the Suwannee Room for the annual IFC dance, all fraternities, with the exception of three, decided the only way to get action was to use action.

They wanted their dance in the dining hall, but after dickering with the administration since January they had their request refused several times. Shifts of boy passaded in an orderly manner in front of Westcott Tuesday before spring holidays.

Then the administration took over. President Johnston left the campus on business to the United Press saying that he was ignoring the pickets. He added that the fraternities broke their pledges with him around carrying he signs. Then a little later on in the day, he wasn't feeling quite so chipper. He threatened that unless the action was stopped the fraternities were apologized, he would have the fraternities national charters revoked. Quite a change from morning to evening.

The IFC members would decided that each fraternity would send President Campbell a form letter. The letter contained the fact that the picketers did not intend to bring force against any one person (President Campbell), but were only appealing to the administration as a whole. The letters continued by saying that the picketing was stated as an orderly manner by the students and the fraternities and obtaining the use of the dining hall for their dance.

The letters were misconstrued by someone, and when the press statements were released to Florida papers, the stories sounded as if the IFC apologized for the picketing. This did not happen.

The use of the picketing accomplished anything can not be denied. Whether it was didn't get the dining hall. But in time to come, the administration may not be so quick to ignore student pleas.

Dear Editor...

No Coverage
Dear Editor:

I was under the impression you were running a student news-paper. However, I was astounded at the apparent ease with which the FSU victory in the Mid-South Volleyball Tournament was calmly discarded.

If a team as significant as ours is not appreciated here at FSU, a lot of students' time and money will have been wasted.

Our VARSITY volleyball team is the power and possible future runner of collegiate volleyball in the South, as well as an inspiration to Florida high school teams.

Our team, in winning the Mid-South, proved our supremacy over YMCA as well as college and university teams in the South.

I realize that we are a minor sport here at "Football State University," but that is no reason to ignore us. Your sports editor alloted our sumptuous usses exactly 2-3 words at the end of his column Tuesday.

We are the only team on campus that boasts players that hold one All-American, four All-State, and three All Mid-South selections, and yet we get more acclaim in outside publications than we do in our own school paper.

For those who would like to see our team in action, instead of reading about it, they will be afforded that chance on March 30 and 31 when the Conference Tournament at West Campus Gym. All students are cordially invited in case the Flambeau forgets again.

Player and Manager,

Chessmen Needed
Dear Editor:

I would like to call to the attention of the several chess players on campus the challenges already received from two University sites in Florida for a match with a Florida State University team. If the reader is interested in being part of a team to visit either DeLand to meet Stetson's challenge, or to Miami, to meet the U of M team, he should contact me immediately or as soon as he can for plans.

Unfortunately, I was not able to avoid the challenges, being engaged in Correspondence Play (for the Florida Championship) with the present collegiate from Miami, among others. I am in the position to arrange matches with the present Chess Captain of the Stetson University team or with the U of M team. Chairman Kaleman. At the 1950-1951 United States Intercollegiate Championship meeting, Mr. Kaleman will be there for his college representing in fourth place for Miami is a field of 18 participating colleges, almost of such colleges as the U of Mich, U of Penn, Brooklyn College Yale University and Princeton (Columbia, of course, won).

Our main competition, therefore, would be with Miami—that is, if we thought we were strong enough to give them a good show.

'PON MY WORD

'WELL, IT'S PRACTICALLY CONSTITUTIONAL'

By BETSY BLANTON

Just before everyone migrated home for Easter, University Senate again defeated the bill setting up the powers of the Student Publications Board. This is the second time the measure has failed to pass the legislative body, and this should indicate that they don't want the board at all. Except for the fact that some time ago their powers were put to a proposal to kill the board altogether.

The committee chairman of the most recent statute has been assigned the duty of drawing up another bill, bearing in mind the previous objections of their colleagues.

This will be more than a little difficult for them to do, since their previous objection to the bill was that it violates the U S constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press, the only thing to get around that guarantee is to abolish the board.

Classic comment of this week's senate session came from Senator Mary Helen Speed's remark about some action they had just taken that was PRACTICALLY constitutional:"

Much of the dickering this time concerned the appointment of University Court members to fill vacancies left by interns.

The court is not the only group having that trouble. In every phase of student government several vacancies have occurred as a result of the intern program.

We think all for a measure which would prohibit interns from holding official office, as it is a serious inconvenience for the people who try to fill their shoes, especially if they have had no experience in the office.

For example, one class cabinet is minus all but two officers who were elected last year. Out of six elected officials, four are interning.

You may have gathered by now that it is the same cabinet which is lacking. Most of the boys graduation, senior class projects and so on is done by the second semester . . . but without the services of four elected officers.

The class president has appointed four people to hastily fill these offices during the absence of the interns. But it doesn't seem fair that they should do the work of officers who were elected because they thought themselves capable to perform the duties of the office they sought.

CORRECTION DEPARTMENT: In a recent column we stated that the University Court case of Eunice Thompson versus Paul Gunter concerned the alleged failure of the elections chairman to carry out the duties of his office.

Eunice later corrected our mistaken impression. The case actually concerns whether judiciary members should be elected in class elections or at the time of University Government elections.

The court will rule on this case Tuesday night.

Former Flambeau editor Helen Hobbs had us worried for a couple of days when a schooner on which she was a part of the crew was reported missing. The crew was participating in a race to Havana Cuba, when it got caught in a tropical disturbance around Key West.

Coast Guard and Navy planes sighted the vessel last night and it was headed back towards St Petersburg where the race began.

The schooner had been missing for three days.

AMONG OTHER THINGS

COURT FINDS ITSELF IN GREAT TURMOIL

By JERRY THOMAS

Apparently quite a few students misunderstood the student session — last week's University Court session found the court room filled to capacity.

James Ball, who was on stand in regard to his recent election to the position of Chairman of Judiciary, had two entertaining speakers in his behalf.

Charles Curiss and James Turnbull spoke briefly and amused the spectators—if not the court.

Dal Albritton and Bill Shipley, both of Sigma Nu Alpha Chairman, also spoke for Ball.

Pertinent information was presented by Ball's array of witnesses but the Court found itself in turmoil when Turnbull questioned the membership.

According to Senator Turnbull, three of the Supreme Justices, being the Chief Justice, were appointees who had not been ratified by the University Senate.

The Court, apparently took the Senator's word—they released no verdict.

In fact, they have openly stated that no action will be taken until their appointed membership has been legally ratified by the proper authorities.

The Court did, however, render a recent decision. (This was released before Turnbull's accusation).

In regards to the recent election of Bill Hayes to the position of Chief Justice, they disregarded the requirement of the years and recommended his expulsion from the office.

Although they have not the sovereign power to "boot" an elected official out of office—they said "dood it."

merely held their nose up high.

Hayes has been represented for him by Herb Marsh. It appeared quite obvious that the Court would have to agree with the legality of the election of the new Chief Justice—and "lo and behold," they reversed the obvious and appareat decision.

Copious data presented during last week's session may force the men, wielding clubs and bayonets, men to attend meetings.

REPORTER CELEBRATES APRIL FOOL

Members of the administration, shouting fiery oaths and throwing lighted matches at newspapermen, the Inter-Fraternity Council Office in the Alumni building Wednesday.

Carrying signs reading "Down With Bolshevism" "We Don't Care" "Free Speech Isn't Dead," "Hello, How Are You?", and others, the administration walked up and down the sidewalk in front of the IFC office.

Then, when it was learned that the picketers were angry at the IFC picketing of Westcott two weeks ago, the following press statement was made concerning the action:

"We," stated a spokesman for the picketers, "are mad! We, members of the Inter-Fraternity Union, watched over by the great seal of Florida and the spirit of Bilalalot, Seminole chief, have a right to picket."

At this point the Flambeau reporter was caught in the rush as the regular University Council meeting was adjourned and members descended on the picketers. Before the reporter recovered consciousness, he was caught doing a jig and holding a sign read "You Name It, You Can Have It!" He was later able to get the reason behind the picketing.

According to another spokesman, "We" or the members of the IFC office has an outside dial phone and we don't. We always have to go to Dorothy Dunn's and we're fighting mad. Someone just has to have a phone in the fraternity house and then the students were given this phone. After all, that doesn't follow our motto, SLFPD, Let Students Live Faculty First, Administration Always".

A board of arbitration was set up to settle the argument. This board included Bob Shirley, Gene Burnett, Mike Sellers and Cass Yonge, but from last reports, they are still arguing over parliamentary procedure.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

SOME GO NATIONAL OTHERS PICKET

By JOEL P SMITH

In spring a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of . . . love? . . . romance? . . . No, not at FSU where warm spring days. Cupid will have to take a back seat for a while as the fraternity men are concerned . . . Picketing and "the charter" dominate their thinking.

When you see a group of Greek brunettes picketing Dean in the Mezes, you can be sure that they are discussing problems that the sorority pledge sisterhoods decided to protest the negative answer they were given in reply to a request for the sorority cafeteria for the annual Interfraternity ball dance.

The picketing proved to be the most exciting thing on campus since co-education began. Scads of students took time out to walk by Westcott and talk to the slim carriers. The Alpha Chis even provided hot coffee for the picketers as they took brief breaks during the rainy eight hour protest.

At any rate of the outcome, there'll be one brotherhood left on campus. The men from dormitory 841 are "going nationial" today . . . Some say they are fortunate in not having a representative on the IFC. They would have been in the same boat with the frats if they had picketed.

This talk of on "going national" has proved to be quite a colorful caper around campus. The crew staged rush parties at the 841 dorm and decorated the 840rm plastered the campus with signs declaring this week as "Go 841 Week." They even went as to pointed out to passers by as the Theta Delta Iota mansion—home of 840ers.

The party boys even staged a parade through campus, and they sported "church keys," beer openers, on their shirts for pins. Activities for 849 also include a banquet, choosing a sister dormitory, serenading and closing with a big party Saturday.

A constitution to end all constitutions has been written for the group, Roy Horton says. 'Maybe the University Government would be wise to have it taken to their files!' One of the by-laws mentioned is that members must maintain an average at all times. It doesn't say what kind . . . grades or what it takes to qualify for membership in this group!

Since fraternities have been in a precarious situation during the past two weeks rumors are flying around that there will be several active alumni clubs in town. Some say that 841 men have organized an honorary social fraternity, Alpha Sig-ma Sigma. According to their president, Bill Lumb, the group will not ask to be admitted to IFC this spring. The ASSes are sporting identification keys with their name engraved in the middle. Their charter is written in pig latin, deviating from the usual Greek.

Poetically Yours

WHERE IS THE SCHOLAR?
By Jim Couch

Where is the scholar when class is out?
Is he acquiring knowledge later to pout?
You girls may think your man is bright,
And when he's away from you at night,
He's back at the dorm in a book engrossed,
Or in the library with Shakespeare's Ghost."
But, really, girls, for all your trust,
There are other things that rate a must.

There are sessions of bull, not hard to find,
And down the hall, not far behind,
You'll see the scholar at a game,
Where, win or lose, there's no talk of a dame.
And when the air has smoked its fill
He'll run to chance a slight thrill.
But, of course, this can't go on all night
For soon the dawn will bring the light.

A night gone by without a beer
Is a thought he simply will not hear.
So down to the Point or out to Red's
Over to Palmer's and back to Bess.
He has to get drunk or his night is spent
In utter darkness and deep lament.
So in the morn, after a heavy head,
Now Girls, don't tease and want to play;
For your guy's all shot and short of wit,
He's liable to rave and even spit.
And when you tell him he's foul and rudey,
He'll glare and say, "Hell, who wants to study?"

HEAR YE! HEAR YE!
(Anon)

Ye Royal Subjects of P S U,
Ye Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, too;
And ye Freshman with thy head so high,
Come hither child—do not cry.
For I bring good news to thee
Come all and listen close to me.
On the 21st night of April soon
That night there'll be a big full moon,
We'll all meet in Lafayette Mall
To dance to sing to play with ball,
And to give a little to the Student Chest
At the Sophomore Hop with all the rest!

Professor Reports On Fin University

By DR WILLIAM RANDEL

The Christmas break at the University of Finland began December 10 to January 16. A notice in the newspaper said that classes would resume on the 16th, but my colleagues laughed at that. They assured me that I would show up until the following week. Driven by the remnants of a Puritan conscience and the weight of long experience in American universities, I decided to meet my classes regardless, and posted a notice to that effect. But I had a free week, except for one class on Thursday, when these students showed up. Not until the third week did classes really full. One reason given is the desire of many of the students: they stay home as long as possible to save money. One of the boys was going to Tallahassee from Orlando.

The students were arrested after a long conference in a chapitt west of West campus. The culprits were attempting escape from the Soviet Chrysler.

The girls, after being called to the Dean of Women's office, explained that they thought they had done no wrong. "We thought it was in the Freshman-night book" in our dorm. We knew that our destination was a tea party, which it was." One of the girls explained that 'tea' is a slang name for marijuana. "After all," she said, "Father's advice to me is 'Be Free. How about not smoking marijuana."

The boys, when booked gave the aliases of "Fishface," "The Hood," "Hammer Head," and "Drummer Boy." Names of the girls were withheld.

Finland's first novelist, as well as a poet and dramatist is Paavilli's Juhani Aho, born day on Nov 27; Finnish Independence Day is Dec 6; Kalevala Day February 28. I don't know what else may come, holiday wise, between now and then—students, tell me, and colleagues versed in such and such a day in Finland, tell me. The University did not, however, share with the students the three-day spring holiday last week.

Dramatists Give Saroyan Play

'Our Town' Cancelled; Casting Troubles Great

Thornton Wilder's play Our Town, previously announced for production by the Department of Speech during April, has been replaced on the schedule by William Saroyan's Jim Dandy, according to a recent announcement by Dr George McCalmon, chairman of the drama area of the department. The new play will be offered here beginning on April 20.

"The casting difficulties of the Wilder play are too great for us to cope with," McCalmon said in discussing the reasons for the change. "However," he added, "in substituting Jim Dandy we are able to offer another outstanding play that is adjustable to our limitations."

MR CARL ZERKE, instructor in the department of speech and director of Jim Dandy, commented that "the Saroyan play has been called an endeavor to create a new art form and is a drama unlike any ever seen by our theatre audience." Mr Zerke, who is working toward his Ph D degree in speech, was formerly director of dramatics and assistant professor of speech and English at West Virginia Institute of Technology.

In addition to the showings here on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 20 and 21 and on the following Monday and Tuesday, April 23 and 24, Jim Dandy will also travel to Sarasota on April 16 for a performance at the John Ringling Museum during the Seminar on Modern Art.

Campus Drinking Allowed for Coeds

Yesterday, a statement was issued from the Dean of Women's office to the effect that women drinking on campus had been passed with a vote of 29 to 5 with three committees abstaining. The action took place at a grand assembly four weeks ago.

The passing committees stated that the women will be allowed to take their first "quickie" midnight Sunday. A list will be posted on all dormitories as to the approved bootleggers. For addresses and specific directions to all "refueling" stations check the master list in the Dean of Women's office.

Buying from unapproved places will be subjected to immediate restrictions.

Only average freshmen will be limited to one fifth per week, but if the freshman carries a "B" average or better she may buy an extra bottle. Freshmen are urged to carry their grade cards at all times. They are required to sign up for the bottles in the residence counselor's office.

There are three lists as to the type of liquor which FSU girls may drink. These lists will be posted in three classifications: Approved, Unapproved and Pending. An FSU testing committee has been set up. When last contacted at the county jail, their only comment on the recent testing was "Hic."

Several students have been interviewed to find the average college concensus of opinion on the recent committee approval. A roving reporter checked with an average Senior who stated, "What difference does it make. I've been drinking for the last four years anyway."

Average Junior — "Permission takes the thrill out of it."

Average Sophomore — "Just when I had cultivated a taste for beer, they give us whiskey permission."

Average Freshman—"I saw Three Husbands' and I fought it was wonderful."

Listed below are the rules which are set up by the Dean of Women's office pertaining to girls who drink.

1—Only authorized bootleggers may be contacted.

2—No student may set up any drinking bars without special permission from Dean of Men, Dean of Women, Dr Campbell Classical club, meteorology department, IPC, Board of Control, 1951 Legislature, Mrs Distelhurst, and Bob Fuson.

3—Students must sober up in time for eight o'clock classes.

4—Students will refrain from drinking in academic halls or during lecturing. This privilege is reserved solely for the lecturer.

Warren to Speak At LaGrange, Ga

Miss Katherine Warren, dean of women, will speak as principal speaker on "A Brief Survey of University Counseling Programs" at the state sheeting of the Georgia Association of Deans and Counselors at LaGrange College in LaGrange, Ga, tomorrow.

Miss Warren, also chairman of the national special committee on associate membership of the American Association of University Women, will present the report of her committee at the annual national AAUW convention in Atlantic City, April 9. The report represents a survey of the opinion and practices of all 1,100 branches of the AAUW regarding associate members.

Geology-Minded Couple Honored

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, (AP)—A young Cedar Rapids couple will soon be awarded doctorate degrees at the University of Minnesota—dividends of three summers spent in a joint geologic study in the Colorado Rockies.

Ralph Langenheim, assistant professor of geology at Coe College, here; and his wife, Jean, went over 200 square miles of Colorado mountain country with the scientific version of a fine-toothed comb. Ralph studied rock formations while his wife worked on plant distribution for their Ph.D projects. The two started the studies on their honeymoon in 1946.

Freshman Carnival Character Sketches

CHARLES CURTIS . . . President of the Freshman Class . . . has been thinking for months in advance about the success of the Carnival. As he calls meetings of the cabinet to order, he becomes the typical executive . . . calm, cool, never scuffed by the many small catastrophies, smoothing harried nerves on all sides . . . the picture of diplomacy. Charles is the Freshman representative on executive council, interested in the workings of UGA, and always for the Freshman class . . . Herein . . . the guiding hand.

ARDIS BOURLAND . . . Vice President of the Freshman Class . . . in charge of the carnival . . . the brains and the vitality behind the big undertaking . . . knows more about the offices and workings of this campus, from trips on carnival business, than practically any other Freshman today . . . Organized committee systems, assumed the role of overseer planning, thinking of all the small and very necessary things someone had to think of for a successful, smoothly running carnival. Need any information 'bout the carnival? Talk to Ardis! . . . Always a smile or a good word handy . . . no matter how busy ! !

ARRA MAE HISCOCK, the secretary of the Freshman class, has done a bang up job keeping minutes of the meetings, sending out reminders beforehand, and keeping reports from the chairmen of the committees . . . Always, full of ideas, always ready to pitch in with a helping hand where needed . . . Offtimes drafted for decoration and publicity ideas . . . keynote . . . smiling efficiency! She is taking a short hand course these days . . . could it be Arra Mae is finding keeping records a little "tedjus"?

JOYCE WHIDDON, treasurer of the Freshman class . . . a head full of numbers . . . would do justice to any bank . . . or the FBI so careful is she in keeping track of money. Main occupation these days? . . . Explaining in a painfully patient manner the system of requisition slips taking the place of greenbacks on this campus to all committee chairmen . . . A very important cog in the planning of the carnival . . . as all officers soon discovered . . . without Joyce . . . no money . . . without money, no carnival . . . and the show must go on!

Gym Team Comes Through Again; Wins NCAA Title

VOL. XXXVI, No. 43 PUBLISHED BY STUDENTS OF F.S.U., TALLAHASSEE, FLORIDA TUESDAY APRIL 3, 1951

FSU Takes NCAA Gymnastics Title

Florida State University's gymnastics team brought FSU its first national title, and possibly the state's first national white men's collegiate title, Saturday night by winning the National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual meet.

Florida State's Bill Roetheim[illegible] took individual honors at the Ann Arbor, Mich., meet by winning the all-around and all-around events and tallying 23 of FSU's 26 points.

Roetheim's performance almost completely knocked Illinois, the defending champions and 1951 favorites, out of first place but it was Carmine Reznna's fourth on the high bar which gave the Semiles their three points and the title.

It was Coach Hartley Price's NCAA gymnastics crown and his seventh national championship. He had previously directed the Illini to several national titles.

Illinois and Southern California tied for second place in the meet with 23½ points each.

Trailing the three leaders were Navy with 18¼; Kent State, 17; Syracuse, 16; Michigan State, 15½; Army, 9½; Michigan, 6½; Temple, 7; Iowa and Penn State ended with three and one-half points [illegible].

Roetheim's brilliant performance included first in the high bar and all-around divisions, thirds in the side horse and parallel bars and sixth on the flying rings.

The summaries:

Side horse—Lee Minnith, Syracuse, 96; Vail Hoffman, Michigan State, 95; Bill Hosier, Illinois, tie for third; John Mitchell, Illinois, and Mihalis Pennekamp, Penn State, 93½.

Flying rings—Al Sotya, Kent State, 102; Jim Wells, Gene Rebhuth, Syracuse, 97½; Bill Southern, Florida State, 97½; Bob Wilson, Kent State, 96; Dave Bonner, Penn State, 95½.

High Bar—Bill Roetheim, Florida State, 97½; Reznna, Illinois, 96; Bill Hosier, Illinois, 95½; Bob Wilson, Kent State, 95; Jim Bagley, Southern California, 93½; Chester Segna, Florida State, 93; Stan Perlman, Illinois, 92½; Bill Hosier, Illinois, tie for fifth, 92½.

Parallel Bars—Bill Bonker, Southern California, 98; Bonnell, Joe Kotys, Kent State, 97½; Bill Roetheim, Florida State, 97; Jim Berg, Syracuse, 96; Charles Johnson, Illinois, 95; Bob Bonnell, Illinois, 94½.

Rolling Rings—Mel Bonnell, Michigan State, 98; John Mitchell, Illinois, 97½; Jack Rudesy, Army, 96; Bob Ellis, Southern California, 95½; Bill Southern, Florida State, 95; Bill Roetheim, Florida State, tie for fifth, 95.

All-Around—Bill Roetheim, Florida State, 566.10; Jim Bagley, Southern California, 561.60; Mel Bonnell, Michigan State, 548; Stan Perlman, Illinois, 547.50; Bob Bonnell, Illinois, 546.50; Jim Berg, Syracuse, 546.40; Bill Southern, Florida State, 545.50; Jack Rudesy, Army, 545.30; Bob Ellis, Southern California, 545.20; Dave Bonner, Penn State, 544.50; Bill Bonker, Southern California, 543.50; Jim Wells, Syracuse, 543.40; Gene Rebhuth, Syracuse, 542.50; Bill Hosier, Illinois, 542.30; Bill Bonnell, Illinois, 542.20; Vail Hoffman, Michigan State, 542.10; Lee Minnith, Syracuse, 541.90; Chester Segna, Florida State, 541.80; Joe Kotys, Kent State, 541.70; Mihalis Pennekamp, Penn State, 541.60; Al Sotya, Kent State, 541.50; Bob Wilson, Kent State, 541.40; Reznna, Illinois, 541.30; Bill Hosier, Illinois, 541.20; Stan Perlman, Illinois, 541.10; Charles Johnson, Illinois, 541; Ernie Evans, Minnesota, 541.

1951 Florida Legislature Begins Stormy Two Month Workout

Jr-Sr Voting Held To Name Royalty For Annual Prom

Final voting for the Junior-Senior prom king, queen and court will be held tomorrow and Thursday, according to Peggy Sparkman, prom chairman.

The prom will be held Saturday night, April 7, in the Suwannee room. The dance will last from 9 p m to 1 a m, with Bob Cole's orchestra providing the music.

Committee chairmen who have been at work are Jean Flynn, Dawson; Lucille Hamilton, Jean Ermetsi, decorations; Berry Williams, invitation; Barbara Middlebrooks, voting; Eunice Barnes, refreshments, and Evelyn Rauleson, publicity.

The theme offers a surprise for those attending the dance. Decorations chairmen say that at 11:30 clouds will burst over the dance.

The king and queen with their court will be presented at intermission.

The court consists of three junior boys, three junior girls, three senior boys and three senior girls. All these are chosen for their service to the school and leadership.

Junior Class Meets Tonight in Alumni To Discuss Projects

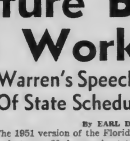
Will Pennell, Junior class president, announces a "most important" meeting of the entire Junior class this evening from 5 to 6 in the Alumni auditorium.

One main topic to be discussed at the meeting is the possibility of sponsorship by the Junior class of free movies on Friday nights, such as the ones offered last summer.

This will be followed by a discussion of other class projects including the Junior-Senior prom which will be held next Saturday evening from 8 p m to 1 a m. Special permission has been granted women students until 1:30 a m for this occasion. It is one of the three affairs per year for which special permission is granted.

Also on the agenda will be reports from the budget, gift-bench and beautification committees. Committee chairmen are requested to consolidate their information so that it may be given quickly and efficiently.

There will also be a report from the book exchange which, this fall has handled over 2,000 books and sold oder 1,000 of these. A report concerning the bulletin board given the Religious Workers committee is scheduled, also.



"Anyone who desires to run for class offices." Will continued, "may announce their candidacy during the meeting."

"I can't over-emphasize the importance of this meeting," Pennell said, "and I urge every member of the class to attend."

Warren's Speech on Condition Of State Scheduled at 3 P M

By EARL DOBERT

The 1951 version of the Florida Legislature begins a predicted stormy 60 day workout today with Governor Fuller Warren's message on the condition of the state scheduled for 3 p m.

GOVERNOR WARREN . . . delivers speech today

Foremost on the agenda, collectively speaking, is the adoption of the proposed budgets for Florida State University, the University of Florida and Florida A and M College for Negroes.

MOST legislators are of the opinion that financial problems are high on the list for consideration during this session. The minimum foundation program alone calls for the raising of $20,000,000 extra. The entire budget for the next two years totals $243,000,000.

The Florida State University request is $11,542,464 to defray expenses for the next two years. The budget, which was requested by University President Doak S Campbell to the State Budget Board, calls for an increase of only one and one-half per cent over the previous bi-ennium.

If this request is granted, salaries of 582 administrative and faculty personnel will be increased and 118 new positions will be created.

IN OTHER action, the Legislature will consider a constitutional amendments calling for reorganization of the executive, legislative and judicial branches; new measures to curb crime in the state; a possible reorganization of the state welfare program and ways and means of raising new revenues.

The legislators got together for the first time last night in the traditional house and Senate caucuses. They will, through the committees of nominating speakers and selecting pages for the next 60 days.

STUDENTS, faculty and staff can sit in on sessions of the legislature if they so desire. Galleries for visitors are provided in both the Senate and House. Flambeau's coverage of the 1951 Legislature will be highlighted with pictures, feature series, columns and editorials.

State Symphony Set For Final Concert

Kuerstainer Says Program Will Include Novelty, Spark

Popular favorites and symphonic "high jinks" will be the keynote of the day when the State Symphony of Florida gives its final concerts of the season next Monday afternoon and evening, April 9. Karl Kuerstainer, director of the orchestra, has announced a program of fun for everyone for the children's matinee at 2:30 and the evening pop concert at 8:15 p m. both in Westcott auditorium.

While it will not be quite a policy of "anything goes," there will be plenty of novelty and spark in this program with a surprise in every package, Dean Kuerstainer said. Both the children's program and the evening concert have been planned to provide enjoyment and the pleasure that comes of listening to old favorites.

Among the numbers to be included on the programs will be the "Unfinished Symphony" of Schubert and "Bolero" of Maurice Ravel. Other pieces will be the "Fere Gynt Suite" of Grieg, "The Blue Danube Waltz" of Johann Strauss and some orchestral surprises.

Tickets for those who do not hold season books are available in the School of Music office. Prices are $1 for the matinee and $2.40 for the evening performance.

Tolly Ho Staff Meet

There will be a meeting of all Tally-Ho staff members this afternoon at 5:30 in 402 Longmire building. Staff members are urged to be prompt.

Should Let Germany Re-Arm Says Cole

"It is high time that we agreed a peace treaty with Germany, brought her in as a co-signer of the Atlantic Pact treaty, and allowed her to re-arm under the commitments of the European re-armement program." Dr Robert Taylor Cole, told an audience here Friday night.

Director of graduate studies in Political Science at Duke University, Dr Cole spoke under the auspices of the department of political science discussing the topic "How Democratic is Western Germany?"

The speaker was consultant of Overseas Military Government of the United States on labor relations in Berlin, Germany, in 1948, and won the medal of freedom in connection with his work abroad.

Senior Class Prexy Calls Meeting Thurs

There will be a senior class meeting Thursday night at 8 p m in Wescott auditorium. Senior class president Bob Lanigan has urged all seniors to be present. Important information concerning graduation will be given at this time

Orders for graduation announcements must be placed on or before April 15 at the bookstore.

Foster Is Soloist In Carnegie Hall

Sidney Foster, professor of piano, will play in Carnegie Hall Saturday evening. He will be guest soloist with the Philharmonic-Symphony performing the Concerto in C Minor by Beethoven.

The following day Prof Foster will appear on the radio program, "How many Chesters" broadcast over the ABC network every Sunday at 12:30 p m.

Need Cigarettes? Guesss How Many In Chessie's Leg

How good are you at guessing? Well, that is the only talent necessary to win two earions of Chesterfield cigarettes by giving the nearest correct answer to the question, "How many Chesterfields in Miss Chessie Field's leg?"

You'll find Miss Chessie Field's leg in a prominent place over at the Mecca. This shapely item is filled with Chesterfield cigarettes and the contest rules are on the nearby poster. These rules are very complicated and consist of two definite steps. "1. Write your name, address and guess on a Chesterfield wrapper. Drop your per wrapper but you may guess as many times as you like. 2. Put your guess in the box." Duplicate correct answers will split prize.

The "Miss Chessie Field's Leg Contest" will continue until Friday and contest winners will be announced in next Tuesday's Flambeau. So don't forget to drop by the Mecca with sharpened wits and pencils to try your guess.

Flying High Show Slated for 3 Nights

The third annual circus, "Flying High," is set to open April 19 for a three-night showing in the Doak S Campbell Stadium. "Plenty of good, comfortable seats will be available for every spectator this year," Coach Joel Hartki says. The circus will perform before the West side of the stadium each night, providing 7500 seats for each performance. Nine hundred seats will be reserved each night.

INITIATED under the supervision of Coach Hankin, assistant professor of men's physical education, the circus has grown to include over 200 students and has gained nation-wide attention through the press-radio, magazines and newsreels.

The 1951 circus will include five rings, three stages and four high acts with all of its performers and a 35-piece circus band.

The two-hour show this year will range from acts of tumbling and hand-balancing to intricate aerial feats on the trapeeses and high wires. An actual professional lighting system and hundreds of flying pennants will give the show the atmosphere of a professional circus this year.

AN AERIAL leader act will be included in the new numbers, starring in this number are Bud Groce, Fred Darkow, Jolene Belcher, with Nancy Bennett, Gail Tomlinson and Patsy Gates.

"The Tiger Act" will be another 1951 addition. Girls will be dressed as tigers performnig tricks directed by a typical "lion tamer." In this act are Shirley Knight, Darla Kittrell, Martha Hunter, Bobbie Jones, Ruth Spencer, Jean Church, and Dale Blair.

One of the few acts worked above a safety net because of its dangerous feats will be the new "Perch Act." Featured in these "Balance" and "Support" tricks will be Bobbie Jones and Charlie Floyd.

TWO HIGH pole acts have been added to this year's circus. These two acts are performed by girls doing neck spins and ankle spins on high porches towering 35 feet in the air.

The "Rigging Clown" act will be an added comedy for 1951. A suspended double high bar will be worked by "clowns from Clown Alley." Jimmie Neal, Jack Price, Johnny Fortune, John Haycock, and Al Schmels. In typical clown costumes, these "clowns" will do monkey rolls, fly aways, leaps from bar to bar and giant swings.

FROSH INDULGE in a little penny-pitching at the 14th annual Freshman Carnival. This was only one of the many activities featured at the Carnival which was held Saturday night in the women's gym.

Junior Class Exchanges Ideas With Other Schools

Ideas for the Junior-Senior prom have been exchanged with other schools in the state, according to Peggy Sparkman, prom chairman.

Miss Sparkman has received letters from Florida Southern, Stetson, Rollins, Miami and Florida State University.

One Killed, 2 Hurt In Auto Accident

One Florida State University student was killed and two others injured when an automobile in which they were riding left the highway and struck a gullily pole, near Bell, Florida, Sunday.

Edward J Jones, 20, of Oakland Park, driver of the car was killed, while his two companions, Jerry Wood and Patricia Anne Cantrell, both 18 and both of Miami were injured.

Miss Wood suffered a fractured collarbone, bruises and shock and Miss Cantrell had a possible leg fracture and bruises.

Florida Highway Patrolman, Valton Sheffield said the accident occurred at 2 a m at a curve on state road 80.

The girls were treated at Belle Glade hospital and then removed to a Miami hospital.

Initial Theta Delta Iota Chapter Finish 'Go National' Ceremonies

"Go National" week has gone. The Theta Delta Iotas, often referred to merely as the 84Gers, are now definately, finally and completely "gone National." This is the first chapter of TDI to be installed.

Week-end ceremonies began Friday in the Suwannee room when the 84Ers held their first annual banquet. The troops entered in military fashion led by a white field with an engineer's cap with a bicycle horn in the center. MARCHING to the music of Bessie Bee's trumpet and Dick Schimmen's drums they circled the dining hall and proceeded to their elaborately decorated "reserved" tables.

Before being seated, the troops sang in chorus "I've Been Working on the Railroad." A whistle blew and they took their seats ready to rise again and get in line for dinner. No table service was provided even for the 84Ers.

CEREMONIES included the reading of telegrams received from well known celebrities including one from President Truman in which he expressed his regret that he was unable to attend the banquet. This was followed by the presentation of a cake written especially for the TDIs by George Boldi.

Next came a series of antics well designed to fulfill their ideals of promoting"—general laughter and calamity at all times." This was followed by a speech of a more serious vein expressing sincere thanks to all "who have helped make the 84Ers "Go National" week-end so successful," and reaffirming their "We Ain't Mad With Nobody" pledge.

FESTIVITIES were climaxed with a parade Saturday morning throughout the entire East campus. It was called momentarily for "official" dedication ceremonies and then continued to a predetermined destination for a 84Ger picnic where refreshments were served.

THETA DELTA IOTA'S parade down Park Avenue in conclusion to their "Go National" week recently. Formerly an ordinary group of men living in barracks 549, the boys attracted local attention by their novel fraternal installation.

Forum Discusses Problems Of Democracy

Problems of democracy were discussed by Dr Robert Taylor Cole, director of graduate studies in political science at Duke University, at the Forum meeting held in the Union building last night.

Dr Cole spoke on the subject "How Democratic is Western Germany?"

Campbell Outlines Defense Program

The manner in which colleges can serve in the defense mobilization program was outlined by President Doak S Campbell before the Sixth Annual National conference on Higher Education. The meeting was held at Chicago yesterday.

More than 1,000 of the country's top educators were present at the conference which was sponsored by the National Education association. The college president said, he now appears that the various armed services recognize the essential values of effective teaching in basic college courses as a means of meeting their needs.

FLAMBEAU EDITORIALS

● FORMIDABLE CAMPAIGN WAGED AGAINST WELFARE

GUEST EDITORIAL
By BILL PATTERSON

Led by Florida's most zealous, exposing and spectacular newspaper, a formidable campaign is being waged against the state's welfare program. Cleverly timed this campaign is reaching its highest pitch at the time of the convening of the legislature.

There are many who feel that this movement is designed, not merely to correct specific, isolated abuses of the program, but to discredit it generally. These astute political observers, to prove their point, call attention to the use by opponents of the program of the propaganda technique called transfer. Notations of alleged abuses by welfare recipients are followed closely by warnings that the desire for security is destroying freedom. The implication is that governmental aid tends to produce an irresponsible and shiftless citizenry, that the populace is being led by the lure of easy money into a dark abyss of statism. And while the ostensible purpose of the expose is to focus attention on specific shortcomings of the welfare program, the impression it conveys is that the program itself is intrinsically bad.

It is to be hoped that when the legislators turn their attention to the welfare program they will differentiate between measures proposed to correct defects of the program and those designed to cripple it and make it ineffectual.

For there are still among us a few diehards, situated so that they can exert political influence, who still believe that all humanitarian laws and policies are Marxist-inspired, and that these measures lead inevitably to state socialism. By their fears these men reveal a shocking lack of faith in the American people, and their reasoning leads them into a trap set by Marxist legicians, that humanitarians and capitalism are incompatible.

Actually there is a liberal middle way, and it must be followed. Capitalism can be humane; in a society such as ours limited humanitarian policies can be followed by a government which safeguards and encourages a free enterprise economy.

Now, more than ever before, the United States, and that means Florida, too, must demonstrate that the political middle of the road is the best to travel, ha our economic system of progressive capitalism does have a heart, that we Americans do have a genuine sympathy for the underprivileged in whatever circumstance, and that we do believe in the ideal of the universal dignity of man.

So, let us be judicious in handling our welfare program for it is functioning proof that we not only preach goodness but practice it as well.

● IT'S HUMILIATIN'

One of the most humiliating and embarrassing experiences suffered by many students is that of writing a "campus cop" interrupt their love-making.

The usual procedure is for the policeman to turn the girl's name in to her residence counselor who attempts to straighten the matter up through counseling. And that is the end of the matter.

Much indignation over the procedure has been evinced, and in some instances it is well founded. Sometimes an over zealous policeman molests students engaged in an innocent good night kiss. And natural indignation results.

The purpose of the policemen is not to annoy students "doin' what comes natchely," according to the dean of women, Catherine Warren. Their duty is to prevent those few who have permitted their moral standards to drop from casting a reflection on the entire student body. It is inevitable that all of us must be subject to the restrictions which are imposed for the benefit of a few careless ones.

The administration has no desire to prohibit love from blooming on campus. Its only desire is to prevent thoughtless students from destroying the good reputation of FSU for which others have worked for so many years.

● FINGERS CROSSED

In any business enterprise records are an important thing, be they financial or production records. So it is with a newspaper. In the newspaper business, files of previous issues are an important record and an invaluable source of information.

Two years ago, the Florida Legislature recognizing the value of newspaper files as a source of information appropriated the Florida Flambeau's bound files for 1947 and 1948, during its investigation of alleged Communist activities on the state campus.

The legislators promised to return these files as soon as they were finished with them. But for the past two years the Flambeau staff has cooled its heels waiting for the return of the files. Many times needed information has been unobtainable or involved unnecessary expenditures of valuable time because of the absence of the files.

Returning them would have been a minor matter for the Legislature. Any Flambeau staff member would have gladly made the trip downtown to retrieve them. But our pleadings have gone unheard and unanswered. We are again asking the 1951 Legislature to return the files, and we're keeping our fingers crossed.

● AN INTREPID CREW

Supplying the much needed lighter note in the news, the intrepid crew of Barracks 849 successfully completed their "Go National Week."

All the pomp and ceremony attached to any "celebration" of this importance was displayed. The 849ers, with their shiny "frat" pins and hep headdresses, brought game and acolaim to their ramshackled residence.

Proudly parading to end their activities for the week, Theta Delta Iota was feted by dormitory teas, a dinner in the Suwanee Room, a special song by Georgie Bee and his boys and other varied and sundry entertainees.

But now that the "nationalization" is complete we have left with some unanswered questions about the 849ers.

Why can't we substitute the 849ers constitution for the student document? It makes more sense.

Will the 849er group be awarded one of the new frat dormitories now being constructed?

Will the 849ers picket if they are not allowed to use the Suwannee room for their annual dance?

But even if these questions remain unanswered we know that Theta Delta Iota will be one of the more popular groups on campus. Every male member of the campus will be clamoring to join just so they can wear the pin. It is to be a universal appeal. What beer can opener doesn't?

● ANOTHER TITLE

Florida State University's incomparable gymnastics team has won FSU's first national title.

Led by versatile Bill Roetsheim, the Semiholes nosed out both Illinois and Southern California to bring the NCAA crown to Florida State.

Coach Hartley Price—it was his seventh national gym crown—and his hard working Tribe may have brought the first national white meat championship to the state of Florida.

Congratulations, Coach Price for a job well done.

Dear Editor

Dick Tracy—FSU Version

Dear Editor:

I was under the impression that FSU was a co-ed college with an enrollment of students mature enough to run their own social affairs. Experiences throughout the campus during this past week have brought out the fact that the administration has informed their "Dick Tracy" policemen to stick their noses into all cars on campus to find out the topic of discussion between couples. They usually retreat with such wise-cracks as: "Go some place else to do your love making" or "Whatever you do be careful."

A friend of mine was sitting out in front of a dormitory with a girl on their first date when they were interrupted by a blue-suited figure who told them—"The dean have told us to stop all petting on campus."

This session of the deans will only lead students to go elsewhere for their good-night "hand shake."

JOHN WATSON.

He Was Fired

Dear Editor:

This morning when I reported for work in the dining hall I was handed the enclosed note.

(Note: Jack Hanks has been employed as of March 28, 1951. He is scheduled to work 7 meals from 5:30 to 7:30. Please pick up his meal ticket when he reports to work Tuesday morning.)

The job didn't mean too much to me, but due to attending school next year and not so naturally any money that I can save helps. In this letter, however, I am protesting vigorously to the absolute, tactless, Hitleristic attitude, and abruptness with which I was "fired" (if you wish). I suggest that the power to fire a worker in the dining hall be given to Dr. Conklin.

I was fired for the following reason. I worked two hours a day for lunch and dinner. On Thursday of last week I finished classes in the morning. I knew that during the afternoon I would be leaving for home, so that morning I only worked one hour. That paid me for my lunch. I just fired for not donating an hour of work to the poor starving, "going-broke" dining hall.

Another complaint, Mr. Editor, —they can't get the dining workers to get three meals a day for two hours (not 2½) work?. They receive a supplement at the University of Florida. Is the dining hall really going broke or just where is the money going? They even serve more at the University of Florida for LESS. and on top of that, pay their workers more. I think that there are a lot of us here, including some professors with whom I have lunched, that would like for the "Administrators" in the dining hall to publish in the Flambeau statements of their accounts

'PON MY WORD

BLAME, BUCK PASSING NOT IMPORTANT

By BETSY BLANTON

Several weeks have passed since the distribution of the traffic stickers for student cars and we still have no traffic court.

Senator Ronald Keene, who is in charge of the court, blames it on the Legislative Reference Bureau, which in turn says the delay is the fault of the University Senate.

The impression is that it is a little bit of both, but placing the blame is not as important as getting the situation right this way. Keene has said that the court should be in operation smoothly by next year.

Perhaps we don't understand the intricate ways of red tape that it's necessary to go through to get the court set up, but after three months seems like a long time to get one measly bill set up.

MEETINGS I HOPE YOU WON'T MISS: First, the opening session of the legislature which Governor Fuller will probably be there to deliver his opening address . . . Adoption of the new University Court tonight. They're supposed to have Senator Keene and Paul Garrison came . . . If you're a senior who doesn't know what's going on, you should be interested in the senior class meeting Thursday . . . Dean Dorothy Bon Lanigan says announcements concerning the junior- senior prom and graduation procedures will be made. The time is 4 p.m. and the place, Westcott auditorium.

• • •

Last semester Dean of Women Katherine Warren addressed the women's convocation. In her talk, Dean Warren tried to outline the administrative policy toward what is commonly referred to as petting on campus.

Dean Warren's liberal policy was agreeable to a majority of the women students present at the meeting, and, incidentally, to us.

Of late, we have received many letters and verbal complaints about the alleged attempts on the part of FSU policemen to stop ALL love-making on campus. Even those who have agreed to the innocent act of kissing a date good night in front of her dormitory have been nabbed by the police.

We talked to Miss Warren about the problem and found that the administrative policy on this matter is unchanged. That is, they do not frown on customary methods of displaying affection.

It is when a couple gets dangerously close to the breaking down of decent social standards that policemen are asked to interfere. Often the "Campus cops" make mistakes, which is only human, after all.

Your next question is undoubtedly, Why do all of us have to suffer from the mistakes of a few? Your guess is as good as mine, but this rule is not the only situation in which a majority has to abide by a law which is established for the minority.

The principle behind the need for the policemen is valid. Our only objection is to the policemen themselves. We don't think it necessary to blow a whistle, use blinding flashlights and loud, gruff tones when dealing with students. Most law enforcement officers have to handle criminals . . . and we don't know of any students who may be classified in that category.

We should like to recommend that the Executive Council ask the policemen to be more courteous to students. We should also like to remind them that it is not their duty to reprimand us . . . after all, we have an abundant supply of counselors to do that.

We had a call from a reliable source that all is not right with the Student Union Board that has the social fund for campus affairs. Perhaps we are wrong in believing that students should be represented when their money is handled, but we think this committee is no exception.

Noticably absent from their confabs is a student representative to help plan campus social functions.

SPLENDID COVERAGE OF LEGISLATURE PLANNED

By JERRY THOMAS

Each year the Cavaliers, national dancing honorary for men, and the Garnet Quills, national honorary for women, combine their talents and offer dancing instructions of every type.

The dancing lessons, which are given every Tuesday night at seven at the Student Union Building, are extended to every student on campus.

Jim McCamis, president of the Cavaliers announced at a meeting yesterday that the Cavalier-Cotillion weekly dancing sessions are proving to be a great success.

McMann reported that this year's lessons appear to have attracted more students than previously, and further indicated that the number of students attending each Thursday evening continues to increase.

"However," McMann continued, "this increase in attendance and interest and will continue to instruct as long as the students attend the weekly instructions."

FANCY THIS

WILL FSU COURSES CAUSE FUR TO FLY?

By JEANNE O'RIORDEN

A prime example of what American journalism should not be is the recent publication of "Kluxer News." It supposedly contains copies of issues of the Klan's Alabaster people about the Ku Klux Klan and it's mimeographed on paper. Is it mutic to say that it's a phoney paper. But its subject matter is much too serious to be carried opinion, that it cannot truthfully be a part of the press.

The whole purpose of newspaper's one sentence seems to be anti-Semiticism. It's quoted from parts of the "lead" story concerning FSU electing in the numerous errors: "At FSU there are many courses which if investigated by the Internal Revenue Service is going to cause the fur to Fly." It then goes on to say that this is the reason because the Leon County legislature and the Florida Legislature are controlled by Jews and the teachers on campus are Jews. Is that so?

The writer of the KKK News goes on to say that Jews or most of them anyway are internationalists. Oh, brother, how stupid to hide our heads. Internationalists!

An internationalist (I said it first) is a person who knows that in this century, no country can be independent of any other country. He knows that one country depends on other nations for trade, commerce, manufacturing, farming, and many other industrial products. He realizes that countries banded together in these things and in friendship can give more protection from any disaster, be it war, famine, or disease than could one nation by itself.

Before the first World War there were isolationists who thought that America should stay out of the war. She almost managed it, as possible, but then realized that it was impossible. After the war, those same isolationists caused America to stay out of the League of Nations. Thereby causing its fall to power. Isolationism.

CAMPUS CAROUSEL

REPORTER'S RETROSPECT OR THEN AND NOW

By JOEL P SMITH

Did you ever wonder what the atmosphere was like around the campus when we were Florida State College for Women? If you have some free time in between classes and getting those crippling run up to the Flambeau office and glance through the bound copies of old Flambeaus. You'll be surprised at the load.

Your columnist broused through the April 3 issue for an account of what was happening to the women twenty years ago. Here it is. It was haven't changed too much . . . the school was still getting recognition in the field of sports . A front page story, 75 years ago today, stated that college track records were broken. Simpsie Yarborough set a new record for javalen throw at 83-11, ever the previous record of 82 feet.

The F club had goals once back in those days. At the track meet the Goats "showed off the ability and ingenuity" . . . No, things haven't changed too much with the F club, either.

Student body elections were quite the thing a quarter of a century ago. A committee of secretary of collecting convocation fines. And the women are still interested in both the inconveniences of convo.

The Georgia Bulldog orchestra played the convocation and the gals were really in a stir . . . it wasn't just every day that men came to the campus! The Flambeau plugged the orchestra to high heaven—complete with pictures and all.

A column, "With the Faculty Wives" was started in order to be in the limelight. They didn't have too much ever year-end party, but they ran a series of stories on the faculty earlier this year.

The paper was making progress back then. An editorial sang the praises of progress by announcing that the paper would strive to print eight tabloid pages each week in the future.

In the April 3 issue one female wrote an article entitled, "A College Girl Considers." She stated that, "many people misunderstand the college girl at times and think she is having a ball off something new. This is not the case at all. She is merely trying to do what she thinks is the best and may in some way benefit the world at large."

My how philosophies change! I wonder what words an FSU co-ed might use to express herself today—a lots of people still think that trying to pull off something new.'

The writer continues, "What very few realize is that the college girl has a definite philosophy — for almost every college girl has one—but there are two outstanding qualities: One, wholesomeness, the other broadmindedness. With these two qualities as a guide in her undertakings a college girl will succeed and attain the things for which she has been leaning forward." (No, things are pretty much the same . . . the females are still after the same goal—wifehood.)

When I devote an idle minute
To write a note with nothing in it,
Please do not flare 'cause it's so small
For I might as we have writ at all.
But I'm aware that word is due,
But I declare there's nothing new.

P. S.
I'll love you so if you will send
A little dough—a dividend;
For my finances these for hardened
That I'm in dire financial straits;
So don't forget to write me quick,
Just twenty bucks should do the trick.

FRIENDS
By Doug Alley

We've seen a lot of life together
We've done the town and then
We've suffered through the stormy weather
And watched the sun again.
We've smiled, we've laughed, we've talked and walked and knit our souls as one;
We've found that friendship can erase
The miles across the lands.

A gentle hand upon a shoulder
A smile of courage bold;
A voice that strengthens—head held high
Can shield a heart from cold.
We've argued; fought, and laughed anew,
We've wasted time and more;
I know that time cannot erase
A friendship such as ours

Professor Reports On Fin University

(This is the third in a series of articles by Dr. Randel on people elsewhere to learn Finnish and on leave from the FSU English department who is acting as a visiting professor of American literature at Helsinki University in Finland. Other articles will be reprinted from time to time as Dr. Randel sends them to the Flambeau.)

By DR WILLIAM RANDEL

Academic attire for the rare commencement exercises and functions is full dress suits for men, white formals for women. Full dress Tuesday, too, with special lop hat, pleated in front, with the University fire of gold in three hours to see the cadets the Great Church. Later the line was longer, and people had to wait six hours or more. They here the church open until 7 the next morning, so many thousand people. The Finnish government is soon to be established. There is one Professor of Literature for the whole country, with the exception of Swedish, and this fluental language: passive facial expressions, and pointing. I wonder how many stonekeepers in the world would be needed.

THE BIGGEST event since we've been here was Ianmaerrien dash, and the state funeral on February 8. We stood in the middle. The men graduates wear gold rings, with the lyre, on their index fingers.

ENGLISH HAS been growing rapidly as a subject, and a second professorship in English language is soon to be established. There is one Professor of Literature for the whole country, with the exception of Swedish, and this fluental language: (Slavic, Finnish, Swedish, Greek, etc) there is a Professor of Phisology, who may have a docent and a lecturer or two to help him. Salaries are low, and everyone on the faculty is rather expected to have outside sides of some sort. Translating, reviewing, tutoring, textbooks. If a man is versatile enough to teach two subjects half of his health can stand it, he is paid two salaries. In some elementary courses, the teacher gets no salary at all but is paid so much per student. The average man has only a car, and of course no student. At concerts and other events at the governor's mansion that is usual to see four or five cars parked by the entrance. The lecture by Ralph Bunch was an exception because the president seems in his vicinity. Diplomats and many of the diplomatic corps.

ALL THRU THE educational system the study of languages. Swedish and Finnish are both official languages, and at an early stage a third is started: German, perhaps, or French. By the time a student enters the University he has begun his fourth, which these days is often English. Speaking knowledge of three, plus ability of reading and writing, for Finns realize they are too few to expect people elsewhere to learn Finnish their only course is to gain facility in other languages. Some Finnish students are for their major English, but whenever they do so they make up for it by taking a major by in shops where no English is spoken by reverting to world's most primitive language: passive facial expressions, and pointing. I wonder how many stonekeepers in the world would be needed.

THE FORGOTTEN MAN . . .

The spirit was really there when we started to fight back in '42. Songs, and patriotism played revitalized roles in our time. "We've never been licked." Sure it's corny now but nobody thought so at the time.

Everybody's tired of war—so we twist the dial and out off new broadcasts and yawn during newsreels at sights that made us sick in the 40's. While we investigate every corner bookie, last year's high school kid is fighting frostbite, lack of sleep, hunger and God knows how many Gooks.

They can't help it that their war is an anticlimax. They only know that 60,000 of their buddies have been killed or scarred for life—maybe they are nuts. It would still be worth it to—as St. Anthony's kid brother wrote from Korea—"if only we felt that somebody gave a damn."

Ernie Huggett fighting a disorderly conduct charge for arguing with that power-mad speed cop who thinks he's Fearless Fosdick or Mike Sellers starring into cocoa. last year's Queen has his spring. . . .

President Ted (Satch) Martin's Breakfast Club meets each morning to discuss world problems—sex, bootlegging—sex, French postcards—and decline of intellectualism.

Women's 'Mural Swimming Meet Ends Here Tonight

The women's intramural swimming meet goes into the final day tonight at 8:30 in the East campus pool, according to publicity chairman Jane Kirk.

Miss Kirk said that times of last night's winners will be compared with the times of tonight's winners, the lowest times being the winners.

The classification periods ended last week, bringing all practices to a close. During these periods the swimmers were grouped into one of four classes: a non-swimmer, a beginner, an intermediate or an advanced swimmer.

The swimmers will compete in the following events tonight:

Non-swimmers: flutter board dive.

Beginners: free style, wheelbarrow race.

Intermediate: 25-yard free style, floyd fain pong race, 75-yard free style relay.

Advanced: 75-yard medley relay, 25-yard back crawl, 50-yard free style.

Form: breast stroke, side stroke.

Diving: running front dive, one normal dive.

EXHAUSTED 849'ers relax after trying "Go National" week. These unidentified "actives" are shown at their "mansion."

Floyd's New Drama Premieres April 17

By ALAN DOWNES

Carlisle Floyd has announced the dates April 17, 18, and 19 for the premiere performance of his new musical drama Fugitives, which will be financed by the School of Music. The performance will be held in the Music hall with no admission charge.

This latest work of the Florida State University composer is in the style of his earlier drama Slew Dusk, which ran here twice last year and was shown in New York. Floyd uses a unique type of "song dialogue" or "musical conversation"—he sets to music the "everyday lives of plain people." It is believed that he is the only writer today who uses this means to overcome what he considers the false division of the theatre into a "music department" and a "speech department."

Mr Floyd, who teaches piano in the School of Music, is not only writer and composer of Fugitives but director and accompanist as well. He will play the orchestral background during performances.

The full-length three-act play has a cast of five characters. The part of Dan is taken by David Lowe and that of his mother, Mrs Davis, by Barbara Manford. Mary Helen Warner will portray the girl who becomes involved with the family and falls in love with Dan. Jean Forhan will appear as the music Jocie, and Virginia French will be a neighbor.

The production staff includes Rosalyn Clary as overall production manager; Antony Terando, art department, in charge of set design, and Jim Harris, set consruction. Ann Kirn and Doris Clemmons are working on costumes, while Joan Owen is head of the properties committee. Julie Storm is in charge of the house.

Seminar Discusses Development Of Art Sciences Appreciation

Greater development of the arts sciences in Florida along with education and appreciation that such sciences play in everyday life will be discussed during the fourth annual Art Seminar. The seminar takes place at the Ringling Museum in Sarasota, April 9-14. It is sponsored jointly by the Florida State University art department and the museum.

Authorities in the field of art education, music, speech, English, philosophy and political science from the FSU faculty will take part in the program. This is under the direction of Mrs Beatrice Williams, FSU art department.

THE PROGRAM will include Dr Laurence J Lafleur, philosophy; Dr Marian D Irish, head of political science; Dr James Vernon McDonough and Professor Edmund Lewandowski, art department; Adolph E Karl, art; Dr Warren D Allen, musicology department; Miss Nellie Mae Dickinson contemporary dance, and Dr George McCalmon, associate professor of speech.

Dr Claude R Flory, English professor; Dr Ben Foster Kaiser, dean of School of Music and Professor Owen T Sellers, associate professor, Robert Sedore, Eugene N Crabb, and John Boda, School of Music faculty.

OTHER FSU faculty members on the program include Miss Ann Kirn, Laura Lee, Florence Kuva, and Anthony Terenzio, art department; Miss Betsy Ambrose, dance; Nancy Smith and Miss Jean Forhan, physical education department.

The approximately 30 students and faculty will motor to Sarasota down on Sunday. A tourist court near the museum has been engaged for the delegation. While attending the seminar, the students will be entertained by the director of the museum, Everett Austin.

In co-operation with the FSU art department, the Ringling Museum is serving 20 pictures which will be on exhibition for a month after April 17.

Deadline Extended On Beauty Contest

Joel Smith, associate Seneka Signals editor announced that the deadline for entries in the undiscovered campus beauty contest has been extended to April 9.

Individuals as well as sororities and fraternities and other campus organizations may enter a beauty in the contest. The sponsoring group or individual is invited to submit a picture before the deadline.

The winning entry will have her picture published in the last issue of Seneka Signals and a credit line will be given the sponsoring organization if their entry is chosen, Smith said.

Smith asked that the pictures submitted be approximately 8 x 10 with a glossy finish if possible.

Nurses Will Speak At Jax Conference

Dean Vivian Duxbury and associate professor Myrtle Lee Floyd of the School of Nursing will be in Jacksonville Thursday and Friday as speakers at the Nursing Education Conference there.

The conference, a semi-annual event, is a joint meeting of the Florida State League of Nursing Education and the Florida Board of Nurse Examiners.

Dean Duxbury will speak on two topics, "Integration as Related to Educational Programs" and "Integrating Basic Sciences into Nursing Acts." Miss Floyd will discuss "The Integration of Public Health into the Basic Curriculum."

Business Frat Meet

Delta Sigma Pi National Business fraternity will hold a business meeting at 8 p m in the main lounge of the Student Union building.

Men recently pledged are Wes Logan, James Whyte, Lowery Sherman, William Myers, Robert Scott, John Fellows and Robert Wilmarth.

Economic Dep't Has Monthly Seminars

The first in a series of monthly seminars sponsored by the department of economics will be held Thursday at 8 p m in the new Science lecture hall. The seminar is open to the public.

Dr Clark Allen of the economics department has announced that Mr Charles R Silph, chairman of the taxation committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, will be the speaker for the first program.

Mr Silph will speak on the topic "Defend America's Dollar." He recently prepared a booklet by that title urging that mobilization be placed on a pay-as-you-go basis and also calling for an increase in taxation to take care of such a plan.

Dr Phifer Addresses Commissions Meet

Dr Oreg Phifer, of the speech department, will speak on "How the State Department Is Formed" as part of the Student Christian Association's first meeting of commissions.

Bill Hess, president of SCA, announces that the commissions will meet Thursday at 7 p m in 111 Social Work building. Each member of the Association will go into one of the four commissions on:

1. World Relations, 2. Christian Heritage, 3. Personal and Campus Affairs, 4. Social Responsibility.

Dr Phifer's talk comes under the first commission on World Relatedness.

'Hotel For Day' Holds Initial Confab Here

Principal speaker at Florida State University's first "Hotel for a Day" will be Howard L Dayton, president of the national chain of the Howard Dayton hotels. Approximately 100 guests including nationally known hotel and restaurant operators will be present at the event at Wakulla Springs Lodge on May 4.

Theme for the day will be "Hotel Tropicanna" and will revolve around Latin American food, entertainment and decorations, Dr Donald E Lundberg, head of the Department of Hotel Management reported.

Jim Dandy' Play Performances Are Postponed

Director Schedules Show Dates for April 26-28 Due to Many Conflicts

Carl Zerke, director of the forthcoming speech department play Jim Dandy, has announced a change in production dates to April 25, 26, 27, and 28 due to overcrowding of the calendar for the dates reported earlier.

Under the original schedule Jim Dandy, the FSU Comic, and the School of Music Fugitives were to occur during the same week. The speech department offered to postpone its run in order to give students an opportunity to see all three.

DIRECTOR ZERKE said that the extra time would be valuable since the entire play must be rehearsed and changed after the early performance at the Ringling Art Seminar in Sarasota on April 14. During current rehearsals everything is being arranged to fit the pails and gardens of the Ringling Museum; later, all acting must be adapted to the stage and set in the Conrad Theater.

The play itself was described by Mr Zerke as "one of the most controversial of modern plays." Every time it has been produced it has aroused violent argument among both patrons and critics.

IT IS William Saroyan's ninth play and is something quite new and different, even for Saroyan, according to the director. "You've never seen anything like it," he added.

The cast includes Lee Hildman, Ben Hulsey, Ken Martin, Eunice Hall, Marcel Marzilah, nine-year-old David Veterans, Allan Thomson, instructor of English, Bill Upshaw, Claudia Powell and Georgie Cary. Weather permitting, the cast will rehearse every week-day evening on the lawn between the History and Science buildings.

King, Queen Balloting

Tomorrow will be the first and only day for Sophomores to hand in nominations for the Sophomore Hop king and queen and their court. Ballot boxes will be located in both Lower Westcott and the Seminole dining hall lobby.

Lundberg To Speak

One of the principal speakers at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Conference of Dietitians next Thursday, will be Dr Donald E Lundberg, head of the restaurant and hotel management department. The conference will be held at the Municipal Pier building in St Petersburg.

The FSU department head will discuss "The Human Relations Approach", and "Personal Management" during his two talks to the group.

Interfrat Members Wait For Meeting

Members of the Interfraternity Council are still waiting for announcement of a meeting time with President Doak S Campbell to discuss the picketing of Westcott hall by council members March 30. Jack Nooney, IFC president, expressed hope that the meeting would be arranged sometime this week.

Nooney said he hoped that this meeting will settle the differences existing between the IFC and the Seminole men.

NATIONAL ARROW WEEK

celebrating Arrow's 100 Years of style leadership

Campus life has certainly changed these past 100 years. Back in 1851 there were only 160 colleges in the entire country. Today, there are 1,849. No Rose Bowl game at the end of the football season in those days. No football season as a matter of fact. Open surreys were standard equipment of college campuses. Harvard Yard was a cow-colored cow-trails on the landscape. It was then, a century ago, that Arrow started manufacturing their famous collars . . . and in a few years they were setting campus styles. That's one thing that hasn't changed. Arrow is still style leader on America's campuses. College men everywhere know that the Arrow label always stands for smart styles, fine fabrics, meticulous tailoring . . . the superior quality that reflects good taste.

See your Arrow dealer's fabulous Spring selections during National Arrow Week!

FSU Pounds Chocs 22-9; Battle Again Here Today

KEEPIN' SCORE

With Scott Marshall

A YOUNG MAN'S FANCY—During spring a young man's fancy usually turns to love (or thoughts thereof), but yesterday afternoon 54 aspiring Florida State football players turned their fancy's to the popular grid sport with the beginning of the Seminoles' spring training.

It wasn't the usual "Doe!ful" Don Veller who stepped onto the field to direct his first drill, but a seemingly jolly mentor who didn't show too many signs of "give me some boys with beef, these guys are too Dixie."

He had plenty of good sized tackles, guards, and a few hefty backs out yesterday afternoon. However, most of the big boys are new and will have to display their wares before they can expect to take a veteran's place in the 1951 starting lineup.

When you split the backs into their respective positions, you will find approximately half a dozen big fullbacks who are trying out for the Seminole eleven. Of course, Big Mike Sellers heads the list with his 215 pounds.

At the end of the five weeks period—early May—Coach Veller will probably send his Tribe through the usual intra-squad scrimmage. From early predictions, the contest will be held in Doak Campbell Stadium.

* * *

Bits were a dime a dozen yesterday afternoon as Florida State's baseball team whipped Mississippi College 22 to 9. In fact, the Seminoles pounded out 22 base hits, and the Chocs added 11 more to the slugfest.

Highlights of the game were two bases loaded home runs, FSU's Lee Bailey blasted one into right center with Les Molinari, Earl Herold, and Ed Sessions on base in the third, and the Chocs' David Lee connected for a round tripper with Burl Benson, Charlie Ballard, and Hunter on base in the seventh.

Lee, by the way, was the fellow who paved the way for Mississippi College's ground game in its 33-0 licking here during the 1950 football season.

Bailey, Hunter, Sessions, and Bob Throwbridge were the big guns in the 22-hit tilt. Bailey collected two doubles and a single in addition to his homer in five trips to the plate; Hunter hit four singles in five times at bat; Sessions smashed four bingles in four trips, and Throwbridge had a perfect 3-for-3 day. The last named collected three singles in three official times at bat, and walked twice.

In today's final game of the two-game series, Seminole Coach Charlie Armstrong has indicated he will start Bob Hartman, strong right hander, against the Blue Devil conference foes.

Hartman, if you will recall, paced Florida State's basketball team to the District 25 NAIB title and was the big gun in FSU's bid at the national tourney.

He returned from the Kansas City tournament and donned a baseball uniform right away. Today's performance will be Hart's second of the year. He tossed the Seminoles to a victory over Florida Southern earlier in the season at Lakeland.

Big Bob Whitmer, another fellow who took to baseball after serving with Coach Bud Kennedy's sharp cagers, will probably see action on the mound either Friday or Saturday when the Seminoles invade Winter Park for a two-game series with Rollins.

Bill Roetzheim and his mates upset the dope bucket Saturday night by winning the NCAA gymnastics championships.

Coach Harley Price's ace gymnast scored 23 of the Seminole's 26 points, and took first place on the high bar and all-around divisions. Bill had just recently

Tribe Swimmers Break 2 Records To Enter AAU

Two Florida State University school records fell at Austin Texas in the annual National Collegiate Athletic Association's swimming meet Saturday night.

The Seminole swimmers bettered the 400-yard free style mark with a time of three minutes 39.4 seconds in finishing ninth, and Dick Wells established a new school record in the 100-yard free, 52.4. Although Wells failed to qualify, he swam the dash in 52.2 seconds.

Coach Bim Stulta' Florida State swim squad is scheduled to move up to Columbus, Ohio, for the national AAU meet Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Florida State's All-America diver, Roger Slater, placed sixth in low board diving and tenth in high board diving in the NCAA meet, won by Yale.

54 Report to Opening Of Spring Grid Drills

Fifty-four candidates reported to Florida State University's first spring training session yesterday afternoon at the West campus athletic field, according to an announcement by Coach Don Veller.

Included in the group are 20 returning lettermen from last year's Dixie Conference champion and undefeated, untied eleven. Approximately 35 newcomers reported for the first drill. Others will be held each afternoon at 4 during the following five weeks.

"With our line riddled by graduation, calls to the military service, and players dropping out of school, we have a tremendous amount of work to do this spring," Veller said. "We will start right out in full uniform and cram as much action as we can into the next five weeks."

THE SEMINOLES lost five tackles from last year's team and three lettermen ends including starters Ted Hewitt and Norman Eubanks.

The tackles who won't be back are Captain Duke Maltby, Sam Baker and Dub Kendrick, all of whom graduate in June. Freshman Carmine Lombardi who has gone into military service, and Dwight Osha who has dropped out of school.

Other lettermen who won't be returning are seniors Hewitt and Eubanks; quarterback Don Gladden and guard Wendell Dennis, in military service, and end Cliff Powell who has graduated.

Heading the list of 20 lettermen who will return for another season of play are Florida State's inter-collegiate All-State performers, Captain-elect Bill Dewkins, a guard, and fullback Mike Sellers.

Other lettermen with at least one more year include backs Bill Driver, Nelson Italiano, Tommy Brown, Harry Bringger, Mac Huey, Preston Bradley, Dick Turk, Wes Benner, Eddie Gray and Ernie Hugrett; Centers Steve Kalenich and Monte May; guards Bob Schmels and Earl O'Neal; tackles Bob Wodrich and Vic Sacsepanik, ends Jun Arnold and Curtis Campbell.

Among the capable freshman numeral winners or reserves returning are Don Linton, Phil Al-very and Gary Folsom, backs; and linemen Clint Thomas, Lawrence Mero, Jack Phillips, George Spurlins, Bob O'Connell, Tommy Owen.

FSU Linksmen Blast Emory

Florida State University's golf team won its fourth match in seven starts here Saturday afternoon, blasting Emory University 17-13 on the Tallahassee Country club course.

Coach Bob Harbison's Seminole golfers are scheduled to battle Stetson's Hatters from DeLand here Saturday afternoon.

Florida State's Dick Montney was low medalist in Saturday's FSU victory with a two under par 70. Montney went on to trounce Emory's Sid Beach 3-0.

The triumph gives the Seminole linksmen a record of four wins, two loses, and one tie.

Tribe Blasts 22 Hits; Hartman Hurls at 3:00

Florida State University's baseball team pounded out 22 hits here yesterday afternoon to blast Mississippi College 22-9 in the opening game of a scheduled two-game series.

The two teams are slated to clash again this afternoon at 3 on the West campus diamond, and Coach Charlie Armstrong has named versatile Bob Hartman to start on the mound for the Seminoles.

Florida State, in winning its sixth game in seven starts, collected three home runs, two triples, three doubles, and 13 singles off three Choc hurlers. Freddie Hahn, the starting pitcher, was charged with the loss.

Veteran Ed Sessions hurled a five-hitter during his 6⅓ inning stint on the mound and received credit for the victory. Freshman Leron Rice worked the final 2⅔ frames, giving up five hits.

The three Mississippi College moundsmen officially faced 46 batters, and walked nine and hit a pair.

Second baseman Lee Bailey and Sessions paced the Seminoles at the plate with four hits in five trips at bat. Bailey pounded out two doubles, a single, and a bases loaded home run. The big blow came in the third with Les Molinari, Earl Herold, and Sessions on base. Sessions aided his own cause with four bingles.

Glenn Gresham and Rice also connected for home runs off the Choc burlers, Gresham's coming in the fifth with Herold and Jailey on base, and Rice's coming in the eighth with Herold on base.

FSU 'Mural Head Gets Handbook Reproduced in Book

Ed Williamson, Florida State University director of intramurals and assistant professor of physical education for men, has received some unusual recognition in "The Intramural Handbook," a textbook used and respected in colleges across the nation.

Williamson's "FSU Intramural Handbook" has been reproduced in full in the text, and covers eight pages of the current edition in its presentation as an example.

The detailed reproduction of Williamson's work is so complete that it includes the Seminole seal, and Williamson's telephone nomber.

The textbook is written by a pair of professors fro mthe College of the Pacific and the University of Nebraska.

Senate to Get 3 Amendments About Courts

Turnbull to Introduce Amendments; One Calls For No Confidence Vote

A series of three constitutional amendments affecting the Judicial system of the University Government's Association, will be introduced at the next regular meeting of the Senate Tuesday by Freshman Senator Jim Turnbull.

The first amendment provides for the removal of judicial and University court members by a vote of "no confidence." The second measure which will have to be enacted by a vote of the student body, provides that where the constitution calls for one year experience requirements, any time over one half of the regular calendar year would be understood to mean a year.

THE THIRD amendment to be submitted by Turnbull says that experience requirements for judicial court may be service on the University court and experience requirements on the University court may be service on the Judicial court.

Turnbull says he expects some opposition on the amendments but that he is proposing them in the best interests of the student body.

Excerpts from the amendment to remove Court officers are as follows:

THAT WHENEVER a petition of 200 student signatures shall be presented to the Chairman of the Elections Committee asking for an election of "no-confidence" on a member of either Judicial court or University court, said election shall be held within one week of the presentation of petition.

"The ballots of the election shall carry the name of the member contested, his position, and the words "yes" and "no." Unless the member contested shall receive a majority of the votes marked "yes," the member shall be relieved of office upon announcement of the vote."

ANY VACANCY caused by such action shall be filled by appointment or special election. No person may be elected to a court from which he has been once removed."

CONGRATULATED—New speaker of the 1951 Florida Senate, Wallace E. Sturgis of Ocala (left) is being congratulated by two visit wishers. Sturgis took over the gavel as the senate convened Tuesday at noon.

Senate Gets New Publications Bill

The University Senate committee on the Board of Student Publications bill submitted its third revision at Tuesday's Senate meeting. This time the bill was referred to a committee of the whole Senate, which met last night after press time.

The latest version would set up an elective student board to determine "the best interest of the student body" and to see that the various editors adhered to this policy, under threat of suspension. The bill does not define the term "best interest."

Two types of criticism of the proposed statute were voiced. Sophomore Senators Jim Evans and Pete Williams pointed out weaknesses in the measure as written, such as the "lack of specific definitions and limitations."

"What is to prevent the editor from suspending the editor again and again, month after month?" was Evans comment, and Williams added, "How can a three-man board decide what is 'the best interest' of the students?"

On the other hand, freshman Senator Jim Turnbull spoke against the whole idea of outside regulation for publications. He called for a constitutional amendment repealing the requirement for a Board of Student Publications, leaving to the courts the right to hear libel suits.

"Failey should be determined in democratic staff meetings," Turnbull said. He claimed also that the law contemplated would conflict with both the state and national constitutions.

After a short discussion the Senate decided to close debate and meet Thursday in committee of the whole. No decision can be reached until the next regular meeting of the Senate on Tuesday.

The Senate also heard the first reading of Ronald Koons' new Traffic Safety Court bill, which provides for the organization, functions, jurisdiction and authority of the court and establishes the traffic control code.

Upon passage of the bill the University Council and the Senate will appoint the chairman and justices. Next year, according to the bill, the court would be elected in the general elections by the respective classes.

Governor Skips School Question, Asks No More Taxes be Imposed

Recommends Establishment of Price Controls, Strengthening of Present Criminal Measures

By EARL DOBERT

Sidestracking any mention of the controversial school question, Governor Fuller Warren Tuesday told the combined Senate and House membership of the 1951 Legislature that no more taxes of any kind should be levied.

He said "It would be almost confiscatory to impose additional taxes upon consumers who already are paying 80.8 per cent of state taxes."

In addition, the governor recommended:

1—Greater highway safety.

2—Stringent laws against traffic violators and especially against drunken drivers.

3—Legislation strengthening the present criminal laws.

4—The establishment of price controls through legislation during this present emergency.

5—A constitutional amendment "providing that all real estate, except that now exempt from taxation by the homestead exemption amendment to the Constitution, and real estate owned by charitable, religious and educational institutions and now exempt from taxation by the Constitution, be taxed not exceeding two mills per year, for a period of ten years, the proceeds to be used wholly and exclusively for flood control."

6—That the Legislature "mamorialize Congress to make needed hospital and medical facilities available for the veterans of the state."

7—Re-enactment of a Constitutional amendment exempting motor vehicles from taxation.

8—That the Unemployment Compensation Law be amended so as to provida benefits for persons unemployed by reason of sickness."

9—That a law be passed "requiring that when real property is sold, if there be any difference between the sale price and the assessed valuation by the county tax assessor, the seller be required to pay local taxes on a valuation equal to the sale price."

10—That unclaimed bank deposits be forfeited to the state.

11—A central purchasing agency.

12—A civil service law.

13—The study of the study of democracy in high schools.

14—Assistance for "aged, dependent and blind citizens in amounts sufficient to provida the necessities of life."

The governor said "Florida was never in sounder condition economically. It is for these prosperous than it was two years ago

Collins Expected To Introduce Bill On Aid to Schools

By BILL FALCONER

It is expected that Senator Leroy Collins of Leon County will introduce a bill in the Florida Senate today setting up a program of state aid to county school systems.

The proposed bill would have the State government give the counties enough money to insure a minimum level of education. Another feature of the bill would insure teachers a salary in proportion to the academic degree which they hold.

There was no action in the education committees of the House of Representatives yesterday, but it is expected that these committees will be meeting today or continuing to education.

SENATOR COLLINS is chairman of the Senate's committee on Education. Members of the committee are Cecil E. Leard, vice-chairman, Senators Baird, Brackin, Gautier, Lewis, Lindlar, Morrow and Shivars.

Members of House Education Committee "A" are Roy Surles, chairman; Georga Nesmith, vice-chairman; and representatives Beasley, Haley, Cramer, Rowell, Rood, Atkinson, Morgan, Grimes, Roberts, Jones Burwell, Burton, Courtney, Burnsed, and Turlington.

Members of House Education Committee "B" are: Glenn Summers, chairman; John Hathaway, vice-chairman. Other representatives on the committee are Whitlock, Bailey, Jernigan, McFarland, Pittman, Belser, Simpson, Boyd, Ayres, Kirkland, Saunders, Melvin, Smith, Williams, Jacobs, Webb.

Flying High Starts Final Rehearsals

The FSU circus', "Flying High," is hard at work rehearsing for its performances in Tallahassee Auditorium April 19-21.

Some of the equipment of the circus is now being moved to the stadium from the practice grounds on West Jefferson.

The circus, which has gained nation-wide fame for its international fame, was created in 1949 under the direction of Coach Jack Hatchin. This year a 35 piece Circus band will provida music for the circus' two-hour show, and an actual professional lighting system will be used with red, white and blue lights to bring out the fluorescent colors of the new costumes to be worn by the performers.

Flambeau Writer Resigns Position

Jerry Thomas, columnist for the Florida Flambeau, has resigned to work in the two-month session of the Florida Legislature.

The text of his resignation letter is as follows:

"It is with regret that I must submit my resignation as columnist for the Florida Flambeau. At present I am interning in the State Treasurer's office and also working for the State Legislature each day, so you can fully appreciate why I must resign from the Flambeau.

"I have enjoyed working with you and the rest of the Flambeau troops very much during the past year."

Thomas' column, "Among Other Things," will be written by Earl Dobert, who authored the column during the school year 1949-50.

NAM Tax Chairman Hits at Price Controls

Price controls and rationing provide no lasting protection against price increases which, sooner or later, come from deficit financing, insists Mr Charles R Sligh, Jr, chairman of the tax-action committee of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Mr Sligh expressed this opinion last night when he spoke before the first meeting of the Economics seminar in the science lecture room, on "Defend America's Dollar."

THIS WAS the first of a program of monthly meetings to be presented by this department of economics. Some of the sessions will be public lectures by visiting scholars and industrialists, and other meetings will consist of papers prepared by members of the department of economics. Graduate students who will report on research currently under way.

The May meeting of the Economics seminar will be a public lecture on the Federal Reserve Bank policy which is to be given by one of the members of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, according to program chairman.

MR SLIGH told his audience last night that the twin enemies of every American today are through deficits would endanger the very foundation of the nation's welfare and security," he said.

"In a practical sense, at the core of our culture, wealth and civilization is a fixed, stable currency system," the speaker emphasized. "A sure road to devastation and physical ruin is steady depreciation of a nation's money. Diseased for these dangers, inherent in a steady rise of the public debt, is an effective way of playing the enemy's game, for he would far rather we destroy ourselves than that he be forced to do it," he continued.

THE INWARDNESS volume and wide diffusion of our wealth have so far effectively immunized us against socialism and communism, the speaker concluded, but these bulwarks will protect us only while they have the support of a money and credit system strong enough for confidence and sound enough for sacrifice.

National Deferment Examinations Given For Male Students

A National Selective Service College Qualification Test may be taken by all male students for deferment from military training, according to a letter received by Dr J B Culpepper, Dean of Student Welfare.

Under this plan a student will be deferred if he makes a score of 70 or higher on the examination or a national competitive examination or if he is in the top half of his freshman class, the top 2/3 of his sophomore class, the top 3/4 of his junior class, and the top in his class.

The student making the required score on the test will be deferred regardless of his standing in his class.

Tests will be administered at FSU Saturday, May 26; Saturday, June 16, and Saturday, June 30. Printed instructions concerning the tests will be received by the National Selective Service Office to local draft boards about April 12.

As soon as information and instructions concerning the tests are received, directions will be sent to students.

CORRECTION

Herbert Johns of Live Oak was the student killed in an auto accident near Bean City, Florida, last Saturday. It was not. Edward Jones of Oakland Park as originally reported in the Tuesday issue of the Flambeau.

'Series' Plans Student Poll

Students Suggest Type Of '51-'52 FSU Artists

Plans were announced today for a "Student Preference Poll" to be conducted by the committee on recitals, plays, lectures and art exhibits, in cooperation with the Flambeau.

John Nawton Bakar, committee chairman, reported that the committee was "most interested in an adequate sample of student opinion on a number of possible concerts or lectures now being considered for the 1951-52 season."

"OF COURSE, because of tentative budgets and uncertain booking dates on many of the possible events, the committee cannot at this time guarantee any certain one of the events which will be listed in the student preference poll," Baker explained. "However, all committee members are sincerely interested in examining the results of this survey."

The committee is hoping to receive 1,000 responses in the student preference poll. Tabulated results will be announced in a future issue of the Flambeau. The ballots will be carried in the April 10 or April 13 Flambeau. Approximately 24 possible events, ranging in size from an opera company down to an individual speaker, and in price from $5.000 to $800 will be included.

"THESE possible events represent the preliminary suggestions of the committee on recitals, plays, lectures and art exhibits, and were chosen from some 235 possibilities considered by the committee," Baker reported.

Stan Gould Elected WFSU's Manager For Coming Year

Stan Gould was elected WFSU's station manager for next year at the general staff meeting held Wednesday.

OTHERS who were elected to FSU executive staff positions are Neil Cassidy, program director; Terry Porter, production manager; and Leo Mellon, chief announcer.

There are four other major positions open to those of script director, record librarian, director of public relations, and director of public relations.

The general staff unanimously passed a resolution at the meeting authorizing committee that the executive staff consider all persons who have filed for the respective positions and nominate persons to fill the vacancies to be later presented to the general staff at their next meeting for their approval or rejection.

ALL candidates on the former list will be left there but a reconsideration will be made at the time which will fill the position most efficiently.

Stan, newly elected manager, is a tall, deep-voiced junior whose home town is Middleburg, N Y. This year he has served the "Voice of the Seminole" as program director.

This year's chief announcer, Leo, will be next year's program director. A junior who is also from Middletown, you can hear the tests will be given regularly announcing practically every day WFSU broadcasts.

A BLONDE miss with a shy smile is Terry Porter, next year's production manager. This year, WFSU's record library and scripts have kept her free hours busy. She is a sophomore from Jacksonvilla.

Leo, a junior from Pittsburgh, has been the student station's special events director. Next, his duties will consist of assigning announcers for WFSU's broadcast hours and training new and old announcers alike.

Job-Getting Confab Hears Two Speakers

Say Basis For Successful Career Is Hard Work

Seniors and others attending the second annual job-getting seminar Tuesday and Wednesday were told that the basis for any successful career is the willingness to learn, desire to succeed and hard work.

Lester Sturdivis, training director for Mass Brothers, department store in Tampa, and C H Ratliff, a district manager for the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, both emphasized that there is no substitute for hard work and ambition in making a successful career.

Both speakers said that higher education formed an important background in enabling their personnel to become specialists in various fields and avantually to be able to hold sub-executive and executive jobs.

DR J FRANK Dame, dean of the School of Business, presided over a panel discussion which included Mr Sturtridge, Mr Ratliff, G E Tully, director of vocational guidance and placement; Glenn Murphy, School of Business; James Gilreath, 1950 FSU graduate, and Harry F Steela, Jr, personnel manager of International Minerals and Chemicals corporation at Mulberry, Florida.

The panel members answered numerous questions on how to look for jobs, personal interviews and other factors in getting employment.

Faculty Play Seats Sold for 60 Cents

Reserved seat tickets to the faculty play, The Madwoman of Chaillot, went on sale yesterday in lower Westcott, the bookstore, and the West campus post office, according to an announcement by Mr Lester Moore, director of the play. The play will open next Thursday, April 12, in Westcott auditorium, for a three-day run.

All seats are reserved and all tickets are priced at 60 cents including tax. Sales at all three of the above locations will continue through the run of the performance.

THE PLAY itself was described by the director as a "delightful phantasia comedy" centered in the antics of four slightly loony ladies. "It's a play about people who think they can happen," he said.

The time and place of action is a little French cafe in Chaillot, a suburb of Paris, and the characters who eat into the act include everyone from the president to the sewer-cleaner.

Mr Moore expressed the hope that more faculty and staff members would come out and help in stage-work, set construction, costuming, business, and ushering. Volunteers are asked to drop in at rehearsals in Westcott auditorium any night after 7:30 or call him at the English building. Bill Wood and Jim Atwood is in charge of the entire production as assistant director. Mr Moore is director. the staff includes Joan Coleman, in charge of costumes; Grace Wilson and the Misses LaLibete, stage and set, and on the programs committee, Mary Beth Willbanks, Ann Kern, and Bill Watson.

In the lead part of the "maddest madwoman" is Janat Smith, professor of home and family life, and her three crazy friends are Percy Flynn, Jean Johnson and Faye Tyler Norton. Other characters will be a policeman, played by Ken Yudowich; the police ser-

FSU Court Fails To Decide Case

Adams Vs Ball Question Still Is Major Issue

After a three-hour session Tuesday night and a closed meeting on Wednesday, the University Court was still unable to reach a decision in the case of Adams versus Ball. A third meeting last night was too late for the Flambeau deadline.

Originally, Jennie Adams contested the election of James Ball to the chairmanship of Judicial Court on the ground that he was not qualified under the one-year-experience provision of the constitution as amended last.

AT THE March 27 court session, however, Ball surprised the court with the allegation that the votes in the amendment election of May of last year were never counted. He asked for a dismissal. The session last Tuesday was devoted to the clarification of the later issue.

At this meeting Ball reiterated his claim that the amendment was not in effect since the votes had never been counted. Bill Shipherst, who was elections chairman at the time of the vote in question, testified that to the best of his knowledge "the ballots were never counted nor the results turned over to Dean Culpepper's office." Finally Jennie Adams admitted, "It is pretty clear that the ballots haven't been counted."

HOWEVER, the amendment in question is repeated as part of the traffic court amendment passed two months ago. Jennie contended therefore, that regardless of the status of last year's vote, Ball was still elected illegally under this year's amendment.

On the other hand, it was Ball's argument that since the only valid requirement was that passed two months ago, he had never been given a chance to qualify under the new rule in preparation for the UOA elections.

This is the point on which the case now turns. The Flambeau will report next Tuesday the outcome of last night's session.

when the 1949 session of the Legislature convened."

Dressed in dark blue and wearing a snappy blue polka-dot tie, the governor stated that "Florida is enjoying its biggest and most profitable tourist season. . . "

"INCOME TO Florida citrus growers has almost doubled since the enactment of the Citrus Code by the 1949 Session of the Legislature."

Warren then proceeded to give the condition of the state regarding livestock, the budget commission recommendations, industrial development, roads and highways, the State Revenue Department, the Motor Vehicle Department, the Florida Industrial commission, the State Hotel Commission, the State Board of Conservation, flood control, public health, and civil defense.

SOLONS WERE much surprised that Warren made no mention of the increased funds requested by the millionaire trustees of Rollins and the institutions of higher learning.

In so doing, the governor left the legislators to do as they pleased regarding the budgets of these programs.

In discussing the budget the governor reiterated the policy of the budget commission in saying the total budget recommended to the legislature "should not exceed anticipated income for the biennium, beginning July 1, 1951."

He said "It is my earnest recommendation that this session of the legislature do not appropriate more than present taxes will yield."

BEFORE A JAM packed gallery the white-haired governor said in the "law enforcement in Florida is excellent. FBI reports show that Florida's crime rate is among the lowest in the 48 states."
